MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

POSTAGE.

Via Southampton (pre-payment compulsory), letters under
1 oz. 6s. 6d. | 2 oz. 2s. 6d. | 4 oz. 4s. 6d.
1 oz. 1s. 6d. | 3 oz. 3s. 6d. | 5 oz. 5s. 6d.

Books, with the ends of the covers open (not exceeding 3 lbs. in weight), if sent via Southampton, under 1 lb. 4d.; under 1 lb. 8d.; under 1 lb. 1s. 4d.; under 1 lb. 2s.; under 2 lbs. 2s. 8d.; under 2 lbs. 3s. 4d.; and under 3 lbs. 4s. Postage-stamps must be affixed.

1 oz. 6s. 6d. | 1 oz. 1s. 6d. | 1 oz. 3s. 6d.
1 oz. 1s. 6d. | 2 oz. 2s. 6d. | 1 oz. 3s. 6d.

Newspapers for the East Indies, when not exceeding 4 oz., 2d. each; when above 4 oz. and not exceeding 8 oz., 3d. each—an additional penny being charged for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. For all countries or places eastward of Suez, the charge is 2d., whatever the weight of the newspaper.

Books under 1 lb. 6d.; under 1 lb. 1s.; and for every additional 1 lb. an additional 1s.

The Mails for China are despatched at the same rate of postage as those to India; but must be pre-paid.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

Through the considerate kindness of our Calcutta correspondent we are enabled to give later news from that Presidency than is furnished by the papers received by the Bombay Mail of the 12th of December. On the 28th of November the Right Hon. James Wilson arrived in Calcutta, and on the 30th was present at the annual dinner on St. Andrew's day, given by the Scotch community. Nothing, however, fell from his lips on that occasion beyond general expressions of good will towards the world in general. The right honourable gentleman was equally guarded at the first meeting of the Legislative Council, when he contented himself with a brief acknowledgment of the friendly reception he had met with from his colleagues. Sir James Outram, however, made up for the reticence of the cautious Scot, and, as will be seen in another department of this paper, delivered a long speech in explanation of the intentions of the members of the Government in exempting themselves from the action of the Income-tax Bill. According to Sir James, whose word is unimpeachable, they proposed to order their respective assessments to be deducted from their pay-bills, as soon as the measure was passed. If they did not announce this purpose at the time, it was simply because they never supposed that English gentlemen would be suspected by their own countrymen of making such an invidious and dishonourable distinction in favour of themselves. There is no more gallant or honourable man bearing the name of Briton than "the Bayard of India," but it is clear that he is neither a statesman nor a man of business.

Mr. Wilson was expected to leave Calcutta on the 8th Dec., to spare the Governor-general the expense and loss of dignity that must have been incurred had his Excellency returned to Calcutta to greet his subordinate. So Mahomed has elected to go to the Mountain.

Lord Canning appears to have addressed the native princes and chiefs at Agra with remarkable force and ability. The Maharaja of Gwalior receives an augmentation of territory to the annual value of £30,000, and permission to increase the strength of his army. His arrears of tribute are further remitted, and above all, he is authorised to adopt a successor in default of direct lineal issue. The Rajah of Jypore and the Nawab of Tonk were also suitably rewarded for their active loyalty at a time of general defection or indifference, and various gifts and honours were bestowed upon chiefs of lesser note.

There is still some doubt as to the death of the Nana Sahib, which leads to the manufacture of numerous contradictory letters and paragraphs in the Indian papers. It is not, however, a matter of any real importance, especially as we learn by a recent telegram from Aden that 2,000 rebels, with their leaders, Mammoo Khan, Khan Bahadoor, Beni Mahdo Sing, and the two sons of the last-named, have been taken prisoners. This capture was probably effected by the Nepaulese troops, to whom they would be less unwilling to surrender than to a British officer—possibly from a conviction that their lives would be thus secured.

The expedition to China is at length seriously occupying the attention of the Indian Government. Sir Hope Grant had arrived in Calcutta to assume the chief command, and it is stated that the Bengal force will consist of H.M.'s 27th, 53rd, 60th, 76th, and 99th regiments of foot, two battalions of Royal Artillery, and 1st and 3rd Bengal Europeans (where are they?). Madras will contribute Captain Desborough's battery R. A., two battalions of Golundauze Artillery, three companies of Sappers and Miners, and the 44th and 66th regiments; while Bombay sends H.M.'s 31st and 56th, with a small mountain train. It is also affirmed that an equal force of Sikhs will be despatched from Calcutta.

Some of our Indian contemporaries bewail the delay in promotion which will result from the absorption of thirty colonels of the Bengal army. Perhaps their sorrow may be assuaged by our assurance that there is no foundation for the rumour they have accepted and circulated.

In consequence of Lieut.-General Bonner having resigned the appointment of Inspector-General of Stores, which he has held with so much ability for several years, he is, we understand, to be succeeded by the Hon. Gerald C. Talbot, who was private Secretary to Lord Stanley whilst his Lordship held the office of Secretary of State for India.

The Index to the seventeenth volume of "Allen's Indian Mail" will be given with our next number.

CALCUTTA CORRESPONDENCE.

CALCUTTA, December 3, 1859.

The Hon. Mr. Wilson arrived on the 28th Nov., and was present at the St. Andrew's dinner given on the 30th at the Town Hall. On that occasion some two hundred Scotch gentlemen were present, and Mr. Wilson had a very good opportunity of seeing and making acquaintance with the society of Calcutta in one of its most genial humours. He said little, and little was expected from him on such an occasion, but he made the acquaintance of some "longheaded" Scotch gentlemen, with whom he has since had interviews, and who have enlightened him on many points which are a sealed book to his official friends. The first is the enormous increase of the value of native produce within the last three or four years. This produce pays a duty to Government on an estimated valuation, and as this valuation may be renewed, it is calculated that the receipts of Government will be doubled if a fresh valuation is now made at the present high prices. This, it is believed, will produce a large sum of money. Whether the "long-headed" gentleman who gave this information expected Mr. Wilson to arrive at this conclusion is not known; but the fact is as I relate it, and we may expect a new tariff of the value of produce immediately.

It was said Lord Canning was to pay a flying visit to Calcutta, and go back again to complete his tour, but Mr. Wilson has put a stop to this by announcing his intention to go himself to see the Governor-general. Mr. Wilson, who sees everything through the glasses of finance, has calculated that it would cost the country Rs. 35,000 for the visit of the Governor-general to Calcutta and his return; while his journey up and down will only cost Rs. 7,000. Therefore he will go. But, secondly—though a matter of secondary consideration—it would be lowering the Viceroy in the eyes of the people were he to come 800 miles to see a member of the Supreme Council, and this, Mr. Wilson wisely argues, is not desirable.

The officers to receive claims for compensation have been appointed, and from the proofs of losses their instructions require them to obtain from claimants, it is calculated that so few will be established that one hundred thousand pounds will more than pay all claims that will be past under the present rules. A claimant in Calcutta told me that such proofs were required from him by the Commissioner as would not be necessary in a court of law. Production of books, sworn witnesses, &c., &c., were absolutely necessary for proof of claim. If these rules are carried out in the North West Provinces no claim will be or can be substantiated. The whole is a miserable juggle, and the unfortunate Europeans who were entitled to the protection of Government, and who fought to restore the authority of Government, must sit down and suffer their losses with what patience they may.

Mr. Wilson, it is said, will leave on the 8th.

SIR JAMES OUTRAM ON THE INCOME-TAX BILL.

At the meeting of the Legislative Council on Saturday, the 3rd of December, at which the Right Hon. Jas. Wilson was present, Sir James Outram made the following speech:—

"I gladly seize the opportunity this moment affords me, I believe without infringing the standing orders, to put myself right with the public, in a matter having connection with the Bill against which this (a petition against the proposed Income-tax) is a protest, affecting the honour of my colleagues in the Government of India and myself, though I deem that the public has done us grievous wrong in so readily assuming that we could be capable of the dishonour which has been attributed to us by the public press.

"I say dishonour, for surely 'twere most dishonourable in us to conspire, as we are accused of having done, to impose burdens on our countrymen and native subjects in India, from which we exempt ourselves.

"I speak for myself alone, without concert with, or authority from, His Excellency the Viceroy or my Hon. Colleagues, who possibly may consider it unnecessary, or that it would be undignified, to defend themselves against what they are conscious are utterly unfounded calumnies. But I confess myself to be, as a soldier, more sensitive to attacks on my honour than public men usually are perhaps, and I will not silently submit to have my honour, in my official capacity, called in question, any more than I would suffer my honour to be assailed as a private individual.

"High in position as a seat in the Council of India is, and lucrative as its salary, I must say that I consider the dignity and emoluments of the office more than counterbalanced by the virulent slander and vindictive misrepresentation to which its incumbent is now so frequently exposed, however undeserved. It was hard enough to be subjected to the unscrupulous assaults of the local press, but now that some of the most respectable and influential of the organs of public opinion in England, so readily adopt and give currency to those misrepresentations, I confess that to me the position is almost unbearable, and that it would afford me more pleasure than regret to be released from it. So much is this my feeling that I declare that, did my present circumstances admit of my doing so, I would at once solicit to be relieved, although I myself have less of slander and misrepresentation to complain of, perhaps, than others of my colleagues.

"Without at present referring to former attacks, especially on the high-minded nobleman at the head of the Government, I shall merely now notice those which have found utterance since our Bill for licensing trades and professions was introduced to the council at our last sittings, and which I find thus summarised and commented on as regards the English press by the London correspondent of the Friend of India, as published in that paper the day before yesterday.

"They (certain of the leading papers) have reproached, in no measured terms, the exemption of the servants of Government which it was sought to establish. That project has been defeated, but the odium of having proposed it sticks to the Government, and all the water in the river cannot wash out the stain. Public confidence can never again be placed in men who proposed to exempt themselves from taxation, to which they were ready to subject all other classes. Nor has it failed to be noticed to the damage of the Governor-general unjustly, that both in the original and in the amended proposition his own personal interests have been held sacred. You know that one act of meanness does more to destroy a man's reputation than a dozen acts of despotism, and it is to be hoped that this anomaly will be fully and satisfactorily cleared up."

"I am happy to observe that the writer himself considers the strictures on the Governor-general to be unjust, and I shall soon satisfy the public, I trust, that they are most unjust, but I have now to deal with the accusations brought against the Government, as a body, by the public here and at home.

"We are accused, in the first place, of having sought to screen the servants of the State (including ourselves, i. e., the Governor-general and his colleagues in the Government) from sharing the burdens imposed on our countrymen and native subjects in India. And then, on failure of effecting that assumed object, we are accused of designing to exempt ourselves from bearing any share of the burdens we proposed imposing on the servants of Government. Now, there is not the shadow of a foundation for either of those accusations, as I am about to show. And I trust that in doing so I may not be deemed by my honourable colleagues in the Government amenable to the charge of indiscreetly divulging aught that should be concealed; for I myself can see no objection to its being proclaimed at Charing

Cross, that we did at one time contemplate levying a contribution from all servants of the State, at the graduated scale of five per cent. on salaries not exceeding Rs. 500 monthly, ten per cent. on salaries ranging from Rs. 500 to 5,000, and twenty per cent. on salaries above Rs. 5,000. And though I know it is quite unnecessary for me so to assure you, honourable sirs, yet, as the uncharitable public might require such a declaration from me, I do declare, therefore, that no consideration that the heaviest burden would fall on ourselves by that measure, influenced us in subsequently substituting the more extended scheme of Mr. Harrington's bill, whereby all classes who could legally be reached would be taxed at the estimated rate of 3 per cent. on income. Nor was it ever for one moment contemplated by the Government to exempt either its members or any servants of the State from the same rate of taxation on their salaries (though I admit that I myself pleaded exemption from regimental officers not on the staff, on what appeared to me just grounds), but we did consider it inadvisable to specify those salaries in the Bill, because thereby a precedent would be established as uncalled for as undesirable, admitting the right of this council to interfere with the action of Government in lowering or raising the salaries of its servants, which the Government has full power to decree without the intervention of any legislative act. And the taxation of such salaries would have been decreed by Government accordingly, simultaneously with the passing of the Bill.

"Afterwards, when, in deference to the opinion of this Council, we waived that objection, and official salaries were brought within the provisions of the Bill, the Government was still debarred from including those salaries which had been fixed by Act of Parliament (i. e., those of the Governor-general and members of the Council of India, and of the members of the Legislative Council), it having been pronounced by our law-adviser that such salaries cannot legally be interfered with by any Act of this Council. But it never, of course, was intended by any member of the Government to claim exemption on that plea from equal taxation on his own salary, and it was unanimously resolved by us that each member should personally direct the amount to be deducted from his monthly abstract, and paid into the treasury, from the date on which the Bill should come into operation; and we did not, and could not, doubt that the honourable members of the Legislative Council would do likewise. So impossible did it appear to me that it ever could be conceived that any honourable man, and in high position, would desire to evade his just dues to the State, that I certainly was somewhat astonished when our hon. and learned Vice-President, and his hon. and learned colleague, stood up in this assembly to declare that they would act honestly in the matter, as if anticipating that such a charge might be brought against us. So entirely supererogatory did I regard it for any gentleman to volunteer so unnecessary an assurance, that I really thought it self-degrading to do so, as admitting the possibility of its ever being supposed that I could do otherwise than act honestly. I abstained, therefore, from following the example of those hon. and learned gentlemen. And I presume all other hon. members were likewise deterred from doing so by similar feelings.

"It must be evident to us all now, however, that the honourable and learned members were right, and that we, not learned members, were wrong. They have been extolled by the discriminating public, for their patriotism and magnanimity, and for their independence, not following our base example; while we are regarded by that generous public as devoid of those qualities. The honourable and learned gentleman judged human nature (British nature) more shrewdly than we, and this I account for by the fact, that they, as members of the legal profession, left home at a mature age, after rubbing shoulders for years with their fellow-men in England since arriving at man's estate—whereas we, having come to India as mere boys, and having had no experience of personal contests with our countrymen in the hard struggles of life, had associated with them only during brief furloughs, and had seen them only in holiday attire, a merely social intercourse, wherein the amenities had no need to be discarded, neither party having aught to gain from, or lose to, the other. We gave our countrymen credit for the more generous feelings which inspire confidence in the integrity of men whose long services and tried character might well raise them above the reach of suspicion. But we reckoned without our host. We now find that no character, however high, can shield us from the suspicion that we are as regardless of honour as the meanest shoeblack in London streets. It has to me been a lesson that will last till the end of my life. I now feel that high rank in the army, high honours derived from my Queen and my country, acknowledgment by Parliament, and forty years tried service to the State, are no guarantee for my honesty in the eyes of my countrymen. Never hereafter shall I claim exemption from man's distrust on such flimsy grounds.

"But this is not all. Not merely is the Government of India deemed by the public here and at home, or at least by their press organ, so selfishly mean and tyrannical, as to exempt itself from the exactions it heartlessly wrings from its subjects and servants, but we, its members, are assumed, I observe, to be imbued with such overweening self-conceit and blind prejudice, that we are expected by the people of England to throw every obstacle in our power, from sheer jealousy, if not worse influence, in the way of the right hon. gentleman who has come to aid us in our financial difficulties, so devoid of patriotism, so regardless of our duty to the State, and of the interests of the millions entrusted to our rule, and so utterly dishonourable, as wilfully to obstruct any beneficial measures that do not emanate from ourselves. To this I scorn to reply. The right hon. gentleman needs not, I am sure, any assurance from me, of the cordial, earnest, and honest support he will always receive from his colleagues in the Government—(hear, hear,)—during the prosecution of the arduous task which with such generous self devotion he has undertaken. We are bound in honour, we are bound by duty, and it is our most earnest desire, to aid our right hon. colleague in the undertaking to the utmost of our power and ability, and I am confident that he will as cordially accept our co-operation as it will most cheerfully and heartily be given by us—(hear, hear). He knows too well the nature of the duty before him to require me to tell him how ungracious, as well as arduous, a task he will find it to draw taxes from her Majesty's subjects in India, heretofore almost wholly exempt from direct taxation; but this much I may tell him, as the result of my own experience among them, that I do believe that were the Angel Gabriel to descend from heaven to apportion the share each individual should bear of the common burden, not one of them but would protest against his decision.

"Great as has been the outcry against the Licence Bill, I am satisfied of this, that our right hon. colleague will derive benefit from the discussion it has raised, if not from the Bill itself, whether it be adopted or not, either in its integrity or in a modified form; for it has elicited information as to the resources of all classes in India, which otherwise could not easily have been obtained: each class of the people, in claiming exemption for itself, having zealously volunteered to show how other classes may be mulcted more readily, if not more justly."

The vice-president (Sir James) concluded with an expression of thanks to his hon. colleagues of the council for their kind attention and sympathy throughout his first attempt to defend himself and them from undeserved reproach.

THE VICEROY AT AGRA.

The durbar of the 30th November was well attended, and though the process of filling it was a long one, was well packed at last. The array of officers in uniform far outshone the dresses, gorgeous as these were, in which the native chiefs had arrayed themselves. Lord Canning looked well and spoke well. Lord Clyde appeared also in full vigour, though his share in the proceedings was confined to sitting in his gilt chair under the canopy, and looking on,—sit still he certainly did not. Gwalior looked sulky and impassive; Jeypore restless and inquisitive. It was curious, by the way, to see the difference of complexion between these two chiefs, the countenance of the high bred Jeypore Rajah being scarcely a shade darker than the "unblanched cheek" of the Viceroy himself. Strange to say, the first of the chiefs who made any reply to the speeches delivered by the Governor-general was the little Rajah of Ulwar, whose feelings were poured in an undertone into the sympathising ear of Mr. Beadon, and by him translated into English for the benefit of the assembly. Thanks for the Viceroy's good advice was the purport of the harangue, and possibly a promise of complying with it, but this we did not catch. The example thus set was followed by the old Nawab of Tonk, whose portly figure seemed to suggest to the Governor-general, his happy allusion to the "stout" defence of his capital made by the nawab against the rebels. It is curious to see how completely natives lose, under the influence of nervousness, all natural dignity of manner, on such occasions as this. They are not generally awkward, and we have seen many a half-naked coolie with a natural carriage and with grace of movement which a Bond-street beau might sigh for in vain. But nothing of this sort is displayed in durbar. In the presence of the representative of British power, natives of high rank, and doubtless with no small opinion of their own dignity, shy, bolt, and stumble, like hill ponies at sight of the lordly elephant. On the right of the Governor-general sat Scindia, on his left the Raja of Jeypore, on the right and left of these again respectively were Mr. Cecil Beadon and Lord Clyde. On Mr. Beadon's right sat the Kerowlee Raja, and natives occupied the whole of the remainder of the tents on that side. On the Commander-in-Chief's left were sundry political officers, Majors Eden, Macpherson, and Taylor among them, and then came the English officers and other English visitors at the durbar.

The durbar opened by the different rajahs and chiefs being introduced to Lord Canning from the Maharaja of Gwalior down to sundry tehsildars, and such small fry of whom there was a goodly number present. This occupied a considerable time. Next came the business of the day, if it may be so called. The presents were brought in, and placed upon the ground in front of the throne. Scindia's of course was the first, and a magnificent one it was. A very handsome piece—a statuette, the design of which we were unable to distinguish, of solid silver upon a marble pedestal, was brought in first, and this was followed by innumerable trays of shawls and other valuables. When all was ready the Governor-general arose and addressed the Maharaja, every one in the tent rising at the same moment:—

"MAHARAJA OF GWALIOR.—It is with no ordinary pleasure that I receive your Highness in this assembly, in the presence of his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, and of many distinguished officers of the armies of India, of many high officers of the Civil Service, and other English gentlemen, and before many loyal native subjects of the Queen. I am glad to receive your Highness at Agra. It was from Agra that a few days after the outbreak of rebellion I received the news of your prompt and loyal tender to the Lieutenant-governor, the lamented Mr. Colvin, of the services of the most trusty of your own personal guard. It was from Agra that twelve months later, when the brunt of the rebellion had fallen at last upon Gwalior, a portion of that army marched, which under Sir Hugh Rose, drove back your enemies, and re-secured you within twenty days in the palace of your capital. These were the opening and the closing scenes of the rebellion in the neighbourhood of this city. During the year which intervened, and since that time you have earnestly supported the British Government with your whole strength, and in everything have shown yourself mindful of the ties which bind you to it. As the head of that Government, I thank you heartily. I now make known to your highness that, in remembrance of the good services which you have rendered, and to increase your authority and dignity, lands to the annual value of three lacs will be added to your territory; that the limitation which is imposed upon the number of your infantry troops will be extended; that the arrears due from your government on account of the assigned districts are remitted; and that henceforward no payment will be claimed from your highness' government when the proceeds of those districts fall short of the sum stipulated by the treaty of Gwalior. I have already told your highness that if, unhappily, lineal heirs shall fail you, the Government will see with pleasure your adoption of a successor according to the rules and traditions of your family. Your highness and all your highness's subjects may be sure that it is the earnest desire of the paramount power that the loyal and princely house of Scindia shall be perpetuated and flourish. I expect, and I am sure that I shall not be disappointed, that your highness will continue to apply all the energies of your Government, civil and military, to enforcing peace, and giving contentment to the country under your rule."

The Governor-general spoke with great clearness, emphasis and force, every word that he said being heard at the furthest corner of the spacious tent. Next in order came the Raja of Jeypore's present, something similar, though a trifle less costly than the last, and to him the Governor-general said, all in the tent standing as before:—

"MAHARAJA OF JEYPORE.—The presence at this durbar of yourself, a prince sprung from the oldest and noblest families of Rajpootana, and a faithful and zealous feudatory of the British Crown, is very gratifying to me. The territory of Jeypore was less continually harassed by the rebellion than many others; but occasions were not wanting to you in which to show your signal loyalty. When the rebel force approached your capital and called upon you to surrender the British officers in it, your answer was, 'come and take them.' When the political agent was absent on distant duties, you gave a careful and considerate protection to his family. When opportunity offered, you sent in safety to this city of Agra, and under an escort of your own, fifty Christian lives. You have done all in your power to aid the British troops by keeping open the communications through your country. In recognition of these services, I desire your acceptance of the pergunnah of Kote Kasim, as an addition to your territory. 'It was lately an appanage of the King of Delhi, by whose treason and rebellion against the British power it has been forfeited. In adding it to your possessions, I feel certain that I place it for ever in loyal hands. I desire to take this opportunity of publicly thanking your highness and the Jeypore durbar for the faithful performance of its promises, and of the wishes of the British Government in steadily suppressing suttee within your territory, and in allowing no abuse of the right of sanctuary by murderers and robbers."

The Kerowlee Raja then was brought forward and received his khillut. The Viceroy addressed him, briefly thanking him for his loyalty, and mentioning certain favours it was his intention to bestow by way of reward.

When the Alwar Rajah, who is a young boy apparently about twelve years of age, was presented, the usual ceremony of investing him with the necklace was gone through, and the sword presented, after which the Governor-general proceeded to address him as follows:—

"MAHA RAO RAJAH OF ALWAR.—You are welcome to this durbar for your father's sake. There was no better ruler in Rajpootana, and no more faithful feudatory of the Queen than Bunnée Sing. In his last illness he sent his best troops to the support of the British Government, and many of them were killed in the discharge of that duty at no great distance from this city. I regret to think that he did not live to see their death avenged. You are very young to be left alone as the inheritor of the rule of an ancient state. I know that you have had bad advisers, and that you have been misled by them. But these men have been removed from you, and I now enjoin you to use the time which must elapse before you can begin to govern, so as to show by your conduct that the Governor-general of India need not hesitate to recognize and support your authority when that time arrives. Walk in your father's footsteps, and you will be certain of that support. Guide yourself by the advice of the Governor-general's agent, Major Eden, and of the political agent, and receive the counsel which I have given to you in the friendly spirit in which it is spoken. The guns of your father's force which were lost shall be returned to the Ulwur State if possible, if not, I will send others."

As soon as the young boy Raja had returned to his seat, the aged white bearded patriarchal old Nawab of Tonk was brought forward,—a prince who has been seated on his throne ever since the last Mahratta war. The usual forms were gone through, when Lord Canning briefly addressed him, commencing by congratulating him on having made such a stout defence as he had done against the rebels, thanking him for the aid afforded to the British Government during the disturbances, and concluding by promising him the restoration of Nimbhara. Those who were aware of the circumstances under which Nimbhara was annexed must have found it difficult to repress a smile at this announcement. Not so the venerable old Nawab, who replied (and he it observed his reply was the only one which reached us, the rest being inaudible), that the services he had rendered the British Government were not by any means adequate to the rewards he had received. Here we think the aged chieftain was wrong; the services rendered, and the reward (taken in the sense of recompense, or that which is given back) being about upon a par. When the Nawab of Tonk had returned to his seat, the Dholpore Raja and Joara Nawab were successively presented, each receiving a khillut of certain value, and a complimentary speech, thanking them for services rendered during the rebellion, and promising certain rewards, such as remission of debt still due upon their estates to the British Government. A written translation of each speech was successively read out to the recipients in Oordoo, by Mr. C. Beadon, and the reply translated into English by the same functionary. The address, however, in Oordoo, and the English reply, were, we regret to say, inaudible, except to the Governor-general, who notified his satisfaction after each communication by a bow. We must here remark, in passing, that aid afforded to the Government was, or might have been, of two kinds—that afforded to the Government in its public capacity, and that extended to individual fugitives, and Englishmen and women in distress. On an occasion of this kind, when it is the evident policy of the Government to attach to itself as much as possible the independent chieftains of Rajpootana, it would ill become us to lay stress upon events which are difficult of explanation, except upon grounds very much at variance with the object in view. The circumstances attending the disturbances in Rajpootana, will probably one of these days be published to the world, when the character of those concerned, both Englishman and Asiatic, must stand or fall, according to the judgment of the historian. The immediate political result, viz., that the head of her Majesty's Indian Government has declared himself satisfied with their conduct, is enough to satisfy them. It remains for them to show by their future behaviour, that the confidence reposed has not been misplaced, it remains for the future historian to investigate the question, whether the Government were justified by their previous conduct in reposing that confidence in them or not. After the chiefs had been duly presented, a man was brought forward, deserving of especial notice—one of those characters that figure in history rather by working the hidden springs of the machine, than by appearing in full relief themselves—the Ahitophel of the Gwalior dynasty, Deewan Dinker Rao. Those of our readers who have not seen the minister of Scindia may be pleased to hear that he carries in his features the stamp of those intellectual qualities which have been exercised so successfully, and with such beneficial results to his own sovereign and, we may add, to the British Government. It was his skill and tact and diplomacy and firmness that kept the Gwalior contingent so long in inaction, when Englishmen, paralysed by the shortcomings of incompetent commanders, were ready to tremble at the phantoms of their own imagination. To him the Viceroy addressed the following sentences, short but expressive, laying marked emphasis upon the last six words:—

"DEWAN DINKUR RAO.—With the concurrence of your sovereign and master, the Maharajah of Gwalior, I take this opportunity of testifying the high appreciation by the Queen's Government of the services which you have rendered to his highness and to the paramount power in India. You will receive a confiscated estate in or near to the Benares division, free of revenue in perpetuity, and yielding a rental of five thousand rupees a year. I believe that seldom has a ruler in troubled times been served by a more faithful, fearless, or able minister than yourself." A number of minor celebrities followed, who were introduced in turn and presented with khilluts, a detailed list of whom will doubtless soon appear in the Gazette, and the durbar ended about 4 P.M. A good deal of amusement was caused by the necessity of making the chiefs and natives who were presented return to their seats without showing their backs to his lordship. It was a difficult matter, however, in fact impossible. The politicals had to take them by the arms and try to force them to do what they did not understand, viz., walk backwards, and the consequence was, that under the influence communicated from the political department acting upon their voluntary motion, they retired in a kind of crab-like shuffle, undignified as it must have been uncomfortable.

Before the close a slight—very slight contretemps occurred. A number of officers managed to effect their escape before the time which etiquette would have permitted. The premature exodus was put a stop to by the voice of authority, but what led to it, we are unable to divine, unless the following explanation, the only plausible one we have heard, be deemed sufficient. The durbar tent was lined with the body-guard, and it has been suggested, in explanation of this movement, that the Pandi-like appearance of these men produced such an excess of nausea, as it is decidedly calculated to do in any right-minded Englishman, that these gentlemen were forced to leave the tent before the conclusion of the durbar. It is right that the person of her Majesty's representative should be protected by a body-guard; but why should that body-guard not be composed of Englishmen—if they were half-clad savages from the Andamans, armed with bows and poisoned arrows, and mounted upon rhinoceroses, or trained gorillas, or of any race interesting to the student of the physical history of mankind, we should have nothing to complain of; but when English dragoons can so easily be obtained, why should the Government of India surround its head and representative with a band of black giants, each in appearance, feature, costume, expression, and we suspect feeling too, the very image of the sepoy of our dear departed Bengal native army. The arrival of the various chiefs was of course not witnessed by the assembly inside the tent; but the miscellaneous collection of vehicles and beasts on and in which they took their departure was striking enough. The huge elephant belonging to the Raja of Ulwar, with its gilt trappings, excited much attention—it was only brought for show; but the old gentleman from Tonk was by no means raised to the level of his howdah, and went away in real Indian state. One of them took his departure in a vehicle closely resembling an omnibus, with understrappers, clad in every hue of the rainbow, clustering over it like bees. The necessities of tent construction of course require that the canopy suspended over the vice-regal head should hang low down; thereby greatly interfering with the otherwise imposing air of the preparations. Could not a curtain, of some suitable fabric, be suspended by way of canopy in such a position as to follow the curve of the tent-roof displaying the royal arms emblazoned in the centre of it?—Delhi Gazette.

THE VICEROY AND THE MAHARAJA OF GWALIOR. —The following is an English translation of a kharitah addressed by the Viceroy and Governor-general of India, to the Maharajah Scindia:—"Maharaja, —I look forward with pleasure to meeting your highness at Agra in the course of next month. Two years and a half ago, I had the honour of receiving your highness in Calcutta, and I then expressed to you the satisfaction with which I had learnt, by the reports of the political agent at Gwalior, the many improvements recently introduced into the government of your highness's territories. The better administration of justice and of the revenue, the abolition of vexatious duties, and the construction of roads and other public works were amongst the chief of these. Your highness will not have forgotten that on your leaving Calcutta I exhorted you to continue to walk in the same path of wise and enlightened government, and that I gave you my assurance that I derived more pleasure from seeing your country advancing in prosperity and well-being, under the guidance of its own hereditary chief, than if the same advancement had been due to the intervention of British rule. I gave your highness this assurance when profound peace reigned throughout India, and when I had in view the acts of your highness as a ruler in times of quiet and order. I now desire emphatically to repeat it. Your highness had hardly returned to the seat of your government, when a storm burst which carried anarchy, bloodshed, and rapine over a great part of Hindoostan. For many months your highness, aided by the able and faithful minister of your choice, successfully withstood this storm. From the first you were never forgetful of the ties which bind you to the British Government; and it will be a duty most agreeable to me to thank your highness in person for your loyal and friendly conduct. I rejoice to remember that, at the time of the greatest danger to your authority, the Gwalior State found support and security in an English army. Your highness may be certain that loyalty to the Queen, fidelity to treaties, and a just and beneficent treatment of your people, will never fail to ensure to your highness the sympathy and support of the British Government, and that these will be extended not only to yourself and to your descendants, but to such inheritors of your rule as, on failure of a direct succession, may be adopted into your illustrious house, according to its custom and traditions. When I receive your highness at Agra, I shall have the pleasure of proposing to you certain measures which have for their object the extension and security of your highness's authority and the increase of your dignity.—(Signed) CANNING, Camp Nawabgunge, Oude, 10th Oct., 1859.

SIR HOPE GRANT has arrived in Calcutta. It is understood that the force for China from India is to consist of 5,000 Europeans and 5,000 Sikhs, and the commissariat has received orders to provide for its wants immediately.

TREASURE TROVE.—One of our contemporaries, some time since, alluded to the fact that the Nuwab of Banda had been again placed on the pension-list, and would receive his former stipend, some four lacs per annum. The Nuwab had given important information to Government. Some imagined this was a full disclosure of all the facts connected with the rebellion, others that the Nana's treasure would fall into our hands. We are, however, now led to believe that the Nuwab has given such information as will lead to the discovery of the five hundred lacs of rupees brought by Benaik Rao from Poona in 1818. The Hon. Mr. Edmonstone, accompanied by his secretary, Mr. Couper, has gone to Banda, to satisfy himself that the treasure is still buried, as reported by the Nuwab. We have always understood from the Nana that this treasure was at Tirhoot, where the adopted sons of Benaik Rao were visited by the Nana's confidential servant, Tantia Topee. It is, however, possible that the disturbed state of the country may have led to its removal to Banda. Will this treasure now found form part of the prize booty, or will it be considered confiscated, Madhoo Rao having been convicted of rebellion and removed to Bareilly? The eldest Narain Rao, also convicted, was hung at Banda. This will be good news for General Whitlock's column, if the five hundred lakhs are declared prize booty.—Lucknow Herald.

REORGANIZATION OF THE INDIAN ARMY.—We have learned, says the Delhi Gazette, from an undoubted source, that the following is the programme of the proposed reorganization to be submitted by Sir Charles Wood on the opening of Parliament:—That the European local army should still exist. That an increase be made to the European infantry, to be officered from the disbanded regiments. Also an increase to the European artillery of the three Presidencies. Ditto Engineers. That European dragoons be raised at Madras and Bombay, instead of the native cavalry. That the infantry of Madras and Bombay remain intact. That the articles of war be revised. That the pay code be revised and simplified. That there is to be no change in the present system of promotion in her Majesty's Indian army.

MEDICAL OFFICERS are in great demand in Oude. Those who are now coming out from England in medical charge of recruits have been ordered to be sent there. About twenty-one vacancies in the grade of sub-assistant surgeons have lately occurred in this Presidency, but no sub-assistant surgeons are available to fill them up. Native doctors are therefore being appointed to discharge the duties.

THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL OF THE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT has submitted a proposition to the Government of India to appoint four European orderlies, on a salary of Rs. 30 per month, in all European hospitals, to attend the patients; and two matrons, on Rs. 20 per month, to superintend their diet, and attend the female ward, where there is any. This appears to be a judicious proposition, since great difficulty has been experienced by patients in regimental hospitals in holding communication with the native attendants. The proposition has been approved of by the Governor-general in council.—Hurkaru.

THE CHINA EXPEDITION.—A Calcutta contemporary states it has been decided by the Supreme Government that all expenses, no matter of what nature they may be, connected with the sending of troops to China, are to be defrayed from Imperial resources, and the Military Audit Department has accordingly been directed to keep the accounts separate. It is right that the accounts should be kept separate, for it might happen that, if mingled up with those of India, a large share of the expense of the third China war would be thrown upon that country.

BRIGADIER WHEELER'S FORCE.—The Phoenix understands that it has been decided upon to withdraw the European troops from Bundelcund, and to break up the force now under Brigadier Wheeler, forming at the same time three columns of native troops in that division.

BENGAL COLONELS.—It is stated that thirty colonels of the Bengal army are to be absorbed, which it is calculated will delay promotion for about four years.

Mr. Brooks was yesterday (Nov. 24) brought up in charge of Mr. King, of the Calcutta gaol, pursuant to an application made to that effect on his behalf. Messrs. Clarke and Bell appeared to have the commitment quashed, whilst the officiating Advocate-general appeared in support. The case to uphold the proceedings taken by Mr. Betts, the deputy magistrate at Diamond harbour, broke down in less than five minutes, and Mr. Brooks was ordered to be at once discharged—not, however, without some severe remarks from the bench, who gave it as its opinion, that this gentleman had been very strangely treated, and that the conduct of the magistrate in this case was very arbitrary. Yesterday completed two months of durance vile for the unfortunate gentleman, who was detained in custody all this time without knowing the charge preferred.

HOW VERY PROVOKING!—No sufficient proofs to convict the wealthy merchant Roghooburdoval, of the charge of sedition, appearing at his trial in Oude, his property, consisting chiefly of Government securities, worth about 25 lakhs of rupees, which had been confiscated by Government, has been ordered to be restored to him.

NUBBEE BUKSH.—Sentence of death has been passed on Nubbee Buksh at Lahore, who has been convicted of being accessory to the murder of the forty-nine Christians who were killed in the palace of Delhi on the 16th or 17th of May, 1857. The evidence was conclusive, and the prisoner is to be hanged.

MOOLTAN.—A temporary iron-framed church has been sanctioned for Mooltan, capable of holding about 800 persons. The executive engineer has also submitted a very elegant design for a permanent edifice, but it is too costly for the present state of the finances, and has been postponed sine die. Ten thousand rupees have also been sanctioned for additions to the Dak Bungalow, the present accommodation having been found quite insufficient for the number of travellers who pass through Mooltan during the cold weather.

SUMBULPOOR, Nov. 19.—Sickness has been very heavy here this year, and nothing like the usual amount of rain has fallen. The hill men are again giving trouble; a sepoy of the Shekhawatee battalion and a private of the Sebundy Levy were killed by them in a skirmish the other day. The officiating commissioner has taken out a goodly force of infantry with two guns; but they have such an efficient intelligence department that our every movement is known to them, and when the above force reaches the hills the enemy will be nowhere. It is most difficult work campaigning in the hills about here. The jungle being perhaps the densest you ever saw, and no pretensions to roads of any description.

BENGAL SECRETARIAT.—Considerable changes, says the Hurkaru, are in contemplation in the composition of the Bengal Secretariat. No longer, as heretofore, is one secretary to be made responsible for all the departments, the united work of which was far more than any man could reasonably be expected to go through. There will be a covenanted head to each of them, who will issue all the orders in his own province. Thus Mr. Lushington will be the secretary in the Judicial department; Lord Ulick Browne in the Revenue (probably); Major Strachey in the Public Works. Each will have his own assistants to form an exclusive establishment, for the charge of its own records, as well as the conduct of current business. It is easy to perceive that the hardest-worked man will still be Mr. Lushington, his branch being the most extensive as well as most responsible.

SHERIFF OF CALCUTTA.—The Phoenix is informed that Mr. George Brown, of the firm of Messrs. Jardine, Skinner, and Co., is appointed sheriff of Calcutta for the ensuing year, and that Mr. S. E. Collis, of the firm of Messrs. Sandes, Watts, and Collis, solicitors, is to be deputy sheriff.

THE JUBBULPORE AND JHANSI DISTRICTS, says the Madras Spectator, are in the same state of disturbance as before. A force has been sent to sweep those districts. Civil officers accompanying the force are to be intrusted with power to punish promptly and severely crimes against the State.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT.—From the annual report of the Post-office for the year 1858-59, it appears, says the Hurkaru, that the operations of that department are annually improving. The receipts for the year amount to about thirty-three lakhs of rupees, or an excess of one lakh of rupees over the total of the past year, and the disbursements amount to nearly forty-two lakhs of rupees. The average number of letters despatched was about thirty-five lakhs a month, including service letters.

MILITARY AUDIT ESTABLISHMENT.—Sometime back a committee of inspection reported the premises known as the office of the military auditor general to be unhealthy, on the ground that they were not large enough for the large office establishment necessary for the military audit department. New premises were accordingly sought, but as a suitable building conveniently situated could not be found within the limits of Calcutta, it has been ordered that the present office premises shall be altered, and if possible so enlarged as to render them unobjectionable as far as salubrity is concerned. Pending the completion of the alterations and repairs, the military audit establishment will go "out to camp," and tents to provide the necessary office accommodation are about being pitched on the quadrangle of ground immediately south of Esplanade-row, and east of Government-house.

INDIAN OFFICERS ADJUTANTS OF MILITIA.—The following communication, dated India House, the 30th September last, was addressed to the Governor-general, by the right honourable the Secretary of State for India:—"My Lord,—Sometime since the question as to the eligibility of officers of the East India Company's armies to hold the appointment of adjutant to a regiment of militia, was brought under the consideration of the Secretary of State for War; and it was stated in reply that on the first convenient occasion, care would be taken to provide for the admission of service in the East India Company's army as a qualification for this appointment. 2. I have now the gratification of informing you that in an Act passed in the last session of Parliament, cap. 38, further amending the laws relating to the militia, a clause has been introduced assimilating the provisions of the laws of Great Britain and Ireland in regard to such appointments, and rendering service in the army of the East India Company, and in her Majesty's Indian army, or in either of them as equivalent to service in her Majesty's regular army.—I have, &c., C. Wood.

DELHI BANK.—We have much pleasure in notifying the re-establishment of the Lucknow Branch of the Delhi Bank at that city. The old bank was the first to occupy the field in Oude, and it is gratifying to know, that though it has suffered such severe losses, it is in a fair way to retrieve the past. Its occupation of such a field for profitable business as Oude and its capital will go a good way towards effecting this end, and contribute much to the rising prosperity of the bank, to which the mutiny dealt such a heavy blow. They have the whole of Oude to bank with, besides the station of Lucknow, in which alone there is a very large civil and military, besides commercial, community. The civility and attention to the wishes and interests of its constituents, which has always been an essential characteristic of the Delhi bank, will ensure the support of the public.

COMPENSATION COMMISSIONERS.—His Honour, the Lieut.-governor, N. W. P., has appointed Mr. J. W. Bramley to be Commissioner of Compensation Claims for Meerut, Rohilcund, and Keonath, having previously appointed Mr. F. R. Pearson to perform that duty in the Agra division, and Mr. S. J. Becher at Allahabad, Benares, Jubbulpore, and Jhansi.

ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.—The Governor-general in Council is pleased to make the following appointments in the Electric Telegraph Department:—Mr. G. O'Donnell to be deputy-superintendent of the Bombay Circle; Mr. H. P. Owen to be deputy-superintendent of the Bengal Circle; Mr. H. Wickham to officiate as deputy-superintendent of the Bengal Circle, until relieved by Mr. Owen.

DEATH OF MR. WM. DENMAN.—A Calcutta journal announces the death of Mr. William Denman, of the Supreme Court, which occurred on the 24th Nov. He is said to have been a gentleman universally respected, and one of the ablest solicitors in Calcutta.

CALCUTTA MINT.—The Phoenix understands that the operations of the Calcutta Mint for the year 1858-59 have been more satisfactory than those of the preceding year. The amount of silver coined during the year was upwards of eight crores of rupees, and the gold coinage may be estimated at or about one-sixteenth of that sum. The gainage amounted nearly to thirty-four lakhs of rupees. The dross, usually thrown into the river, has, it is said, been recommended by the Mint authorities to be packed off to England for the future, for the purpose of melting as an experimental measure.

MR. R. TEMPLE, Commissioner of Lahore, was officially gazetted Compensation Commissioner, Punjab Division, in the Punjab Gazette of the 9th November.

LAHORE, Nov. 20.—The hon. the Lieutenant-governor returned to Lahore from Madhupoor on Saturday last. His visit to the latter station was for the purpose of inspecting the canal works. The Barea Doab Canal will be opened on the 1st Dec., and the water will run right through to Lahore. Railway works are rapidly progressing; the Lahore station has been commenced, and all the staff of engineers are out in the districts, with one or two exceptions. Mr. Brunton, the chief engineer of the Punjab Railway, is about to proceed to Shalpoor, in search of coal. Mr. B.'s salary has, since the actual commencement of the railway in February last, been increased to £1,500 per annum, and he has received the warm acknowledgment of the Board of Directors for his indefatigable exertions. The new Masonic Lodge commenced on the 6th September last is now rapidly approaching completion, and will be ready for occupation by the 1st January next. It is a very handsome edifice, certainly the most elegant in design and architectural ornament in Anarkully. The lodge-room is 20 by 40, and 24 feet high. The banquetting-room 20 by 44, and 24 feet high. The front of the building is particularly handsome, and has elicited the commendations of several skilful engineers who have examined it.

DISCOVERY OF GOLD IN AFGHANISTAN.—Among the latest news items received from Cabul by a Punjab contemporary mention is made of the discovery of a gold mine. A gold mine in the hills of Bala Walla has been discovered, and Sirdar Mahomed Azum Khan has ordered a regiment to watch over it. He himself goes there every morning, and returns in the evening after fixing his seal over the mine. At first it was discovered by a moolla, who extracted every day eighty mishkals of gold and sold it to two shroffs, who, having quarrelled among themselves, complained to the Sirdar, who summoned the moolla, and he pointed out the place whence he got this treasure.

INDIAN WINE.—Mr. Arratoon, an enterprising merchant at Lahore, some time ago obtained permission to manufacture, experimentally, wines free of duty for one year. Mr. Arratoon succeeded in producing a nice light wine, which he called "Shiraz." Like all new wines, however, it was not readily approved of by the public. The manufacturer is still sanguine that he will succeed in making wines that will suit the public taste, and has applied for permission to continue the experiment free of duty for the period of another year. Sir Robert Montgomery has sanctioned the exemption, on condition that spirits be not distilled in the wine-making process.

COST OF THE REBELLION.—The estimated cost of the late rebellion, up to the end of the financial year 1859-60, including deficiencies in collections, loss by plunder, and destruction of public buildings, has been returned to Parliament at the comparatively modest figure of £28,724,814, inclusive of the probable amount payable by way of compensation.

THE PENNY-A-LINER AT LAHORE.—We (Lahore Chronicle) have to acknowledge with thanks the receipt of a monster potatoe, grown in Colonel Barstow's garden at Murree. A careful measurement gives the following as the dimensions of this potatoe:—Circumference—lengthwise, 24 inches; do. round thickest part, 9½ inches; from point to point, 10 inches; weight, 1lb. 14 ozs.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BURMAH.—The Rangoon Times says:—"News from the capital has reached town up to a late date. Colonel Playro had been admitted to an interview with the king. The slow movements, however, of the Burmese Court are proverbial, and unless the commissioner took up with him a large stock of patience, for which he will find great use, he will be likely to have it pretty well exhausted before he leaves the royal city. A report states that he expected to leave Mandalay on the 24th November."

CONTEMPT OF COURT.—We are informed that on Thursday last, Mr. Burgess, first Judge of the Small Cause Court, and Mr. Cowe, acting third Judge, committed Mr. G. B. Shaw to prison for contempt of court—the native acting judge was not present on the occasion. The contempt was committed in the court of the first judge, and from what we have ascertained, occurred in the manner following. Mr. P. B. Gordon, the attorney, had brought an action against Mr. Shaw, surveyor and ship chandler, to recover a bill of costs incurred in an action which he alleged he had been instructed by Mr. S. to bring. Mr. Shaw denied that he had ever given any such instructions. The judge, however, decided in favour of the plaintiff; whereupon the defendant became excited, denounced the proceeding as iniquitous, and threatened to publish the particulars in the whole of the Madras newspapers. In spite, we are told, of repeated cautions, and of an intimation by Mr. Burgess, that if an apology were made no further notice would be taken of the matter, the defendant persisted in interrupting the proceedings of the court after judgment had been delivered in his case. He, however, withdrew the expression "iniquitous," and stated that when he had used that word he meant it to apply to the conduct of the plaintiff, and not to that of the court; further apology than this he declined to make. The third judge, who had now arrived on the exciting scene of operations, expostulated with Mr. Shaw on the impropriety of his conduct, but with no better result than had followed the endeavours of Mr. Burgess. Mr. Shaw was therefore fined ten rupees, but as he declared that he would sooner go to prison than pay, a warrant for his committal for twenty-four hours was made out. Mr. Shaw was conducted out of court to the common jail, declaring that he would bring an action against the two judges in the Supreme Court, even if it cost him Rs. 1,000. The term of Mr. Shaw's imprisonment expired at 1 p.m. yesterday.—Athenaeum, Dec. 3.

PRIZE MONEY.—It will be a sad disappointment to many, says the Madras Times, "to learn that the entire of the prize money captured during the rebellion will be thrown into a common fund and divided amongst the troops engaged, but we believe there is no longer any doubt that such a course will be adopted. We have heard from an officer now in England, who served with General Whitlock, and who is, therefore, deeply interested in the matter, that the home authorities have decided this important question in the manner we have above mentioned."

MAJOR BARROW.—The Madras Times hears that Major Lousada Barrow, c.b., is to be commissioner of the Hyderabad Assigned Districts.

MADRAS TROOPS FOR CHINA.—Two regiments of European infantry, a battery of artillery, and two companies of sappers, are under orders to proceed to China, from Madras.

MR. MALTBY, C.S.—The Fort St. George Gazette announces that Mr. Francis N. Maltby is to be appointed resident of Travancore and Cochin. He is to succeed General Cullen from the date of his retirement, namely, the 1st January.

HYDERABAD CONTINGENT.—The native artillery of the Hyderabad contingent is to be abolished, and it is supposed that a battery of European artillery will be sent to Hingolee and another to Ellichpore.

TANJORE.—Mr. H. D. Phillips, says a Madras contemporary, has been appointed commissioner for the settlement of the affairs of the late Tanjore Rajah; a preliminary measure only, we trust, to full justice being speedily done to the ranees and their dependents.

BRIGADIER HAMOND (Commandant of Artillery) accepts the bonus for this year (1859) and will, therefore, vacate his present appointment on the 31st of December. Who his successor may be we know not—indeed, it is possible that the Commander-in-Chief has not yet determined. We have no doubt that his Excellency will be guided in his selection of a successor to Brigadier Hamond by stronger claims than mere seniority gives.

THE NIZAM'S FIELD FORCE.—The troops under Brigdr. W. J. Ramaser, comdg. his highness the Nizam's field force, are said to have performed work before the fort of Rajahpore. Brigdr. Ramaser was directed by the prime minister to attack the fortress and apprehend the zemindar, who was guilty of excesses and cruelty. To give some idea of the stronghold referred to, it may be mentioned that the Zemindar Abdoola Bin Ally, the chieftain of the Arabs in Hyderabad, was sent with about 400 or 500 Arabs against this place, but was repulsed and defeated with great loss, notwithstanding the undaunted valour of his men. The rajah, on the night of the 11th Nov., quitted Tandoor, where he was encamped, and at midnight made for Rajahpore, despatching his cavalry in advance; and the artillery, being covered by the infantry through a different route, arrived at Rajahpore next morning. The zemindar's people offered but a very feeble resistance, and were soon subjugated. One Arab Chavoos on the enemy's side, one Punjaabee, and two Deccanees were captured in the affray, all of whom received wounds. The next step taken after the seizure of the fort, was to pursue the zemindar and find out his lurking place; and to this end, the brigadier directed Lieut. McNaught to go in pursuit of him, with twenty-five troopers. He was found secreted in a village about four miles from Rajahpore, where they fell upon him and his retainers, and apprehended the zemindar, who made no efforts to resist. The brigadier has proceeded to Hydrabad with the prisoners, and was to return soon to the seat of war, accompanied by Lieut. McNaught of the Lancers.

INDIAN ARTILLERY.—The artillery of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay is to be formed into one corps, and called the 2nd regiment of royal artillery.—Madras Daily Times.

WYKAAD, Nov. 20.—The crop has now set in full, and all hands that could be procured are picking the coffee; but labour is very scarce, and all the estates will lose a great portion of their crop. Rice is still selling at 11 rupees 8 annas per 2 pharas; coolies' wages have risen to 4 annas per day. Government have brought 400 men from Mysoor to open a road from Manuntoddy to Mysoor. The road from Manuntoddy to Tellicherry is in a very bad state, and the authorities deserve a good cutting up for it, as the planters pay Government tax for land, and the export duty on coffee yet derive no benefit. The weather is very cold here just now, with a strong land-breeze. Rain falls daily at intervals.

MADRAS RAILWAY.—Up to the end of June 1859, Rs. 222,00,985-0-1 were expended on the Madras Railway. The sums disbursed in May amounted to Rs. 6,38,208-12-2, and the disbursements in June were Rs. 5,34,036-11-9. The total earnings to the end of June were Rs. 11,66,809-0-2. In May the collections amounted to Rs. 38,453-4-1, and in June to Rs. 49,435-15-8. Operations were commenced on the 1st March, 1853. The line was open for traffic on 1st January, 1856.

ABOLITION OF BRIGADE COMMANDS.—A short time ago we (Athenaeum) mentioned that several brigade commands had been abolished in Bengal. A similar calamity has overtaken the Madras army,—the commands at Vellore, Trichinopoly, Bellary, and Rangoon being abolished from the 31st of December last, the duties of the three last stations and Jaulnah are to be performed by brigade majors under the general officers commanding the divisions. The fort Adjutant at Trichinopoly, Bellary, Vellore, Masulipatam, and Cannanore—and the station staff officer at Jaulnah are to be discontinued. Station staff officers are to be appointed to Vellore and Masulipatam.

BOMBAY.

MISCELLANEOUS.

NAROPUNT MAMA, one of the relatives of the Nana, has been apprehended at Bombay. This man was entrusted with the destruction of the telegraph wires during the disturbances.

INDIAN NAVY.—The following order has been issued by the Commander-in-Chief of the Indian navy:—The Commander-in-Chief has much pleasure in publishing to the service the following extract of a letter to his address from the Secretary to Government in the Political Department, No. 5,009, of the 26th November:—"The Right Hon. the Governor in Council has read the report of Commander Cruttenden with much gratification, and I am desired to request you will be pleased to express to that officer and to the officers and men who served under him in the Okamundel expedition, the high sense which his Lordship in Council entertains of the gallantry and zeal exhibited by all, and especially by the Naval Brigade under Lieut. Sedley, in the operations against Beyt and Dwarka."

NEW FORTIFICATIONS FOR BOMBAY.—We learn that her Majesty's Secretary of State for India has sanctioned the immediate commencement of new fortifications at Bombay, which are estimated to cost twenty lakhs of rupees. It is expected that the whole work will be finished in seven years.

LIEUTENANT G. W. MACAULEY, 10th regiment N. I., and Commandant of the 1st regiment Sind Irregular Horse, is appointed to act as assistant political superintendent on the frontier of Upper Sind, during the absence of Capt. W. L. Briggs on medical certificate to Europe, or until further orders.

BOMBAY TROOPS FOR CHINA.—The Poona Observer is informed that the quota of troops to be furnished from the Bombay Presidency for the China expedition should one be despatched from India, is to consist of two European and three regiments of native infantry. The corps most likely to be selected are the Jager corps, H.M.'s 31st regiment of foot, the 3rd and 5th regiments N.I., and one of the Belooch battalions.

THE WAGHERS.—The Waghers, after evacuating Dwarka and plundering the village of Ravana, appear to have assembled in large numbers in the hills behind Porebunder, whence they are making raids upon the inhabitants of the surrounding country. They have been emboldened to act on the offensive, probably in consequence of the withdrawal of the troops that were recently engaged before Beyt and Dwarka. It is to be hoped that the troops under orders to proceed from Kurrachee will succeed in punishing these rebels. Under instructions from divisional headquarters at Kurrachee, the whole of the effective men of the 1st (Grenadiers) Native Infantry, embarked on board H. M.'s steamer Hugh Lindsay on the 28th Nov. The vessel returned to Kurrachee from Porebunder on the 29th, after landing the 1st Grenadiers. From the information the Sind Kossid has obtained, it seems that one thousand of the rebels were located in the hills, and an immediate engagement with them was expected. It is said that a wing of a European regiment will probably be ordered to reinforce the troops already sent.

MR. GREGOR GRANT, late of the Bombay Civil Service, is to be the Sheriff of Bombay for the ensuing year. His appointment will take place as soon as he has obtained his final discharge from the Insolvent Court.

A NEW ATTORNEY.—Mr. P. O'Hagan has lately come out from England to practise as an attorney, solicitor, and proctor of the Supreme Court. He will be sworn in the first day the court recommences its sittings. Mr. O'Hagan will join his practice with Dr. Dallas, under the style of Messrs. Dallas and O'Hagan.

THE BHEELS OF KANDEISH.—The destruction of Bhagojee and his confederates has completely disheartened the rebel Bheels in the Ahmednuggur and Khandeish districts. Previously to Mr. Souter's successful raid against them, numbers of the disaffected amongst the Bheels and Arabs in the Nizam's territory were known to be collecting on our frontier, in expectation of being joined by Bhagojee and his men, who had recently committed great excesses in the Nuggur districts. Only a week before he was attacked and defeated by the police he had ruthlessly murdered in cold blood six of the district police near Sinnur.

Form of Courts Martial.

Hd. Qrs., Poona, Nov. 24.—H.E. the C. in C. having occasion to notice the irregular manner in which several district courts martial have been recently convened for the trial of offences ordinarily cognisable by a general court martial, is pleased to make known to the army that no officer can exercise his discretion in permitting the trial of a grave offence by an inferior court, unless he has the power of directing its trial by that description of court by which it is cognisable, under the provisions of the articles of war; as, for instance, an officer authorised to assemble a district court martial cannot dispose of any case which is not clearly within the cognisance of that description of court without the permission of competent authority.

BREVET.

The undermentioned gentlemen cadets of H.M.'s Indian forces, at present doing duty at the Royal Engineer establishment at Chatham, with the rank of ensign, to have the local and temporary rank of lieut. while employed at that establishment, viz.:—W. Shepperd, R. P. Tickell, B. O. Seton, E. G. Clayton, E. D'Oyley Twemlow, S. C. Clarke, J. D. Cruickshank, C. A. G. Skinner.

MAILS TO INDIA, CHINA, AND AUSTRALIA.—The time tables of the India, China, and Australian mail packets for 1860 have just been issued, under the sanction of the Admiralty. They contain some important alterations. The contract time for the transit of the Marseilles portion of the mail through Egypt will be twenty-four hours, and for the Southampton portion forty-eight hours. The voyage between Southampton and Alexandria is to occupy thirteen days. The outward and homeward Australian mail, which will leave Sydney and Southampton respectively in March next, will touch at Point de Galle instead of Mauritius. The branch line between Aden and Mauritius will still be in connection with the Australian packets. The contract time for the voyage between Aden and Mauritius will be twelve days. The Peninsular and Oriental packets will be due at Southampton about the 2nd, 10th, 18th, and 25th of the month; and the Marseilles portion of the Eastern mails will reach London about six days before each of those dates. The time of day for leaving Sydney and Southampton is fixed at 2 P.M.; for leaving Melbourne, at 6 A.M.; for Marseilles at 7 A.M.; and for Bombay at 8 P.M. The post between Sydney and London via Marseilles is to be fifty-one days, and the course of post between those two places will be one hundred and eight days. When the Australian telegraph is extended to King George's Sound, and the India and Mediterranean telegraph system is completed, news will reach London from New South Wales in fourteen days.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

RETROSPECT OF 1859.

If we have had no great event, no famous victory, no wholesale slaughter, to chronicle during the year that has just closed, we have at least been able to record the more agreeable tidings of the restoration of peace, and, alas, one notable defeat! In terminating our review of the year 1858, we left a large force of rebels still under arms within the frontiers of Oude. That state of things, however, was not permitted long to continue. Successively defeated by Colonel Brind, Brigadier Troup, and Sir Hope Grant, they were utterly routed by Lord Clyde in person at Doondea Khara, with the loss of 500 men and eight guns. On the 1st of December, Brigadier Troup again came up with Prince Feroze Shah, who fled across the Goomtee, and, driving Mr. A. O. Hume into a small fortress, pushed on to join Tantia Topee, but was roughly handled by Sir Robert Napier in the neighbourhood of Ranode. His subsequent fortune has been a miserable one. So long as it was possible for the British troops to keep the field, he never knew what it was to repose without fear of capture for a single night. Nevertheless, he has hitherto succeeded by rapid and tortuous flight in evading all his enemies and in baffling their utmost vigilance and activity.

His colleague and comrade in misfortune, Tantia Topee, was even less successful. Defeated on the 25th November, 1858, by Major Sutherland on the heights of Rajpore and driven into Guzerat, he was caught up by Brigadier Parke on the 1st of December, and left 300 of his followers dead upon the ground. On the 24th he was surprised by Major Roche, and two days afterwards by Colonel Benson. Brigadier Showers next fell upon him on New Year's-day and dispersed his rabble following. His capture, however, was due to the treachery of a friend. On the 23rd of April Rajah Maun Sing (not the Oude chieftain) surrendered to Major Meade at Mahoodna, and enhanced his pusillanimity by betraying the companion of his flight. Five days later Tantia Topee was brought into the British camp a prisoner, and being put upon his trial was convicted of complicity in the Cawnpore massacre. He was accordingly sentenced to death by the gallows, and encountered his fate with a stolid indifference bordering on magnanimity.

To return to Oude: After the flight of Prince Feroze Shah, the Nana Sahib gave up the contest and made for the jungles at the foot of the Nepal mountains. The Begum, however,—“the only man of her family”—tried the fortune of arms on the 26th of December at Burjiddah, to the north of Nanpara, and suffered a signal defeat. On this occasion the British Commander-in-Chief, in galloping forward to restrain the ardour of the horse artillery, sustained a severe fall from his horse and dislocated his shoulder. But the brave old chief refused to give in and was carried in a palkee to further triumphs, and on the last day of the year had the satisfaction of driving the last band of insurgents across the Raptee into the territories of Nepal. He then returned to Lucknow, having completely cleared the soil of Oude of rebels, at least in arms. His lordship subsequently proceeded to Simla, where he remained until the commencement of the present cold season, when he descended into the plains to meet the Governor-general. Of the Begum and the Nana it may suffice to mention that, harassed by Brigadier Horsford's column as long as field operations were possible, they have led a wretched existence in the Nepaulese gorges; and if report be true, the Nana himself succumbed to fever induced by his merited hardships on the 24th of last September. As the British troops are once more in motion, and as Sir Jung Bahadoor is descending from Khatmandu to co-operate with them, it may fairly be supposed that the Begum has played her last card, and has now no alternative but to throw herself on the mercy of her opponents, who have certainly no desire to make war upon a woman.

Peace has been restored in the Shahabad district, and, indeed, in all parts of India, save on the Nepal frontier and in the immediate neighbourhood of Prince Feroze Shah. An exception can scarcely be made on account of the Nizam's dominions, where the Rohillas practise their normal vocation of plunder and violence. Fortunately, an attempt to assassinate Salar Jung, the enlightened Minister of the Nizam, failed of success; but the same good fortune did not attend Captain Leycester, who was shot dead while asleep by his own Bearer. Disturbances, too, have taken place in the southern portion of the Peninsula. At Quilon there was a serious grain riot; at Tinnevely several natives were shot by sepoys while endeavouring to prevent a Christian corpse being carried past a pagoda on its way to the cemetery; and at Nagarcoil the Brahmans objected with indecent violence to female Christian converts of the Sudra caste veiling their bosoms. These local outbreaks, however, can hardly be regarded as evincing any wide-spread disaffection in the Madras Presidency. It would be strange if the natives there were not content with the Raj under which they live and flourish; for, on the resignation of Lord Harris, Sir Charles Trevelyan was appointed his successor, than whom no man is more disposed to govern India for the Indians. As the first-fruits of this policy of conciliation and love, is there not a native aide-de-camp at the Government House? Before taking leave of Madras we must not omit to mention that on the 21st November it was for the first time lighted with gas.

The Bombay Presidency has also had its share of fighting, though on a small scale. The Waghers having greatly oppressed the Hindoos in the extreme point of the peninsula of Guzerat, and proved generally troublesome and refractory, an expedition was sent against them under the command of Colonel Donovan. The first operations were directed against Beyt, which offered a gallant resistance. Finally, it was evacuated under cover of the night, and eventually Dwarka also yielded to British prowess. The Hindoos now complain of the avengers of their wrongs more bitterly than they did of their oppressors themselves. Their grievance, however, is not based upon reason. It appears that their temples suffered severely from the bombardment, but as they formed part of the fortifications, or closely joined them, it was quite impossible to exempt them from the common fate of buildings in a bombarded town.

The Burmese provinces have, with one slight exception, remained tranquil and prosperous. This exception, if it be worthy to be regarded as such, was caused by the absurd enterprise of a fisherman named Shwe Hla, who suddenly made himself master of the insignificant station of Twantay. His triumph, however, was as brief as his chastisement was sharp and decisive. A slight degree of curiosity, perhaps of suspicion, was at one time awakened by the proceedings of M. D'Orgoni, the notorious French adventurer, who repaired to Ava with a small party of Frenchmen, with the ostensible purpose of introducing European arts and civilisation. The Emperor of Burmah, however, appears to have taken a tolerably correct measure of the intriguer's real character and aim, and to have received his advances with a chilling reserve.

In addition to the murder of Captain Leycester, it has been our painful duty to narrate how Captain B. Hawes, of the 2nd Bengal Fusiliers, received his death wound while gallantly exerting himself to repress an outbreak of the convicts in Mundlairs Jail; and yet more recently we have had to tell how Captain Meham, of the Bengal Artillery, while journeying from Kotah to assume his post of private secretary to the Lieutenant-governor N.W.P., was treacherously set upon by a band of Wuzerees and foully murdered. The general aspect of the country, however, has been such as to justify the celebration of a National Thanksgiving Day throughout Great Britain and Ireland, for which purpose the 1st of May was appropriately designed. In like manner the 28th of July was set apart by the Governor-general of India as the expression of an Empire's gratitude to the Giver of all good things for the signal blessing of peace.

Thankfulness to Heaven has been accompanied by both justice and mercy towards our fellow-men. The Rajah Jye Lall Sing expiated on the gallows, on the 1st of October, his complicity in the murder of numerous Europeans; but a yet greater criminal, the Nawab of Furruckabad, escaped the proper reward of his guilt through the indiscretion of Major Barrow. From deference to the word of a British officer, Lord Canning commuted the capital sentence of the court to one of perpetual banishment, and the ex-Nawab was allowed to proceed as a pilgrim to Mecca. The ex-King of Delhi has been sent to Rangoon, there to pass the remainder of his existence in obscurity, while the ex-King of Oude has at length been released from surveillance, and granted a pension of £120,000 per annum.

The most serious event of the year has been the mutiny of the European soldiery originally enlisted in the service of the East India Company. Imagining, not without some shadow of a reason, that they were entitled to a fresh bounty, or a discharge, these fine troops, who distinguished themselves by their heroic courage and endurance during the most trying times of the rebellion, refused to be transferred to the Queen's service, like "a lot of horses." Instead of making some allowance for the peculiar circumstances of the case, Lord Canning was sufficiently ill-advised to refer the matter to the law-officers, who, correctly enough, declared the men's claims to be untenable in law. On this he declined to show them any consideration, and, had it not been for the tact and excellent management of the Commander-in-Chief, there is little doubt but that a collision would have taken place between the Company's Europeans and H.M.'s regiments. This terrible catastrophe has been averted, but at the loss of 10,000 disciplined soldiers, who have taken their discharge almost to a man, and are now returning to this country at the expense of the Indian Government.

Unhappily, this is not the only unpopular measure to be laid to the account of that Government during the past year, though it must be admitted in extenuation that extraordinary financial embarrassments have afforded but little choice of action. Thus, in May, an open loan of five millions was announced, bearing interest at the rate of five and a-half per cent., but which has not been favourably regarded by the commercial community. A customs' duty on imports was met with loud remonstrances from European residents, which waxed yet louder and stronger when Mr. Harrington introduced a Bill to levy a tax upon trade licences and upon incomes. This last measure is still in abeyance, probably awaiting the arrival in Calcutta of the Right Hon. James Wilson, who has been appointed Member of the Council of Calcutta, with especial relation to the financial department of Government. The vacancy was created by the promotion of Mr., now Sir, Barnes Pencock to the dignity of Chief Justice of Bengal.

Several other appointments have taken place, or are on the point of being made. The Trans-Sutlej and Cis-Sutlej States, together with the Delhi territory, have been constituted a Lieutenant-governorship, under Mr., now Sir Robert, Montgomery; while the North-West Provinces, with their capital at Allahabad, were placed under the able rule of Mr. Edmonstone; Mr. Wingfield being at the same time appointed Chief Commissioner of Oude. In Bengal Proper Mr. F. J. Halliday has been succeeded by Mr. J. P. Grant; Sir Robert Hamilton and Sir Bartle Frere, whose successor in the Chief Commissionership of Scinde is Mr. J. D. Inverarity have become members of the Legislative Council; and at home, Sir Henry Rawlinson having proceeded to Teheran as the British Minister, his place in the Council of India has been supplied by Sir Erskine Perry. Sir John Lawrence, having retired from the India Civil Service, has also taken his seat in the India Council, and been sworn in as a member of her Majesty's Privy Council. Another vacancy, occasioned by the lamented death of Captain Shepherd, was filled by Colonel Durand, C.B. The greatest change of all remains to be noticed. On the downfall of Lord Derby's Ministry, Lord Stanley was succeeded as Secretary of State for India by Sir Charles Wood. The last-named Minister has introduced a modification of the India Council which promises to be also an improvement: he has divided it into five Committees, for the despatch, respectively, of Financial, Military, Political, Public, and Revenue, Judicial, and Legislative business. It is further stated that the Calcutta Council is to make way for three secretariats—that for the Interior being held by Sir Bartle Frere; of War, by Sir J. Outram; and of Finance, by the Right Hon. J. Wilson. Among these numerous changes it is not superfluous to mention that Lord Clyde will return almost immediately to Europe, giving up the command of the Indian armies to Sir Hugh Rose, as in the Bombay Presidency Sir Henry Somerset makes room for Sir William Mansfield.

The death of Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, the intelligent and philanthropic Parsee merchant of Bombay, is worthy of notice; nor may we omit to mention the decease of Chief Commissioner Yeh, whilom tyrant of Canton.

The report of the Organisation of the Indian Army Commission has been published, and also that of the Colonisation Committee. Having said thus much, we have said all that need be said on the subject of those two futile investigations, in the course of which much time and money have been expended to apparently very little purpose.

In India the leather stock has been abolished, thus indicating the commencement of progress of ideas in the mind of military authorities. The old native army, too, of Bengal has been disbanded, with a few honourable exceptions, and at present the regular native force is estimated at only 80,000 men—ample for any service likely henceforth to be required of them. Minutes of thanks to the Civil Service, and to European gentlemen who have distinguished themselves during the late rebellion, have been penned by the Governor-general and by the Governor of Bombay; and measures have been taken, tardily enough, to afford a partial compensation to individuals for the losses of property they sustained at the hands of the insurgents. By the latest accounts from India we learn that Lord Canning was engaged in making a ceremonial progress through the Upper Provinces, in the course of which he held a magnificent durbar at Lucknow, and proclaimed the revival of the talookdaree system, under certain salutary regulations and restrictions.

At the commencement of this hasty review of 1859 we alluded to a defeat sustained by the British arms. After much delay occasioned by the artful manoeuvres of the Chinese Commissioners, Mr. Bruce, the English Ambassador to the Court of Peking, at last proceeded with a small squadron, commanded by Admiral Hope, to the Peiho on his way to the capital. His further progress, however, was barred by strong booms across the mouth of the river, and on attempting to remove these obstacles the ships were fired upon by masked batteries. It is needless to recapitulate the details of that gallant but unfortunate affair. After displaying a heroism worthy of the best days of the British navy, Admiral Hope was repulsed with the loss of three war-steamer, and upwards of 400 officers and men hors de combat, he himself being among the wounded.

In conclusion, we may remark that Sir John Bowring has returned to this country, being succeeded by Sir Hercules Robinson, and that Canton is still occupied by an allied force of French and English. We must not, however, omit to record the opening of telegraphic communication between Suez and Aden, or to tender our sincere thanks and best wishes to our numerous friends and supporters.

BOOKS.

Universal Review. No. XI. London: Wm. H. Allen and Co.

If variety of subjects and excellence of treatment be any recommendation in the case of periodical literature, then may we with a clear conscience speak favourably of the current number of the "Universal Review." It contains eight articles, of which seven are certainly above the average. The first one, entitled "The National Money-box," is replete with much curious information respecting the Exchequer. Dr. Doran's name is a sufficient guarantee for the pleasant gossiping character of the review of the Rev. Vernon Harcourt's edition of the "Diaries of the rt. hon. George Rose;" just as Mr. Hannay stands forth as a tower of strength while discoursing on "Lord Dundonald's Autobiography." Mr. Jeaffreson contributes the first portion of what promises to be an exceedingly interesting tale, while the author of "East and West" furnishes a capital memoir of Richard Brinsley Sheridan. The last article we care to mention is a very able and impartial statement of the causes which have produced the present depression of the shipping interest, combined with sundry sagacious suggestions as to the best means of supplying a remedy.

Rural Life in Bengal. By the Author of "Anglo-Indian Domestic Life." London: W. Thacker and Co.

It is not uncomplimentary to the author to say that his illustrations are superior to his letterpress, for he avows himself to be an artist. The views of rural scenery and the sketches of the humbler phases of Indian life are extremely good, and perfectly accurate. At the same time, the only fault we can find with the descriptive portion of the volume is that it is occasionally dry, and not particularly interesting to the million. But as a whole, it would be difficult to select a more appropriate or more welcome present for any one residing in Bengal to offer to his friends and relatives at home. The eulogium on Mr. Forlong is likewise well merited, nor could anything be better than the general outline of an indigo-planter's position, influence, and ordinary mode of life. If this really artistic work have the effect of dispelling a few illusions, and of placing in a proper light the true character of the much-abused "interlopers," it will not have been written in vain. In any case, it is a very pleasant and readable production, and all the better for its very numerous engravings.

THE GLASGOW INDIAN RELIEF FUND.—A meeting of the committee in charge of the Glasgow Indian Relief Fund has been held, to receive a report from the sub-committee; the Lord Provost presiding. From the report read it appeared that the actual amount subscribed in Glasgow and neighbourhood was £16,355. 1s. 6d., to which falls to be added £201. 7s. 2d. of interest, making in all £16,610. 8s. 8d. The disbursements of the committee have been as follows:—Remittances to Calcutta, £10,000; do. London, £1,000; do. Edinburgh, £607. 11s. 1d.; do. in aid of pension fund, £250; grants to parties in Glasgow and neighbourhood (not widows), £187. 6s.; charges for advertising and expenses of administration, £321. 12s. 10d.; making a total of £12,426. 0s. 11d. This leaves a balance at the disposal of the committee of £3,704. 19s. 9d., subject to the payment of the sum of £111. 10s. due to the Edinburgh committee, and £250 to the pension fund, as above noted. The committee state that they are not "prepared to recommend any definite course of action as to the balance in hand, but will continue to direct their anxious attention to the carrying out the views of the subscribers in such manner as from time to time shall appear most expedient." The report was adopted.

THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS.

FOR INDIA AND THE COLONIES.
A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF BRITISH AND FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

This Newspaper presents a comprehensive and perfect view of British and Foreign affairs, with special reference to those subjects in any way interesting to residents in India, or those at home having connections there. The Intelligence is brought down to the latest possible moment prior to the departure of the Mail. The various departments are so arranged, and the intelligence analysed, as to form a weekly register of permanent interest and value, which subscribers will be glad to preserve.

The weekly issue of "THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS" renders it as eligible a newspaper for Anglo-Indians resident at home as abroad.

Families should send it to their friends abroad.

CLAPHAM COMMON.

TO be LET, Unfurnished, a HOUSE, containing a large dining-room, library, and butler's pantry, with water laid on, &c., on the ground floor; large double drawing-room, and five good bed-rooms. This house is very convenient for a family, and in beautiful order, having had much money expended upon it since the last tenant left. The drainage warranted. Rent on lease, £90 per annum. Omnibuses to the West-End and City constantly. One mile from the Balham Station, for Pimlico, Crystal Palace, Brighton, &c. Apply for further particulars to Mr. MACLACHLAN, 35, St. James's-street and Clapham-common, S.

UNFURNISHED HOUSES at CLAPHAM-COMMON.

Mr. McLACHLAN, of 35, St. James's-street and Clapham-common, is instructed to LET THREE HOUSES in the GROVE, adjoining that beautiful spot, Clapham-common. They consist of dining, breakfast, and double drawing-rooms, and five bed-rooms, with the usual domestic offices, coach-house, stable, &c. The houses have just been put into thorough substantial and ornamental repair, and are fit for immediate occupation. The locality is highly respectable; and as the rents are moderate, and several Indian families reside in the neighbourhood, Mr. McLachlan begs to recommend the houses to the attention of families recently arrived from India. The drainage is warranted. Omnibuses to West-end and City pass constantly. One mile to the Balham Station, for Pimlico, Crystal Palace, Brighton, &c.

CLAPHAM-COMMON.—Furnished Apartments.—To be LET, handsomely furnished, two sitting and three bed rooms, pleasantly situated on the south side of the Common.

Apply at Brunswick House, Clapham-common.

MEMOIR on the EUPHRATES VALLEY ROUTE TO INDIA; with Official Correspondence and Maps. By W. P. ANDREW, F.R.G.S.

"It is impossible to refer to the Surveys and Reports of General Chesney and his colleagues on the Euphrates, published twenty years ago, without astonishment, that even at that period the British Government and people failed to take immediate steps to avail themselves of its capabilities."—The Times.

"What a glorious thing it would have been," said a writer in the 'Lahore Chronicle' of August last, "had the Euphrates Valley Railway and the Scinde and Punjab Railway been accomplished facts at the time of the present insurrection."—Vide The Indus and its Provinces—p. 14.

London: WM. H. ALLEN and Co., 7, Leadenhall-street.

INDIAN SPICES FOR ENGLISH TABLES; or, A RARE RELISH OF FUN FROM THE FAR EAST: being the Adventures of "Our Special Correspondent" in India. Illustrated in a Series of upwards of One Hundred and Fifty Humorous Sketches, and exhibiting, in all its phases, the peculiarity of life in that country.

By Capt. G. F. ATKINSON, Bengal Engineers, Author of "Curry and Rice," "Campaign in India," "Pictures from the North," &c.

The 150 Sketches will be grouped on 30 Imperial 4to plates, printed on tinted paper, and will be bound in boards, paper cover, price 16s.

The Work will be ready shortly.

London: DAY and SON, Lithographers to the Queen, 6, Gate-street, Lincoln's-inn-fields.

The Publishers have no hesitation in saying that a more life-like and comprehensive Work than the above has never been issued from the press, conveying as it does such a perfectly accurate idea of everything connected with Anglo-Indian life. Nothing appears to have been omitted; and the drawings manifest, by their accuracy of detail, the fidelity with which each separate subject has been rendered. There are illustrations of everything connected with a domestic household, servants, furniture, washing establishments, tents, camp equipage, carriage, &c.; with humorous scenes on the road, and the various styles adopted for locomotion, whether in vehicles drawn by horses or natives, travelling by palanquins, or in doolies, or by the mail-cart, with illustrations exhibiting the peculiarities of the postal arrangements in the East, scenes in travellers' bungalows, in the bazaar, with the economy of the stable, the characteristics of the different breeds of horses as offered for sale by Caubul, Hindostanee, and Arab merchants; nor are the sports of the field omitted—scenes on the turf, tiger-shooting, pig-sticking, and the like—while agriculture has not been forgotten. To each sketch is appended a brief explanation, thus conveying at a glance all the information required, and combining to form a most instructive and amusing work.

MAGIC HORSE TAMING NOSE PINCHERS. (GRYELIN'S PATENT.)

Warranted to subdue the most vicious horse at the instant. Kicking, rearing, plunging, and running away rendered impossible. It is simple, ornamental, and can be fixed to any bridle.

Combining the advantages of metallic bedsteads with the comfort of a spring mattress at less than half the cost. Certified by medical men as the best and most comfortable bedstead ever invented; invaluable for hot climates; cannot possibly harbour vermin.

Sold by W. H. KENNEDY, Agent, 462, Oxford-street, London, W.C.

NELSON'S MEDICATED BELT.

(Ed. Nelson, Naval Surgeon from 1832 to 1857.)

Gentlemen who are subject to pains in the back or loins, Rheumatism, Lumbago, or who are given to corpulency, are advised to wear NELSON'S MEDICATED BELT, as it gives a great support to the entire frame, and a comfortable and genial warmth to the back and abdomen, promoting health and digestion. Gentlemen who ride for business or pleasure should wear this Belt as a preventive of Rupture, &c.

NELSON'S MEDICATED MARINE BELT for the prevention of Sea Sickness and the support of the back and loins during a long voyage.

"All those whose duty or pleasure calls them to sea should possess this Belt, for, putting aside its use on board ship, it is invaluable as a Riding Belt, fitting easily, and supporting the back."

"Lower Parade, Leamington, August 3, 1858."

These Belts are sold by Mr. WHITBURN, Chemist, 174, Regent-street, price 21s. each, or direct from the Maker, WM. ELSTAB, 12, Avery-row, New Bond-street. Circulars free. Orders from the country must have the size of waist and hips, and a Post-office Order for 21s., payable to WM. ELSTAB, at Cavendish-street.

These Belts can be had of any tailor.

JAMS, JELLIES, and MARMALADE, PRESERVED IN TINS, By BARNES, MORGAN, and Co.

(the Originators of this method of preserving), Upper Thames-street, London, E.C. This mode of Preserving is now acknowledged to be far superior to any yet invented. The contents will keep good for any number of years without the Tin imparting any metallic taste to the Preserve, and never candy or ferment. To Regimental Messes they are peculiarly adapted, being more portable than jars, and not liable to breakage. B. M. and Co. would also recommend their Pickles, Sauces, Tart Fruits, &c., and their large stock of York and Cumberland Hams, Cheese, and Bacon.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.—The most appropriate offerings are those which tend to the promotion of personal beauty in the fair and youthful, who at this festive season are more than usually desirous to shine to advantage under the gaze of their friends. None can be more acceptable than ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL, a delightfully fragrant and transparent preparation for the hair, and as an invigorator and beautifier beyond all precedent; ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, unequalled for its rare and inestimable qualities in imparting a radiant bloom to the complexion, and a softness and delicacy to the hands and arms; and ROWLANDS' ODONTO, or PEARL DENTIFRICE, which bestows on the teeth a pearl-like whiteness, strengthens the gums, and renders the breath sweet and pure.

Sold by A. ROWLAND and SONS, 20, Hatton-garden, London and by Chemists and Perfumers.

OUTFITS TO INDIA.—Families requiring PLATE, CUTLERY, &c., will find SLACK'S ELECTRO-PLATE the most durable. It is generally used by the principal Officers in H.M.S., also by his Excellency Lord CLYDE, Commander-in-Chief.

SLACK'S NICKEL ELECTRO-PLATE,

Offices ..... 54, Duke-street.

The Proprietors beg most respectfully to call the attention of the Trade, Noblemen, Clergy, and the Public to their extensive stock of CHOICE WINES of rare vintages.

B. and Co. are not disposed to comment upon the purity of their Wines, which is daily most laudably acknowledged by the public and eminent medical men of all countries, as the increasing patronage of the highest families in the land is a sufficient guarantee.

They beg to call attention in particular to their Pure Tonic Wines as being so valuable to invalids and persons of weak stomachs.

A sample case, containing full-sized sample cases, will be forwarded to any address on receipt of 6s. 6d., or a dozen for 24s.

It is a well-known fact that impure and adulterated Wines are the greatest foes to health, producing acidity in the stomach, and debilitating the digestive organs, while pure Wines will accelerate the digestive powers, invigorating, strengthening, and bracing the nervous system.

Their Tonic Wine is admitted to be most essential to invalids, both old and young, and should never be absent from the homes of the weak and sickly. Its properties are duly acknowledged by the leading men of the Faculty both at home and abroad.

To prevent imposition each bottle is sealed with the name of the firm.

All orders to be made payable to HENRY BURROWS.

RUPTURES.—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS

is allowed, by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen, to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of HERNIA. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body, two inches below the hips, being sent to the Manufacturer.

Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON.

A Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d. Postage, 1s. A Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage, 1s. 8d. An Umbilical Truss, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE-CAPS, &c., for VARICOSE VEINS, and all cases of WEAKNESS and SWELLING of the LEGS, SPRAINS, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 7s. 6d. to 16s. each, Postage, 6d.

JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228, Piccadilly, London.

NEWBURY'S COD LIVER OIL CAKES.

—We have examined a specimen of gingerbread made by Messrs. Newbery—each cake containing a teaspoonful of Cod Liver Oil. The gingerbread is extremely light and pleasant, the flavour of the oil being completely covered. This seems likely to prove a very useful mode of administering Cod Liver Oil to children, and to others who are nauseated by the offensive odour and flavour of the Oil as generally taken. —Medical Times, 12th Feb., 1859. Eight Cakes, 1s. 9d.; Sixteen (about 1lb.), 3s.—F. NEWBURY and SONS, 45, St. Paul's-churchyard. Established A.D. 1746.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

GOOD DIGESTION, CLEAR COMPLEXION.—Our winters abound in such constant changes of temperature and moisture that skin diseases always prevail at this season. Rough skin, chapped hands, and pimples are the simplest class. These admit of easy cure by smearing Holloway's Ointment over the affected portions each night at bed-time, while his purifying Pills are taken in such doses as the system will bear without inconvenience. This is a safe and easy way of removing all skin diseases depending on irritation caused by atmospheric changes. When cutaneous complaints arise from disordered digestion the same means will be found serviceable and always curative. Any person, on reading the "Directions for use," can apply Holloway's remedies with certain benefit.

THE MAGNESIAN EFFERVESCENT is

the most agreeable and effective remedy in all cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Acidity, Heartburn, Indigestion, and Biliary Affection, Nausea, Fever, Thirst, and Sea-sickness. It is highly recommended by the profession, and will be found especially valuable to those going to India or travelling in warm climates; as a mild and efficacious saline aperient it stands unequalled, and will be found peculiarly adapted for delicate females and children. To be obtained through all respectable chemists, and wholesale from Messrs. BASCLAY, Farringdon-street (put up in stoppered bottles at 4s. 6d. for India), and smaller size at 1s. 1d. and 2s. 9d.

LEA'S ABERNETHY'S HOOPING COUGH

EMULSION.—From Sir W. Cubitt's Nephew. "Sir, —Your medicine cured me in ten days, after trying every remedy I heard of without success."—CHARLES HARRISON 32, Clifton-crescent, Old Kent-road."

Sold by G. LKA, 1A, South-street, Walworth, Surrey, and all Medicine Vendors, through his Agents, Messrs. Barclay's, 95, Farringdon-street, London, in bottles at 1s. 1d. and 2s. 9d.

N.B.—Numerous references can be given to families who have tested the efficacy of this preparation, when every other means have entirely failed.

LENTUM, A NEW COMPOSITION

for Artificial TEETH and GUMS, recommended to Invalids and a who suffer from Indigestion. Its flexibility and lightness give the greatest power in mastication, avoiding all pain or pressure on the gums, without springs, wires, or any unsightly gold. It supports all loose and tender teeth, and does not require the extraction of stumps. Prepared only by

Mr. ALFRED JONES, SURGEON-DENTIST to

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

For all countries or places eastward of Suez, the charge is 2d., whatever the weight of the newspaper.

Books under 1 lb. 6d.; under 1 lb. 1s.; and for every additional 1 lb. an additional 1s.

The Mails for China are despatched at the same rate of postage as those to India; but must be pre-paid.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

The present Mail brings us our ordinary files of papers from Calcutta to the 8th of December, and from Bombay to the 14th.

A telegram, however, from Aden, announces important news of a later date, to the effect that operations on the Nepal frontier had ceased, in consequence of the surrender of the rebels and all their leaders, with the exception of the Begum. Though by no means of a sanguinary temperament, we trust that no false clemency will be extended to Khan Bahadoor Khan, the instigator to the murder of the English officials at Bareilly, preceded by the insulting mockery of a trial.

The Calcutta journals are chiefly occupied with speculations as to the line of conduct likely to be adopted by the new Finance Minister, who has been wise enough to keep his own opinions to himself. Great hopes are therefore entertained of his success in adjusting the shaken finances of India, and, as usual, his sagacity is argued from his silence. On the morning of the 8th December Mr. Wilson started for Agra, to consult with the Governor-general, and, perhaps, to visit the Taj.

It is stated that Beni Madho Sing was killed on the 30th November in an action with the Nepalese troops under Colonel Bulwan Sing. On the 3rd December Brigadier Holditch reported that Mummoo Khan, Buldeo Sing, and Koer Sing's brother, Ummer Sing, were prisoners, together with two hundred of their followers. Two days later the Brigadier announced that Davie Deen and Gunga, leaders of the Nusseerabad brigade, were in camp, that the survivors of that brigade had surrendered to Jung Bahadoor, and that three hundred and fifty prisoners were then on their way from the Nepalese camp to his own. Had the Nepal ruler acted with equal decision when the fugitives first fled into his territory, the same result might have been obtained many months ago. Better late, however, than never, though the value of the service is nevertheless considerably lessened by the delay.

We regret to observe that crime is on the increase among Europeans in Calcutta, owing to the number of discharged sailors formerly belonging to the Naval Brigade now wandering about the streets without money or employment. It is certainly bad policy to accustom the natives to the sight of the conquering race in a state of degradation. Without the conviction on their part of the moral as well as physical superiority of the European, the security of our hold upon India will never be permanent.

The intelligence from China is devoid of general interest, but it is gratifying to learn from the Straits that telegraphic communication has been opened between Batavia and Singapore. The Governor-general of Netherlands India, and the Governor of the Straits Settlements exchanged congratulatory messages on the 24th and 25th of November.

In the department of home news our readers will find the Lord Chancellor's decision on the long standing suit of Mr. Boldero, c.s., against the East India Company, the latter coming off victorious. The Madras Fund, however, is admitted to be on a different footing to that of the Bengal one.

BENGAL.

MR. GRANT'S PUBLIC WORKS.

It would be difficult to imagine two administrations more different in principle than those of Sir Charles Trevelyan and Mr. Grant. The Governor of Madras lives always before the public. The Lieut.-governor of Bengal obviously avoids all public criticism. Sir Charles cannot travel without dictating a report of progress for the local Gazette. Mr. Grant is not always at the trouble to inform officials where he may be found. Sir Charles writes flourishing reports on the condition and possibilities of the Godavery, ending in little except a demonstration that the Godavery is not the Shannon. Mr. Grant settles the most important railway question lately raised, with the most profound indifference to everything except the direct interest of commerce and the State. The Madras Government moans over the want of means for public works. Mr. Grant collects farthings, and with them pays for a regular system of railway feeders.

The chief engineer of the Eastern Bengal Railway recommended, it would appear, that that line should stop at Kooshtee, a point upon the Ganges, seventy miles from Dacca, the proposed terminus of the railway. Beyond that point he suggested, or hinted, the railway company might run a line of steamers. The vessels would be much cheaper, and might, perhaps, carry goods as easily. Our English readers will comprehend the plan if they can imagine a company formed to connect London and Liverpool stopping at Stafford, and expending the remainder of their funds in swift tow boats for the canal. The proposition was one, however, calculated to strike an Indian Government. It involved fewer advantages, but also less trouble, less expense, and, above all, less time. It is no slight temptation to any Governor to be asked to accept an insufficient plan which will be at work in his own time, in place of a thorough one which he cannot hope to see accomplished. The neglect of our rivers is, moreover, so far an accepted truth that the modified plan might have gone down at home. Little trouble, small expense, apparent originality, and a result to be attained while one is still in the flesh to describe it—the plan was the very one to enchant Sir Charles Trevelyan. Mr. Grant threw it overboard at once. The railway to Kooshtee would secure none of the advantages of the railway to Dacca, and the shareholders if they want a guarantee must do the work they contracted to do, and not some other and much easier labour. The short line is, of course, utterly inadequate as a military line. We need a direct and swift communication with Eastern Bengal, not a contrivance little better than the one we possess, and exceedingly likely to be out of gear. Kooshtee might, doubtless, be made a steam station. But no conceivable expenditure of energy or capital would turn Kooshtee into a station whence swift steamers could start twice a day for a voyage of 200 miles up stream, and that stream the Ganges. It is daily communication we need, not steamers starting whenever the weather, the owners, the captains, the bazaar, the coal companies, and some hundreds of Bengalee coolies can be made to work in harmony. Heavy goods may wait, but for heavy goods, as Mr. Grant has shown, the scheme is specially ill adapted. Most travellers and all Englishmen will go a hundred miles out of their way to catch a train, even if it arrives no sooner than the old route, but the shippers of heavy goods object above all things to transhipment:—

“The success of such a railway must depend wholly upon the comparatively small class of goods which, being already on board of boats, and on their way to their immediate destination, it may be worth while to unload and put upon a railway for about 108 miles, in preference to allowing them to remain and go on in boat for about 399 miles; and upon the chance of a commercial mart, where goods will change hands, springing up at Kooshtee—a chance which is small and at best remote.”

The proposal is simply a plan for accelerating a great work by the easy device of leaving it two-thirds undone, and is, we hope, finally laid aside. Mr. Grant recommends that the survey from the bank opposite Kooshtee to Dacca should proceed at once.

The Government of Bengal, as our readers are aware, has at its disposal only one small fund for local roads. It never has obtained the grants for which Madras is so ungrateful, and with a surplus revenue of about eleven times the old surplus of Madras, has for a century existed without roads. Mr. Grant, however, neither demands sums it is impossible to give, nor moans over the preference given to imperial over provincial interests. There is the little fund, Rs. 5,35,387 only, and it must be made to do its work. Of the whole Rs. 2,47,149 belongs to the districts which contribute it, and is assigned to them to carry out local works. The remainder is devoted to the construction of feeding roads to the railway, according to the following list:—

From Bancoorah to station at Raneegunge, 25 miles.
Soorie . . . . .	Ahmednagar, 12
Elambazar . . . . .	Soorool, 9
Cutwa . . . . .	31
Culna . . . . .	Pandooah, 17
Sooty . . . . .	Nobinnagar, 13½
Jungypore . . . . .	Dhetara, 14½
Chinkrye . . . . .	Luckhisera, 48
Khuruckpore . . . . .	Kurhurea, 11
Mozufferpore . . . . .	Hadijapore, 34
Krishnagur . . . . .	Bagoolah, 11
Santipore . . . . .	Banaghat, 11
Commercolly . . . . .	Kooshtee, 12

Any one familiar with the map of Bengal will perceive that this little sum is so expended as to bring no less than nine districts into connection with a railway terminating in Calcutta. This year's allowance will not metal the roads, but it will purchase the land, build the embankment, construct the drains, and complete an excellent fair-weather way. The grant of next year must metal them, and link Tirthoot, the Sonthal Pergunnahs, Rajshahye, Krishnagur, Northern Hooghly and West Dacca finally into the railway system. We have rarely seen a plan of more sensible practical value. If every Government in India would apply its limited local resources as efficiently instead of moaning over an ill-judged parsimony the interior of India might yet have roads.—Friend of India.

THE TWO MEDICAL SERVICES.

In a previous number we endeavoured to draw an outline of the relative position of the medical officers of the Royal and Indian services. So large and important a subject could of course be but generally dealt with in the limited space devoted to it, and some points that may be considered of minor importance were passed over without being adverted to. To one or two of these points, which have been the subject of remark, we now propose to devote a little notice, more especially as our attention has been called to them by the letter of a correspondent, which appears in another portion of our paper, by several letters appearing at different times in the Indian and English journals, and particularly by a “statement regarding the Indian Medical Warrant,” which appeared in a recent number of the Edinburgh Medical Journal. To the rate of pension granted to medical officers retiring in consequence of wounds or sickness, we make no reference, as, although no doubt of great importance to those actually concerned, it is one in which but a small proportion of medical officers can ever become directly interested. In cases where retirement actually becomes a necessity, the advantage is greatly on the side of the Royal army. Whilst an assistant surgeon in the Royal army would receive £109 10s. per annum if compelled to retire on half-pay, under five years; £116 between five and ten years, and £182 19s. over ten years; an assistant surgeon in the Indian Service, unless over seventeen years' service, would receive but £73 1s., or if under three years' service, only £45 12s. 6d. per annum. A surgeon in the Queen's Service, after ten years £200 15s.; after fifteen years £246 7s. 6d.; after twenty years £301 2s. 6d.; after twenty-five years £337 12s. 6d. per annum. In the Indian services a surgeon would receive under seventeen years' service £127 16s. 9d.; after that period he is entitled to his ordinary retirement as before detailed. In this particular the Indian service is at great, and especially as regards the surgeons and old assistant surgeons, most unfair disadvantage. It must not, however, be forgotten that being necessitated to retire, may arise under very different conditions in the two services. In the one case it implies necessarily that he who retires is totally unable to exercise his profession, and that he must depend altogether upon his pension, and upon whatever private resources he may have for his future subsistence; whilst in the other it may only imply that he can no longer safely reside in a tropical climate, and does not prove that he is unable to commence a new career under a more congenial sky. Again the invalided Royal medical officer is not suffered quietly to pass the remainder of his days undisturbed in the enjoyment of his pension by any of war's alarms, for he is at any time subject to be again called upon to serve, if there is a prospect of making him useful in any position whatever. Add to all this that so severe is the surveillance exercised over this department of the pension list that but few medical officers ever retire upon this ground, and it will be seen that although the invalid pensions for the Indian service are undoubtedly much too low, and quite inadequate to the support of the recipients, there is, nevertheless, no great ground for envying the other service.

Again, a disparity is spoken of in the allowances when on sick or other furlough in England. Now although it seems quite unfair to keep Indian medical officers on the low rate of pay at present assigned to them when on furlough, yet inequality can scarcely be complained of, inasmuch as such furloughs in the Queen's service are all but unknown. Ordinary furloughs, such as Indian medical officers look forward to as a matter of course, are never even dreamed of in the royal army. A medical officer who applied for a two years', or even one year's, leave of absence, excepting in some particular emergency, would be almost looked upon as a proper candidate for the invaliding pension, on the ground of insanity, and it often happens after 15 or 20 years' foreign service, a medical officer has the greatest difficulty in getting even one or two months' leave to visit his family on his return home. If sent home sick, he may get one or two months' leave, or even if very bad six months, but at the expiration of that time he is kindly provided with some light duty (perhaps superintending the manufacture of pills and draughts), at Fort Pitt, or, if that cannot be, is probably placed on temporary half pay, which in reality leaves him in a much worse position than the Indian medical officers on sick furlough. On this point therefore the Indian Service has not much room for considering itself worse used than the Queen's.

There is one source of fallacy running through most of the letters and statements upon the subject which have met our notice, and through a false assumption in one particular, most unfounded and untrue conclusions have been arrived at. We allude to the calculations about the probable period of promotion. It should be remembered that the late warrant, although a boon, and a very great one to the Royal service, by no means conferred unmixed benefit. The abolition of the grade of first class staff-surgeons, although attended with no immediate injury (rather the reverse) to those who held it either in rank or pay, will, nevertheless, exercise a most serious retarding influence on the promotion of all the inferior grades, besides rendering the promotion of those officers themselves no longer merely a matter of time which, to a great extent, was previously the case, but a contingency dependent nominally upon merit, but practically upon the favour or caprice of the Director general for the time being. If the scale of pay and rank of Queen's medical officers, laid down in the warrant, is adopted as the standard of comparison between the services, we must consider the whole of the circumstances of the service as they will be modified by the action of that warrant. Under this view of the case it is absurd to say that after twenty-five years' service a Queen's medical officer may fairly expect to be a deputy inspector; such a calculation, which is false in itself, inasmuch as it is compiled on the basis of a rapid promotion caused by the Crimean war, becomes doubly false in the face of the warrant which declares that all promotions to ranks above that of surgeon major shall be by selection and not by seniority. Formerly an assistant surgeon on entering the service might fairly expect that if he remained in the service thirty or forty years he would almost, as a matter of course, reach the rank of deputy-inspector; now he can look forward to nothing more than being a surgeon major after twenty years' service; any advance beyond that grade will depend entirely upon the degree of favour with which he may be looked upon by the head of the department or the interest which he may be able to bring to bear upon him. Again, an assistant-surgeon's prospect of early promotion is very much overstated. True, within the last few years there have been many assistant surgeons under seven years' service promoted, and a few under six years; but these early promotions caused by a temporary stimulus, will inevitably produce, and are already producing, a corresponding reaction in the opposite direction. Thus, if we turn to Hart's Army List for the second quarter of the present year, we shall find that at the time it was published there were upwards of 650 assistant-surgeons on the list, so that in order for the junior assistant to obtain his surgeoyny in ten years, he ought to have sixty-five steps every year, whilst the probability is that he will not have an average of more than half that number. In the Indian service there is almost always a very close correspondence in the period of promotion, and but seldom a difference of more than four or five years in the time required. Ordinarily in the Bombay and Bengal services, an assistant-surgeon obtains his promotion in fourteen years, seldom obtaining promotion under thirteen years, rarely exceeding sixteen years. In the Madras Presidency it is said to be somewhat slower, sixteen or eighteen years; in neither of the Presidencies is there any fluctuation to be compared with that in the Queen's Service. In the latter an assistant-surgeon, who was gazetted in 1852, will probably be promoted within eight years, whilst one who obtained his commission in 1859 may very probably wait twenty years, or even more, for his surgeoyny.

There is one clause in the warrant for the Indian Medical Service, which has been contrasted disadvantageously with the corresponding provisions of the warrant for the other service. Whilst the former admits of brevet rank being given for distinguished services, the latter gives the power of conferring substantive rank in similar cases. Now although this may at first sight seem a grievance to the Indian Service, a little consideration will show that although it may injuriously affect individuals, it is more to the advantage of the whole body that brevet rank should be given to such exceptional cases rather than substantive rank. The great objection to the latter mode of requiting a deserving man is that you reward him at the expense of others perhaps equally deserving, but whose opportunities for proving it have not been as great. No man would in the abstract grudge another the reward which he had deserved, but every one objects to the gain of another when he himself is to suffer for it, and it seems scarcely just that a man who has done his duty honestly and well to the best of his ability should be retarded in his promotion by a junior being passed over his head. A brevet rank, on the other hand, confers an advantage upon the distinguished without injuring others, and we think it would be far better to increase the advantages attendant upon brevet rank, than to make the good fortune of one the loss of many, by making exceptional substantive promotions.

The present system of payment presses with peculiar hardship on assistant surgeons in the Royal Service, and on surgeons in the Indian Service, but the staff surgeons of the former, when left without charges, occasionally are made to feel all the injustice and absurdity of a system which leaves a medical man's pay a problem of the greatest difficulty. If the charges which are so remunerative were in the highest degree disagreeable and laborious, and if it simply depended upon the medical officer's own choice, or even his abilities or standing in the service, whether he held them, there would be at all events something rational in it; but to make more than half a man's pay dependent on circumstances over which he has no control, whilst it is influenced neither by the amount of duty which he has to do, nor by rank nor qualifications, is a folly which could scarcely obtain in any other country than India. In one case which came before our notice, a staff surgeon in the Queen's Service, doing duty, and that of an onerous character, was actually drawing a less amount of pay than most assistant surgeons in the Indian Service. Such anomalies as these must be done away with, an uniform rate of pay adopted proportioned to rank and length of service, and invalid pensions and furlough allowances adapted to the scale of pay laid down in the warrant for the royal army be granted before the effervescence now agitating both services can be calmed down, and the feelings of anger and discontent be appeased. Let the pay and position of all medical officers of the same standing, whether of the Royal or Indian Service, be fixed at the same standard whilst performing similar duties in the same climate. Raise the English rate of pay of the Indian Service to a level with that conferred by the royal warrant; and, as the members of each service think themselves worse off than those of the other in that respect, fix the retiring pensions of both at the same rate, reserving still, to the Indian medical officers (in consideration of their more permanent exile), the right of earlier availing themselves of the privilege of retiring.—Indian Lancet.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mr. WILSON has received a deputation from the Indigo Planters' Association. They presented an address congratulating the new Finance Minister and themselves on his appointment. Mr. Wilson, in reply, lamented the existence of class dissensions, expressed his conviction that the Europeans were prepared to bear a fair share of the burdens of the State, and advocated the frank expression of opinion. He saw no benefit in an unworthy compromise of convictions.

THE DALHOUSIE HALL.—The subscribers to the Dalhousie testimonial fund have agreed to devote the surplus, Rs. 75,000, to the erection of a building to be called "The Dalhousie Hall." The sum is to be made over to the new Calcutta Institute, if they satisfy the trustees that they have additional funds sufficient to complete the building. Thus Calcutta has at last a near prospect of possessing a hall worthy of the first city in Asia, and of the Governor-general whose name it is to bear. It will not be affected by the dissolution of the Institute at any time, while it will be available for all the purposes contemplated by the Institute. When the finances will allow, we trust that the original idea of an Imperial Museum will be carried out in connection with the hall.

ALLAHABAD REMOUNT DEPOT.—The Lucknow Herald says it has been determined to remove the Allahabad remount depot to Kurnaul. The number of horses at present in the depot exceeds 2,000. The grass crops of Kurnaul and the low price of grain there will allow of a slight saving in the stud.

THE POISONOUS LIZARD.—Mr. E. P. Moore, late editor of the Phoenix, has addressed the following letter to the Bombay Standard:—"I perused in your paper the other day a letter signed "Capsule," regarding the question of the venomous lizard, generally known by the name of Bis-Cobra. During the late rebellion I was quartered, with the brigade under my command, in Singlebhoom, a place notorious for every description of snakes and poisonous reptiles, from boa-constrictors to scorpions. One day a large lizard of a dark brown colour was killed in the mango tope where our tents were pitched, and brought to me. I am sorry I had not the means of preserving it, but examined it thoroughly, and afterwards copied it in water-colours. The lizard was nearly nine inches long, like a snake in appearance, with four short legs, like those of a land tortoise, armed with four long and sharp claws. The head resembled a heart in shape, with a long forked black tongue, and a row of formidable teeth. It had no moveable fangs, like the cobra, but I observed that two of the teeth were somewhat longer than the rest, and examining them through a strong glass like a microscope, which I carry about with me to light my pipe with when out shooting, I could distinctly detect a small orifice near the point of each tooth, which is in my opinion conclusive evidence of the creature having been possessed of a poison bag in the jaw. The natives who saw it seemed to view it with terror, and actually buried it, for fear, as they said, of any one afterwards treading on its teeth, which would cause death. The expression of the eyes was singularly malignant, and the whole appearance of the animal most repulsive and disgusting."

FRENCH IN BURMAH.—The Rangoon Times notices a report among the Burmese that four Frenchmen were introduced into the palace in women's clothes, as ladies of the bedchamber. Weapons were found on their persons. This is the form the impression among the natives, that the French are hostile to the King because he disgraced them, would naturally assume.

THE ROYAL FAMILY OF DELHI.—The last news of the once Great Mogul is that his two sons, who are imprisoned with their father, have begun the study of English. An English sergeant gives them daily lessons. The ex-King and three sons, with their attendants, are kept in close confinement in a wooden building constructed especially for their accommodation. Their residence in Rangoon has excited no interest among the natives.

ST. ANDREW'S DAY.—The Scotch dinner in Calcutta on the 30th Nov., the anniversary of St. Andrew, seems to have been a more brilliant success than on any former occasion within the last twenty years. Upwards of 150 Scotch residents, with a few guests, sat down. The toasts and songs were of the usual character, but the occasion had a new interest, from the presence of the right hon. James Wilson, who replied to "The Guests." To his "Mission" he made only general allusions. He hoped that he would receive from many of those present suggestions which would naturally arise out of their intimate local knowledge of the country. He was sure that where inevitable differences of opinion arose between him and them, or his colleagues, they would be differences of opinion only. Their kind reception of him would greatly lighten his labour. Sir Mordaunt Wells responded to the toast "The Judges and the Bar." Brigadier Smith to "The Army," and the Lieutenant-governor of Bengal to "The Civil Service."

NAGPORE.—According to the Indian Statesman, the changes to be effected in the administration of Nagpore consequent on Mr. Plowden's removal and Major Elliot's appointment are a reduction in the salary of the Chief Commissioner, and the creation of a Judicial Commissionership with the pay of a Sessions Judgeship. The Statesman urges the claims of Mr. Robert Ellis, of the Madras service, to the new office.

COMPENSATION.—The Governor-general has promised officially to recommend that the whole million granted for compensation shall be expended. This sum will cover all bona fide claims.

CAPTAIN HAUGHTON, Superintendent of the Andamans, is trying to raise a Malay corps for local duties. The company of Madras Sebundies which was raised for the same object is doing well. There will be considerable difficulty in levying a sufficient number of Malays. It has been found impossible to keep up the full strength of the Ceylon Rifles. Until from ten to twenty thousand convicts are thrown upon the islands they will not be cleared, nor the free colony successfully formed.

FUTTEHPORE.—The Phoenix mentions that Futtehpore is to be no longer a military station. The European Artillery and native troops stationed there are to proceed to Cawnpore, and the military stores and ammunition to be removed to Allahabad.

THE VENABLES TESTIMONIAL.—The surplus of the Venable's Testimonial Fund, amounting to Rs. 13,600 in Government paper, is to be made over to the Calcutta Institute, on condition that the memorial of Mr. Venable be placed in a conspicuous part of the proposed Dalhousie Hall. The Institute, independent of its own funds, thus starts with nearly Rs. 84,000.

GOVIND PRASAD PUNDIT, the proprietor of the Searsole collieries, has offered to contribute from Rs. 20,000 to Rs. 25,000 to the local 6 per cent. loan for the Oolabarrah Canal between the Damooda and the Hooghly. He does so "to meet the wishes of Government." A more enlightened coal proprietor would have made the canal himself to meet his own interests.

THE FORESTS OF THE ANDAMAN ISLANDS are likely to be valuable. Captain Haughton, the superintendent, says the trees grow "to a magnificent size." More than a thousand have already been sacrificed in clearing the ground. One fine wood oil tree, round throughout, measured 117 feet to its lowest branch, with a minimum girth of nine feet. The Chinese and Bengalee carpenters at Port Blair recognised specimens of four Penang kinds of wood as common in the Andamans. Convict labour will be increased in value a thousand-fold if the convicts are employed in felling trees. Ultimately it may not be impossible to induce the islanders, with their grand physique, to become woodcutters.

THE FRENCH IN THE EAST.—The Bombay Gazette quotes from a Mauritius journal the statement that the French have effected a permanent settlement at Bally, on the east coast of Madagascar. The place is part of an outlying province, independent of the Hova Queen, who reigns in the centre of the island, and is suzerain of the other three tribes. The attempt of the French to settle in 1612 miserably failed. Some of them were massacred, owing, as usual, to the Jesuits, and the rest fled to the Mauritius, where La Bourdonnais introduced order and prosperity. The English missionaries were driven out of the island in 1825, on the death of King Radama. The French have had since 1815 a factory on the small island of Madame St. Mary, and settlements at four spots on the coast. Bourbon is only 440 miles to the eastward.

MAURITIUS.—It may be remembered that on the night of the 5th of September, on the occasion of some disturbances in the theatre of Port Louis, Mauritius, the mayor ordered water to be pumped upon the audience. The inhabitants subsequently held an indignation meeting, and memorialised the Governor on the subject. While his excellency perused the narrative of the catastrophe "with much pain," and "expressed his regrets at the occurrence of the insult at which they were so justly indignant," he reminds them that they themselves elected the mayor, and that he is not a colonial official. After a vain recourse to the courts, the matter dropped. We should fancy the mayor will eschew publicity henceforth. Why do the citizens not play the hose into his bedroom window at early morn?

FAIR AT BIRKHOOR.—A correspondent of the Delhi Gazette represents the annual fair at Birkhoor, which has not been held for two years owing to the rebellion, as grand. The Rajahs of Chirkarree, Benares, and Rewah were present, and made immense offerings to Mahadeo.

CASH BALANCES.—The Calcutta Gazette announces that on the 31st October last the cash balance in the treasuries of India amounted to Rs. 12,22,71,220. That is, only two millions sterling above the point at which the pressure would be felt all over the empire. In the Punjab alone 60 lakhs will be needed to prevent a deficit at the various treasuries before April next.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S "DOUBLE."—The Hurkaru states that the north wing of Government House has been fitted up for the accommodation of Mr. Wilson, who brought out with him a large and efficient staff of assistants. Sir Charles Wood has written out desiring the Government to tender him every possible assistance, and such additional aid as he may require for his office. The Account Department is to be placed under Mr. Wilson's exclusive management. No changes are to be introduced, or additional establishment sanctioned, without his previous approval.

IS HINDOISM ON THE WANE?—The Hindoo Patriot describes the course of 'Indian social progress,' or the effects of Christianity among the natives of India:—"The wasting has commenced, and the pithy portion of the tree of superstition has a great deal worn out. We can assure our European friends that the educated natives stand no longer in need of exhortative advices to make them see through and put aside the tainting customs and practices of their forefathers, to learn that the Purans are false, that Menu was a created man, and that the Brahmins have long trodden over the necks of the Sudras; nor do they wholly fail to act upon these convictions. They—at least a great number—have followed in their actions the dictates of reason and conscience; and where they have not done so, it has been and still is with a view to avoid breaking the heart-strings of those they tenderly love." The writer compares "the sneaking sect meetings among the educated natives of India" to the clandestine conventicles of the early Christians, the English Puritans and the Scotch Covenanters, and asserts that those who, though Christian in spirit, do not profess Christianity, do more to weaken Hindooism than "the whole corps of professed missionaries do at present." We fear all this is true only of 'Young Bengal,' and that in a very modified sense. Sceptical indifference has taken the place of superstition, and weakness leads to the hypocrisy of yielding to its forms. The state of feeling among educated natives is somewhat that which prevailed at Rome when Cicero, himself an Augur, wondered how one priest could pass another in the street without laughing. Out of the Presidency cities, orthodox Hindooism has not loosened its hold on the national mind.—Friend of India.

REV. J. P. HARRIS.—The Phoenix mentions that a personal allowance of Rs. 200 a month has been granted to the Rev. J. P. Harris, now assistant chaplain of Dugshai, until he attains the grade of chaplain. The allowance is a well-deserved recognition of Mr. Harris' services during the siege of Lucknow. On Mr. Polehampton's death, the whole duties of the garrison devolved on him. His wife's book, "A Lady's Diary in the Siege of Lucknow," is well-known.

DELHI, Dec. 7.—The trotting match against time came off this morning, in the presence of a goodly assemblage of the sporting community. The Baqman performed his task of trotting twelve miles within the hour, and his sporting owner, Mr. Coghill, of the 2nd Fusiliers, bagged £500 by the performance, much to the satisfaction of the assemblage above mentioned. The air is sharp enough now. In a room where two months ago the mercury marked 98 degrees, it now stands at 58 degrees—a slight difference, and highly appreciated, as you may imagine.

THE CHRISTIAN DRUMMERS.—A correspondent of the Englishman gives a narrative of the experiences of one of the Christian Drummers, lately sent in by the Ghoorkas to Major Rennie's camp. John Saunders was a fifer of the 17th N.I., which mutinied at Azimghur. The Christians of the band were spared, as they could neither read nor write English, and with the treasure were marched off under a guard to Caw-pore. Near Fyzabad the regiment met in with some European fugitives and killed them. When nearing Cawnpore they were ordered by the Nana to march on quickly to the river, as forty boat-loads of Europeans would be sent down, and they must be killed. Six companies with two guns accordingly fired into the boats. On marching into Cawnpore the Nana ordered the drummer party to be kept in irons till they could be sent to Delhi, where the King would probably require their services. The Nana lived in the Assembly Rooms. The drummers daily cut grass for his horses, and each received four pice a day. They followed the Nana's fortunes to Futteghur, Bareilly and Nepaul. A sirdar who had been ordered by the Ghoorka authorities to discover if there were any European prisoners with the rebels, took them to his village, and subsequently sent them into our camp. A fife major, with his family, is still at Touleah working as a tailor. He was afraid to join the party of John Saunders. Besides him there are still a few East Indian drummers and their families with the rebels.

MAULMAIN has shared in the steady increase of trade which has distinguished every British port in the eastern seas during the last few years. Her imports and exports were in 1853-56, £800,000; 1856-57, £1,030; 1857-58, £1,120,000. In 1858 the arrivals and departures of vessels were respectively 452 and 438, with a united tonnage of 2,54,130.

LICENCE TAX IN THE PUNJAB.—A correspondent describes the working of the licence tax introduced into the Punjab on the 1st December. In all cities and towns the existing octroi is trebled, elsewhere a tax is levied on bankers, traders, and shopkeepers, at the rate of 3 per cent. on their profits. The increased octroi ranges from Rs. 2-8 per cent. on the value of articles imported into towns to Rs. 4-8 in the large cities. The natives prefer the indirect and equal incidence of the octroi, and willingly agree to pay the increased prices. It is estimated that the amount raised will be 30 lakhs of rupees yearly.

ALLAHABAD, Dec. 6.—Mr. M. H. Court, the magistrate and collector of this district, who had been on leave for two years, returned yesterday, and rejoined his appointment. Mr. W. Muir, member of the Sudder Board of Revenue, is expected here to-day, on his return from his tour in the provinces. The commissioner, Mr. Thornhill, has also returned, having lately escorted the Lieutenant-governor to the border of his division. A noted villain has lately been apprehended here. He first sheltered Mr. H. Archer and others, during the mutiny at this station, and then gave information of them to some bud-mashes, who cruelly murdered nearly all the party. After this act of treachery, he led the way to the residence of the late Mr. Boilard, and helped to kill him. The worthy individual charged with these crimes expressed astonishment at his own apprehension, observing that others far worse than himself are now living at Allahabad, unmolested and in perfect freedom. It is to be hoped that Mr. Court, who was here at the time of the mutiny, and is perfectly well aware of the deeds of these scoundrels, will lose no time in ferreting them out, and handing them over for trial to the special commissioner.

THE RAJAH OF BARRA, who was said by the Allahabad correspondent of the Delhi Gazette to be about to marry a Christian, is, we learn from the New Times, extremely wrath at the statement. He has asked the commissioner to call the editor to account, and an action for libel, damages Rs. 5,000, is threatened.

THE MAHARAJAH OF BHURTPORE, we learn from the New Times, was to be married to the daughter of the Maharajah of Puttiala early in December. A large number of European gentlemen have been invited to be present at the celebration, which was to take place at the court of the bride's father. The bridegroom is about eight years of age, and the bride, it may be presumed, something less. The former is a very intelligent boy, who is being educated with care, especially in English, and English ideas.

THE P. AND O. COMPANY AS CATERERS.—A "Passenger with a ruined stomach" has forwarded to the Englishman the following "average specimen of the bills of fare" on board the s.s. Bengal, between Suez and Calcutta:—Soups: Cairo donkey and sea-weed; roast haunches of dromedary with bear's grease; roast fore-quarters of wolves and hyenas, with engine-room butter; stewed hocks of buffaloes, garlic sauce; roast saddles of tigers, with ditto tripe; boiled camels' humps, with ditto liver and pluck; boiled knuckles of hippopotamus, with Sheppard's cabbage sauce; stewed jackals and goats, whole, with kitten trimmings; city of Cairo pigs garnished with bandicoots; sea pies of stags' and hogs' muscle, gristle, and offal; roast albatrosses with tank and ghee gravy; roast vultures au naturel; boiled kites and buzzards, with Cairo butter and tea-leaves; côtelettes de pariah, sauce à la McIver; consommés de paddy-bird, sauce Bheeli-Barlow; blanquettes de musk-rat, Harvey's sauce; compôtes de mon-goose, with cockroaches; ragôuts de serpents, garnis de centipedes. Vegetables: parsnips, sauce à la fiancée; pomme-de-terres de savon; asperges de spun-yarn; petits pois acidules. Curry and rice. Rats, fowls' necks and legs, ducks' heads and feet, chopped dogs and foxes, fat, entrails, and hair. Dessert: tarts, cabbage, mangel-wurzel and crab-fruit, with poultice puddings, pummaloos au-pied de Topaz, and cheese to clear the table.

KISHENGHUR.—Some disturbances have again (says the Bombay Times) broken out in the Kishenghur district, a few miles north of Ajmere, in consequence of a quarrel between the Kishenghur Rajah and one of his rebellious thakours. The former having solicited assistance from his ally, the Rajah of Jodhpore, he has sent a small force, consisting principally of cavalry, to his aid. The rebel chief and his followers have taken possession of a strong hill fort a short distance from Kishenghur, and report says intend to make a resolute stand. Captain Nixon, political agent of Jodhpore, has proceeded to the scene of action, with the view of settling matters to the satisfaction of the belligerents, in which it is hoped he will succeed.

THE BISHOP OF CALCUTTA'S VISITATION TOUR.—The Bishop of Calcutta has now reached Allahabad in his visitation tour. During the progress up the river he had two attacks of fever, but we are happy to learn that his Lordship is now much better. At Rampore Beaulah and Buxar, cemeteries were consecrated, and at Allahabad two are to be consecrated before the bishop leaves the station. At many stations the Holy Communion was administered during the Bishop's stay. His Lordship preached at every place except Rampore, Beaulah and Buxar, where he was too unwell to do so, and Chunar, where he only stayed one day, and held two confirmations, one for Europeans, and one for natives, each, of course, accompanied by addresses to the candidates. He visited the hospitals of Berhampore, Dinapore, and Allahabad, and held a short service in each. He also visited the mission schools at Bhagulpore, and the Government college, Jaynair's College, and other mission schools at Benares.—Hurkaru.—The Oude Gazette states that the Lord Bishop arrived at Lucknow on Monday, the 25th of November. On Thursday he held a confirmation, at which sixty-eight persons were confirmed. On the afternoon of the same day his lordship was to preside at a meeting to be held in behalf of the Bible Society. On the following Tuesday the Bishop was to proceed on his journey to Cawnpore, Futtehgur, Agra, and Delhi, as far as Peshawur. Both Dr. and Mrs. Cotton were in excellent health at the period that our contemporary writes.

EXPORTS (Calcutta, Dec. 8).—The market remains much about the same as represented in our last. Stocks of almost all staples continue moderate, and supplies are arriving very gradually; previous prices are still maintained, and shippers entertain the same disinclination as before to operate in face of late accounts from home. For America a very moderate business has been done; but shipments which had almost been suspended for France have been resumed, but to a very moderate extent.

IMPORTS (Calcutta, Dec. 8).—Operations for the Upper Provinces continue very moderate, and although there is no particularly favourable intelligence from the up-country marts, there are buyers at low prices. Grey Shirtings have fallen in price since last Mail two to three annas; low qualities have been selling for up-country and Madras, and heavier goods for B. mby. Grey Madapolams have fallen about one anna. Grey Cambrics have slightly fallen in price. Grey Jacquenets have been sold about one anna per piece lower. Grey Mulls remain unaltered in price. White Shirtings remain unchanged in value. White Madapolams and Cambrics are rather quiet, and unaltered in price. White Jacquenets and Mulls in moderate demand at unaltered prices. Mule Twist is dull of sale generally at this season, but some demand has sprung up for Madras without, however, any improvement in price. Chintzes are dull of sale, being out of season. Woolens are almost out of season. Metals.—The market continues inactive.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SHANAR WOMEN.—Sir Charles Trevelyan has addressed the following letter to Lieut. Gen. Cullen, resident at Travancore and Cochin:—"Madras, May 6, 1859.—Dear Sir,—Having now perused the whole of the correspondence relating to Travancore, I am able to write to you with confidence. The recent proceedings in reference to certain females of the Shanar class which have attracted so much attention both in England and India, require no comment from me. I have seldom met with a case in which not only truth and justice, but every feeling of our common humanity are so entirely on one side. The whole civilised world would cry shame upon us if we did not make a firm stand on such an occasion. If anything could make this line of conduct more incumbent on us, it would be the extraordinary fact that persecution of a singularly personal and delicate kind is attempted to be justified by a Royal proclamation, the special object of which was to assure to her Majesty's Indian subjects liberty of thought and action, so long as they did not interfere with the just rights of others. I should fail in respect to her Majesty if I attempted to describe the feelings with which she must regard the use made against her own sex of the promises of protection so graciously accorded by her. I, however, observe with pleasure that in his letter to you, dated 12th of February last, Madava-row, the Dewan of Travancore, wrote to you as follows:—'The authority of the Sirkar having been vindicated, it may be desirable to take an early opportunity to consider that modification should be made in the proclamation, so as to suit the requirements of altered times and circumstances, and satisfy parties as far as it may be possible to do so; from which I infer that his highness the Maharajah is sensible that the conduct of a portion of his subjects towards the Shanar women belongs to an age of barbarism, utterly unsuited to the present advanced stage of civilization in this country. By the order of this Government, dated the 27th of January last, you were instructed to be careful to give no countenance to the idea that the British Government, of which you are the representative, recognizes any exclusive distinctions, or the right of any set of men to prevent others from following, in all matters of social or domestic life, such course as they may see fit, provided it be not repugnant to public decency and morals. It will be your duty to impress these views on his highness the Rajah, and to point out to him that such prohibitions as those contained in the circular order of May, 1814, or in the proclamation of the 3rd February, 1829, are unsuited to the present age, and unworthy of an enlightened prince, and that he is not to look for the support of the British Government in any attempts to maintain them, as respects any class of his subjects. And by the further order of this Government, of the 12th March last, you were informed that the Government will hope to learn at an early date what arrangement has been made by the Dewan. The principle on which it should proceed has already been laid down by Government in the last paragraph of extract minutes of consultation, 26th January, 1859. General Cullen will inform Government what communication he has held with his highness the Rajah in furtherance of the instructions then conveyed to him. The degree of interference which for many years past has been exercised by the representative of the British Government in the affairs of Travancore is so large, and his intervention so general, that the credit or discredit of the administration greatly rests with the British Government, and it has thereby become their duty to insist upon the observance of a system of toleration in a more decided manner than they would be at liberty to adopt if they had merely to bring their influence to bear on an independent State. Since that time numerous petitions have been presented to Government by the inhabitants of Travancore, complaining of the ill-usage and indignities to which the Shanar women are exposed, all of which have been referred to you for an early report of what you have done in these cases with reference to the orders of this Government of the 27th January, 1859. It is my earnest desire to support the just authority of the Maharajah in his ancient dominions, and I know what is due to yourself as an old and deserving officer of this Government; but the case now before me is one in which the claims of public duty are of the most imperative kind, and I must, therefore, desire that you will, without further delay, yield obedience to the repeated orders which have been conveyed to you, and report in detail what you have done in consequence of the resolutions of this Government, communicated to you on the 27th January and on the 14th of March last, and what the Maharajah has done in consequence.—I remain, &c. (Signed), C. E. TREVELYAN."

MINERAL ORES.—A report by Mr. Wall, mineral viewer, gives information as to the lead ores in Cuddapah, Kurnool, and other parts of the ceded districts. Some of the lodes contain "extravagant proportions of silver," and all a sufficient quantity to make the ore valuable. In some specimens from Busnaron the percentage of lead was 7·24, and the quantity of silver per ton 3602·7 cwt. The ore may be easily worked, and could be shipped at Madras at Rs. 60 a ton. In England a ton would realise £12. Madras itself uses 100 tons, at Rs. 296 a ton, for the army alone, every year. The railway between Madras and Bombay will run through the districts, and a new source of wealth thus be made available. India seems to possess all the mineral, and more than the metallic wealth of England; and, except lime, copper, and tin, all easily accessible.

A MONSTER HOTEL.—A number of wealthy and influential persons have it in contemplation, we understand, to start a "monster" hotel in Madras. It is supposed that a lakh and a-half, or perhaps two lakhs, will be sufficient to erect a building large enough for the purpose, and it is supposed that by dividing this sum into shares of Rs. 100, the money will be easily raised. Cool calculators reckon upon very large dividends from our Great Eastern, and talk confidently of thirty or thirty-five per cent.; and we must say that we see no reason why their expectations should not be realised, if they can only obtain a building in which the denizens of the "Pig and Whistle," as well as the luxurious dwellers in the "gorgeous establishments" of the West End, can find such accommodation as will suit their respective purses, and in which a greater degree of privacy can be enjoyed than is now obtainable in establishments not built for hotel purposes. A great deal will also depend, of course, upon the good fortune of the directors in their choice of a person to manage the internal economy of the establishment.—Daily Times.

MILITARY MALE ORPHAN ASYLUM.—There is every likelihood that the Military Male Orphan Asylum of Madras, with all its property, will be transferred to the Committee of the Ootacamund Lawrence Asylum, as that of Calcutta was to the Sunawar Asylum. The total cost of boarding and clothing each pupil of the Ootacamund Asylum is Rs. 10 a month. The cost in Madras for each pupil of the Military Asylum was Rs. 8·12. The difference is too trifling to stand in the way of a transfer to a hill climate. The United Asylum, after erecting a large building on the hills at the cost of a lakh of rupees, and providing for the establishment of principal, masters and servants, would have an income of Rs. 3,500 a month, at the present rate, for 350 boarders. The pupils of the Military Asylum are of mixed parentage. Sir Henry Lawrence's Protestant principles will continue to be carried out, if the transfer is accomplished. All the pupils are now required to attend the Bible lessons, and daily prayers.

COCONADA.—The government of Madras advertises the sale by auction of eligible building lots in the town of Coconada, under the new "freehold" rules. The amount realised is to be devoted exclusively to the improvement of the river and port. Both banks of the river, from the bridge downwards, are to be faced with a stone revetment, "leaving a clear breadth of 100 yards at high water, with a public road of forty feet in width on each side, beyond which public wharves will be constructed at intervals. The river will be dredged to the depth of twenty feet at high water." This plan is admirable; even if the visions of the Godavery's future result in nothing, Coconada must soon be the most important of the northern ports. But is it honest that money realised from the sale of the land in perpetuity should feed the imperial treasury? Municipal or purely local funds alone should be devoted to the improvement of the port. When the government and the native claimant settle their dispute as to the right to the strand of Calcutta, the Hooghly may have its stone revetment also.

TEA IN TRAVANCORE.—General Cullen has reported to the Madras government the successful culture of the tea-plant in Travancore. It thrives both at the level of the sea and at altitudes of 1,800 and 3,200 feet. He points to the "Cardamum Hills of Travancore," a tract of land from fifty to sixty miles in length and ten to twenty five in breadth, as admirably suited for the cultivation. The tendency of the plant is to luxuriant growth, but this is checked by selecting ground at high altitudes and with a less humid climate. Government has directed Dr. Cleghorn, the conservator of forests, to visit and report on these tea-plantations.

COLONEL COTTON.—The Madras Times takes Colonel Cotton to task for his "utter contempt for facts and figures." The original estimates for the Godavery works have been exceeded over and over again. The charge that the revenue from the irrigated districts did not seem so immense as it ought to be, because the officials would not collect it nor prevent concealed cultivation, has been disproved by Mr. Dyke's report.

The result—the doubling of the revenue in twelve years—is adequate—but not so immense as to satisfy Colonel Cotton. His predictions of the results of the Irrigation Company's operations will be similarly falsified, and the real benefits probably concealed from public recognition by the reproaches with which he will be met on their completion. He promises that goods will be conveyed along the new canal at rates varying from  $\frac{1}{4}$  to 2 pie per ton per mile, whilst it is notorious that on the easiest and cheapest worked portion of the new canal the rate paid by Government, exclusive of toll, is 9 pie per ton per mile for the carriage of salt, chillies, carried over the whole length of the open portion of the canal, cost 8·4-5th pie per ton per mile, exclusive of toll, which is  $1\frac{1}{2}$  pie per ton per mile, to be added. The average of the most favourable cases of the Indian river steamers is 2½d. per ton.

THE JEWS IN COCHIN.—The Cochin Courier says that the Roman Catholics of Ernacollum, in the territory of the Rajah of Cochin, are in a state of dangerous excitement against the Jews of the district. About the end of last month a party of Jews entered the house of a Christian in his absence, treated with gross indignities two images which were held in reverence throughout the place for their miraculous powers, and finally burned them. The Christians were restrained from an outbreak by their priest, and sought redress from the police. For a week no efforts had been made to bring the offenders to justice. A wealthy Jew, it is said, who has influence with those in authority, is striving to hush the matter up. Major Drury, the acting Resident, will probably interfere. When the Roman Catholic Christians had power in the days of Albuquerque and the Portuguese, they persecuted the Jews. No reason is given for the iconoclastic zeal of the latter on the present occasion. The Copper grant conferring Cranganore on the Black Jews is dated A. D. 388. The White Jews, or Jews of Jerusalem, are believed to have arrived in India at a later date.

LIEUT. ROUND.—The Madras Spectator mentions that Lieutenant Round, late of the 10th M. N. I., who was dismissed the service, has been engaged by Salar Jung, the Nizam of Hyderabad's minister, "among his armed retainers," on Rs. 250 a month.

MADRAS NEWS.—With regard to Madras affairs we have not much to chronicle. Reduction of military expenditure is still going on. In a General Order which the Commander-in-chief (Sir P. Grant) has published, it is notified that the command allowance (Rs. 530) at those stations not being brigade commands, where two or more corps are stationed, has been abolished; for the present the Straits' command is excepted.—The details connected with the re-arrangement of the collectorates of Masulipatam and Rajahmundry, alluded to a short time ago as likely soon to take place, have been notified in the Gazette. The change is to be effected on the 16th Dec. The tract of country which has hitherto been known as the district of Masulipatam is to be divided between Rajahmundry and Guntur, which are in future to be called the "Godaviri" and "Krishna" districts. Mr. A. Purvis has been appointed Collector of the former, and Mr. Knox of the latter. In the south, also, the present arrangement is to be departed from, on the same date as that above mentioned. The district of Canara is to be divided into two collectorates, which are to be denominated North and South Canara. Mr. Levinge has been appointed to the collectorship of the first-named district, and Mr. Fisher to that of the latter. Experience having demonstrated that the rates hitherto charged on the Madras Railway, for the carriage of goods, require modification, so as the more extensively to attract traffic, a considerable reduction in the charges has been made. The reduced rates are eight, ten, and twelve pie per ton per mile; the former rates were ten, fifteen, and twenty-four pie per ton per mile. One remarkable feature in these changes is, that they are the voluntary act of the railway officials them-

MISCELLANEOUS.

FIRE AT POONA.—The Poona Observer notices the destruction of the Boodhwar Warrah, or old Palace, and adjoining houses by fire on the night of 18th November. Property has been lost to the value of a lakh of rupees. An adjacent government building containing the whole of the records of the native civil courts, was narrowly saved by the exertions of the sepoy of the 15th N.I. and the sappers. The palace belongs to the sons of the late Appa Saheb Dhumderay. The fire appears to have been accidental.

THE 14TH DRAGOONS.—The same journal gives the following as the casualties in the 14th light dragoons in India, now about to return to England:—Officers, 29; non-commissioned officers, 108; trumpeters, 6; farriers, 10; privates, 466: total, 619. The regiment has been eighteen years in India. It was distinguished in the Central India campaign, and received from the Duke of Cambridge a special acknowledgment of his admiration at its gallant behaviour. The average strength of the regiment is not given. In a period of thirty-nine years, from 1817 to 1856, the ratio of deaths among the troops in Bombay per 1,000 was 61.1, and all over India seventy annually from all causes. From climate alone the ratio is sixty per thousand annually. The proportion annually invalidated is generally reckoned at twenty-five per thousand.

THE PARDHEES.—The Bombay papers mention the encampment on the flats of the island of a tribe of wandering Pardhees. The police dispersed them under the belief that theft was their object. One class of them consists of gang robbers, who are the terror of Khandeish and Berar, and occasionally attack and plunder treasuries. The men who visited Bombay are however merely travelling "Shikarees" who live by snaring such game as peacocks, partridges, quail, antelopes, and sell the feathers of the birds they snare. They are poor but peaceable men, and should be distinguished from their more dangerous brethren. But the same prejudice as exists in England against the gipsies, leads every village in whose neighbourhood these Pardhees encamp, to be on the alert. The robber tribes of the Marhatta country and the Punjab should have tracts of land set apart for their settlement, and be forced to confine themselves to the colony. From 1847 to 1855 in the Bombay presidency 609 members of these tribes committed 1,151 dacoities, and plundered property to the extent of nearly 6 lakhs of rupees, of which not a tenth part was recovered.

CHINA.

HONG KONG, Nov. 30.—The London Mail of Sept. 27 arrived here on the 16th, and that of Oct. 10 arrived yesterday. Nothing has occurred during the fortnight affecting relationships with the Chinese, except that the new American treaty came into force on the 24th, having been signed at Tien-tsin on the 18th June, 1858, and ratified at Peking on the 16th of August last. It reduces the tonnage duties on American vessels, and provides that citizens of the United States detected smuggling shall be liable to be handed over to the Chinese authorities, and shall receive no countenance or protection from those of their own country. Another clause of the treaty opens the ports of Tai-wan, in Formosa, and Swatow, to American commerce, but it does not come into force until Jan. 1, 1860.

From the Pekin Gazette it appears that the banking system of the metropolis had been put under special regulations. The banks had been issuing paper in excess, and much misery had been caused by the sudden disappearance of bankers after issuing notes in large numbers. Kweiliang, the prime minister, continues in bad health, and had applied for an extension of leave from his public duties.

The rice crop of this season has not fulfilled the expectations formed of it. In fact, the deficiency is considerable, and will be the more felt as this year's first crop was also defective. Prices have risen, and the failure is believed to extend over all the South of China, and even to Siam.

The scheme of family emigration to the British West Indies continues to meet with gratifying success, and the ship Whirlwind is to start in a few days for British Guiana with the first batch of emigrants, among whom are a number of women and children. Mr. Austin has established an office for the reception of emigrants in the western suburbs of Canton, and has raised matsheds for the same purpose on Morrison hill, in Hong Kong. The emigrants are free to go in and out of the depôts, and the establishment at Canton is under the strict surveillance of the allied police, in addition to that of the mandarins, one of whom is the colleague of the emigration agent. Any advance of clothes, food, and money which may be made is secured to the emigration scheme by the personal knowledge of the gentlemen who have interested themselves in it, and by the co-operation of the police and native authorities, as any coolie who may attempt to defraud is liable to be criminally proceeded against. Already Mr. Austin's scheme has had the effect of making the agents for Havana offer more liberal terms, offers having gone up to fifty-five dollars per caput. Terms have also been offered to the coolie of thirty-five dols. in advance, only seven years' servitude, and a monthly wage of five dols. But the great improvement made in the Havana traffic is that its agents are beginning to follow Mr. Austin's example, and propose to open depôts at Canton, with the co-operation of the Spanish Consul and the native authorities. A terrible occurrence connected with this traffic has been the wreck of the American ship Flora Temple, bound for Havana, with 850 coolies on board, all of whom were lost.

It was at first alleged that the Anglo-Chinese customs service could not prevent smuggling at Canton, owing to the intricacies of the Canton water communication; but now the complaint is that it is carrying out its objects too severely. The other day it seized the Portuguese steamer Shamrock, when that vessel was receiving smuggled silks at Kow-kong. The outcry which has been raised here against this seizure, the comparison of it to the Arrow case, and the assertion that the Portuguese Government may take up the seizure as a casus belli, only shows wilful ignorance. Even England cannot object to the seizure of her vessels engaged in trade at other than the five ports, for art. iv. of the supplementary treaty expressly provides that when merchant vessels repair to any other ports and places "the Chinese Government officers shall be at liberty to seize and confiscate both vessels and cargoes." But Portugal has no treaty with China, and only a local convention between the Governor of Macao and that of Kwangtung, so that she has not the remotest claim to resist any regulations of trade which the Chinese authorities make. In 1836 Adriaio, the Governor of Macao, wished to go to Peking and make a treaty with China, but he could not do so. It is understood that the present governor, Guimaraens, has received instructions to form a treaty, if possible; but as matters stand at present, the Portuguese cannot resist the revenue laws of China, and would be checked by England and France if they tried to do so.

In regard to local matters we regret to have to mention that the Government still persists in carrying out a ridiculous and cruel policy in regard to Mr. Tarrant, editor of the late Friend of China, who was condemned to a year's imprisonment for a libel on Col. Caine; for though they have apparently made some amelioration of his condition by separating him from other misdeameanants, they still continue to treat him as a common criminal, and in a manner unprecedented in England as a punishment for libel since the time of Daniel Defoe. We are glad to learn that, to the honour of Colonel Caine himself, the Chinese merchants of Hong Kong propose to send home by this mail a testimonial, in the shape of a solid silver looking-glass, with an inscription on it to the effect that it is presented to him by the Chinese mercantile community. As Colonel Caine has altogether ceased to have any connection with the colony, this testimonial is of all the more value.

Much local irritation has been caused by an indiscreet attempt on the part of the garrison to discriminate between society and non-society in inviting subscribers to their theatricals. The exclusion of Parsees in particular, and in opposition to the remonstrance of the heads of society, was an absurd step, as yet only partially corrected.—Overland China Mail.

CEYLON.

Colombo, Dec. 16.—The weather at Colombo has continued to be most unfavourable for the drying of coffee, much of which has been lying wet in the stores. Now, however, there are signs which seem to indicate that we may look for a continuance of fair weather. During the fortnight eight vessels have sailed with cargoes of coffee. Four to London, one to Liverpool, one to Havre, one to Melbourne, and one to Mauritius. The aggregate of the cargoes of these vessels was 38,407 cwt., in the proportions of 21,599 plantation and 16,808 native. The exports to date largely exceed those in the corresponding periods of previous years, the great increase being on plantation. Cocoa-nut oil and cinnamon also continue in advance of previous years.

The departure of the Manchester to Bombay for repairs has for the present brought the operations of the immigration commissioners to a close. But good steamers and good coals are shortly expected, and we trust that the plying of the steamers and the measures taken to introduce labourers from more distant parts of India on lengthened engagements may remedy the scarcity of labour which, more than anything else, threatens to check the prosperity of Ceylon. In the face of all difficulties our advance is wonderful. The revenue of 1859 will not be far short of £740,000, leaving a small surplus over the immense expenditure of the year, much of which was devoted to public works of utility. The Governor, in a message to the Legislative Council, which will be found in our columns, stated that he had not lost faith in the progress of Ceylon, provided a settled policy were adopted. Doubtless his Excellency's definition of a settled policy is, "a railway at any cost." Most people would say that the opposite policy is better entitled to the appellation "settled." A railway at two and a half or three millions would settle us with a vengeance. Out of the surplus funds available the Customs' accommodation at Colombo is to be extended, the defences of Colombo and Galle improved, while a large vote, but one that is sure to be reproductive, is required to complete the Irrigation Works near Batticaloa. The legislature has been working hard and getting through a good deal of important business. The Bill to regulate marriages amongst the Kandyan, and which renders the horrible practice of Polyandry illegal, is now law; and a bill to legalise lengthened engagements in India of coolies to be employed in Ceylon has nearly passed through all its stages. A sub-committee of the council are busily engaged on the appropriations for 1860, and it is expected that business will be concluded and the session closed about the 24th. We rejoice to learn that steam traction engines are to be tried in Ceylon. If successful, and of this there is every appearance, we shall be less dependent on cattle for the transport of produce and supplies, and we shall be able with comfort to postpone the question of a railway. The Wesleyan missionaries have held their annual meeting in Colombo, in the proceedings of which members and ministers of the various Protestant bodies cordially joined. A new lighthouse is to be built at Trincomalee, at the expense of this colony, the Imperial Government bearing the expense of lighting the Basses and surveying the coasts.

THE STRAITS.

THE LAYING OF THE TELEGRAPHIC CABLE between Singapore and Batavia has been successfully accomplished, and messages of congratulation have been exchanged between the representatives of Holland and Great Britain in the Indian archipelago, and between the merchants of Batavia and Singapore.

LIVING AT SINGAPORE.—The Straits Times describes the cost of living at Singapore as higher than in Calcutta. Rs. 450 a month is the lowest sum at which "a family in middling circumstances," living in town, can keep up an ordinary appearance. No good tea is procurable. A leg of mutton costs twelve shillings, and English ham or bacon fifty cents a pound. Beer and spirits are the only articles sold at a moderate price. Like the Mauritius, Singapore does not rear or produce its own food. With a trade of nearly fourteen millions sterling, it is a mere bonded warehouse. Tigers are more plentiful than sheep.

ESAU OUTDONE.—Three Penang jurymen recently sold their consciences for a biscuit. Biscuits had been surreptitiously introduced into the room while the jury were deliberating on their verdict in a criminal case. Three stood out for a verdict of "guilty," and were in consequence denied all share in the spoil till they yielded. Before the court they pleaded starvation. The man who supplied the biscuits was apprehended, the two persons who purchased the biscuits were fined, and the three obstinates who sacrificed justice to their stomachs were told by the Recorder "they should have endured any amount of starvation rather than concur in a verdict which their consciences did not approve of."

SARAWAK.—The steamer Hooghly left Sarawak on the 21st Nov., at which time everything was quiet, and it was hoped that all cause for alarm was over. Much gratitude is felt by the Europeans at Sarawak towards Colonel Cavanagh, for his so promptly despatching the Hooghly thither, and the best results are said to have arisen from her presence and that of the party of marines sent in her.

THE JAPANESE have republished at Miaco, Dr. Hobson's works on Medicine and Natural Philosophy. The authorities recently gave the body of an executed criminal to Dr. Pompe Van Meerdervoort, for dissection by his students. Mr. Ward, the American minister, when on a visit to the consul at Yedo, was invited by the Japanese prime minister to hold an interview with him at his residence within the Imperial castle, known as the "Prohibited Hall." The other ministers were introduced to Mr. Ward, and the interview, which lasted two hours, was distinguished by the greatest ease and courtesy on both sides. These facts show, that unless the war party obtain a decided supremacy in the court, the Japanese will be speedily influenced by the civilisation of the West.

CENTRAL ASIA.

Sept. 30.—Ushkasee Hussun Khan, a servant of Sirdar Mahomed Uslum Khan, has written to the Ameer from Hakumroo that Sirajooddeen Akhoonzada and the Bokhara agent have arrived at Hakumroo, and it was rumoured that the King of Bokhara has sent an agent to the Ameer, and himself proceeded to Samurkund, whence he will go to Khokund. Khodayar Khan, King of Khokund, having escaped from the hands of Moolla Khan, has gone over to the King of Bokhara, who has received several letters from Khodayar Khan's men to have him released.—Oct. 1.—The Ameer passed in review the Sowars of Alijah Shumsooddeen Khan, son of the late Sirdar Ameer Mahomed Khan, and was much pleased. Out of the 120 horses fifty were ordered to be branded.—Oct. 2.—The Ameer ordered Nazir Naeem Khan to go in advance to receive Sirdar Shree Ally Khan and take some fresh fruits and sweetmeats with him. He then asked one of his servants whether the climate of Jellalabad and Lughman was better this year. The servant replied that the climate of Lughman was better than that of Cabul. He said that he will go to Jellalabad this year.—Oct. 3.—Sirdar Mahomed Hossein Khan, son of Ameer Dost Mahomed Khan, having ordered his tents and sowars to proceed in advance, went himself to the Ameer to ask for permission to go to Bameean and Huzara. The Ameer granted him permission, and told him to send daily news of his welfare. Sirdar Mahomed Hossein Khan and his brother, Sirdar Mahomed Hussein Khan, then proceeded to a village named Dehporee.—Oct. 4.—Two guns brought by Sirdar Shree Ally Khan with him reached Cabul this day, while the Sirdar himself remains at Ghuznee.—Oct. 5.—Shumsooddeen Khan came and obtained permission to proceed to Koondooz. The Ameer requested him to go on straight to Koondooz. The Sirdar said that he will go as far as Ghorbund, where he will remain six or seven days to take the pay of his troops which is due to them, and then proceed to Koondooz. At night Sirdar Sultan Mahomed Khan came with two sowars. The Ameer ordered the two men to go out, as he wished to hold a private conference with the Sirdar. After a short time the Sirdar went away to his house. The subject of the private talk is this, that Sirdar Sultan Mahomed Khan has received intelligence from Peshawar that the son of the late Maharajah Goolab Singh, ruler of Kashmir, has murdered seven Europeans in Kashmir, and that the English are assembling their forces from Mooltan, Shirkarpoore, Lahore, and Sealkote to fight with the Raja. A sowar of Sirdar, Mahomed Hossein Khan, came and said that he had not received his pay. The Ameer ordered Sirdar Mahomed Hossein Khan to pay up his men before he proceeds anywhere.—Oct. 6.—The agent of the King of Bokhara, with Sirajooddeen Akhoonzada, arrived in Cabul, and was accommodated in the fort of Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan.—Oct. 7.—Sirajooddeen Akhoonzada and Mirza Abo Khan brought the agent to the Ameer, who ordered the adjutant of Wuzer Mahomed Ukkur Khan's regiment to keep his regiment well dressed and in readiness in the garden to receive the agent. On the arrival of the agent the Ameer received him honourably. The agent then delivered his master's message, and the presents he had brought to the Ameer, who was much pleased. The Ameer made over the presents to the storekeeper, and after the departure of the agent they were again sent for and seen. They consisted of nine pieces of Russian flowered Uttas, nine pieces of plain Uttas, forty pairs of Pakussub (a sort of silk cloth), two pieces of Kimcob, four cloaks, and two pieces of Tozenchee.—Oct. 8.—The Ameer summoned a slave named Noroz Ally, and told him to bring the Koran which has a velvet cover and which was lately received from the Bokhara King. On its being brought the Ameer praised it highly, and said that its value was Rs. 600. Fatma Sultan, daughter of the Ameer, came and asked her father to give away the Koran to her, which was accordingly done. In the evening the Ameer held a private conference with Alijah Shah Mury Khan, and no one was allowed to go near them.—Oct. 9.—Gholam Hussein Khan, the Vakeel of the British Government, came to the Ameer, who dismissed all the durbar, and held private conversation with him.—Oct. 10.—News from Balkh is to the effect that Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan had written to Hikmut Khan, ruler of Memna, requesting him to come and pay his respects to him (the Sirdar). Hikmut Khan has written in reply that if Kullunj Khan, ruler of Sherghan, be sent to Sherghan, he will meet him at Kherabad, and after having some consultation with him there, they will both return to pay their respects. The Sirdar said that he will call back Kullunj Khan from Koondooz and send him to Sherghan.

THE FISHERIES.—Nearly the whole of the oysters left unfished at the close of this year's fishery in Ceylon have disappeared. The native fishermen of Aripo are suspected. There will consequently be no fishery in 1860. The young oysters, which will be ready in 1861, are said to promise large returns.

Court Martial.

Lieut. G. C. B. TAYLOR, H.M.'s 1st BENGAL EUR. LIGHT CAVALRY.

Hd. Qrs., Camp, Futtchgurh, Nov. 14.—At a general court martial re-assembled at Cawnpore on Sept. 23, Lieut. G. C. B. Taylor, of H.M.'s 1st Bengal Eur. L.C., was arraigned on the following charge:—

Charge.—With conduct unbecoming the character of an officer, and to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, in the following instances:—

1st Instance.—In having, at Cawnpore, shortly before twelve o'clock, on the night of Aug. 18, entered into an unseemly altercation, on the public road, with Sergt. maj. G. H. Fleury, of the Cawnpore depot, who, by his (Lieut. Taylor's) order was taken a prisoner to the main guard of the 1st Lt. Cav., and there handcuffed and leg-ironed, the leg-irons being removed in about an hour, and the sergt. major, still handcuffed, then placed in confinement in one of the regimental cells, and kept there till about eleven o'clock on the morning of Aug. 19; he (Sergt. maj. Fleury) having done nothing whatever to justify the indignities to which he was thus subjected by Lieut. Taylor.

2nd Instance.—In having, at Cawnpore, shortly before twelve o'clock on the night of the 18th of August, entered into an unseemly altercation on the public road with Mr. J. Wilson, engine-driver of the East Indian Railway, who, by his Lieut. Taylor's order, was taken a prisoner to the main guard of the 1st Lt. Cav., and there leg-ironed, the leg-irons being removed in about an hour, and Mr. Wilson then placed in confinement in one of the regimental cells, and kept there till about eleven o'clock on the morning of the 19th August, he, Mr. Wilson, having done nothing whatever to justify the indignities to which he was thus subjected by Lieut. Taylor.

Finding.—Guilty of the charge brought against him; and on the 1st instance of the charge, guilty, with the exception of having entered into an unseemly altercation on the public road with Sergeant Major Fleury, of the Cawnpore depot, of which he, the prisoner, is not guilty, and is acquitted; and on the 2nd instance of the charge, guilty, with the exception of having entered into an unseemly altercation on the public road with Mr. J. Wilson, engine driver of the East India railway, of which he, the prisoner, is not guilty, and is acquitted.

Sentence.—To be reprimanded in such way as his Excellency the C. in C. may direct.

Revised Sentence.—The Court respectfully adheres to its original sentence.

"The Finding is approved, but the Sentence is not confirmed."

Lucknow, Oct. 27. C. in C. East Indies.

REMARKS BY THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF IN INDIA.

The sentence is, in Lord Clyde's opinion, quite inadequate to the very serious offence of which Lieut. Taylor has been correctly convicted. It is true that this officer has expressed his deep sorrow for what has occurred, pleading youth and inexperience for his improper conduct, which he allows that he cannot, for an instant, attempt to defend. He also states that, on becoming aware of the impropriety of his behaviour, he endeavoured to atone for the outrages he had committed by doing everything in his power to appease the wounded feelings of the aggrieved parties, but that his endeavours were unsuccessful; and Lieut. Taylor adds that he is threatened with an action in the Supreme Court, at the instance of Mr. Wilson, unless the matter is compromised by the immediate payment of Rs. 5,000.

The court, it may be presumed, had these circumstances under their consideration when they awarded punishment; but a sentence of simple reprimand is so manifestly insufficient under the mildest view of the case, that the Commander in Chief is unable to sanction it in any way, and declines to order its infliction.

The court having had the opportunity of reconsidering its sentence, has now the full responsibility of the result of this trial.

It is by such inadequate proceedings that the reputation of military tribunals is lowered in the eyes of the public, to the prejudice of discipline, and the good name of her Majesty's forces.

Lieut. Taylor is to be released from arrest, and directed to return to his duty.

By order of the Rt. Hon. the C. in C.
D. M. STEWART, Lieut. col.
Asst. Ad. Gen. of the Army.

Robbery of Treasure.

Head Quarters, Camp, Khodgunge, Nov. 11.

The C. in C. has remarked with much regret the frequent instances of "robbery of treasure" which have come under his notice during the past two years. H. E. cannot but consider that these occurrences are mainly attributable to carelessness and laxity of discipline on the part of officers and non-commissioned officers serving with treasure guards; and he strictly enjoins on all such the exercise of the greatest caution and vigilance in the discharge of their duty.

Paras. 47 to 55, sec. xxvi. of the military regulations, are to be brought pointedly to the attention of every officer proceeding with a treasure escort.

In the case of guards over treasure at stations, the officer in command will personally, at sunrise and sunset, in the presence of the non-commissioned officers on guard, examine carefully—

(If the treasure is in boxes, trunks, or treasure-chests) the condition of the boxes, trunks, or chests, and the state of their locks, hinges, seals, wood and iron-work, with a view to discovering whether they bear marks of damage, or present the slightest indication of having been in any way tampered with.

(If in a closed godown)—every entrance by door or window, the state of the locks, hinges, panneling and frames; and, if the windows should be barred, the soundness and firmness of every bar.

On a relief taking place, the officer and non-commissioned officer of the new guard, accompanied by those of the old, will make the examination above directed; and the relieving officer will grant a receipt specifying the exact condition in which he found everything. This receipt is to be forwarded at each relief to the officer commanding the station, who will have the goodness to send it to the officer in charge of the civil treasury.

At each relief of sentries, the non-commissioned officer is to be ordered to make a similar examination in presence of the relieved and relieving sentries; and the commanding officer and visiting officer of treasure guards will be held responsible that the precaution of placing double sentries over the treasure is never omitted.

Lord Clyde trusts that due attention to these precautions will ensure the desired end; and H. E. warns all concerned that carelessness or neglect of duty, entailing loss on the State, will be punished with severity.

Eligibility to Adjutancies.

Camp Futtchgurh, Nov. 15.—No. 17.—H. E. the Gov. gen. is pleased to direct that the following military letter from the Right Hon. the Sec. of State for India, No. 334, Sept. 30, 1859, be published in gen. orders:—

India Office, London, Sept. 30, 1859.

MILITARY.

TO H. E. THE RIGHT HON. THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF INDIA IN COUNCIL.

MY LORD.—Some time since the question as to the eligibility of officers of the E. I. Company's armies to hold the appt. of adjt. to a regt. of militia, was brought under the consideration of the Secy. of State for War, and it was stated in reply that on the first convenient occasion care would be taken to provide for the admission of serv. in the E. I. Company's army as a qualification for this appt.

2. I have now the gratification of informing you that in an Act passed in the last session of Parliament, Cap. 38, further amending the laws relating to the militia, a clause has been introduced assimilating the provisions of the laws of Great Britain and Ireland in regard to such appts., and rendering serv. in the army of the E. I. Company, and in Her Majesty's Indian army, or in either of them, as equivalent to serv. in her Majesty's regular army.

I have, &c.,

Tour of the Lieut. Governor N.W. Provinces.

Gen. Dept., Nov. 18.—The Hon. the Lieut. gov. N.W. Provinces will proceed on his tour on the 25th inst., and will visit the following stations on or about the dates indicated:—

Cawnpore, Nov. 25, 1859.
Futteghurh, Dec. 7, 1859.
Shajehanpore, Dec. 15, 1859.
Budaon, Dec. 22, 1859.
Allypore, Jan. 3, 1860.
Booldundshuhur, Jan. 9, 1860.
Haupper, Jan. 12, 1860.
Meerut, Jan. 14, 1860.
Moozuffurnugger, Jan. 21, 1860.
Saharunpore, Jan. 25, 1860.
Roorkee, Jan. 31, 1860.

Officers in every department are informed that while the head of the Government is absent from Allahabad they should still address their letters to that station, except those of an emergent nature. Any case not admitting of delay may be despatched to the head-quarters of the Government, but it should be accompanied by copies of all papers necessary to enable the Lieut. gov. to come to a decision on the point at issue.

Rewards to Natives.

Foreign Dept., Camp Futteghurh, Nov. 12.—H.E. the Viceroy and Governor-gen. held a durbar to-day for the reception of His Highness the Nawab of Rampoor, and of the principal native chiefs and gentlemen of the Rohilcund, Meerut and Agra divisions of the N.W. Provinces.

The Nawab, accompanied by his two elder sons and his brother, had a private audience of H.E., and received, both on arrival and on departure, a salute of thirteen guns.

After this the Nawab and the other native chiefs and gentlemen, together with the principal civil and military officers of the station, being assembled in general, the Viceroy and Governor-general, with H.E. the C. in C., entered and took his seat under a royal salute.

The Nawab of Rampoor, and every other native chief and gentleman present were then introduced, one by one, to the Viceroy, and their customary offerings having been accepted, His Excellency bestowed on them suitable rewards and khilluts.

The following rewards were given for loyalty to the British Government, and good services during the rebellion:—

To the Nawab of Rampoor a khillut of the value of Rs. 20,000; the pergunnah of Kasheepoor, in the district of Moradabad, to him and his heirs in perpetuity, an increase in his salute from 11 to 13 guns, and a corresponding addition to his honorary designation and form of address.

In conferring these rewards on the nawab, the Viceroy and Governor general addressed H. H. in the following words:—

“NAWAB OF RAMPOOR—

“It is very agreeable to me to have this opportunity of thanking you for the admirable service which you have done to the Queen's Government.

“It is not enough to say that you have stood personally loyal in the midst of disloyalty. You have done much more. You have aided the officers of the Queen by all the means at the disposal of your State, and you have, by your own earnest exertions, and at much personal risk, maintained order around you. But, above all, you effected the safety and provided for the comfort of a multitude of Her Majesty's Christian subjects at the time when danger most pressed them.

“I am glad to declare these signal services in the presence of the C. in C. of the Queen's armies in India, and before many of H.M.'s most distinguished officers, and many civil functionaries in high authority in the districts adjoining your own territory, and from other parts of India.

“I am sure that none of them will forget what you have done, and I hope that every one of your fellow-countrymen who are here present will keep in view the example of loyalty and good service which you have set before them.”

To Ali Asghur Khan, son-in-law of the Nawab, a khillut of the value of Rs. 5,000.

To Rajah Sheeraj Sing of Kasheepoor, a khillut of the value of Rs. 4,000 and the proprietary right in confiscated villages assessed at Rs. 2,000 a year.

To Huokeem Saadut Ali, a khillut of the value of Rs. 5,000 and the proprietary right in confiscated villages assessed at Rs. 4,000 a year.

To Moulavi Wajihulzaman, a khillut of the value of Rs. 2,000.

To Ali Buksh Khan, a khillut of the value of Rs. 5,000 and the proprietary right in confiscated villages assessed at Rs. 3,000 a year.

Other minor rewards were also given.

When the Rajah of Powain stood before the Viceroy to receive his complimentary khillut, H.E. said: “Tell the Rajah of Powain that he is to remember that he has been admitted to this durbar in consideration of the good service which he lately rendered to the Queen's Government; and that as there have been passages in his conduct during the early part of the two past years which I wish to forget, I expect that he will do nothing henceforward which shall either be disobedience to the Government or by want of loyalty to his sovereign, serve to remind me of them.”

After the concluding ceremonies, the Viceroy left his seat under a royal salute, and the assembly broke up.

In the afternoon, the Viceroy, accompanied by the Secretary to the Government of India, and by the officers of H. E.'s personal staff, paid a return visit to the Nawab of Rampoor. The Viceroy was met by the Nawab half-way between the two encampments, and received, at his Highness' tent, on arrival and departure, a royal salute.

The usual offerings having been presented and accepted, and the customary ceremonies observed, H. E. retired.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

FRIDAY, Jan. 13, 1860.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

In the current number of "Fraser's Magazine"—a number in other respects remarkable for the variety and excellence of its articles—there is a paper on the proposed canalisation of the Isthmus of Suez, which places, clearly and impartially, side by side, all that can be said for or against the execution of that gigantic, if not visionary, project. The writer starts with a successful attempt to show that the common estimate of the existing importance of Egypt to the Western world is greatly exaggerated, and is, in fact, mainly due to the lingering memories of ancient traditions. The Greeks and Romans of the classic era regarded Egypt not only as the "seat of wisdom and the cradle of arts and civilisation," but also as the centre and emporium of commerce, and the channel of communication between "mythic India" and the nations on the shores of the Mediterranean. The perforation of the isthmus was more than once commenced even in those distant ages, and in the infancy of engineering and scientific knowledge. Some two thousand five hundred years ago Pharaoh Necho began to excavate a canal, which was to connect the Nile and the Red Sea, but was stopped by an oracular admonition that he was "working for the barbarian." Darius, however, carried the canal at least as far as the Bitter Lakes, less than thirteen miles distant from Suez, to which it was subsequently continued by Ptolemy Philadelphus about the middle of the third century before Christ. Several times choked by sand, it was again and again re-opened by different rulers, but only to be neglected by their successors.

During the Middle Ages, Egypt was still the connecting link between the merchants of India and the markets of the Mediterranean, until the discovery of the passage round the Cape of Good Hope inaugurated a new era in commerce and navigation. "Peoples of greater vigour and power than the Italians and the Levantines had grown up," and were now prepared to take the traffic of the world into their own hands. "Besides, the activity and wealth of the Mediterranean regions eastward of Sicily had retrograded. The opulent cities that, from five or six centuries before Christ, had been the abode of commerce and arts, whether gratifying taste or administering to comfort and luxury, were in ruins." Their glory had departed from them, and the hardier and more enterprising nations of the north destroyed the monopoly of the traffic they had hitherto enjoyed. Since that time neither Egypt nor the Mediterranean has ever recovered its former commercial importance, which, indeed, every year is still tending to diminish. To America the Suez route to India is a matter of almost absolute inutility, nor would even our Australian colonies thence derive any great advantage. Steam navigation can scarcely be said as yet to have passed beyond the condition of an experiment. The Great Eastern, though so far a failure as a speculative investment, at least proves the possibility of constructing ships of immense burden with a velocity of motion increasing almost in proportion to their bulk. Besides, the necessity of carrying such a large quantity of fuel may be expected to be superseded ere long, for it must be remembered that only twenty years have elapsed since "a great authority on the steam-engine declared steam-navigation to America a practical impossibility." Considering the large strides that practical science has taken during the present century, it is not unreasonable to anticipate yet greater discoveries and improvements in the course of a single decade.

The writer in "Fraser" admits that "the Isthmus of Suez is the only line for an enterprise whose object is the opening of a traffic route to India other than by the Cape of Good Hope." Passengers, and perhaps very light articles of great value, might be conveyed by the line proposed by Sir Macdonald Stephenson from London to Bussorah, by way of Ostend, Vienna, Belgrade, Constantinople, Iskil, and Diarbekir; but heavy goods could not possibly stand the enormous cost of such a land journey, or the risks and delay in changing to and fro, from truck to steamer and from steamer to truck, at the Straits of Dover and the Dardanelles. There remain, then, the old passage round the Cape, the new (so-called) Overland route, traversing Egypt by rail in twenty-four hours, and the Lesseps' scheme of cutting a ship canal right through the isthmus. The two former channels of communication it is needless to discuss, for their advantages and disadvantages are obvious to all men who have ever devoted five minutes' attention to the subject; but with regard to the French canal there is much to be said, now that it has assumed the form and dimensions of a political and European question.

It is certainly somewhat at variance with the professed object of the Crimean war—to secure the independence and integrity of the Ottoman empire—that four European Powers should follow the lead of France in endeavouring to coerce the Sultan into a cession of territory. And not only would a considerable tract of land be thus taken from the Porte, but the entire province of Egypt would be severed from the rest of the empire. Besides, by the terms of the Firman sought to be obtained by the Ambassador of France, the French company would be empowered to impress the Fellahs as excavators, and to protect their own people by means of fortified works. Surely it argues no want of charity or excess of suspicion to anticipate many evils and mischances from this imperium in imperio. Our own experience in India may suffice to show how a civilised station in a barbaric land becomes the germ of conquest and the nucleus of an empire. That the French would be less ambitious or more forbearing cannot safely be predicated, and few Englishmen would desire to see Egypt become an appanage of France. By what right, moreover, do these combined Powers pretend to demand that "the Sultan should permit a body of speculative adventurers to cut a canal through his dominions?" Would they not be equally entitled to insist that "Great Britain should permit an 'International' Joint-Stock Company to form the Caledonian Canal (had we not already wasted upwards of a million on that useless undertaking)?" In like manner might not the Yaukees call for the intersection of Ireland by a ship canal, "to avoid the difficulties, delays, and dangers of the Irish Channel, and the rock-bound coasts near the Giant's Causeway and Cape Clear?"

Leaving political considerations on one side, let us cast a hasty glance on the physical difficulties of the enterprise. We cannot agree with the late Robert Stephenson that it is "a physical impossibility," because we believe everything to be possible if sufficient funds are forthcoming. In a given number of years Snowdon itself might be carted into the Menai, and converted into a causeway across the Strait,—but would it pay to do so? No doubt, in the course of time, a broad navigable canal might be excavated from the Bay of Pelusium to the Gulf of Suez,—but what would be the expenditure? and what the proximate advantages to the commerce of Europe?

The entire length of the canal from the eastern part of Suez harbour to a point on the Mediterranean eighteen miles to the westward of the ancient Pelusium would be ninety-two miles, with a minimum depth of twenty-six feet three inches, and in width varying from 262 to 339 feet. The entrance channel at the Suez end is to be carried out into the sea for a mile and a half, and at the other end for two miles. Then, to prevent those channels—formed in the first instance by dredging—from filling up with sand and mud, they are to be protected by stone dykes, or piers, also serving as breakwaters. "The total length of the whole in both ports will be six miles, besides quay works both at Said and Suez." In addition to all this, there is to be a basin or port at either extremity, each nearly as large as the united water acreage of the East India, St. Catherine's, Commercial, and London Docks; and likewise an inland port, with careening docks, &c., at Lake Timsah. The projectors of this stupendous scheme estimate the total expenditure at no more than six millions and a half sterling, but call for additional capital to the extent of one million and a half, to be appropriated "to the formation of accessory establishments destined to augment the profits of the company (a somewhat vague prospect), and to the payment of five per cent. on the capital during the execution of the works." The excavation of the canal itself is put down at £3,400,000. Now, the Caledonian Canal, with water and stone within arm's reach, cost one million, and would have cost ten had it been of the same length and size as the one projected. The new harbour and breakwater (one mile and a half in length) at Dover are estimated at two and a half millions, while similar works at Said, though four miles in length, are put down at £842,000; and the stone has to be brought from Cyprus, Rhodes, or the coast of Asia. Again, the united capital of the four great London docks is £6,520,000, or £40,000 more than the estimates of the whole Suez Canal works; "yet the commissioners propose making inner basins in the sea nearly as large as the four London docks put together." The expenses of construction are in favour of the English works, for "labour, materials, and skill were ready," and there were no engineering difficulties to overcome. Labour, indeed, is nominally cheaper in Egypt; that is, three fellows will work for the pay of a single "navvy;" but in which case will the greatest amount of work be done between dawn and sunset?

We have said nothing as yet of the peculiar difficulties to be encountered and removed for this outlay of six and a half millions. Three scientific men of pre-eminent ability and experience—the late Robert Stephenson, M. Talabot, and the Chevalier de Negrelli—undertook in 1847 to examine into the feasibility of uniting the waters of the Mediterranean with those of the Red Sea, and their joint report was altogether unfavourable, though the Chevalier, nine years afterwards, adhered to M. Lesseps' scheme "when it assumed a commercial shape." The old belief that the level of the Red Sea was considerably higher than that of the Mediterranean was proved by those gentlemen to be a fallacy, and consequently the canal connecting two almost tideless seas will be little better than a stagnant ditch. A subsidiary canal must also be constructed to the Nile, in order to supply the labourers and employés with fresh water and all other supplies, as the neighbourhood of the great canal produces nothing whatever but sand and salt, and old broken sea-shells. The chief physical objections, however, may be briefly recapitulated as follows:—

1. "It is affirmed that the bottom of the Bay of Pelusium—'loose sand and looser mud'—is not sufficiently firm to bear the weight of stonework that must be placed upon it to form the piers, &c., of the harbour."
2. "The ancients and moderns have alike believed that the soil borne down by the Nile in suspension would silt up any opening placed to the eastward of the river." The only means of keeping the passage open would be dredging.
3. The Bay of Pelusium is a lee-shore for a great part of the year, so that without a sheltered roadstead "vessels arriving with a north wind, not being able without danger to attempt the pass, will be blown upon the coast; those approaching from the opposite quarter, finding the wind adverse, will be driven out to sea; while vessels coming through the canal will be unable to leave it."
4. The canal, like its predecessors in the olden time, will always be liable to be choked by the sands of the desert.
5. The navigation of the Red Sea is at all times intricate and dangerous, and during certain seasons of the year quite unnavigable by sailing vessels.
6. The merchants of Great Britain and Holland—the two most thoroughly mercantile nations of Europe—are agreed that, although there will be a saving with respect to distance, there will be none with respect to time, and that freightage and insurance will be very considerably higher by the Red Sea than round the Cape. Steamers might gain something in point of time, but the cost of fuel would be very great. M. Barthelemy St. Hilaire fully admits that the monsoons in the Indian ocean are "a real obstacle" to sailing vessels, but gets over the objection by recommending that they should content themselves with one voyage annually, going and returning.

If the canal were ever completed, it would be England, and not France, that would be the chief gainer from a commercial point of view, and probably Russia would be second on the list. It has been proved again and again, to absolute demonstration, that as a speculation the enterprise must inevitably be a miserable failure. It is further impossible that the works can be completed for the present capital of eight millions. What, then, will be the result? Simply that the French Government would take the whole affair into its own hands, fortify the two extremities, and cut off England from the East. This is the true motive of the anxiety evinced by Louis Napoleon to obtain the Sultan's permission to set to work. Whether completed or not, whoever possesses the canal-works is master of Egypt and of the overland route, and in a position to dictate to the southern and eastern shores of the Mediterranean. The British Government, therefore, are not only justified in opposing the intrigues of the French Emperor and his tool, M. Lesseps, but nothing could excuse or attenuate their folly and short-sightedness did they neglect to do so. "Fraser" has done "good yeoman service" in directing public attention to the subject.

EQUITY COURTS.—JANUARY 11. (Before the LORD CHANCELLOR.)

BOLDERO v. THE EAST INDIA COMPANY.—JUDGMENT.

This was an appeal from the Master of the Rolls. The suit was instituted to determine whether the civil servants on the Bengal establishment of the East India Company were entitled, on accepting the retiring annuities provided by a fund called "The Bengal Civil Service Fund," to have returned to them the amount of subscriptions paid by them to the fund in cases where they exceeded one-half of the value of the annuity, as estimated according to the tables contained in the rules regulating the fund. The proposal for the establishment of the fund was originally made by the civil servants in a document addressed to the directors of the East India Company on the 1st May, 1822. The plan proposed was that a fund should be formed partly by subscriptions of the civil servants, and partly by contributions from the company, sufficient to provide annuities for a certain number of the company's retiring servants, on payment by such retiring officials of such sums as should make up with their accumulated subscriptions two-thirds of the value of the annuities. The proposal was transmitted to the directors, accompanied by a confirmatory despatch from the Governor-general, and was answered by a public letter from the directors, of 8th December, 1824, which adopted the principle of the plan, and laid down regulations for carrying it out with certain modifications which made the institution still more favourable to the civil servants. That letter in substance was as follows. It declared the objects of the institution to be to provide annuities for retiring civil servants, and thereby to encourage more early retirement. In certain of the clauses, which were especially in question in this case, it was stated that although by reason of deaths before retirement, and other circumstances, absolute equality between the different members of the civil service was not attainable, the principle of the regulations was to provide annuities for each member in terms as nearly equal as possible, and that each on receiving his annuity should be called on to pay one-half of its estimated value according to a fixed scale and no more. The material specific provisions of the regulations were that the regulations were to be optional as to their existing servants, and compulsory on all who should enter the service after 1825. That the members of the fund should subscribe four per cent. of their salaries; that the annuities for retiring services should be fixed at £1,000 a year; that the company should add sufficient sums to the fund to provide nine annuities every year; that after twenty-five years' service and twenty-two years' residence in India any servant should be entitled in order of seniority to claim an annuity as soon as one became open; that on accepting the annuity the retiring servant should pay to the fund the difference between half the value of the annuity calculated according to his age, by tables contained in the regulations, and the accumulated value of his subscriptions, on which interest at the rate of six per cent. was to be allowed; or if the servant declined to make this payment, he might have an annuity reduced in amount so as to make its half-value equal to his accumulated subscriptions. These regulations were subject to be modified after a certain time by the votes of three-fourths of the members, with the sanction of the directors. After the system had been in operation about ten years, it was found that the inducements to retire were not sufficiently strong to make the civil servants avail themselves of the fund at so early an age as had been anticipated. The full number of annuities was not accepted, and the fund accumulated to a very large amount. A temporary arrangement was then made, under which two-thirds of the annuities which were unaccepted on the original terms, should be offered on still more favourable terms. The price was to be made up only to one quarter instead of one-half of the calculated value, and if the accumulated subscriptions in any case should be found to exceed the quarter of the value, the balance was to be refunded. This supplementary set of regulations was after some years abandoned, and never formed a permanent part of the regulations of the funds. At a later period further alterations were discussed, in the course of which it was proposed to embody in the original code a provision for refunding similar in principle to that which was inserted in the temporary regulations. The proposal, however, was not accepted by two-thirds of the civil servants. The rights of the civil servants, therefore, remained dependent on the terms of the public letter of 1824. The plaintiff in this case, Colonel Boldero, entered the service in 1827 and retired in 1852, having completed his 25 years of service and resided 22 years in India. His age was sixty-one, and the half value of an annuity of £1,000, according to the tables, was Rs. 38,085, or if payable quarterly, Rs. 42,811. The amount of his subscriptions, with interest at 6 per cent., was Rs. 87,504, so that not only had he nothing to pay to make up the half-value, but he had already subscribed Rs. 49,419, or with quarterly payment Rs. 44,693 beyond that amount, if interest were reckoned on his subscriptions, and even without interest his subscriptions were in excess of the half-value. Many other civil servants were in the same position, and the bill in this case was filed by Colonel Boldero on behalf of himself and the others similarly situated, to have the excess of their subscriptions and interest over the half-value of their annuities. The claim for interest, however, was abandoned in the course of the argument in the Court below. The Master of the Rolls held that the plaintiffs were not entitled to the refunding which they claimed. Hence the present appeal.

Mr. Rolt, Mr. Butt, of the Common Law Bar, Mr. Roundell Palmer, and Mr. Freeling, appeared for the plaintiffs; the Attorney-General, Mr. Lloyd, Mr. Forsyth, of the Common Law Bar, and Mr. Melvill, were for the Company; Mr. Follett, Mr. Rogers, and Mr. E. Macnaghten, were for other defendants.

The case was argued during the sittings after last term and judgment postponed.

The Lord Chancellor now delivered judgment, and said that after a careful perusal of all the documents in the case, and having fully reconsidered the arguments adduced, he had come to the conclusion that the decree of the Court below ought to be affirmed. The plaintiffs' claim rested on a contract, and he was bound to show that on some contract, expressed or implied, he was entitled to receive from the East India Company that which he asked by this suit. It was contended that there was a contract between the civil servants of Bengal and the East India Company, that when the civil servants retired and accepted annuities from the fund in question, the excess of their contributions over the estimated value of their annuities should be repaid to them, and that at any rate if this was not the original contract a new one to that effect was to be inferred from the subsequent dealings between the parties. It was quite clear that contributions were to be made to the fund by the civil servants as long as they remained in India, and when the money was paid by them it ceased to be theirs, and was applicable to all the purposes of the fund, even to that of making up deficiencies in any annuities to persons whose subscriptions did not amount to the estimated value of their annuities. The notion that the fund was a kind of savings-bank in which subscriptions were to accumulate for the benefit of the subscribers was wholly opposed to the principles of the regulations upon which it was founded. Any refunding would have a strong effect towards defeating the object which both parties had in view in establishing it, viz., that the receipt of retiring annuities might act as an inducement to retirement from the service at an earlier period than had been previously the case; for there would be temptations held out to remain in the service as long as possible if there was any refunding, as the amount to be repaid would increase the longer the subscriber held back from accepting his annuity. He was of opinion, therefore, that the plaintiff's claim could not be supported on the original contract. Then came the question whether there was any evidence of a new contract. He (the Lord Chancellor) could find no satisfactory evidence of any such new contract. The arrangements for three years by which the system of refunding was adopted, had been relied on as evidence of a new contract; but it was clear that it was only temporary, and subsisted only from 1835 to 1838, and expired at the end of that time, when the original contract came into full force again. He was of opinion, therefore, that there was no new contract whatever. Some stress had been laid on judicial decisions by which it had been established that the annuitants on a similar fund in Madras were entitled to refunding in a manner similar to that here claimed. In those decisions he fully concurred, for there was in those cases abundant evidence to show a new contract on the terms stated, which was not the case in the present instance. However the Bengal civil servants might wish to be put on the same footing in this respect as their brethren of Madras it was clear that the law was against them, and their claim could not be allowed. The appeal would be dismissed with costs.

SIAM.

The Constitutionnel contains the following interesting letter from one of the Sisters of Charity who form part of a mission to Siam, giving an account of an interview with the King of that country:—

"At Sea (Nov. 5), before Bangkok (Siam).

"You are aware that our vessel was ordered to call at this place on her way to her destination. We arrived at the mouth of the river Menam on the 11th September, and in order that we might not lose time in going up the river, the captain hired a large covered barge to convey us to Bangkok. We started in the evening with a brilliant moonlight, and arrived at about five in the morning. We met with the kindest reception from Mgr. Pallogoin, and attended mass with him, while the captain occupied himself with procuring lodgings for us in the town. The news of our arrival soon spread; the native Christians told the missionaries in the neighbourhood that the French religieuses with white wings (alluding to our head-dress) had come, and several of them hastened to welcome us. We told them that we were only birds of passage among them. All, even the venerable bishop, walked about barefoot, and we repeated in our hearts the sacred words, 'How beautiful are the feet of those who bring us glad tidings!' Soon after we had taken possession of the lodgings which the captain had found for us, we were visited by a schoolmistress and a number of Christian girls, who brought us presents of fruit and cakes. For some few days we never went out except to attend mass. On the 16th the first Prince of the kingdom paid us a visit, accompanied by Viscount de Castelnau and an interpreter, and followed by a number of slaves who walked with their heads almost bent to the ground. The Prince is tall, but so corpulent that he could scarcely walk. His dress consisted of a long silk robe, a white calico waistcoat, and a scarf of yellow silk. He was barefoot. His head was shaved in the Siamese fashion, with only a tuft left on the crown. The first slave carried a gold box containing betel-nut, and the second a gold vase containing cigars and a pocket-book. The Prince, on entering, saluted us in the European style, and put some questions as to our profession, and our occupations. He told us that if we wished to see the first King, the consul had only to apply for an audience. On leaving, the Prince tapped our captain on the shoulder, and said he should be very glad to see him at his house. The consul, at our request, arranged that the visit to the King should take place on the 3rd October. On that day we proceeded from our residence to the palace, which is at some distance, in the barge of Monseigneur ornamented with the French flag; the consul and a French missionary followed us, each in his boat. On landing we had to walk under a burning sun through a long street paved with red bricks, and as we passed we saw the stables of the royal elephants. We were received at the palace by a page under a sort of canopy, and were requested to sit down while he announced our arrival to the King. We had to wait for some time, when the consul, seeing that we were fatigued, sent a second message, and we were immediately admitted. The court of the palace was filled with an immense number of slaves seated on their heels. The King stood to receive us at the door of the audience chamber. He is a man of middle height and very thin, and the expression of his countenance has a sternness which marks the absolute sovereign. His dress consisted of a long loose silk dress, a white shirt, a small thin silk waistcoat and a Scotch cap, and slippers embroidered with gold. The consul presented us, and the missionary addressed a few words to his Majesty in the Siamese language. The King looked at us for some moments in silence, and then, holding out his hand to me, asked if I spoke English. On my replying in the affirmative, he said in that language, 'Ladies, do you wish to see the queen consort?' and then, without asking the gentlemen to enter, he requested us to follow him. He walked very fast through a large hall filled with princes and mandarins, who all prostrated themselves with their faces to the ground. A number of little children, dressed in silk and covered with gold chains and bracelets, flocked round us. We followed the King through several passages in the midst of a double row of females, all bent to the ground. His Majesty suddenly stopped, and asked us if we spoke Latin; he said he did, and, to convince us, recited the formula 'In nomine Patris,' &c. He then took the crucifix attached to our rosary, saying that he knew a great deal about our religion. We at length reached a handsome saloon, furnished in the European style, and where there was an arm-chair in gold, a present from the Queen of England. On entering, he introduced the queen consort to us. She was dressed in a long robe, with a scarf thrown over the right shoulder. She is rather a good-looking woman, and about forty years of age. The King also presented to us the Queen's three children, and a number of ladies with about thirty children. He then asked us to sit down, and himself offered some figs in gold baskets; and next opened a liqueur-case, and poured out some curacao from one of the bottles, and handed a glass to each. He kept one himself, and proposed as a toast 'The Catholic religion and Jesus, the Saviour of the World.' The King, who constantly spoke English, talked to us of Mgr. Pallogoin, whom he called 'my friend,' of Queen Victoria, and of several illustrious men in England. He also spoke of the Pope, and requested us to come and look at a portrait of his Holiness, which he had in a pretty little boudoir. Wherever the King went, he was followed by a young girl, one of the body-guard, who carried a sabre on her shoulder, and whenever his Majesty stopped, she placed herself on her knees close to him. We were afterwards conducted by the King to his library, where he complained that the worms had devoured almost all his books. On returning to the Queen's salon, we found the table covered with different dishes of meat and pastry. At the close of the repast, the King handed to each of us a small cake and took one himself. He expressed to us the pleasure he felt at seeing French religieuses at his table. His Majesty spoke very correct English, but pronounced the words with some difficulty. During all these ceremonies, the little children played about us with great glee and fondly caressed us. On our leaving, they all held out their hands and said 'Good bye,' the only English words they knew. We then took leave of his Majesty and returned to our lodgings, and in a short time after, a number of slaves came, bringing us the figs which had been served at the royal table. On the following day we returned the visit of the Prince, and were received with less etiquette than at the King's palace. The house of the Prince formed a most singular museum. In the rooms there was a complete confusion of European, Siamese, and Chinese furniture, saddles, hats of all forms, chronometers, books, Cerise lamps, gold and silver vases, cloth and hair-brushes, and caskets full of precious stones, all scattered about pele-mele on and under the furniture. On our leaving, the Prince requested that we would make known in France that we had met with a welcome reception, which I promised to do."

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

It appears from a return to the Secretary of State for India in Council, for the year ending the 30th of June, 1859, that the total amount received by the directors during the year, from the proprietors of this company, amounted to £1,224,300, including £12,152 received in India. The total amount received on shares in England amounted to £4,373,671, on debentures to £333,300, and on shares in India to £338,132, making together a total receipt of £5,945,103. From the 24th of February to the 30th of June last 749 proprietors paid £794,976 in full upon 40,686 shares. On the 1st of January, 1859, all the shares then fully paid up were converted into capital stock; and, as the shares have since been fully paid up, they have been, and continue to be, immediately disposed of in the same manner. On the 30th of June last the company's capital of £8,000,000 in stock and shares was held by 3,489 proprietors, of whom 265 were in India. During the year the expenditure on capital account amounted to £420,987 in England, and to £549,674 in Bombay, making, with previous expenditure, a total to the 30th of June last of £4,420,697, including £1,699,034 expended on 194½ miles of railway open for traffic, together with the working stock and proportion of general charges. The remainder was expended on 1,040½ miles of railway in course of construction, and for permanent way materials, rolling stock, and machinery for unopened portions of railway; the total mileage authorised being 1,235½ miles. The balance in hand on the 30th of June, 1859, was £624,107. During the last year, on the company's South-Eastern line, the Bore Ghat incline, 13½ miles in length, and from Poona to Sholapore, 163 miles in length, were under construction; and on the company's North-Eastern line, from Wassind to the foot of Thull Ghat incline, 25 miles in length, the Thull Ghat incline, nine miles in length, from the summit of the Thull Ghat incline to Bhosawul, 190 miles in length, and from Bhosawul to Hurdah (Jubbulpore contract) 136 miles in length, making together 536½ miles then under construction. The total expenditure on the Bore Ghat incline and on two miles beyond it was £256,897, including £69,786 during the past year. The contract for those works having been surrendered by the first contractor, the board, upon Mr. Stephenson's recommendation, relet the works to Mr. S. Tredwell for £427,000. The date fixed for the completion of the works was the 30th of April, 1862. Mr. Tredwell left for Bombay on the 1st of October last to enter upon the execution of the works, but he died there on the 30th of November, of acute dysentery, after five days' illness. Of the contract from Poona to Sholapore 114½ miles had been opened for traffic. The total amount ex-society was disorganised and troubled to its lowest depths.

We do not think that Mr. Russell's "Diary in India" will tend to enhance his literary reputation. It bears on every page marks of carelessness by no means complimentary to the discrimination of the reading public. Some of the minor errors will, no doubt, disappear in a second edition, but they should not have been permitted to blemish the first one. For instance, we find lingam, lotah, shikar, sola topee, spelt as lignam, loto, chickar, and solar topee. Then, at page 242, we read of "a convoy from Lucknow," whereas it must have come from Cawnpore; and at page 209 the Rev. Mr. Moore is called Mr. Wheeler. In addition to these clerical errors, there are personalities introduced which a correct taste would have discarded, and a very undue importance is given to trifles respecting himself alone, in which the world at large is not likely to take a very keen interest. At least we can hardly imagine that any one cares to know that an officer offered to sell Mr. Russell a horse for £100, and that he declined to give so much—we are not even certain that it was necessary to record the number of leeches applied to his leg.

Nevertheless, if not a highly artistic performance, there is much amusing and interesting matter in these volumes, and the illustrations are exceedingly characteristic. As a raconteur, Mr. Russell will find but few rivals, while his descriptive passages are worthy of his Crimean renown, nor do we envy the man who could read his account of the final capture of Lucknow without a thrill through every nerve.

"Jam nunc minaci murmure cornuum
Perstringis aures; jam litui strepunt;
Jam fulgor armorum fugaces
Terret equos equitumque vultus."

Without further preamble, we shall now take almost at random a few extracts from the first volume—reserving the second for a like treatment on a future occasion. Here is a sketch of Lord Canning:—

"In this and subsequent conversation that evening on the subject of the mutinies, the causes of them, the extent of the atrocities perpetrated by the sepoys, the stories of mutilations and outrage, the Governor-general evinced a remarkable analytical power, an ability of investigation, a habit of appreciating and weighing evidence, a spirit of justice and moderation, and a judicial turn of mind which made a deep impression upon me. His opinions once formed seem 'inebranables'; and his mode of investigation, abhorrent from all intuitive impulses, and dreading, above all things, quick decision, is to pursue the forms of the strictest analysis, to pick up every little thorn on the path, to weigh it, to consider it, and then to cast it aside or to pile it with its fellows: to go from stone to stone, strike them and sound them, and at last on the highest point of the road, to fix a sort of granite pedestal declaring that the height is so and so, and the view is so and so—so firm and strong that all the storm and tempest of the world may beat against it and find it immovable. But man's life is not equal to the execution of many tasks like these; such obelisks so made and founded, though durable, cannot be numerous."

The notice of Sir Archdale Wilson is less complimentary:—

"I had almost forgotten, so very little is his presence remarked in camp, that Sir Archdale Wilson of Delhi is here in charge of the artillery. He has a little mess of his own, consisting of Major Johnson, Colonel Hogge, and Biddulph; and he is rarely seen except in the evening, when he walks about with his cheroot in his mouth. I hear now, that much of the kudos he received was undeserved, and rather that it belonged to his subordinates. He is said to have been vacillating, undecided, and desponding, and at the supreme moment he was overcome, and unable to give any orders—so Delhi men tell me. As an artillery officer, he was for continual hammering, and doing everything by artillery. He is a tall soldierly-looking man, with a small brow, quick eye, and large feeble mouth. But whatever his demerits or virtues, he was commander of the army before Delhi when the place fell, and his honours are due to him, and to his position."

The length of our next extract will be readily excused for the sake of the very curious incident it relates:—

"Whilst I am writing about it (Cawnpore), I may as well relate an incident in connection with one of the Nana's chief advisers, which I mentioned to the Governor-general, who appeared much struck with it. After the repulse of the allies in their assault on Sebastopol, 18th June, an event closely followed by the death of Lord Raglan and a cessation of any operations, except such as were connected with a renewed assault upon the place, I went down for a few days to Constantinople, and, whilst stopping at Missirie's Hotel, saw, on several occasions, a handsome slim young man, of dark-olive complexion, dressed in an Oriental costume which was new to me, and covered with rings and finery. He spoke French and English, dined at the table d'hôte, and, as far as I could make out, was an Indian prince, who was on his way back from the prosecution of an unsuccessful claim against the East India Company in London. He had made the acquaintance of Mr. Doyne, who was going out to the Crimea as the superintendent of Sir Joseph Paxton's Army Works Corps, and by that gentleman he was introduced to me one fine summer's evening, as we were smoking on the roof of the hotel. I did not remember his name, but I recollect that he expressed great anxiety about a passage to the Crimea, 'as,' said he, 'I want to see this famous city, and those great Roostums, the Russians, who have beaten French and English together.' Indeed, he added that he was going to Calcutta, when the news of the defeat of June 18th reached him at Malta, and he was so excited by it that he resolved to go to Constantinople, and endeavour thence to get a passage to Balaklava. In the course of conversation he boasted a good deal of his success in London society, and used the names of people of rank very freely, which, combined with the tone of his remarks, induced me to regard him with suspicion, mingled, I confess, with dislike. He not only mentioned his bonnes fortunes, but expressed a very decided opinion that unless women were restrained, as they were in the East, 'like moths in candlelight, they will fly and get burned.' I never saw or heard anything more of him till some weeks afterwards, when a gentleman rode up to my hut at Cathcart's Hill, and sent me in a note from Mr. Doyne, asking me to assist his friend Azimoola Khan in visiting the trenches, and on going out I recognised the Indian prince. I had his horse put up, and walked to the General's hut to get a pass for him. The sun was within an hour of setting, and the Russian batteries had just opened, as was their custom, to welcome our reliefs and working-parties, so that shot came bounding up towards the hill where our friend was standing, and a shell burst in the air at apparently near proximity to his post. Some delay took place ere I could get the pass, and when I went with it I found Azimoola had retreated inside the cemetery, and was looking with marked interest at the fire of the Russian guns. I told him what he was to do, and regretted my inability to accompany him, as I was going out to dinner at a mess in the light division. 'Oh,' said he, 'this is a beautiful place to see from; I can see everything, and, as it is late, I will ask you to come some other day, and will watch here till it is time to go home.' He said, laughingly, 'I think you will never take that strong place'; and in reply to me, when I asked him to come to dine with me at my friends', where I was sure he would be welcome, he said, with a kind of sneer, 'Thank you, but recollect I am a good Mahomedan!' 'But,' said I, 'you dined at Missirie's?' 'Oh, yes: I was joking. I am not such a fool as to believe in these foolish things. I am of no religion.' When I came home that night I found he was asleep in my camp-bed, and my servant told me he had enjoyed my stores very freely. In the morning he was up and off, ere I was awake. On my table I found a piece of paper—Azimoola Khan presents his compliments to Russell, Esquire, and begs to thank him most truly for his kind attentions, for which I am most obliged."

"This fellow, as we all know, was the Nana's secretary and chief adviser in the massacres at Cawnpore. Now, is it not curious enough that he should have felt such an interest to see, with his own eyes, how matters were going in the Crimea? It would not be strange in a European to evince such curiosity; but in an Asiatic, of the non-military caste, it certainly is. He saw the British army in a state of some depression, and he formed, as I have since heard, a very unfavourable opinion of its morale and physique, in comparison with that of the French. Let us remember, that soon after his arrival in India he accompanied Nana Sahib to Lucknow, where they remained for some time, and are thought by those who recollect their tone and demeanour to have exhibited considerable insolence and hauteur towards the Europeans they met. Afterwards the worthy couple, on the pretence of a pilgrimage to the hills—a Hindoo and Mussulman joined in a holy excursion!—visited the military stations all along the main trunk-road, and went as far as Umballah. It has been suggested that their object in going to Simla was to tamper with the Goorkha regiment stationed in the hills; but that, finding on their arrival at Umballah, a portion of the regiment were in cantonments, they were able to effect their purpose with these men, and desisted from their proposed journey on the plea of the cold weather."

"It was one of the strangest and most distressing sights that could be seen; but it was also most exciting. Discipline may hold soldiers together till the fight is won; but it assuredly does not exist for a moment after an assault has been delivered, or a storm has taken place. Imagine courts as large as the Temple Gardens, surrounded with ranges of palaces, or at least of buildings well stuccoed and gilded, with fresco-paintings here and there on the blind-windows, and with green jalousies and venetian-blinds closing the apertures which pierce the walls in double rows. In the body of the court are statues, lines of lamp-posts, fountains, orange-groves, aqueducts, and kiosks with burnished domes of metal. Through these, hither and thither, with loud cries, dart European and native soldiery, firing at the windows, from which come now and then dropping shots or hisses a musket-ball. At every door there is an eager crowd, smashing the panels with the stocks of their firelocks, or breaking the fastenings by discharges of their weapons. The buildings which surround the courts are irregular in form, for here and there the lines of the quadrangle are broken by columned fronts and lofty porticos before the mansions of the ministry, or of the great officers of the royal household, which are resplendent with richly gilt-roofs and domes. Here and there the invaders have forced their way into the long corridors, and you hear the musketry rattling inside; the crash of glass, the shouts and yells of the combatants, and little jets of smoke curl out of the closed lattices. Lying amid the orange-groves are dead and dying sepoy; and the white statues are reddened with blood. Leaning against a smiling Venus is a British soldier shot through the neck, gasping, and at every gasp bleeding to death! Here and there officers are running to and fro after their men, persuading or threatening in vain. From the broken portals issue soldiers laden with loot or plunder. Shawls, rich tapestry, gold and silver brocade, caskets of jewels, arms, splendid dresses. The men are wild with fury and lust of gold—literally drunk with plunder. Some come out with china vases or mirrors, dash them to pieces on the ground, and return to seek more valuable booty. Others are busy gouging out the precious stones from the stems of pipes, from saddle-cloths, or the hilts of swords, or butts of pistols and firearms. Some swathe their bodies in stuffs crusted with precious metals and gems; others carry off useless lumber, brass pots, pictures, or vases of jade and china. Court after court the scene is still the same. These courts open one to the other by lofty gateways, ornamented with the double fish of the royal family of Oude, or by arched passages in which lie the dead sepoy, their clothes smouldering on their flesh."

THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS.

FOR INDIA AND THE COLONIES.

A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF BRITISH AND FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

This Newspaper presents a comprehensive and perfect view of British and Foreign affairs, with special reference to those subjects in any way interesting to residents in India, or those at home having connections there. The Intelligence is brought down to the latest possible moment prior to the departure of the Mail. The various departments are so arranged, and the intelligence analysed, as to form a weekly register of permanent interest and value, which subscribers will be glad to preserve.

The weekly issue of "THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS" renders it as eligible a newspaper for Anglo-Indians resident at home as abroad.

Families should send it to their friends abroad.

CLAPHAM COMMON.

UNFURNISHED HOUSES at CLAPHAM-COMMON.

Mr. McLACHLAN, of 35, St. James's-street and Clapham-common, is instructed to LET THREE HOUSES in the ROVE, adjoining that beautiful spot, Clapham-common. They consist of dining, breakfast, and double drawing-rooms, and five bed-rooms, with the usual domestic offices, coach-house, stable, &c. The houses have just been put into thorough substantial and ornamental repair, and are fit for immediate occupation. The locality is highly respectable; and as the rents are moderate, and several Indian families reside in the neighbourhood, Mr. McLachlan begs to recommend the houses to the attention of families recently arrived from India. The drainage is warranted. Omnibuses to West-end and City pass constantly. One mile to the Balham Station, for Pinlco, Crystal Palace, Brighton, &c.

JAMS, JELLIES, and MARMALADE, PRESERVED IN TINS.

By BARNES, MORGAN, and Co.

(the Originators of this method of preserving), Upper Thames-street, London, E.C. This mode of Preserving is now acknowledged to be far superior to any yet invented. The contents will keep good for any number of years without the Tin imparting any metallic taste to the Preserve, and never candy or ferment. To Regimental Messes they are peculiarly adapted, being more portable than jars, and not liable to breakage. B. M. and Co. would also recommend their Pickles, Sauces, Tart Fruits, &c., and their large stock of York and Cumberland Hams, Cheese, and Bacon.

Stores ... .. 51, Lime-street.

Offices ... .. 54, Duke street.

The Proprietors beg most respectfully to call the attention of the Trade, Noblemen, Clergy, and the Public to their extensive stock of CHOICE WINES of rare vintages.

B. and Co. are not disposed to content upon the purity of their Wines, which is daily most laudably acknowledged by the public and eminent medical men of all countries, as the increasing patronage of the highest families in the land is a sufficient guarantee.

They beg to call attention in particular to their Pure Tonic Wines as being so valuable to invalids and persons of weak stomachs.

A sample case, containing full-sized sample cases, will be forwarded to any address on receipt of 6s. 6d., or a dozen for 24s.

It is a well-known fact that impure and adulterated Wines are the greatest foes to health, producing acidity in the stomach, and debilitating the digestive organs, while pure Wines will accelerate the digestive powers, invigorating, strengthening, and bracing the nervous system.

Their Tonic Wine is admitted to be most essential to invalids, both old and young, and should never be absent from the homes of the weak and sickly. Its properties are duly acknowledged by the leading men of the Faculty both at home and abroad.

To prevent imposition each bottle is sealed with the name of the firm.

All orders to be made payable to HENRY BURROWS.

FIRE! THIEVES! FIRE!—Second-hand

RUPTURES.—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS

is allowed, by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen, to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of HERNIA. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body, two inches below the hips, being sent to the Manufacturer.

Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON.

A Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d. Postage, 1s. A Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage, 1s. 8d. An Umbilical Truss, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE-CAPS, &c., for VARICOSE VEINS, and all cases of WEAKNESS and SWELLING of the LEGS, SPRAINS, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 7s. 6d. to 16s. each, Postage, 6d.

JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228, Piccadilly, London.

SORE THROAT, Recent Cold with Cough,

Measles, Fevers, and all Inflammatory Disorders, are IMMEDIATELY RELIEVED by Dr. JAMES'S FEVER POWDERS, when given on the first attack according to directions. In Rheumatism and Chronic Complaints it has performed the most extraordinary cures, when used with perseverance. In Packets, at 2s. 9d., &c. The genuine has "F. NEWBURY, No. 45, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD," London, on the Government Stamp.—Proprietor of the COD LIVER OIL CAKES. Established A.D. 1746.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

INFLUENZA.—This disease now so prevalent, and often fatal, is an epidemic form of fever, attended by irritation of the windpipe, inflammation of the throat, and constant cough; when erroneously treated by the ordinary medicines adapted for colds, the most serious consequences ensue, and too often the mistake is mortal. This mischance can never happen when reliance is placed on Holloway's medicines, for whether the symptoms arise from inflammation, colds, or irritation (influenza), these remedies relieve in the first, by lowering the constitution; in the latter, by soothing the excited nerves. At this season no family is safe without Holloway's preparations which do not contain a grain of noxious ingredients to injure the constitution.

THE MAGNESIAN EFFERVESCENT is the most agreeable and effective remedy in all cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Acidity, Heartburn, Indigestion, and Biliary Affection, Nausea, Fever, Thirst, and Sea-sickness. It is highly recommended by the profession, and will be found especially valuable to those going to India or travelling in warm climates: as a mild and efficacious saline aperient it stands unequalled, and will be found peculiarly adapted for delicate females and children. To be obtained through all respectable chemists, and wholesale from Messrs. BASCLAY, Farringdon-street (put up in stoppered bottles at 4s. 6d. for India), and smaller size at 1s. 14d. and 2s. 9d.

LENTUM, A NEW COMPOSITION

for Artificial TEETH and GUMS, recommended to Invalids and all who suffer from Indigestion. Its flexibility and lightness give the greatest power in mastication, avoiding all pain or pressure on the gums, without springs, wires, or any unsightly gold. It supports all loose and tender teeth, and does not require the extraction of stumps. Prepared only by

Mr. ALFRED JONES, SURGEON-DENTIST to

TO SUFFERERS with CORNS and

BUNIONS.—Ask for a Box of YOUNG'S CORN and BUNION PLAINERS, which will eradicate corns or bunions in a very short time. Be careful that you have YOUNG'S—the name is printed on the label; all others are imitations. Price 6d. and 1s. per box, or by post for thirteen postage stamps. Address H. YOUNG, 31, Shaftesbury-place, Aldersgate-street, E.C. May be had at most chemists throughout the world. Agents wanted abroad. N.B.—A Liberal Allowance to Wholesale Dealers.

THE NEW MORNING DRAUGHT.

HOOPER'S SELTZER POWDERS make a most agreeable, effervescent, tasteless Aperient Morning Draught, and are acknowledged by every one who try them to be infinitely superior in every respect to any Seltitz Powders, effervescent more briskly, are quite tasteless, are painless in operation, and effective in result. Mixed as suggested in the directions, even children take them with a relish. Sold by HOOPER, Chemist, London-bridge, in boxes (and in bottles for exportation), 2s. 6d. each.

GENTLEMEN, if you want a Treat, try JAMES'S PATENT TROUSERS, a perfect and elegant fit, falling gracefully over the instep, with or without straps, giving that freedom and comfort so necessary in walking or riding. If you try them once, you will soon change your tailor. The texture and pattern are the best the market can produce. The price, 17s. 6d. to 25s. What a luxury to have perfection in a Coat—to fit easy, and without a crease! Try EMMET'S, Practical Tailor, 10, VERNON-PLACE, Bloomsbury-square, W.C. You will be pleased with the fit, style, and price.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Bombay Mail of the 27th December confirms the intelligence already received of the capture or extermination of the rebels on the Nepal frontier. It appears that Sir Jung Bahadoor, having received a significant intimation that his future possession of the Oude Terai depended on his expulsion of the Oude fugitives, at last took the field in earnest, and acted with such vigour that the campaign was concluded almost before it had commenced. Captain Hill, who was serving with the Ghoorika head-quarters, has reported the death of the following leaders:—Bala Rao, Nana Rao of Cawnpore, Derve Buksh of Gonda, Nurput Sing of Banda, Purwun Sing of Azimgurh, Ghoolab Sing of Birwa, Beni Madho of Shunkerpore, Azimoolah Khan of Cawnpore, Khan Ally Khan of Lucknow, General Khoda Buksh, Daoreelall, and Hurdeo Prosad, chuckladar of Khyabod.

The rebels are represented to have made a spirited attack on the Ghoorika lines, but physical exhaustion betrayed their desperate courage, and Beni Madho with nearly six hundred of his followers were left dead upon the ground. Further resistance was evidently useless, and does not appear to have been attempted. The Nusseerabad Brigade, still eight hundred strong, fleeing from Lieutenant Cosserat and his Oude police, came upon a Ghoorika force and at once surrendered—their leaders, Davee and Gunga Sing, being sent as prisoners into the British camp. Ummer Sing, brother of the gallant Koer Sing of Jugdespore, Mummoo Khan, the Begum's discarded paramour, and Bullee Sing, the betrayer if not the murderer of Messrs. Block and Stroyan, are said to have given themselves up separately, with small bodies of adherents. The capture of Khan Bahadoor Khan was effected by the Nepaulese Minister in person. The story is told elsewhere, and is very possibly a fiction, for it is scarcely probable that Jung Bahadoor would have inquired of such a notorious criminal if he had been guilty of the murder of English officials. It must have been well known to that puissant knight that this was the man who instigated the massacre at Bareilly. It is further reported that Sir Jung has offered to give up the Begum, if her life be spared—a very superfluous stipulation, as no civilised government would sanction the execution of an Amazonian general.

It is gratifying to learn that the Wagher campaign is also practically concluded. At least, the Bombay Government have received a telegram announcing a decisive victory gained by Major Honner at Porebunder, and the capture of seven hundred of the enemy. The important services rendered by the aged Banka Race, Ranees of Nagpore, who fought, against Wellington at Assaye, have been tardily recognised by the Indian Government under pressure from the Secretary of State. The adopted son of the late Raja is to receive a handsome pension, with the titular dignity of Rana of Nagpore, and thus Lord Dalhousie's abolition of the right of adoption is again set aside. For two whole years the old Ranees laboured earnestly to preserve tranquillity in the province, but her active loyalty was unknown in Calcutta through the culpable remissness of the commissioner, Mr. Plowden. At length, but not before the venerable princess had died unhonoured and unthanked, Mr. R. S. Ellis, the assistant commissioner, laid the whole affair before the Home Government, by whom a commission was ordered to investigate the circumstances of the case. This commission, however, was never appointed, as Lord Canning summarily dismissed Mr. Plowden, and sent a new commissioner to Nagpore. As for Mr. Ellis, to whose moral courage and honesty of purpose the Government was indebted for the opportunity of redressing a wrong, that gentleman has been rewarded by losing his chance of promotion and being remanded to his own presidency, Madras—so much for "telling tales out of school." This is no doubt intended as an encouragement to others to act rightly rather than conventionally, and to see justice equally meted out to all.

The Calcutta telegram, in the second edition of this day's Times, exaggerates the damage done to the Governor-general's camp by fire. It is only true that a fire did break out in Lady Canning's sleeping tent, where a stove was kept burning, and that a quantity of her ladyship's wearing apparel was utterly destroyed. All the valuables, however, were saved, with the exception of five rings, through the strenuous exertions of H.M.'s 35th, and a regiment of Sikhs.

Lord Canning has taken the Barnes Court Estate, at Simla, for his residence during the ensuing hot season; and it is said that Lord Clyde, having renounced his intention of resigning his command, has engaged "Torrentium," formerly occupied by Colonel Ramsay. The Indian journals agree in describing the present cold season as the most severe that has been known for many years.

From Bombay we learn that the 3rd and 5th regiments of Native Infantry are under orders for China.

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 17th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 24th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

BENGAL.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY OF INDIA.

The geological survey of India may at last be said to be a fact. Established in 1851, when it consisted of the superintendent and one draftsman who knew nothing whatever of geology, the survey assistants were successively carried off by sickness or promoted to higher positions as they arrived, and the few who were available for purely geological work were summoned hither and thither according as their services were specially required. No definite system could be entered on till 1857, and now for the first time it is possible to review operations. The geological has taken its place with the trigonometrical and revenue surveys as an independent establishment. The results which it is yet destined to effect for the future of India will be greater than theirs, while it avails itself of the path which they have cleared for its advance. Accepting their measurements and maps of the surface of the peninsula, its duty is to fill them in with the colours which denote the characteristics and the wealth of the underlying strata. While they assist geographical science on the one hand, and render definite the relation between the State and the rent payer on the other, the geological survey lays a foundation on which science and art may at once build, and extracts from the depth of the mine and the barrenness of the quarry wealth in the presence of which the revenue of the land will seem a small item.

In 1846 the Court of Directors sent out Mr. Williams specially as a coal-viewer. After an investigation of the Raneegeunge and Hazareebaugh fields extending over two years, he succumbed to jungle fever. Dr. McClelland acted for the next two years, and published a report of his labours. But the interests involved and the field to be examined were too great to allow of such isolated and desultory efforts, and the court resolved to send out a properly qualified and practical geologist, and ultimately to establish a geological survey, similar to that of Great Britain and Ireland. Mr. Oldham, Professor of Geology in the University of Dublin, and local director of the Irish survey, was selected. He landed in Calcutta in 1851. The wide extent of India lay before him. For six years, and at long intervals, one assistant after another was sent out to his aid, but after a few months' active service some fell under the exposure, and others found in higher posts more attractive salaries. Meanwhile new coal fields were found out, new mineral deposits called for examination, specimens were sent for report, and earnest entreaties were made for a visit to the locality of some newly discovered mineral treasure. What was meant to be the nucleus of a systematic survey thus became a small body of peripatetic and reporting geologists.

But important as such inquiries were at a time when it dawned upon capitalists that India possessed more of that mineral and metallic wealth than England, it was an evident waste of strength to delay a regular survey which would not only explain what was known at the time, but unfold new sources of wealth, and add new facts to science. Accordingly in 1856 Government sanctioned a systematic survey, increased the number of the establishment, and gave a wider basis for operations by directing the examination of the Madras Presidency. Specimens which had hitherto been confided to the Asiatic Society, and often lay unpacked in their crowded rooms, were now put into a separate building; works of instruction and reference were collected, and both formed the nucleus of a Geological Museum and Library, which are admirably arranged, and bid fair in the course of time to rival in scientific value if not splendour the School in Jermyn-street. In 1857 the whole system came fairly into play. We know from the superintendent's report and a personal examination of results that upwards of 11,000 specimens have been collected, named and arranged, so that the merest tyro can with an hour's explanation obtain a clear idea of the geology of India. The library consists of 2,000 volumes. Maps have been submitted to Government showing the geological structure of the most important districts, stretching over 38,000 square miles—an area larger than the whole of Ireland. The published volumes of memoirs contain detailed information regarding Tenasserim, the valley of the Irrawaddy, the Khasia Hills, from Cuttack and its Tributary Mehals on the south, to Sikkim on the north, from Calcutta to Patna, Bundelcund and the valley of the Nerbudda, Arcot, Tanjore, and the Neilgherries. These embrace two of the chief sanitarium, and the great coal, iron, and gold dust deposits of Central and Eastern India.

This has been accomplished in two years of revolt and confusion, and the survey is yet in the first days of its infancy. Important in itself as a scientific establishment, it is, in the present stage of Indian progress, especially valuable in an economic point of view. Through it and it alone is the mineral wealth of a continent which has an area of 1,287,485 miles to be developed. On all such collateral questions as the supply of water, the nature of soils, the improvement of native agriculture and arts, the progress and maintenance of railways, and the material prosperity of the whole Continent, the Survey Department must be the ultimate referee. But at present its staff is too weak, and liable to too many casualties, for even the survey part of the work. That staff should be largely increased, and the emoluments made such as to place its really valuable members above temptation to seek elsewhere that remuneration which England, America and Canada liberally bestow on their geologists. If the soils, the minerals, the ores, the waters, demand careful analysis, a chemist must be attached to the survey. Through geology what has not chemistry done for agriculture in England? If the Museum is to be of use in itself and in leading the way to improvement in the arts, a technologist is required, one who might also direct the wonderful manipulative skill of Indian handicraftsmen.

The fruits of the past two years are most creditable to the energy and skill of Mr. Oldham and his small band of assistants. Why not increase the number of his subordinates by recruits from the same class which crowds to the other surveys? The Christian lad of sixteen who has never been out of Calcutta, in time becomes the manly intelligent head of a revenue survey. All that he wants is geology instead of mathematics; six months' training in Hastings-street amid the relics of a past world, instead of in Park-street with the sad dullness of ever present figures and triangles. Exercise makes him better able to bear the exposure of the tropics than the fresh Irishman; almost invariably he has the instinctive habit of neatness and the art of mechanical drawing. And his brain is of at least average quality.

We miss but one statement in Mr. Oldham's report. Is there any difficulty in furnishing every year statistics of the mineral wealth of India, similar to those of Mr. Hunt for Great Britain?—Friend of India.

ADDRESS TO THE RIGHT HON.

JAMES WILSON.

About sixty gentlemen met at Government House yesterday afternoon, at four o'clock, to present an address to the Right Hon. J. Wilson. The address, signed by Mr. Mackinlay as President of the Chamber of Commerce, and by Mr. George Brown, on behalf of the Indigo Planters' Association, was read by Mr. Mackinlay; after which that gentleman made a few remarks, in which he alluded to the grievances of past times, and expressed the hope that a change for the better would now take place. The address is as follows:—

"TO THE RIGHT HON. JAMES WILSON, MEMBER OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA.

"RIGHT HON. SIR,—We, the public bodies represented by the undersigned, received with much satisfaction the first announcement by the press of England of the intention of her Majesty's Government to appoint a financial member of the council of the Governor-general of India: and we consider it a matter for public congratulation that her Majesty has confided this important trust to one so distinguished as you are universally admitted to be in economical science, and of such experience in, and proved qualifications for, the practical business of government. We beg leave respectfully to express our sincere congratulations on your arrival at this Presidency, and on your having taken your seat in the Supreme and Legislative Councils of India. At this eventful period the condition of the national finances, and the accomplishment of measures by which they can be placed on a permanently sound foundation, affords scope for the exercise of the highest talent; and we desire to express our utmost confidence in your ability to discharge adequately the arduous duties of this high and important mission. We beg to assure you of our wish to extend our cordial support to whatever measures you may propose with this view, and which may have for their object the welfare and prosperity of all classes of the community. The public have learnt with lively satisfaction that all measures of the Government, having reference to finance or taxation, are to be subjected to your revision; but as this community has already expressed its views, through petitions to Parliament and to the Legislative Council, upon those measures, we abstain from saying more regarding them on this occasion than to venture our expectations that the representations which the petition alluded to contain will be viewed by you with all the weight to which we conceive them to be justly entitled. We cordially accord our full concurrence in the truth so eloquently declared by you recently on more than one occasion, that there is no reason why those great principles of science and policy which have raised the imperial country to her present proud pre-eminence should not be applied in the administration of the government of this country, because what is right in one part of the world cannot be wrong in another. It will be gratifying to us to be invited to communicate freely with you, and to be asked to supply you with information on questions of local or general interest. In conclusion, we beg to repeat our confidence in your prudence and judgment in pursuing that course which you honestly believe to be conducive to the promotion of the wealth, greatness and prosperity of the country."

Mr. Wilson gave a brief and well-rounded reply, confining himself to the statement of a few obvious and pertinent facts, and broad and liberal principles. He said, in substance, that he fully reciprocated the kindly feeling of the address. He had confidence in the aims of so worthy and so large a company of merchants and planters as he had the pleasure to meet there. He would not doubt that while faithful to themselves in their several spheres they agreed in a desire for the advancement of India. They one and all wished to see this country relieved from her present complications and difficulties. They all thought of her establishment on a sound financial basis, and her progress in a well-conducted and extending commerce. Years ago, two simple and well-defined principles had fixed themselves in his mind. One was that capital must find its life in investment and enterprise, and the other, that a well-ordered, well-governed country must happily and fully employ the great industrial masses of the people. He was not conscious of any change in his convictions concerning these economic laws, which he might call the great principles of his whole life. His friends here would allow him honestly to say that it was with much pain, and with not more pain than wonder, that he discovered how little unity existed in the society around him. He deeply regretted to be compelled to note the presence of jealousies between class and class. These must be brought to act together. It must be evident to themselves and to all thinking men, that only combined action on their part could hold this country. He hoped the time had come for mutual sympathy among the various classes of Europeans. He should count it high reward if it should be given him in any degree to harmonise these differences, and aid in removing these causes of jealousy. He was sure that fidelity to their own highest interests and duties here would include and demand a just and generous treatment of the natives of this country. Turning to those native gentlemen who were present the speaker said: They would wholly agree with him that the extension of commerce was the great pioneer of a high civilisation. It was perhaps mainly by commercial intercourse and in industrial communion that harmony was to be sought, and ultimately found, among men of different religions and different tongues. European interests, rightly pursued, would never be found hostile to the true interests and happiness of the people native to this land. He was aware that India was not England, and that he could not act here in all respects as he would there. The application of the best established principles would have to be tempered by local circumstances, existing only on this side of the world. He must have time to study these. Meantime, it was clear that laws and regulations ever so well put on record would be of no avail without men to back them. The reality of actual law was to be found in the executive will of great and intelligent bodies of men. Among such he reckoned those he then had the honour to address. He was glad of their sympathy,—he sought their co-operation. If the greatest statesmen in England were ready to hear and to profit by the suggestions of the intelligent of all classes, and to listen to the advice of those especially qualified to tender it, this was much more necessary in India; and he should at all times be glad to receive the information and advice which they were prepared to offer him, whether individually or collectively. He would conclude with a renewed expression of kindly regard for those merchants and planters who had honoured him with their presence. He did not for one moment doubt that they were perfectly willing to bear their share of the public burden, if it were portioned out to every man upon fair, sound, and equal principles—(hear, hear, hear, from all present). One remark further; he hoped that every man in the country would speak his mind honestly on public affairs—(hear, hear). No good could ever come of unworthy compromises of opinion. He liked to hear those that differed from him—how widely it mattered not, so long as they were honest. He trusted that all would give their opinion with the utmost frankness and freedom, and he would promise on his part to be equally frank and free. The special business being thus ended, several gentlemen who had not before met Mr. Wilson were introduced to him, and the deputation retired.—Englishman, Dec. 7.

THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

It is now upwards of a year, we believe, since the proposal to transfer the management of the Straits Settlements from the Supreme Government of India to the Colonial Office was referred by the Secretary for India to the Governor-general for his report and opinion. That report and opinion have not yet been given, notwithstanding the Secretary for India has, once at least, called Lord Canning's notice to the reference formerly made to him, and urged a speedy answer. We suppose Lord Canning has been so much engaged in concocting his schemes for raising additional revenue, that he has had no leisure to bestow upon such a comparatively unimportant affair as the government of the Straits. In the meanwhile, however, these Settlements are suffering seriously from the neglect which this sort of suspension between two governing powers inevitably entails. The Colonial Office can do nothing for us, as we are not yet under its rule. The Council for India, and the Supreme Government, probably viewing it as pretty certain that the Straits will ultimately be removed from under their jurisdiction, will not give their attention or sanction to anything which entails considerable outlay, or involves any improvement or alteration of a permanent nature. The Governor-general, representing the Supreme Government, has afforded us an example of this, in the apathy with which, for several months, he had before him serious charges preferred by the Governor of the Straits and the Recorder of Penang against each other, without taking the slightest trouble to inquire into them; and at last handing them up to the Secretary for India with an expression of opinion that, in our view, makes it evident that his lordship had not even given the papers an attentive perusal.

For a number of years past naval men have been urging upon the Home Government the great advantage to the public service which would accrue from having a naval depot and dry dock at Singapore, and the Admiralty has viewed the matter favourably; but while Singapore remains under the government of India the home authorities will not authorise the necessary expenditure, and it cannot be expected that the revenues of India should be expended for such purposes. It is scarcely necessary to point out how useful a naval depot and dock at Singapore would have proved a month or two hence, when the numerous steamers and transports destined for the China expedition begin to arrive here, many of them probably requiring refit of one kind or another after their voyage round the Cape. H.M.S. Essex need not have been upwards of a month off the station, undergoing repairs at a Dutch port, had the facilities for that purpose, which ought to have existed here long ago, not been altogether wanting.

The interior of our island requires to be still further opened up to facilitate the operations of planters, and to bring the population more within control of the law, but it is in vain to expect that in the present state of the finances of India any outlay for new roads will be sanctioned. No encouragement is given to agricultural enterprise, and tigers are allowed to drive away settlers without any vigorous efforts being made to extirpate them. One village at least, on the Sungi Pandam, near Bukit Timah, was actually abandoned by the inhabitants, in considerable haste, some months ago, in consequence of a number of persons belonging to it having been destroyed by tigers.

Then, again, improvements in our judicial arrangements are urgently required, but are indefinitely postponed, owing to the cause before mentioned. The Supreme Court requires an additional judge, and the police-court an additional magistrate; but there is no prospect of either being sanctioned as long as we remain under the Government of India.

Our marine police, too, is shamefully inadequate. Gunboats belonging to the royal navy were promised years ago, but have never yet been stationed here, and although at one time it was said that the Indian Government was building gunboats for the Straits, the time that has since elapsed without their making their appearance would seem to prove that the intention of sending them, if ever seriously entertained, has long been abandoned. A dull-sailing and weak-manned steamer, which cannot contend successfully with two piratical junks, is the only permanent means of protection which is accorded to the commerce of the Straits Settlements, the men of war occasionally stationed here being liable to be called away to China or elsewhere on any emergency, or when the naval authorities think proper. Were these places under the direct management of a department at home, we may be pretty certain that such an unsatisfactory state of things would not long continue.—Singapore Free Press.

MISCELLANEOUS.

OPERATIONS ON THE FRONTIER.—News has been received in Lucknow to say that the Nana's magazines, stores, and property of all kinds, have been found and taken in the Deokur valley by the Nepalese. No advance of the rebels towards our outposts along the Arrah nullah had been made up to the 5th Dec. There is no mistake now about Jung Bahadoor's intention to exterminate the rebels. He has certainly shown great tact and skill in keeping aloof until now, when the wretches have been reduced by sickness and death to almost a shadow of what they were eight or ten months ago. But, of course, he will be rewarded all the same handsomely. A plucky Government would have disdained to accept the services of such a doubtful ally at a juncture when they were so little needed. The Goorkhas have had some slight skirmishes with the rebels, and licked them on the last occasion; however, not before losing some cart-loads of ammunition, which fell into the hands of the enemy. Both Bane Madhoo and Jodh Singh were killed in the Deokur valley, and Ball Currun, another leader, was taken prisoner along with Mummoo Khan. We hear further from the frontier, that "spies came in to Lieutenant Smith on the 3rd Dec., with the report that some fifty or sixty rebels had arrived at Byspoore, and intended making their escape through a Sota southward. Intimation was immediately given to Captain Lance, commanding at Sidhonia ghaut, who ordered out a small party to Soonar, to attack and take. He also directed Lieutenant Smith to order his Thanadar at Bhojepore to proceed with his men and block up the Sota. This was done, and the result was perfectly successful. Both Captain Lance and Lieutenant Smith marched twenty miles, and arrived at Byspoore before sun-rise on the morning of the 4th. They immediately scoured the jungles and bagged some few of the rebels whom they found in the little villages about. Those in the Sota got scent of this and bolted towards Bhojepore, where they very nicely fell into the hands of the Thanadar's party. In all about forty of them were taken—all sepoys, and also treasure to a large amount. The information obtained from these captives is, that Bane Madhoo and Jodh Sing have been killed, and that Nurput Singh of Futtehpore is a prisoner with the Nepalese. They, moreover, assert that, until they were actually attacked by the Nepalese, they calculated on them as friends—nay, more, they fully believed they would have joined them. More treacherous still. The Nepalese doubtless kept the rebels off their guard, in order that they might the more easily polish them off. Altogether the conduct of Jung Bahadoor has been most unmanly, take it in which way we will. Another friend sums up:—"The rebel game is nearly played out. Beni Madhoo and Jodh Singh are killed; the Rancee of Gonda, with 16,000 or 20,000 rupees, has surrendered to Lieut. Smith; Mummoo Khan and Davee Deen, (commandant of the Nusseerabad Brigade) also the man known as the 'Lord Sahib,' and the celebrated dacoit, Bullie, as well as several other leaders, are prisoners with the Nepalese. Khan Bahadoor Khan, it is to be hoped, has also been caught by this time. The Begum is near Bootwul, and will probably give herself up, if she has not already done so. The head quarters of the Nepalese troops were at Bungahi by last accounts. Large numbers of rebels have surrendered, and the rest seem disinclined for any more fighting."—Oude Gazette.

KHAN BAHADOOR, whose doings at Bareilly have been placed on record by Mr. Inglis, is reported to have surrendered, and the leading subadars, it is said, have repaired to Jung Bahadoor's camp, and offered, on the part of the rebel force, to give up their arms if their lives were spared. Jung told them that a British officer, Captain Hill, was expected shortly, and that he would exert himself on their behalf. The rebel sepoys have taken to the Kyreegurh jungles, and will there await the result of their overtures.

They were confident in the good faith of the Nepalese until attacked some few days since. Some of the rebel sepoys who still have money are endeavouring to get away, but the cordon is so well maintained that these men invariably fall into the hands of the police. Jung Bahadoor has offered to send in the Begum and Birjis Kudder upon our guaranteeing a monthly allowance of Rs. 10,000 for their maintenance.

NEPAUL.—The Goorkhas seem at last to be in earnest; they have driven the rebels entirely out of the valleys between the lower range of the Nepal hills, in which they have been living for so many months in perfect security. It is now believed that whatever remains of the rebel force are in the jungle of the Terai, and the Goorkha general, Puhlwan Sing, with his troops, is guarding all the passes to prevent the rebels again re-entering. After leaving the furthest valley called Dhany, the rebels appear to have suddenly remembered that they might just as well have brought away with them the property of the Nana, which is of great value, for they made a retrograde movement to secure it. The Goorkhas, however, were in possession of it before they could reach the place in which it had been left; and after the Goorkha guns had opened on them, the rebels retreated precipitately into the Deokur valley, and then the next day outside the hills into the Terai, following up close by the Goorkhas. The other Goorkha army, under General Dher Shumshere Sing, which is outside the hills, have drawn the jungle from the east, as far westwards as Bungalow; they have also sent a force to dislodge the rebels from Putter Kote, and if they succeed will drive them westerly.—Nearly the whole of the Oude police hold the jungles from the hills on the west bank of the Urrhe Nudde in the Oude Terai; Colonel Cormick, H.M.'s 20th, with a European force, has lately been ordered to Purrampore to assist them. All along the southern borders of the Nepal Terai are stationed at every few miles different regiments, who send out parties night and day to patrol along the frontier. These troops consist of H. M.'s 54th, 3rd Sikh Infantry, 3rd regiment Hodson's Horse, Jat Horse, Punjab Infantry, and Goruckpore Police. Sir Jung has been informed plainly that the possession of the Oude Terai entirely depends upon his turning the rebels quickly out of Nepal. It is probable that the Nepalese will not themselves attack the rebels to any effectual purpose, but they will do their utmost to try and induce them to lay down their arms quietly. The Ranees of the late rebel Gondah Rajah has given herself up. She is on her way from Sidoniah Ghat, with all her elephants, followers, and property. She is to be allowed to return to Oude and to live in retirement with her brother, who is an influential Talookdar in Oude. Since the above was received, we hear from Goruckpore that the Goorkas under Puhlwan Sing drove back the rebels with much loss upon their trying to get back into the Dhany valley. Benees Madho himself was killed, two elephant-loads of ammunition captured, as well as a standard of the late Gwalior contingent; it was this portion of the rebel followers of the Nana that principally suffered in the fight. Captain Macgregor, of Hodson's Horse, with a small force of police stationed at Panhgong, on getting information that a party of rebels were within six miles of him, attacked them in the position they had taken up in a village, and after a sharp fight put them to flight and killed a good many of them. The wretch Moorad Buksh, who commanded the battery from Fyzabad, and who, together with the 17th N. I., massacred the fugitives from Cawnpore, was found dead amongst the slain; his body was recognised by some rebels who had given themselves up. Captain Macgregor's force lost six or seven men killed and wounded.—Englishman.

DELHI, Dec. 15.—I suppose you have heard of the "terrific fire" which broke out in the camp of the Governor-general on the night of the 11th. It commenced in Lady Canning's tent, about midnight, and destroyed a great quantity of valuable property, much of which cannot be replaced. The fire was of course accidental. The camp was at Allygurh on the 13th, and with it that of the Commander-in-Chief, with both the great men in progress to Meerut, at which station they will arrive just in time for the races and other gaieties. It has been suggested from a high quarter that the Jumma Musjid should be converted into a College or Government School. Another suggestion is that it should not be occupied, but allowed to remain as a public monument. As yet I believe nothing has been decided, but it is thought that the first will be adopted. It is refreshing to find that the restoration of this building to the Mahomedans is not contemplated; a rumour of which, spread most industriously by the Mahomedan population, has been for some time current in the city; and I dare say believed by the people. The wish is doubtless "father to the thought." The houses facing the palace, and behind the "Ellenborough Tank," are being levelled with the ground, and a few days will see them a heap of rubbish. I hope this is only the commencement of great improvements, both sanitary and ornamental.

SIMLA, Dec. 13.—It seems as though there was a greater certainty of the Governor-general visiting us next year than we have yet had, for "Barnes Court," the residence of Lord Clyde during the past season, has positively been taken for his lordship. The gaieties of Puttialah are the theme of the day, we feel them here in inverse ratio, the more festivity there, the less food have we here; scarce a basket of fowls, or eggs, or vegetables comes up the hill now; provisions not being as plentiful as usual, the prices are proportionably higher. On making inquiries on the subject we are informed that everything has been seized for the Burra Zafrit to be given by the Maharajah on the occasion of the wedding of his daughter. Upwards of 100 English guests have been invited, the amusements for whom will consist in having plenty of eating and drinking, with fireworks in the evening. The engineer authorities have sent to England for galvanised sheet iron for the new roof of our unhappy ohurrah, which has been much neglected. It ought to have been re-roofed long ago, but constant and unaccountable delays have occurred in carrying out the design, and, strange to say, though abundance of excellent timber is procurable almost on the very spot, of the most durable wood in the hills, still additional expense and additional delay is contemplated; in the meantime the walls are further endangered by the snows and rains of another winter being permitted to percolate into them through the leaky roof, and the congregation continue to be put to the inconvenience of sitting in a damp, nay, after a shower, a wet building. After the fall of snow on the 1st of the month the weather cleared up, and with the exception of a few cloudy days, we have had a delightful fortnight. The morning air, in particular, is most enjoyable—bright, pure, crisp, and frosty, making the feeling of existence in itself a positive delight.

FUTTEHGUR, Dec. 13.—His honour the Lieut.-governor held a station levee on the 7th, all the civil and military officers, about fifty, of all ranks were present there. The durbar came off on the noon of the 8th, about twelve o'clock a.m., when all the respectable inhabitants of the town, and the chief uncovenanted native servants of her Majesty's Government, such as sudder ameen, deputy collectors, moonsiffs, and tehseeldars brought presents, which his honour accepted, but returned to their owners. He addressed all the native gentlemen with kindness, and treated each according to his rank. In the evening, a dinner party was given at his camp, to which the English ladies and gentlemen of this station were invited. Next day he inspected the public offices, and was pleased at the arrangements of the records in the collector's and judge's offices, and gave every credit to Mr. Lindsay, Mr. Robertson, and Mr. Bayley; thence he went to see the Ice Pits. He afterwards inspected the gaol accompanied by Dr. Clark, Inspector of Prisons. The convicts were classified according to their crimes, the murderers stood on one side, the robbers in the second row, and so on, the perjurers, forgers, &c., were all arranged according to the crimes for which they had been imprisoned. The Bishop of Calcutta arrived at this station on Saturday last, preached on Sunday, and consecrated the new burial-ground. On Monday morning, he held a confirmation; at which a number of officers were present. The next day he distributed the prizes to the pupils of the Furruckabad high schools. I forgot to mention that his honour the Lieut.-governor paid a visit to the charitable Dispensary of Furruckabad, and the Missionary and Tehseelee Schools. He left on the morning of the 12th, under a salute of seventeen guns.

ALLAHABAD, Dec. 15.—Mr. W. Johnstone, joint magistrate of this district, having returned from England, has rejoined his appointment. Mr. W. R. Benson, the late joint magistrate, will proceed to the Banda district, and take charge of the Kirwee station, relieving Mr. J. H. Carne, who has obtained three months' leave of absence. Vigorous measures for the apprehension of criminals in this district are being adopted by the present magistrate; and it is to be hoped that they will be attended with the success achieved in the cases reported in my last letter. The want of church accommodation for the dissenting community becomes daily more pressing. The accountant's office establishment has itself added to the number of Christians of this persuasion located here; and the number of soldiers who attend, both on Sundays and weekdays, is increasing. It is understood that the Rev. Mr. Williamson, the Presbyterian chaplain, has lately addressed Government on the subject of accommodation, especially as regards the Presbyterian soldiers who have no church of their own, but nothing final has yet been done in the matter. In the meantime, the American mission is enlarging the Kuttra Chapel, funds having been obtained from the residents of this station. The building will, when completed, be large enough to accommodate two hundred persons, and may be used by Mr. Williamson for his church services, till some better arrangement can be made.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS AT DELHI.—The Financial Commissioner of the Punjab, Mr. A. A. Roberts, on his return from a recent visit to Delhi, addressed the Hon. the Lieutenant-Governor on the subject of the preservation of the magnificent public buildings with which Delhi abounds, namely, the Dewan-i-Khass, the Eedgah, the Jumma Musjid, the Dewan-i-ium, and others of less note, but of great beauty. With regard to the Dewan-i-Khass Mr. Roberts writes: "I need not dilate on its historical associations, or on the intrinsic value of this noble hall, both of which have been famous throughout the civilised world since the days of the Portuguese mission in the last century;" it has lately been vacated by the European soldiery, being no longer required as a barrack, and Mr. Roberts now recommends that it be preserved from further spoliation, and that the marble platform which was removed some twelve months ago be restored, and that the adjuncts to the hall, namely, a small marble mosque used by the emperors of Delhi as a private chapel, and a suite of marble bath rooms, be also carefully cleaned and preserved. Next to the above in splendour is the Dewan-i-ium. This is still occupied by troops, but the Financial Commissioner recommends that it be vacated as soon as possible. This building has suffered much from spoliation. The beautiful marble dais for the throne has been despoiled of nearly all the mosaic ornaments. Mr. Roberts particularly notices the loss of Raphael's "Orpheus playing to the Animals," a splendid mosaic, which was always considered one of the testimonies to the supposition that this and most of Shahjehan's great buildings were designed by European architects, most probably Italians. The Jumma Musjid, and the great Eedgah, and also the tombs of Humayoon and Sufdar Jung are next noticed. The Jumma Musjid is occupied by a regiment of Punjab Infantry. Mr. Roberts recommends their immediate removal, and that the building be henceforth used for the Pelhi College, for which institution it would be admirably adapted. Mr. Roberts trusts that, under any circumstances, neither of these buildings be restored to the Mahomedans, but that they be retained as grand but silent monuments of the success which was vouchsafed to us in September, 1857. The Lieutenant-governor cordially approved of the suggestions and recommendations of the Financial Commissioner, and the Commissioner of Delhi has been requested to endeavour to carry out the same, as far as may be practicable.

SEETAPORE, Dec. 11.—The Chief Commissioner, Mr. Wingfield, accompanied by Colonel Clarke, left this on the morning of the 8th for Hurdul, to pay a visit to Hurdeo Buksh, talookdar of Kuteecaree, to whom an estate has been given, and who is to be one of those invested with magisterial authorities. The others are, Rajah Maun Singh of Fyzabad; Rana Rugonath Singh of Roy Bareilly, Rustoom Shah of Sultanpore, Rajah Drigbejher Singh of Bulrampore. Of these five men, whom Lord Canning had so loaded with honours, two only, Rustoom Shah and Hurdeo Buksh, have been true to our Government throughout the rebellion. I may as well tell you that the Europeans to whom estates have been given are to have magisterial authority too, which is a great deal in Mr. Wingfield's favour. Mr. Schilling passed through to-day, en route to Lukimpore, to look after his grant, and the others are soon to follow. I hear orders have been given that in future tehseeldars, shereestdhars and others wishing for employment under Government in Oude are to pass an examination in English, as well as Law, &c., before they will be posted to take charge of a tehseel, &c. I forgot to mention the arrival of a bullock battery of six guns, commanded by Major Soady.

"ONCE A YEAR."—The Delhi Gazette of the 10th December contains the following paragraph:—"In the course of the present month a Christmas book will be published, entitled 'Once a Year.' It will be edited by Eustace W. Jacob, Esq., H. M.'s 90th Regiment, and contain 'A Ghost Story' by R. Cooper Todd, Esq., a Fairy, and a German story by the editor, in addition to sketches and poems by various writers. In the department of travel there will be a laughable history of a trip to Parisnath, setting forth the difficulties of ascent, and the glorious sport to be found on its heights. The volume will be illustrated by H. L. Frazer, Esq. The publishers are Messrs. Thacker and Co., Calcutta."

RETURN OF EUROPEAN REGIMENTS.—According to the Allahabad New Times, no less than eleven European regiments, not yet named, are to be sent home this cold season.

JUDGING FOR ONE'S SELF.—It is said that a former chief justice of Calcutta, who had heard repeated complaints of the misconduct of the Calcutta chowkeedars, went out one night in mufti to judge for himself. He was so skilfully disguised that the police arrested him as a suspicious character, and on his making some show of resistance gave him a terrible belabouring with their bludgeons. His judgship, as the story goes, was taken to the station-house on a stretcher, and in such a condition that he was unable to address a grand jury for six months afterwards.

H. M.'s TROOPS under orders for China are, we (Madras Times) understand, to be struck off the Indian establishment from the date of their embarkation, and are thenceforth to receive nothing more than Colonial pay and allowances. This will be a most serious loss, both to the officers and the men.

THE BISHOP OF CALCUTTA arrived at Agra on Thursday, the 15th December. He preached at St. George's Church on Sunday morning. The ordination will be held at St. Paul's on Wednesday, the 21st, at 11 A.M. Confirmation for Native Christians at St. John's, in the city; the Mission Church, on Thursday, at 2 P.M.; and the Confirmation for Europeans at St. George's Church, on Friday, the 23rd, at 11 A.M.

GENERAL HAVELOCK'S GRAVE.—A monument is to be erected over the grave of General Havelock, whose remains, it may be remembered, were interred in Alumbagh, when Sir Colin retreated to Cawnpore, after effecting the evacuation of the Lucknow Residency, 11th November, 1857. The drawings of the monument have been already received, and the work will be commenced as soon as possible. The Bishop, it appears, paid a visit to the spot which enshrines the remains of the gallant chief the morning he left Lucknow in progress to Cawnpore.

FIRE IN THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S CAMP.—A letter from the Governor-general's camp gives some particulars about the fire. It originated in Lady Canning's sleeping tent, where there was a stove. Lady Canning lost a large quantity of dresses and clothes, and at one time it was feared that all her jewels, some of inestimable value, would have been lost, too, but with the exception of five rings all were saved. Our correspondent says that had it not been for the prompt manner in which the men and officers of H. M.'s 35th regiment turned out under their commanding officer, Colonel Walter, the fire would have proved a great deal more serious than it did. The following order was issued on the subject the next day by the Governor-general:—"Governor-general's camp Sassnee, Dec. 12. H.E. the Governor-general takes the earliest opportunity of thanking Lieut-col. Walter, C. B., and the officers and men of H. M.'s 35th Regiment under his command, for the great promptitude with which on the occasion of the fire in the Governor-general's camp last night they were present on the spot, and for the efficient manner in which order was preserved. Lord Canning also particularly noticed the conduct of the Sikh Infantry, owing to whose exertions in great measure the fire was prevented from spreading further than it did. His Excellency's thanks are also due to all who were present, both officers and men, for the ready manner in which they turned out to render all the assistance in their power." The camp was expected at Meerut on Wednesday, the 21st. The head quarters and five companies of the 35th remain there under Colonel Walter, the other wing goes on to Umballa, returning to Meerut in about a month. Lady Canning will present the regiment with new colours at Meerut. Weather is stated to be delightful in camp, colder than at Agra.

ORIENTAL BANK.—We are informed that seventy-two lacs of rupees have been sent in to the general treasury by the Oriental Bank, as a subscription to the new five and half per cent. loan.

THE DISARMING OPERATIONS have been more successful in Oude than in any other part of India. The province has been literally gleaned of arms, as the week under report is 82. The total yield up to the 19th November has been—cannon, 693; firearms, 1,89,937; swords, 5,74,956; spears, 50,914; miscellaneous, 6,40,259, or in all, 14,56,789. The number is by no means in proportion to the number of persons in Oude supposed to have carried arms. But we must remember that many thousands must have been carried out of, and never brought back to the province. The number of forts destroyed is, 1,471—113 more are under demolition; and the number of sepoys surrendered is 6,860, all of whom, we dare say, were natives of Oude, and have accordingly settled down in the province. Of this number, however, it is but fair to add that 5,618 are put down as "leave men, &c."—though we very far from believe that they were the less rebellious for that.

MR. W. MORGAN.—The Hurkaru understands that Mr. Walter Morgan, barrister-at-law, is likely to be appointed to the vacant Mastership in Equity of the Supreme Court. Nothing has been decided as to the clerkship of the Legislative Council.

MAJOR-GENERAL WINDHAM, it is said, will shortly succeed Major-general Sir Sidney Cotton, K.C.B., in command of the division on the Afghan frontier.

THE INDIAN MINTS.—In the month of Oct., 1859, the Calcutta mint received from the Home Government in bullion or coin Rs. 43,44,426, and from merchants Rs. 17,466, and coined Rs. 23,80,280; the Madras mint received from Government Rs. 42,869, and from merchants Rs. 1,98,382, and coined Rs. 4,49,000; and the Bombay mint received from the Home Government the value of Rs. 33,62,679, and coined Rs. 48,07,041.

MAHARAJA JYEPROKASS SINGH OF DEO received a valuable jagheer as a reward for services to the State. The jagheer was the property of a proclaimed rebel, whose property was confiscated. This man has been pardoned, and an order given that his property shall be restored to him. The raja petitioned that this would be a disgrace to him, and prayed that compensation might rather be made to the rebel in money. This was refused by the Government of India.

ABOLITION OF OFFICE OF QAZEE.—The Hurkaru has been informed that the Government of Bengal intends to abolish the office of Qazee in the Mofussil, and agreeably to the instructions of the home authorities the Lieutenant-Governor has requested the opinions of several judicial officers on the subject. The Sudder Court, our contemporary learns, has also given an opinion unfavourable to the continuance of the office.

UNPLEASANT RIFLE PRACTICE.—The Delhi Gazette states a curious circumstance which occurred in the Governor-general's camp. A native employé attached to one of the Government offices, while sitting in his tent was struck by a rifle ball, which entered his breast. He died almost immediately. The shot appears to have been fired from a distance, for the direction of the bullet was downwards. Strange to say, no report was heard.

THE RAJAH OF BENARES lately petitioned that his servants might be allowed to bear arms. Government has consented, on condition of his giving a list of the servants to be armed.

THE ANDAMANS.—By the arrival of the Minnie Lonsdale from Port Blair we have some account of the progress of affairs at this young colony. The Commissioner (Captain Haughton) is winning golden opinions from all sorts of men there; at the same time that he is energetically improving the place in roads and buildings, not overlooking a sanitary reform of the settlement, and a general promotion of the settlers' comfort and convenience. Revenue matters, too, even at this early stage of his authority, have had his attention, and he has succeeded in a discovery of the gutta-percha and pedouk trees, as also wood-oil. Of the sayings and doings at Port Blair we may state that the Naval Brigade stationed there have got up a theatre, to while away monotony and evening ennui. This is said to have gone off capitally, with the courtesy of three hearty cheers from the blue jackets on the commissioner's entry and departure. Should not this fact call up a blush at Maulmain? old enough almost, as a settlement, to be grandmother to Port Blair. The aborigines are represented to be reforming in habits and customs—whether from the force of example or that of fear is immaterial, so that the fact is established. Two new iron steam gun boats and a hulk were shortly expected from Calcutta, in the room of the Nemesis and Sesostria. Thus, taken altogether, the intelligence is most pleasing in a social, and cheering in a political way.—Moulmein Advertiser.

THE EX-KING OF OUDE.—Our special correspondent with the Ex-King of Oude writes that his majesty has required all the Begums of the zenana to sign a document to the effect that they will not leave Calcutta without the royal permission. About thirty of these houris have already attached their signatures, but the Khas Mahal refuses to bind herself by any such terms, and has thus widened the breach which may lead to her expulsion from the harem. His majesty's exchequer is being replenished by money lenders, who receive bonds for two lacs for every lac lent to the prodigal monarch.—Lucknow Herald.

KHAN BAHADOOR KHAN was captured in the following manner: Sir Jung Bahadoor left Boothwal. On his return to the hills he pitched his camp the same day about six miles distant, and went out shooting. Whilst in the pursuit of game he came upon the track of an elephant, which he followed up, and came upon a party under a tree, one of whom got off a charpoy, and mutual challenges were exchanged. When Sir Jung declared himself, a low salaam was made, and Khan Bahadoor Khan stood face to face with Sir Jung Bahadoor! The Nepal Chief had a rifle in his hand, and at once inquired, "Have you been guilty of any murder? If you have, you had better be off, as if the English catch you they will hang you" (quoting the Proclamation). Khan Bahadoor Khan replied that he had not; and when Sir Jung asked him, "why, then, do you not surrender?" he replied that he had behaved so ill to the Sahib logie, that he was ashamed to show his face. At this time Sir Jung's party were gradually surrounding Khan Bahadoor Khan from the jungle, and the latter, seeing there was no help for it, surrendered.

MEDAL FOR THE INDIAN MUTINY.—The Phoenix hears from camp that the Governor-general has decided that services performed from and after the 18th November, 1859, will give no claim to the medal for the suppression of the mutiny, and that from that date all claims will cease.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CAPTAIN H. P. KEIGHLEY, of the 40th M. N. I., has fallen upon unlucky times. Not long since he was tried by general court-martial for the wilful destruction of his accounts, but was acquitted. Government have since sued him in the district court of Rangoon, and obtained a verdict against him for nearly eight and a half lakhs of rupees, a decision which will consign him to imprisonment for the remainder of his life, if it be determined to pursue him with the same unrelenting remorse as has been exercised in the case of Captain H. P. Haines, late of the Indian navy, many years political agent at Aden, and who, after a career of long and distinguished service, has been, for a deficiency in his cash chest of less than half the above sum, incarcerated in H. M.'s gaol at Bombay for the past five or six years.

MR. EDWARD MALTBY was sworn in on the 16th of December as a member of council, and took his seat under the usual salute, in succession to the Honourable W. Elliot, who was to leave India by the next steamer.

DR. HENRY NELSON has been elected President of the Madras Bank; and two days afterwards he was re-elected chairman of the Madras Chamber of Commerce. We congratulate Mr. Nelson on his commercial honours, which we believe are almost without precedent in Madras.

MR. SULLIVAN.—Very exaggerated reports have been, for some months past, rife touching this gentleman; and we see it announced in the columns of a contemporary that a commission has been appointed to inquire into charges preferred against him. We are happy to be able to contradict this statement. No commission has issued; nor have any charges been preferred. As soon as the trial of the police Ameen of Vellore was brought to a termination, Mr. Sullivan at once officially expressed to Government his readiness to offer the fullest and most unreserved explanation upon any points on which they might require further information. He had already had at the trial the opportunity of denying on oath the most serious of the imputations whispered against him. The Government has nominated Mr. Arthur Hall to inquire into and report on such matters as require elucidation.—Indian Statesman.

IN PEGU the prospects throughout the country of the coming harvest are said to be encouraging. In the towns and villages on the Irrawaddy the price of grain is falling. During the past rains, paddy has been sold in the Rangoon market at Rs. 125 the hundred baskets. It is now down to Rs. 45, and will fall still lower. Before the late war, it would not fetch ten rupees the hundred baskets. Its exportation, however, was then prohibited.

FLOODS AT NELLORE.—The Madras Daily Times has heard that the floods in Nellore, produced by recent rains, have been heavier than even those of last year. The great northern road is almost destroyed, and the communication is extremely difficult at present. One large bridge near Sooloorpit has fallen, and the injury to smaller works is extensive. In the south, a large bridge in Tinnevely has been carried away. No accounts of the effects of the monsoon in Tanjore and Trichinopoly have yet been received, but the great southern road is in a very bad state.

THE SECOND EXTRA REGIMENT at Palamcottah is to be abolished. The native officers and men are to be transferred to the regular corps, the former retaining their present rank, and to be borne as supernumeraries until absorbed.

IRRAWADDY FLOTILLA.—The contemplated reduction in the strength of the Irrawaddy flotilla will consist for the present of one steamer, the Indus, and two flats, the Soane and Luckia. The Soane has been condemned as unserviceable, and the Luckia proceeded on the 2nd November to Calcutta in tow of the Fire Queen. Captain Hand left in the Luckia with the best wishes of many personal friends.

BOMBAY.

COMPLIMENTARY ADDRESS OF LORD CLYDE TO THE BOMBAY ARMY.

On Friday, December 2nd, the Commander-in-Chief of the army in India—having arrived the night before from Agra, where the Governor-general had just held his grand durbar of native rajahs and chief—ordered a review of all the troops now stationed in Morar, a cantonment some four miles from Gwalior.

It was a cold foggy morning, but at a quarter before seven o'clock there was Lord Clyde, vigorous, efficient, energetic, as a man who had not seen half his service, or his years; and there, as the fog cleared off, were to be seen, on the wide, flat, irregular ground, between the little cantonments and the distant hills, many regiments of British and native troops, drawn up in highest order and expectation, waiting the inspection—which all knew would be no play-work—of their Commander-in-Chief.

Nearest the houses, tents, and trees, on their various parade grounds, stood the 71st Highland Light Infantry, a fine corps, who have seen much service, not only in the Crimea, but since in India. The 3rd Bengal Europeans, the Bengal Artillery, the 9th Bombay Native Infantry came next; further off, half way up a rising ground, a compact group of the Gwalior Infantry; and on the top, against the sky, were visible the Royal Artillery and the fluttering penons of the 17th Lancers. At a quarter before 7 o'clock Lord Clyde, with General Napier, and their staff, were on the ground. The Commander-in-Chief left his carriage, and with a commanding officer of each regiment walked down the lines, remarked on them, spoke to the men, and showed a thorough knowledge of their antecedents, as well as a regard for their welfare. His carriage, and his staff on horseback, were then seen driving and galloping to the brow of the hill, where he inspected the Royal Artillery, the 17th Lancers, and the Gwalior Infantry; and—completing a large circle of some two miles—he came at last to the 9th Bombay Native Infantry, the only regiment which represents the Bombay army in this distant station.

His lordship's remarks on this regiment, to Major Evans, its commanding officer, were so complimentary—not only to it, and its officer, but to the whole Bombay army—that I think they ought not to be lost; I therefore do my best to record, as nearly as I can remember, words which must warm the heart of every member of the Bombay native army.

The Commander-in-Chief said:—

"MAJOR EVANS,—Yours is the first regiment of the Bombay army I have had the pleasure of meeting since the mutiny, and I have now the opportunity I have long sought of thanking you and your fine regiment for its soldierlike appearance, with which I can scarcely find words to express my entire satisfaction. But I am more especially pleased to have an opportunity of thanking the 9th Regiment of Bombay N.I., not only for its eminent services in the engagements it had with the enemy, in the Sappoor range of hills, in the hot season of 1858, but for the steadfast, loyal and soldierly conduct, when sorely tempted and tried during the storm that so lately raged over the greater part of her Majesty's dominions in India. To the whole native army of Bombay I express my warm acknowledgments. Not only I, but the Governor-general of India, the Government at home, her Majesty the Queen, and the people of England watched with great anxiety the conduct of the Bombay army during the critical year of the revolt, and now gladly acknowledge and thank the Bombay native army for that strict discipline which I first observed when serving with some of you at Peshawar, ten years ago, and which has kept you true to your duty, steadfast in your obedience, and loyal to the Government when the whole Bengal army, as if in a fit of insanity, threw itself into a state of open and defiant mutiny. That wide-spread, ill-concerted mutiny, hopeless as it was from the first, the gigantic strength of the British Government was soon able to crush. And the Bombay army, not only by remaining faithful, as it did, but by fighting bravely, side by side with some of the best regiments of our European soldiers, contributed in no small degree to the pacification of the country, and to the tranquillity which reigns throughout India. Major Evans, kindly explain to your native officers and men what I have now said, for I know little of the native languages. Let them clearly understand, that in acknowledging their services I wish my thanks to be conveyed, through them, to the whole Bombay army; and now, wishing you all a pleasant march to your own presidency, I bid you farewell."

It was thus his lordship spoke, or words to this effect. A greater compliment from a greater man the Bombay Native Army has probably seldom received.—Gazette.

CAPTURE OF BHAGOJEE NAIQUE.

The following report from Mr. Souter of his encounter with the Bheels under Bhagojee Naique on the 11th November, 1859, was forwarded by the magistrate of Ahmednuggur, for the information of his Lordship the Governor in Council. In his letter to the Government, Mr. Tytler says, that he considers the good judgment and tact in the arrangements of Mr. Souter, as conspicuous as his coolness and courage throughout the encounter; without the former, the latter would not have insured so complete a success, with such comparatively small loss. In judging of the conduct of the police under Mr. Souter, he says, it should be remembered that they are rarely called upon to perform such military duties. The mounted police are still a raw levy, and never have had time, owing to the severity of their duties since they were raised in 1857, for drill and discipline. Twenty-three of the foot police were undisciplined. He says that the service rendered by the police was as well-timed as it was complete. There was a general stir among Bheels and other predatory tribes, both here and in the Nizam's dominions, who evidently hoped for a favourable cold weather campaign in both territories under the name and auspices of Bhagojee Naique. Mr. Coghill reports that 100 Bheels have left Newassa: and Lieut. Frajett and the Mamledars report a gathering of 1,000 (probably 300) on our frontier in the Nizam's territory. These men themselves state that they are waiting for Bhagojee Naique. He solicits a grant for the police of Rs. 3,500, which, together with a reward on Bhagojee and his brother of Rs. 1,500, making a total of Rs. 5,000, will enable the superintendent to reward every deserving man fully and judiciously. We subjoin Mr. Souter's report.

From F. H. Souter, Esq., Acting Superintendent of Police, Ahmednuggur, to A. Bettington, Esq., Commissioner of Police.

"Sir,—Late on the night of the 11th instant I forwarded a message to be transmitted by telegraph, reporting to you that I had come up with the rebel Naique Bhagojee, and that the police under my command had shot and cut up his gang (four of the gang were Arabs) to a man.

"I now have the honour to report in detail my proceedings on that day, resulting in the death of this notorious rebel Naique, and the total destruction of his followers.

"This report should have been submitted before, but since the night of the 11th instant my time has been fully occupied in attending to the wants of my wounded men, and in arranging for their conveyance into Ahmednuggur and Nassick for medical aid.

"In my letter of the 6th instant, I brought to your notice the depredations lately committed by the band under Bhagojee Naique, and reported my proceedings up to that date. On the 9th, I moved to the village of Neemove, but nothing could be heard of Bhagojee in that quarter.

"On the 10th, though unable to gather any information of the rebels, but still strongly impressed that they would take eastward to the Gunga Nuddee, and then on to the Nizam's country, I, on the morning of the 11th, marched with my men to Meeteogur, about nine miles from the banks of the Gunga Nuddee.

"The sowars had just unsaddled their horses, and the men taken off their belts, when a police patel of the village of Punchalla (whom I had engaged to give me intelligence) came in and informed me that the rebels, under Bhagojee had arrived in the limits of his village that morning, and that they had taken up their position on the banks of a nullah, two miles from his village, and about five from where I was then encamped.

"I immediately gave the order to saddle and accoutre, and after ascertaining from the patel all particulars connected with the nature of the ground and arranging with the native commandant the best mode for attack, we started off with the least possible delay. The strength of my force, including all ranks, was ninety-one disciplined, twenty-three undisciplined, and forty-five mounted police.

"The nullah in which the rebels had taken up their position ran north and south. The patel informed me that the banks deepened, and the brushwood became more dense, as the nullah neared the Gunga Nuddee to the north, and that to the south it was the very reverse.

"I determined, therefore, if possible to cut the band off from the Gunga Nuddee, and to attack from the north side.

"We were obliged to take a circuitous route to avoid a high ridge, and to escape observation till we got within a few hundred yards of the spot. This was successfully managed, and the rebels did not observe our force till we were close upon them.

"The moment the rebels were sighted, the order was given for the disciplined police to double, and I charged at once with the mounted police. The band were completely surprised, and a few men were cut down before they had time even to light their matches. They, however, soon rallied together under a thick clump of bushes, protected on one side by the bank of the nullah, and had commenced a heavy fire upon the sowars before the foot police had time to come up.

"It was at this time, and at the commencement of the encounter, when I was urging the disciplined police on, that my horse was shot under me and fell pierced with three shots. The native commandant and myself then placed ourselves at the head of the men, and endeavoured our utmost to drive the rebels from their position at the point of the bayonet. In this, however, I regret to say we failed, the ground being very unfavourable for acting in this manner. The rebels were collected in one compact body, shoulder to shoulder, and were pouring in a very heavy fire upon our party; a jemadar and two sepoys were killed, and several other men wounded in the attempt.

"The native commandant and myself then determined on approaching the rebels in skirmishing order; some of our best marksmen were brought to the front, I had my own double rifle, and, bush by bush, we approached the enemy's position, the rebels keeping up a heavy fire the whole time. They fought with extraordinary desperation for upwards of an hour, and never moved from the position they first took up till more than two-thirds of their number were shot down.

"Fifteen men (all who remained) at last quitted their position, and proceeded along the nullah to the south. Every man retained his arms, and they walked quietly up the nullah, loading and firing at the sowars, who lined both banks.

"I must mention here, that when the rebels first took up their position, and it became impossible for horsemen to act, I sent orders for the sowars to retire out of fire, but to divide and form line on both sides of the nullah, so as to cut up any rebels that might attempt to escape.

"As soon as the few rebels who remained left their position and made off up the nullah, I mounted a sowar's horse and galloped forward to intercept and prevent their escape. The native commandant accompanied me, and we left orders for the foot police to follow up the nullah as quickly as possible.

"The disciplined police were tired and unable to overtake these men, the sowars could not act in the broken ground, and, therefore, were only able to ride along the banks, keeping them in sight.

"I called upon these men several times to lay down their arms and surrender, but to no purpose, they kept up a fire on our party the whole time that they were passing up the nullah, and two horses were killed and others wounded by them.

"About two miles from the scene of our first encounter the nullah terminated, and with horse on both sides and foot police in the rear, these men were compelled at last to take to the plain.

"They still, however, kept together in a body, and continued to fire upon us. I called on them again to lay down their arms and surrender, but without success. It was now about five o'clock in the afternoon, I had therefore no alternative but to cut the rebels up, or allow them to escape. I ordered the charge, and no men could have fought with more desperation than this handful of Bheels. They appeared determined to sell their lives as dearly as they could. Four or five sowars, and as many horses, were wounded in this part of the conflict.

"As an instance of the ferocity with which these rebels fought to the last, I will mention that one of the surviving men, after firing off his matchlock clubbed it in his hands, and dealt a murderous blow at me, which fortunately I guarded off with my sword, or must have been felled to the ground.

"I beg to annex a return of casualties, by which it will be seen that I had four men killed, a jemadar and sixteen men of all ranks wounded, there were six horses killed and six wounded.

"The rebels were disposed of as follows:—

Killed .. .. .	45
Taken prisoners severely wounded ..	3
" " unhurt .. ..	1
Total .. .. .	49

"I regret very much to say that four women not included in the above were unavoidably shot, and two have been taken prisoners. It is the general opinion that not a soul that composed Bhagojee Naique's band has escaped. I believe this to be perfectly accurate.

"I would beg to bring to your particular notice, for the favourable consideration of Government, the very excellent and praiseworthy conduct of the police engaged against the rebels on the 11th instant; the men on that day were accounted from 4 A.M. till 8 P.M., without a particle of food.

"The conduct of several officers and men was most conspicuously brave, but I propose to bring their names and service forward in a separate letter. I cannot, however, close this report without specially mentioning the names of the commandant Abraham David, my sheristadar Bulvuntrow, and subedar Raja Khan.

"I received very valuable aid from the native commandant, to whom I was chiefly indebted for keeping the men together; this officer was particularly cool, and conspicuously forward throughout the time the men remained under fire. Subedar Raja Khan, though aware that his son was killed, showed an admirable example to the men by his bold and daring conduct, and I beg to recommend both these officers for favourable consideration.

"From my sheristadar Bulvuntrow I have received the most invaluable aid throughout, and in the many plans and schemes which I have from time to time arranged and put in force for the disposal of these rebels. Bulvuntrow has always been my adviser and right-hand man, and it is but justice to say that I am greatly indebted to him for the success which has attended my exertions.

"I am aware that this officer's name has been brought to your notice before he accompanied me to the scene of action on the 11th, and was most useful in attending to the wants of our wounded, but I understand that this was not the first occasion on which Bulvuntrow has remained under fire. He is a most energetic and very valuable police officer, and I respectfully solicit that he may receive some special mark of the approbation of Government.

"With regard to the patel of Punchalla, who furnished information which led to the destruction of the rebels, I propose consulting with the magistrate of the zillah, before submitting any proposition as to the best manner in which his services might be acknowledged by Government.—I have the honour, &c., "F. H. SOUTER,

"Acting Supt. of Police."

RESOLUTION OF GOVERNMENT.—The right hon. the Governor in Council has, on the magistrate's former letter, expressed his high sense of the very valuable services rendered by Mr. Souter, and requested that the thanks of Government might be communicated to that officer. Mr. Souter's present report has enhanced his Lordship's opinion of the skill and judgment with which this affair was conducted. His Lordship in Council is of opinion that the gallantry displayed by Mr. Souter and all under him could not be enhanced.

The right hon. the Governor in Council sanctions the payment of Rs. 3,500 to the police, in addition to the reward of Rs. 1,500 previously offered.

Of the three individuals specially recommended to the notice of Government, the right hon. the Governor in Council is of opinion that the native commandant Abraham David should, for his long and faithful services, and the conspicuous gallantry displayed by him on this and other occasions, be recommended to the Government of India, for the 3rd class of the Order of Merit. To the subedar Raja Khan, who under circumstances of a peculiarly trying character rendered excellent service, the right hon. the Governor in Council will willingly grant, as a special case, a pension of Rs. 25 per mensem on his retirement, and a sword and belt of honour, and Rs. 15 per mensem additional pay from the date of action. His Lordship in Council will also have great pleasure in rewarding the sheristadar Bulvuntrow in such manner as the magistrate may deem most suitable.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BANK OF BOMBAY.—At an annual general meeting of the shareholders, held on the 12th December, there were present S. D. Birch, Esq., in the chair; R. Willis, R. Ryrie, and Cowasjee Jehangir Esqs. On the motion of Mr. Willis, seconded by Mr. Ryrie, W. B. Tristram, Esq., was elected a director in room of M. C. Wilkinson, Esq., M. H. Scott, Esq., was also elected a director in the place of the late M. S. Campbell, being proposed by Mr. Ryrie, and seconded by Mr. Willis.

EXTERMINATION OF A GANG OF ROBBERS.—The Bombay Standard is glad to learn by accounts from Canara, that the notorious gang of bandits known as the "Bund," who have so long infested the Belgaum and Canara frontiers, have at last been exterminated. Lieuts. Drever and Giertsen, respectively of the Canara and Belgaum Police, came upon them in the Goanese jungle near Dungaloori on the 5th Dec., and after a sharp contest succeeded in capturing the two Brahmin leaders, Raoba and Shantah, three other men of less note being killed. Seven of the gang have since surrendered, and nothing more will probably be heard of the remainder, five in number, as they have now learnt that, go where they will, Pealers can and do hunt them down.

THE FREE TESTIMONIAL.—We learn that Messrs. Shaw, Stewart, and Neville Warren have been appointed joint secretaries for conducting and managing the Frere Testimonial. The form considered most suitable for perpetuating the memory and public worth of Sir Bartle Frere consists—1st, in the presentation of a handsome service of plate; 2nd, the erection of a building in Kurrachee to be called the "Frere Hall," or the Frere College, in connection with the present moveable class for Sindhee school-teachers, the funds to be partly devoted to improving that institution; 3rd, the establishment of scholarships in the different schools throughout Sind. The above forms of testimonial have not been finally decided on, as the opinion and advice of any subscriber will gladly be received, the extent of the forms of testimonial will also depend on the amount subscribed. One very necessary precaution has been adopted to divest the object of the least semblance of a Government proceeding and totally unconnected with the public service. This is good evidence of the ability and foresight of Messrs. Stewart and Warren, and we trust their exertions will be rewarded by readily securing the co-operation and assistance of all parties in swelling the list of contributions.—Sindian.

FESTIVAL OF ST. FRANCIS XAVIER AT GOA.—The monument of Saint Francis Xavier is a lofty narrow chapel, of the same height as the church, and connected with it by an archway closed by a grating of bronze gilt, under which, on the side going into the church, is an altar, surmounted by a beautiful statue of Saint Francis Xavier. Inside the enclosure, the lower part consists of four marble slabs, which serve as altars. Above these are four smaller ones, adorned with beautiful bas-reliefs in bronze, representing various occurrences in the life of Saint Francis Xavier. In one he is shown to us baptizing the poor heathen. Quite at the summit of the monument is another long narrow slab of marble, on which is usually placed the silver shrine containing the body of the saint. This shrine, however, had been already removed from its accustomed place, and elevated in the centre of the sanctuary, on a platform covered with crimson cloth. It is of satin-wood, covered with plates of silver; the lower part has glass panels, and silver columns, beautifully chased, supporting above a canopy decorated in the same manner, and surmounted by a cross. The holy relics were at that time in their closed case, lying on one of the altars inside the monument, where the faithful were permitted to enter and to venerate them. On the 3rd of December, the day of the great feast, the bells rang joyously at the hour fixed for the ceremony of exposition. The litter on which reposes the body of St. Francis Xavier takes out like a drawer from the rest of the case. It was carried by persons of the highest dignity in the city present, and deposited in its shrine in the centre of the sanctuary. The shrine was now surrounded by candlesticks of massive silver, and by beautiful silver lamps. High mass followed, during which, after the Gospel, the panegyric of the saint was pronounced by the most eminent preacher in the city, who concluded his address by three Hail Marys, the last of which was for his lordship Monseigneur Canoz. During the elevation, guns were fired outside the church, as if it had been a military mass. When the most holy sacrifice was concluded, the faithful were permitted to approach the holy remains, and to kiss the feet of the saint. Everything was so well arranged, that there was no confusion in this ceremony. The people ascended the platform, one by one, by steps at one corner, knelt and kissed the holy feet of Saint Francis Xavier, and walking half round the shrine, descended by a different way, and filed off out of the church. But there were few who did not return at some more quiet time, to have a tranquil look at the saintly remains, and an undisturbed prayer beside them.

KURRACHEE.—On Thursday night, December the 7th, an awful scene took place in the Kurrachee gaol, which demands the immediate attention of the local authorities. It appears that ten men had, some time since, been sent down from the frontier districts, as having been implicated in the murder of a man some two or more years ago. It is said that five of these men had been committed for the offence. Under the peculiar circumstances their punishment was mitigated to transportation for life, and we hear it was ultimately the intention of Government to liberate them, and send them back to their own country. They belong to the tribe of Browhees, who are proverbially known as being regardless of life. It seems that some information must have been conveyed to them of their fate, and unwilling to undergo the abject servitude to which they had been sentenced, three of the number strangled themselves with their blankets in the room where they were imprisoned.—Sind Kossid.

INDIAN NAVY.—A commission is to be appointed to inquire into the details of the Indian Navy departments, in like manner as the finance commission now sitting at Bombay. The Home authorities have decided that acting masters of the Indian navy, whose appointments were not considered permanent, are to be treated as uncovenanted servants, and all the rules of the service will be applicable to them.

Mr. J. A. Crowe having resigned the situation of superintendent of the Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy School of Art and Industry, his assistant, Mr. G. W. Terry, has been appointed to act in his place until further orders from Government. We believe Mr. Crowe does not intend returning to India.

CAPTAIN WHITEHILL is, we hear, to have the command of the Poona horse. His successor, in the Guzerat irregulars, has not yet been named.

THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF, having been requested by Government to nominate two regiments of native infantry, required for service in China, has been pleased to appoint the 3rd and 5th regiments for this duty.

MATHERAN.—We learn that Lord Elphinstone has given instructions to Mr. Rowlands, the acting chief resident engineer of the Bombay water works, for the formation of a lake at the mountain retreat of Matheran.

LOCAL TAXATION.—At a meeting of the Bombay bench of justices, held on the 16th December, the proposal to increase the house-tax was rejected, and an amendment carried in favour of new town duties.

DR. SHEPHERD, 9TH BOMBAY N. I.—After visiting the Royal Artillery, 3rd Europeans, Bombay Artillery, 7th Lancers, &c., at Gwalior, Lord Clyde came to the 9th Bombay N. I. regimental hospital, and seemed quite struck with its cleanliness and order. He frequently stopped, and addressing the superintending surgeon, Dr. Arnott, and the assistant-surgeon of the 9th Regiment, Dr. Shephard, said, "It is clean, sir, it is very clean. I did not believe a native hospital could be so clean. This does you the highest credit, sir;" and turning to his staff, remarked, "This is the cleanest hospital of all I have ever seen, and that is not a few."

THE FORTIFICATIONS.—The building of new fortifications for Bombay is suspended for the present, there being a difference of opinion as to the principles on which they should be constructed. Some of the authorities are in favour of a new set of ramparts, with the orthodox number of bastions and embrasures; while others, seeing that the present fort is only dangerous to its defenders, since it could be knocked to pieces in an hour or two, are of opinion that the most sensible plan of fortifying the harbour would be to place some Armstrong guns at Upper Colaba and in other commanding positions which would sweep the sea of every enemy's ship that dared to approach the entrance of the port. We cannot speak with much confidence on such a subject, but we are prejudiced in favour of the Armstrong guns, because they would cost comparatively little money, because with them the defences of the harbour could be completed in a few months instead of as many years, and because the experience of recent wars makes it probable that the strongest fortifications will henceforth be found worthless against rifled cannon.

LIEUTENANT H. R. PARKER, Invalid Establishment, Acting Superintendent of Matheran, and Assistant to the Collector and Magistrate of Tanna, has been appointed Sheriff of Bombay for the ensuing year. He joined the service in 1840, and was invalided in November, 1849. The appointment is highly creditable to the Governor, for Lieut. Parker has no influence but his own merits to recommend him for the office; and we doubt not that the new Sheriff will be very popular in Bombay.

brought, and said that the King of Bokhara wishes to have the large gun which was brought from Koondooz. The Ameer requested Shere Ally Khan to give him an answer. The Sirdar said that the gun did not belong to Koondooz; it originally belonged to the Sultanees of Khorasan, and about 125 years ago it was taken from them. Now Providence has been kind to give it to him with the dominion of Balkh, therefore, if he were to give it to the King of Bokhara, he will get a bad name among all his tribe. The King, therefore, need make no mention of it again.—Oct. 16.—An urzee from Sirdar Mahomed Shereef Khan and Aynool Ghyas Khan was received, stating that they have conquered the Fort of Khoost, in the Indrab district, and Azeez Beg has fled to Budukshan, leaving 100 killed and 50 wounded and prisoners in our hands. On their side only 50 are killed and wounded. The Ameer was much pleased with this news.—Oct. 17.—Sirdar Mahomed Sudeek Khan, brother of Sirdar Sultan Ahmed Khan, and son of Sirdar Mahomed Azeem Khan, arrived in Cabul, and went to pay his respects to the Ameer, who received him honourably, and said he was not dissatisfied with him. Why did he go away to Sultan Ahmed Khan, who he knew well was not a friendly man? The Ameer then ordered his estates to be released.—Oct. 20.—Sirdar Shere Ally Khan ordered General Furramirz to take his regiment to the Huzoor-e-garden, to have them passed in review, which was accordingly done.—Oct. 21.—Mirza Mahomed Nubbee, agent of Sirdar Mahomed Azum Khan, represented to the Ameer that his master wishes to have his troops reviewed, as they were proceeding to Koondooz. The Ameer reviewed them in the Huzoor-e-garden, and was much pleased with them, as they were mounted on excellent horses. The Mirza then asked the Ameer about their pay, which the Ameer said will be issued to them in two or three days.—Oct. 22.—Previously Sirdar Wully Mahomed Khan had asked the Ameer to grant him the country of Tugab, but the Ameer had left the settlement of this question till the arrival of Sirdar Shere Ally Khan. This day the Ameer sent for Sirdar Shere Ally Khan, and after consulting with him, granted the Tugab country to Sirdar Wully Mahomed Khan, who has sent his servants to take possession of it, and will himself proceed there in the course of a month. In the evening Sirdar Sultan Mahomed Khan and his sons asked permission of the Ameer to make the agent of the King of Bokhara his guest. The Ameer granted the permission.—Oct. 23.—The 1st regiment of Sirdar Mahomed Survur Khan, and the commandant of this regiment, Mahomed Azeem, has been called by Sirdar Mahomed Azum Khan at Koondooz. Sirdar Sultan Mahomed Khan sent his principal man to the Elchee of Bokhara, to bring him to his house, where he was feasted with great profusion and pomp. On the Elchee's taking leave, a khiliut of shawls and a cloak were presented to him by the Sirdar. A respectable person who has arrived from Kandahar, relates that Sirdar Mahomed Ameen Khan has married his son there with great pomp, and the people of the city lighted their houses at their own expense. The Sirdar is much liked by the people of Kandahar.—Oct. 24.—An urzee from Sirdar Mahomed Ismael Khan, son of Sirdar Mahomed Ameen Khan, was received from Chareekar, stating that Sirdar Mahomed Shereef Khan will reach Chareekar in a day or two. The Ameer on hearing this was much displeased, and sent for Sirdar Shere Ally Khan, and requested him to send one of his men to Sirdar Mahomed Shereef Khan, ordering him immediately to leave Chareekar, and return back to Indaab. Sirdar Shere Ally Khan said that he has received a letter from Mahomed Shereef Khan, saying that he will not proceed to Toorkistan, because he will never submit to Mahomed Azum Khan. Sirdar Shere Ally Khan again said that the Ameer has hundreds of servants like Mahomed Shereef Khan, there was no necessity for keeping him. The Ameer replied that if he will not obey orders he will have nothing to do with him—he may go where he likes.

Reorganization—Separate Posting.

No. 1637 of 1859.—The following paragraphs of a military letter, from the right. hon. the Secretary of State for India, No. 843, of the 30th September, 1859, are published in general orders:—

1. I have now to communicate to your lordship that, in reference to the probability that some change in the constitution of the Indian army would result from the report of the royal commission appointed to inquire into its organization, it was decided in December last by her Majesty's Government that all future appointments of cadets should be made subject to any alteration that may be decided upon.

2. A copy of the form adopted for this purpose is forwarded for your information, the new conditions will be found under Question No. 6.

3. A distinction should now be made in the disposal in India of the young officers so appointed, and of those who received their appointments on the same terms as cadets of the late East India Company's service.

4. A nominal roll of the cadets appointed under the new condition is forwarded for your information. You are desired to place these officers on separate general lists of cavalry and infantry, and should any of them have been already posted to regiments or even promoted to the rank of lieutenant, their posting is to be cancelled, and they are to be transferred with their present rank to the general lists on which they will stand according to the dates of their respective commissions.

5. The promotion of these young officers will be for the present regulated as follows:—For every vacancy in the rank of lieut. in a regiment of cavalry or infantry, where there is no cornet or ensign who was appointed on the old conditions, the senior cornet or ensign of the general lists will be promoted to the rank of lieut., provided that he shall have served in India not less than one year.

6. These officers may be attached to regimental duty to any of the effective corps of the local army or to line regiments at the discretion of the Commander-in-Chief.

7. The young officers of artillery and engineers who may have been appointed to Addiscombe under the same conditions will not be, on their arrival in India, placed on separate lists, but will have a distinguishing mark entered against their names on the regimental lists.

8. Instructions similar to the above will be communicated to the Governments of Madras and Bombay.

With reference to the foregoing, the postings of the undermentioned officers, announced in Government general orders, Nos. 1,007, of the 12th, and 1,025 of the 15th July, and 1,212 of the 26th August, 1859, are cancelled:—

Furloughs to Non-Commissioned Officers.

No. 1,636.—The following paragraphs of a military letter* from the Rt. Hon. the Secretary of State for India, No. 373 of Oct. 20, are published for general information:—

"In a few cases, however, to be separately and especially considered, the grant of furlough to non-commissioned officers of standing in the service, of irreproachable character, and whose health requires a change of climate, will not be objected to.

"The non-commissioned officers who may obtain this indulgence will invariably be posted to do duty with invalids or time-expired men on passage to Europe. On arrival they will report themselves at the India-house, and will be allowed a short leave to visit their friends in England, after which they will be available to return to India with drafts. It will be clearly explained to them that such are the conditions on which they obtain furlough."

MR. FITZWILLIAM, the talented secretary of the Commercial Bank, leaves to take charge of the Mercantile Bank early in 1860. This gentleman would have made an efficient secretary for the Bank of Bengal; for to great experience in Indian banking matters he unites a thorough knowledge of London business; the former qualifications are most needed in an institution like the Bank of Bengal, which could, with proper management, be worked to pay more than double the dividends now given to the shareholders.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

VALUE OF INDIAN SECURITIES.

A CORRESPONDENT, whose letter will be found elsewhere, very naturally inquires how it happens that the same securities should be so differently regarded in this country and in India? The only explanation we can give is, that the anomaly arises entirely from the ignorance of either public. The fact that the last loan raised for India is quoted in London at 104, while the "Rupee Five per Cent."—as it is designated in the Times—is only at 97, can be accounted for in no other way than by supposing that the British public is impressed with the belief that the former possesses an Imperial guarantee, or some other security superior to that enjoyed by the loan raised in India by the local Government. Such a belief, however, is entirely erroneous. The two loans rest on precisely the same security—the revenues of India—than which nothing can be more satisfactory so long as that country belongs to the British Empire.

Our correspondent might have included amongst the anomalies to which he refers the Guaranteed Indian Railway Stock. The Five per Cent. Stock stands at from par to 104, with the self-same security as the Indian Loan, while, as already stated, the Five per Cent. Enfaced Paper is only at 97. To ignorance of the real conditions of the loans these anomalies can alone be attributed. There can be no doubt that when the Imperial Government took India into its own hands it became responsible for all existing obligations equally with any new debts it might afterwards incur on account of that appanage.

The other fact referred to by our correspondent, that the Five per Cent. Enfaced Paper is selling in this country at 97, while in India it is worth no more than 89, is in like manner to be ascribed to the ignorance of the Indian community as to its value on the London Stock Exchange. This value, however, appears to have been discovered before the mail of the 12th December left Bombay, for the Indian price was then quoted at 92, and with an upward tendency. The regular course of exchange can hardly be supposed to exercise much influence on this question, though it is quite probable that the natives may be reluctant to part with the paper they hold for transmission to England: a considerable quantity, therefore, will always remain in the local money-markets. But European holders will now undoubtedly transmit their paper to London, or demand a higher price on the spot.

VETERINARY SURGEONS OF H.M.'S INDIAN ARMY.

WE have been asked to draw the attention of the authorities to what may be an inadvertence on their part, but which is certainly a grievance on the part of those most deeply concerned. The case, as submitted to us, is so glaringly bad that we feel convinced it is only necessary to place it in its proper light to procure immediate redress. There can be no occasion to have recourse to fine writing, or to "pile up an agony" of sentiment or abuse, where a simple statement must surely suffice to effect the removal of a palpable injustice. No man in his senses will venture to insinuate that the veterinary surgeons in H.M.'s Indian army are at all inferior in point of ability or character to their brethren in the Royal army, or that their duties are less onerous and responsible. Why, then, should there be such a striking inequality in their rates of pay and pension, and consequently in their social position? In the Royal army, for instance, since the publication of the Royal Warrant of the 1st July, 1859, a veterinary surgeon receives, on entering the service, 10s. a-day; after five years, 11s. 6d., or if promoted to the rank of First Class Veterinary Surgeon, 12s. 6d.; after ten years, 13s. and 14s. 6d.; after fifteen years, 15s. 6d. and 21s., with the honorary rank of captain; after twenty years, 17s. and 21s., with the rank of Major; and after twenty-five years 20s. and 23s. Look at that picture and then at this. In H.M.'s Indian Army the same class of officers for the first ten years of their service rank as Cornets, and receive 8s. a-day; during the second decade they rank as Lieutenants, and draw 9s.; and after twenty years 14s. a-day, with the rank of captain. It thus appears that a veterinary surgeon in the Royal Army is entitled after ten years' service to a higher rate of pay than one in the Indian Army after nineteen years.

A similar disparity prevails with regard to pensions. In the Royal Army a veterinary surgeon compelled to invalid from wounds or ill-health receives after five years' service 7s. a-day; after ten years 8s. 6d.; or as a First Class Surgeon, 9s. 6d.; after fifteen years 9s. 6d. or 10s. 6d.; after twenty years 11s. 6d. or 14s.; and after twenty-five years 13s. or 15s. In the Indian Army, on the other hand, five years' service entitles the invalid to 3s. a-day; ten years to 4s.; fifteen years and four months actually passed in India to 6s. 6d.; twenty years active duty (for both sick and private leave are deducted) to 10s. 6d.; twenty-five years' regimental duty to £250 a-year; and twenty-eight years' to £300 a-year. Thus an invalid veterinary surgeon in the Royal Army after five years' service, passed perhaps in England, draws a higher rate of pension than one in the Indian Army after nineteen years' exposure to a hot and unhealthy climate. It cannot be necessary to dilate upon such an anomalous state of things, the mere mention of which must insure the immediate application of a remedy if there be either common sense or justice in the world.

THE REORGANISATION OF THE INDIAN ARMIES.

MORE than two years have passed away since the old native army of Bengal broke up for ever, as hopelessly as the Royal Charter broke up not long ago on the rocks of Moelfra Bay. Since that time many hundred officers, borne till very lately on the rolls of regiments which had long ceased to be, have been waiting with all the sickness of hope deferred to see what new arrangements were making for their disposal, and how far those arrangements might affect their pockets or their promotion, now or hereafter. Meanwhile there has risen up another native army almost greater than the first, and likely in time to become almost as dangerous. This army we cannot with honour do away by a stroke of the pen at any moment; nor yet with justice to ourselves can we allow it to live very long, at least on its present, if not on any footing at all. To disband it summarily would be a great wrong to the brave fellows who helped us through the Delhi and Lucknow campaigns; and yet while it keeps up its present numbers we are fain to burden the Indian finances and drain our own recruiting-grounds with the maintenance of a local British army nearly twice as large as it need otherwise be.

Two years have passed, and the reorganisation of the Bengal army alone—not to mention those of Madras and Bombay—seems nearly as far from being a settled thing as ever it was. The one point that seems pretty certain is the one of whose working we are most doubtful—the amalgamation of the two services under the sole governance of the Horse Guards. We have little trust in the discretion of a department whose wilful obstructiveness to the continued demands of the late Company for more troops from England materially heightened, if it did not wholly provoke, the worst dangers of the late revolt. We have no reason to assure ourselves that, under such auspices, or those of the Minister for War, India would at any future moment be a whit better prepared to meet a like danger; having seen but yesterday how easily one false step could deprive her of the services of some ten thousand good men. Under the arrangement on which the Commander-in-Chief is said to have set his heart the distant dependency will likely become by turns a convenient outlet and a useful magazine for the Royal army; and without some new check to such an issue our hold upon it will never be certain for a single day.

What is to be done with the officers of the old and the privates of the new native army? A local British force of, say, forty regiments of infantry, would absorb the former all at once. But if we are to have a thorough amalgamation, some other way to dispose of them must be found. The oldest and the least capable should be invited to retire on full pensions or half-pay, according to their length of service and other considerations. Of the remainder those who are now on staff employ might be allowed the choice of remaining thereon as officers unattached, with promotion regulated by that of their comrades in the line: the others might also have the choice of serving henceforth in Queen's regiments, or of being posted after sufficient scrutiny to such corps of native irregulars as may still be retained for special purposes. The native regular corps which have not been disbanded, would, of course, keep their own officers, while those of the present European infantry would be drafted bodily with their men into her Majesty's regular army.

Whatever native regiments we think fit to retain should all be of the irregular pattern, officered mainly by native gentlemen, Belooches, Sikhs, and Rajpoots, of good character and some mark, with a few English officers of tried ability placed over each regiment. We should thus insure the three requisites of cheapness, efficiency, and a fair field for native ambition. To reduce the present huge army of Sikhs and Punjabees must be a work of time, to be done by slow and careful degrees. Some part of it, twenty thousand men or so, it may be prudent always to retain for frontier service. The rest could meanwhile be employed on various kinds of police duties, or invited to volunteer for China. By a steady process of non-enlistment those regiments that were not further needed would die out of themselves in a certain number of years. As the writer of a short but sensible "Letter to Sir G. Wetherall" has truly remarked, "the lives, taken collectively, of all the men in the Bengal, Madras, and Bombay armies, are not worth thirty years' purchase." By ceasing to recruit, and "using the pension-list freely," we should soon clear off every black soldier beyond a certain unavoidable residue, from the armies of all three Presidencies. The regiments that are still to form part of our standing army should either be recruited each from its own special district, or have their ranks indiscriminately filled by men of every fighting caste, from the Sikh Pathan and Gkoorka in the north to the Arab and Sidi in the south.

That we must have something of a native army seems to be the general cry. And yet for every purpose of internal defence it seems to us clear as anything on earth can be, that a native army is a needless and vexatious item in the yearly disbursements. In plain truth, there is no piece of true soldiers' work in India that cannot be thoroughly done by our own countrymen. For years and years the old Sepoy army was discharging the duties not of soldiers, but policemen. Half of it was continually employed in escorting carts full of clumsy rupees from station to station, in guarding the camp of wandering officials, in furnishing guards and sentries for all the public buildings throughout India. A gold coinage and an issue of paper-notes would wholly do away with the first and most harassing of these services; while the others could easily be done in part by Europeans, and in part by a well-drilled police. And these are the very two things that India wants—a well-drilled police, commanded by Englishmen, and an army composed, to all intents, of Englishmen alone. With an efficient constabulary, and a people thoroughly disarmed, it would be strange if an army of forty or fifty thousand British soldiers could not hold a country which was virtually reconquered by a much weaker garrison, in the face of an armed insurrection and the treacherous assaults of more than a hundred thousand disciplined Sepoys.

For every two or three native soldiers kept in our pay we shall need one Englishman the more to watch over them, thereby entailing on ourselves, if we are to have many such, the burden of an army about twice as costly as it need be. The cost of three sepoy may only amount to that of one Briton, and Ram Singh may have a noble bearing and an easy disrelish for strong drink; but John Jones or Daniel O'Rourke will not only fight better, but march better, bear more hardship for a given time or a good cause, and stick to his duty like a man, in spite of the cold shade of official neglect and the pitiful doling out of his hard-won prize-money many years after he had helped to save a mighty empire from utter ruin. These are the men with whom we conquered and must look to hold our Indian territories against all assailants—these, and not the hirelings who served us only while it suited them, or the boasted virtues of that "moral force" which utterly broke down on the first occasion of its being called into play. In spite of the cant of many schools, it is on brute force, as the writer of the afore-named letter has aptly shown—on brute force wielded generously by brave men—that our hold of an alien empire must inevitably depend.

There are many other points of this subject to which we can hardly allude in one article. If the local European force is to be done away, the term of Indian service for her Majesty's regiments should be shortened, if possible, to about six years. Let the men once acquire Indian habits, and they become unfit for life at home. The Cape, Mauritius, Australasia, Singapore, offer eligible halting-places on the road to or from the stations nearer England; and the cost of transport at the shorter intervals would be more than saved by the consequent saving of human life. No reduction should be made in the pay of troops serving in India, if we would tempt a gentlemanly class of officers to encounter the drawbacks of a dangerous climate and a lengthened absence from the enjoyments of a more civilised land. With regard to promotions under the future system, much might be said if we had time. We agree with Captain Osborn, that "seniority, in a climate like that of India, is a bad system;" but how far it may be improved by a system of purchase, is another question. At any rate, above the rank of captain promotion should be made by election of some sort, fenced round with certain checks sufficient to save it from sinking into mere favouritism.

CORRESPONDENCE.

VALUE OF INDIAN SECURITIES.

TO THE EDITOR OF ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

DEAR SIR,—Can any of your correspondents explain the present anomalies in the prices of Indian securities?—which are all the more extraordinary when we consider the high price that the latest Indian loan commands in the English market. For instance, this last 5 per Cent. Loan is now quoted at 104 (I give round numbers). "The Enfaced" 5 per Cents. are at 97 in London, while the same stock in Bombay or Calcutta is at 89. "The Enfaced" 5½ per Cents. bring in London 104. Precisely the same securities are worth at any of the presidencies only 95, while 4 per Cent. Enfaced Paper was the other day in India at 75, and there was hardly any demand for it. It is impossible that the general course of exchange, unaided by other influences, can have established such unaccountable differences in the Indian funds, as the revenues of India are in each case the sole security, and the loans of the earliest date would seem to have a natural priority, abstract value apart.

PAPER CURRENCY FOR INDIA.

TO THE EDITOR OF ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

SIR,—I am glad to see you advocating a Government Paper Currency in India, for assuredly it is the very thing she wants to stimulate industry, increase production a thousandfold, and raise her to the very pinnacle of prosperity. It is also the wanting link in the chain, which, when thus perfected, will bind her to us for ever. I observe in the money article of the Times on Tuesday last a paragraph stating that the advices by the current mail announce the arrival of Mr. James Wilson in Calcutta, and assert the fact that he is favourable to a Government note circulation, on the principle recommended by Sir C. Trevelyan. This is highly satisfactory, and we can only hope the announcement is correct. It is added, however, "that the introduction of the system proposed would affect the privileges of the local chartered banks of Bombay, Calcutta, and Madras; and as the notes would regulate all the interior exchanges, some opposition was expected from the interests that would thus be interfered with." Now, what are the "privileges" here alluded to? Why have such been granted to these banks, and on what grounds can they be justified or maintained in opposition to a measure pregnant with the greatest possible benefit both to the Government and to the whole community at large? If they possess privileges they are privileges which benefit the shareholders of these banks only, and from which the public profit nothing. In a great financial operation like the one under consideration, having for its object the general good, such narrow privileges must not be thought of for a moment. A national bank should be organised under the management of able commissioners appointed from this country and responsible to the home Government. This bank should be the sole bank of issue, and all other banks should obtain notes as required on a deposit of Government paper or bullion, a charge of 4 per cent. per annum being made for the use of the notes. Thus a considerable revenue to the Government would be obtained at little or no cost for collection. The profits arising from the mere loss of notes alone by fires, wrecks, robberies, and in various other ways, would more than pay the whole expense of such an institution. The "local chartered banks," alluded to in the Times, stand at present in a very anomalous position. Under the old regime, the East India Company held a large number of shares in each of the joint-stock banks at Calcutta, Bombay, and Madras, and in consequence they enjoyed many privileges and advantages good for the pockets of the proprietary, but proportionately detrimental to the interests of the commercial community. By the by, I should be glad to know who now own the shares in the Banks of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, formerly held by the East India Company as their property? Are they held by the Crown, to whom all other possessions of the Company have merged? If so, it is something quite new for the Government of this country to hold shares in any joint-stock company. In the case of the East India Company it was altogether different. As a joint stock company itself, it was not unnatural that it should hold shares in the joint-stock banks in India; though when it ceased its commercial functions, and merged into the ruler of a great kingdom, all connection as a partner with these banks ought to have ceased. But with regard to the Imperial Government, there must be no such connection. What would be thought in this country were the Government to become partners in the Bank of England and some others of our large joint-stock banks? The banks at the three presidencies are spoken of as the "local chartered banks," but it should be remembered that the charters alluded to are legally null and void, as having been granted by the government of the East India Company which no longer exists.—I am, sir, your obedient servant, J. H. M. D.

12th January, 1860.

[Our correspondent forgets that the Crown in taking into its own hands the government of India, also took upon itself all the obligations of the Company. The charters granted by the Company are perfectly valid.—Ed. A. I. M.]

MEMORIAL TO LORD CLIVE.

On Thursday, the 19th instant, a statue to the memory of the first Lord Clive, Baron Plassey, the founder of the Indian empire, was inaugurated at Shrewsbury. In the year 1856, it was suggested that as Lord Clive was a native of Shropshire, a memorial to his memory be erected in the county town. This was received with considerable favour, and on the 23rd June, 1857, the anniversary of the battle of Plassey, a public meeting was held at Willis's-rooms, London, under the presidency of Viscount Hill, Lord-lieutenant of Salop, for the purpose of promoting the memorial. Earl Stanhope, Sir Lawrence Peel, Sir J. W. Hogg, Lord Dungannon, Mr. Robertson Campbell, and others spoke in favour of a national memorial, and it was resolved that a statue of Clive be erected in Shrewsbury. The work was entrusted to Baron Marochetti, who has produced an admirable work of art, in bronze. The statue is about ten feet high, and is placed in the market square, on a pedestal of Portland grey granite. The only inscription is the name "Clive." Judging from authentic portraits, the likeness is well preserved. The event was celebrated with great demonstrations. At one o'clock there was a procession from the Guildhall to the statue, the Mayor (Mr. Burr) being accompanied by Earl Stanhope, Sir C. Wood, Secretary of State for India, Viscount Hill, Lord Hatherton, Mr. Slaney, M.P., Mr. Whitmore, M.P., Colonel Herbert Edwardes, and others of the leading county gentry. Earl Stanhope, on the part of the subscribers, presented the statue to the corporation of Shrewsbury in an eloquent speech, in the course of which he eulogised the merits of Clive as a warrior and as a statesman, and spoke of the eloquent essay by Macaulay as doing but justice to Clive, neither hiding his faults nor too highly extolling his virtues. The Mayor briefly accepted the gift on the part of the corporation, and expressed the pride which he and other Shropshire men felt in the glorious deeds of Clive. The party afterwards proceeded to partake of a déjeuner at the Lion Hotel, liberally provided at the expense of the Mayor, who presided. There were present a very large party of nobility, ladies, and gentlemen. The same afternoon a public dinner in commemoration of the event was held at the Raven Hotel, under the presidency of Mr. H. Robertson.

BOOKS.

My Diary in India, in the Year 1858-9. By Wm. H. Russell, LL.D. With Illustrations. In two vols. Routledge and Co.

The second volume of this amusing work is decidedly inferior to its predecessor in every respect. Whatever interest it possesses is almost entirely of a personal nature, nor is there any evidence of Mr. Russell's great descriptive powers, except, perhaps, in the account of his narrow escape from the sowars near Bareilly. His sporting adventures in the Hills are tame and pointless, while the record of Lord Clyde's last campaign might have been written by the most commonplace chronicler of passing events. It must be admitted, however, that he avoids the error usually committed by travellers in giving would-be recon-dite histories of the temples and towers visited in the course of their wanderings. This is perhaps fortunate, as in the only instance in which he departs from the wholesome rule of confining himself to what actually falls within his own knowledge, he has contrived to make a mistake. The Kootub Minar, he says, was erected to the memory of a saint, for which piece of information he was certainly not indebted to the journals of the Archaeological Society of Delhi.

On the subject of the Indian press Mr. Russell expresses himself with a bitterness bordering on scurrility. It was, no doubt, very provoking to find that those who were most competent to judge of the intrinsic merits of his letters to the Times should have been unanimous in exposing his blunders and in ridiculing the unjust and hasty conclusions he expressed with such Hibernian assurance. But surely he was the last person in the world who should have ventured to complain of the licence of the press, nor had he any right to be surprised that the severity of criticism he had exercised towards others should be applied to himself. Like most converts, Mr. Russell rushed to the opposite extreme, and exchanged excessive censure for indiscriminate laudation. Very likely he was perfectly sincere in doing so, but his knowledge of mankind might at least have taught him that he could scarcely expect the most charitable construction would be put upon such a total revulsion of sentiments and conduct. But there is one passage

In this second volume which we have read and read again with unmitigated astonishment. Sir Robert Garrett and Major Dallas had called to see him and Captain Alison when passing through Umballah on their way to Simla, and the conversation naturally turned upon old Crimean times and the people they had met before Sebastopol. "What changes," exclaims Mr. Russell, "have come over them by land and by sea! But more than changes from life to death have been those of opinion. How the great army of grumblers in the Crimea has become the body-guard and champion of 'the Departments.' How the camp conspirators have become the club sycophants! But these are notorious and not numerous cases. They are only remarkable for their extreme violence and the intemperate zeal of their new faith." Is this an enemy's interpolation, or merely an instance of the absence of the power of seeing one's self as others see one?

INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE.—Notice has been issued that there will be eighty vacancies to be filled up in the Indian Civil Service in July next, by public competition. Copies of the regulations for examination, &c., are procurable from the Secretary to the Civil Service Commission, Dean's-yard, Westminster.

By Order of the Secretary of State for India in Council.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That a number (to be hereafter determined) of JUNIOR APPOINTMENTS in the Engineer Establishment, and of Junior Appointments in the Upper Subordinate Establishment of the Department of Public Works in India, will next year be open to PUBLIC COMPETITION.

Candidates for Appointment to the Engineer Establishment must be not more than Twenty-three years of age; and must have passed either not less than three years as Articled Pupils of a Civil or Mechanical Engineer, or not less than two years as Students in an Engineering School or College approved by the Secretary of State in Council, and, in addition, not less than one year in practice under a Civil or Mechanical Engineer.

On these points they must be provided with satisfactory certificates, and must also produce testimonials of good moral character and conduct from the Engineer or Professor under whom they have served or by whom they have been instructed, as well as certificates from the Examining Physician to the India Office of their being in a fit state of health for service in India. On applying with these documents at the Department of Public Works in this Office, in the course of the month of May of next year (during which month only will applications be received), the names of the Candidates will be registered, and they will be authorised to present themselves for examination, on an appointed day, at the Royal Indian Military College, at Addiscombe.

The Subjects of Examination, and the maximum number of marks to be awarded for proficiency in each, will be the following:—

Writing English correctly and legibly from dictation to be indispensable.

Algebra: Elementary Principles; Simple and Quadratic Equations; Surds; Ratios and Proportion; Arithmetical and Geometrical Progression	80
Euclid: 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 6th, and first 21 Propositions of the 11th Book	80
Statics: Composition and Resolution of Forces, the Centre of Gravity, the Mechanical Powers; Roofs, Arches, and Bridges; Strength of Materials	260
Dynamics: Collision of Bodies; Uniformly Accelerated Motion; Circular Motion and Centrifugal Force	120
Hydrostatics and Hydraulics; Pressure of Fluids; Specific Gravity, and Equilibrium of Floating Bodies; Elastic Fluids and Atmospheric Pressure; Hydrostatic Machines	140
Making Working Drawings of Machinery, and Plans, Elevations, and Sections of Buildings	80
Framing of Estimates and Specifications from given plans and data	140
Projects for Bridges, Locks, Dams, Roads, and other Engineering works	130
Trigonometrical Surveying, comprising Plane Trigonometry, and traversing with the Theodolite	60
Land-Surveying with Compass and Chain, and Plotting from a Field-Book	60
Levelling, and Use of the Instruments employed	1,000

No Candidate will be passed who shall not obtain 600 marks, of which at least 140 must be awarded for Mathematics; but the Candidates who may obtain the prescribed number of marks will be ranked by the Examiners in the order of the numbers they may severally obtain, and as many of them as may be required at the time for the public service will be appointed "Probationers of the First Class," the appointments being given to those who stand highest in the Examiner's list.

Each Probationer must, within a month of his nomination, sign a covenant, describing the terms and conditions of his appointment, and must embark for India when required to do so by the Secretary of State in Council, who will provide for the expenses of his passage. Any Nominee not embarking when required, will forfeit his appointment. He will be allowed pay, at the rate of 170 rupees (which is about the equivalent of £17 in English money) a month, from the date of his embarkation.

On arriving in India, he will be placed in a Civil Engineering College, or in such other educational institution as the Local Government may appoint, in order to acquire a colloquial knowledge of one of the Native Languages, and to receive further instruction in his profession. While thus studying, he will be allowed free quarters, in addition to his monthly pay.

When pronounced sufficiently qualified by the President of the College or Institution, he will be transferred to the effective establishment of the Public Works Department, with the rank to which his attainments may entitle him, and with all the rights and privileges appertaining to that rank in respect of pay, promotion, furlough, retiring pension, &c.; particulars of which will be furnished from this Office on application.

Candidates for Appointment to the Upper Subordinate Establishment must produce certificates of having passed not less than three years under Civil or Mechanical Engineers, or in some trade connected with Engineering, together with certificates of being not more than twenty-three years of age, and of moral character and conduct, and of constitutional fitness for service in India, corresponding with those required from Candidates for the Engineer Establishment. On applying with these documents at the Department of Public Works in this House, during the month of May of next year, their names will be registered, and they will be authorised to appear, on an appointed day, before the Board of Examiners.

The Subjects of Examination, and the maximum number of marks assigned to each, will be the following:—

Writing English correctly and legibly from dictation	25
Arithmetic	50
Mensuration of Planes and Solids	90
Framing of Estimates, on given data, from Plans and Sections of Buildings of simple form	80
Drawing Plans, and Elevations of Buildings of simple construction, and Diagrams of ordinary Mechanical Appliances	90
Levelling with the Y level	75
Land-Surveying with Compass and Chain, and Plotting	90

No Candidate will be passed who shall not obtain 500 marks; but those who may obtain that number will be ranked by the Examiners in the order of their proficiency; and of these, as many as may be required for the service will be appointed "Probationers of the Second Class," the appointments being given to those who stand highest on the Examiners' list.

Probationers of this class, likewise, must execute covenants within a month of their nomination, and embark for India, when required to do so by the Secretary of State in Council, who will provide for the expense of their passage; and in default of embarking when required, will forfeit their appointments. They will be granted pay at the rate of 86 rupees (which is about the equivalent of £8 10s. in English money) a month, from the date of their embarkation. On arriving in India, they will be placed in a Civil Engineering College, or other educational institution, in order to receive further instruction, and will be allowed free quarters while remaining at College. When reported qualified for active employment, they will be posted to the effective establishment, with the rank to which their attainments may entitle them, and with all the rights and privileges appertaining to that rank, particulars of which will be furnished from this Office on application.

London: Wm. H. ALLEN and Co., 7, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

TO INDIAN PARENTS.—A MARRIED

LADY having two little girls is desirous of immediately receiving and undertaking the ENTIRE CARE and EDUCATION of a select few of INDIAN CHILDREN. The family is a private one, and the comforts of their own home may be insured. The situation is very healthy. The highest references can be given and will be required. Terms 100 guineas per year.

Address Beta, care of Messrs. Goy and Co., 36, Leadenhall-street, London, E.C.

THE HOME SCHOOL, DOVER.—

The Rev. MARTIN REED, assisted by well-qualified Masters, receives Twenty-five Pupils. His Pupils are prepared for Professional or Commercial Engagements, and the University Examinations. French is regularly spoken, under the superintendence of a resident Parisian of great ability. The situation is admirable.

Prospectuses on application.

HINDOOSTANI AND PERSIAN.

LESSONS in the above LANGUAGES are given by an INDIAN GENTLEMAN of Eighteen Years' Experience as Professor, Interpreter, and Translator; who has obtained Certificates of degrees of honour and high proficiency from the Examiners of the College of Fort William. He possesses the most satisfactory testimonials, and can give unexceptionable references.

Address, "ALLY," care of Messrs. ALLEN and Co.,
7, Leadenhall-street, London, E.C.
Established 1820.

MILITARY and NAVAL EDUCATION.—

A CAMBRIDGE GRADUATE, resident at Brighton, RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS, between the ages of Twelve and Fifteen, who may be destined for the Military and Naval Professions. With a view to this ultimate object, the entire course of Study, from the outset, is regulated expressly in conformity with the requirements of the Examinations at Addiscombe, Sandhurst, Woolwich, and Portsmouth; and every care is taken to direct special attention to those subjects likely to prove professionally useful in the future career of the Naval or Military officer. The Pupils are examined periodically in Mathematics by Professor J. R. YOUNG, formerly of Belfast College, and Author of "A Course of Mathematics, Pure and Mixed, for the Use of Candidates for the Military and Civil Service Examinations," &c.; and also in Classics and Modern Languages by Scholars of repute. Prospectuses may be had of Messrs. ALLEN and Co., 7, Leadenhall-street, London.

ADDISCOMBE DIRECT APPOINTMENTS, and WOOLWICH.

The Rev. C. J. HUGHES, M.A., who has Prepared nearly TWO HUNDRED PUPILS for the above, occasionally has VACANCIES.

CLAPHAM COMMON.

UNFURNISHED HOUSES at CLAPHAM-COMMON.

Mr. McLACHLAN, of 35, St. James's-street and Clapham-common, is instructed to LET THREE HOUSES in the GROVE, adjoining that beautiful spot, Clapham-common. They consist of dining, breakfast, and double drawing-rooms, and five bed-rooms, with the usual domestic offices, coach-house, stable, &c. The houses have just been put into thorough substantial and ornamental repair, and are fit for immediate occupation. The locality is highly respectable; and as the rents are moderate, and several Indian families reside in the neighbourhood, Mr. McLachlan begs to recommend the houses to the attention of families recently arrived from India. The drainage is warranted. Omnibuses to West-end and City pass constantly. One mile to the Balham Station, for Fimlico, Crystal Palace, Brighton, &c.

Published on the 3rd, 10th, 18th, and 26th of every Month, Price Sixpence.

THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS.

FOR INDIA AND THE COLONIES.
A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF BRITISH AND FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

This Newspaper presents a comprehensive and perfect view of British and Foreign affairs, with special reference to those subjects in any way interesting to residents in India, or those at home having connections there. The Intelligence is brought down to the latest possible moment prior to the departure of the Mail. The various departments are so arranged, and the intelligence analysed, as to form a weekly register of permanent interest and value, which subscribers will be glad to preserve.

The weekly issue of "THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS" renders it as eligible a newspaper for Anglo-Indians resident at home as abroad.

Families should send it to their friends abroad.

SUBSCRIPTION, INCLUDING POSTAGE.

RUPTURES.—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.
WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS
is allowed, by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen, to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of HERNIA. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body, two inches below the hips, being sent to the Manufacturer.

Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON.
A Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d. Postage, 1s.

Post-office Orders to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE-CAPS, &c., for VARICOSE VEINS, and all cases of WEAKNESS and SWELLING of the LEGS, SPRAINS, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 7s. 6d. to 16s. each Postage, 6d.
JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228, Piccadilly, London.

NEWBURY'S COD LIVER OIL CAKES.
"We have examined a specimen of gingerbread made by Messrs. Newbery—each cake containing a teaspoonful of Cod Liver Oil. The gingerbread is extremely light and pleasant, the flavour of the oil being completely covered. This seems likely to prove a very useful mode of administering Cod Liver Oil to children, and to others who are nauseated by the offensive odour and flavour of the Oil as generally taken."
—Medical Times, 12th Feb., 1859. Eight Cakes, 1s. 9d.; Sixteen (about 1lb.), 3s.—F. NEWBURY and SONS, 45, St. Paul's-churchyard. Established A.D. 1746.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—These purifying Pills have for the last quarter of a century been in extensive demand throughout our Indian empire, and since their discovery they have been largely patronised by all classes of society, and are, by those most capable of judging, pronounced to be better adapted for liver complaints than any other medicine. In acute, remittent and continued fever, this priceless preparation checks the current of the disease, throws out the poison from the system, corrects the humours produced by malaria, rouses the nervous system, stimulates the kidneys, gives a healthy action to the skin, and restores the balance of the circulation, which is the foundation of health, and the guarantee for the full performance of every vital function.

THE MAGNESIAN EFFERVESCENT is the most agreeable and effective remedy in all cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Acidity, Heartburn, Indigestion, and Biliary Affection, Nausea, Fever, Thirst, and Sea-sickness. It is highly recommended by the profession, and will be found especially valuable to those going to India or travelling in warm climates; as a mild and efficacious saline aperient it stands unequalled, and will be found peculiarly adapted for delicate females and children. To be obtained through all respectable chemists, and wholesale from Messrs. BACSLAY, Farringdon-street (put up in stoppered bottles at 4s. 6d. for India), and smaller size at 1s. 1d. and 2s. 9d.

LENTUM, A NEW COMPOSITION for Artificial TEETH and GUMS, recommended to Invalids and all who suffer from Indigestion. Its flexibility and lightness give the greatest power in mastication, avoiding all pain or pressure on the gums, without springs, wires, or any unsightly gold. It supports all loose and tender teeth, and does not require the extraction of stumps. Prepared only by
MR. ALFRED JONES, SURGEON-DENTIST to Her late Royal Highness the Duchess of Gloucester, Her late R.H. the Princess Augusta, the late Louis Philippe, and the ex-Royal Family of France.
64, GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.
At Home from Eleven till Five.

TO SUFFERERS with CORNS and BUNIONS.—Ask for a Box of YOUNG'S CORN and BUNION PLASTERS, which will eradicate corns or bunions in a very short time. Be careful that you have YOUNG'S—the name is printed on the label; all others are imitations. Price 6d. and 1s. per box, or by post for thirteen postage stamps. Address LL. YOUNG, 31, Shaftesbury-place, Aldersgate-street, E.C. May be had at most chemists throughout the world. Agents wanted abroad. N.B.—A Liberal Allowance to Wholesale Dealers.

THE NEW MORNING DRAUGHT.
HOOPER'S SELTZER POWDERS make a most agreeable, effervescent, tasteless Aperient Morning Draught, and are acknowledged by every one who try them to be infinitely superior in every respect to any Seltitz Powders, effervescent more briskly, are quite tasteless, are painless in operation, and effective in result. Mixed as suggested in the directions, even children take them with a relish. Sold by HOOPER, Chemist, London-bridge, in boxes (and in bottles for exportation), 2s. 6d. each.

GENTLEMEN, if you want a Treat, try EAMES'S PATENT TROUSERS, a perfect and elegant fit, falling gracefully over the instep, with or without straps, giving that freedom and comfort so necessary in walking or riding. If you try them once, you will soon change your tailor. The texture and pattern are the best the market can produce. The price, 17s. 6d. to 25s. What a luxury to have perfection in a Coat—to fit easy, and without a crease! Try EAMES'S, Practical Tailor, 10, VERNON-PLACE, Bloomsbury-square, W.C. You will be pleased with the fit, style, and price.

BY J. R. YOUNG,

(Late Professor of Mathematics, Belfast College),

A COURSE OF MATHEMATICS,
PURE AND MIXED.

WITH A VARIETY OF PROBLEMS IN, AND PRACTICAL

APPLICATIONS OF THE FOLLOWING SUBJECTS:

1. ALGEBRA, TRIGONOMETRY, AND MENSURATION.
2. ANALYTICAL GEOMETRY (CONIC SECTIONS), STATICS, DYNAMICS, AND HYDROSTATICS.
3. THE DIFFERENTIAL AND INTEGRAL CALCULUS, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c., &c.

The object of this work is to furnish Candidates for the Military and Civil Service Examinations with such a practical knowledge of Pure and Mixed Mathematics as may prove most serviceable to them in the course of the ordeal to which they are about to be subjected. On such occasions a mere theoretical acquaintance with principles is by no means sufficient. It is also necessary that the young aspirant should have been trained by actual experiments, as it were, to the application of the abstract rules, the enunciation of which he has otherwise mastered only by an effort of memory. To assist him in thus gathering the fruits of his intellectual industry, Mr. J. R. Young has devised a multitude of problems, of greater or less difficulty, in Algebra, Trigonometry, Mensuration, Analytical Geometry (Conic Sections), Statics, Dynamics, Hydrostatics, the Differential and Integral Calculus, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c. The chief peculiarity of this work, however, is one that will recommend it to a very large class of students. The most difficult questions are rendered comparatively easy, by the practical simplifications that are introduced in their mode of solution. Instead of a pompous and puzzling display of technical phraseology, the utmost care has been taken to explain the most knotty points in a plain, unaffected manner, intelligible to every ordinary capacity. In this respect, Mr. Young's "Course of Mathematics" will be found to possess a decided superiority over all preceding works on the same subject.

DEPARTMENT OF MEDICAL STATISTICS.—William Farr, Esq., M.D., D.C.L., F.R.S.

At the EIGHTEENTH ANNUAL MEETING, held on the 24th November, 1859, it was shown that on the 30th June last,—

The Number of Policies in force was ..... 6,110
The Amount Insured was ..... £2,601,925. 10s. 8d.
The Annual Income was ..... £121,263. 7s. 7d.
The new business transacted during the last five years amounts to £2,482,798. 16s. 11d., showing an average yearly amount of new business of nearly

HALF-A-MILLION STERLING.

The Society has paid for claims by death, since its establishment in 1841, no less a sum than £503,619.

Assurances are effected at home or abroad on healthy lives at as moderate rates as the most recent data will allow.

ARMY AND NAVY.—No extra premium is required on healthy lives in the Army or Navy unless in actual service.

VOLUNTEERS.—No extra charge for persons serving in any Volunteer or Rifle Corps within the United Kingdom.

RESIDENCE ABROAD.—The Policies issued by this Society give greater facilities to parties going to or residing in Foreign Climates than those of most other companies.

MASTER MARINERS are assured for life or for a voyage at equitable rates.

INDIA.—Officers in the Army and civilians proceeding to India may insure their lives on the most favourable terms, and every possible facility is afforded for the transaction of business in India.

Premiums for India have been computed on the actual results of European life in that colony, extending over the whole period of the East India Company's experience, and will be found generally lower than those of other companies, and especially favourable for military men.

Civil rates charged on lives of military officers holding civil appointments for the term of such appointments.

Immediate reduction to English rates on the assured returning to Europe permanently to reside.

Policies may be made payable either in London or in India, at the rate of Two Shillings sterling per Company's Rupee.

INVALID LIVES assured on scientifically constructed tables based on extensive data, and a reduction in the premium is made when the causes for an increased rate of premium have ceased.

STAMP DUTY.—Policies issued free of every charge but the premiums.

DAYS OF GRACE.—In the event of death during the days of grace, the risk binding on the Society if premium paid before the days of grace expire.

Every information may be obtained at the chief office, or on application to any of the Society's agents.

The Proprietors beg most respectfully to call the attention of the Trade, Noblemen, Clergy, and the Public to their extensive stock of CHOICE WINES of rare vintages.

B. and Co. are not disposed to comment upon the purity of their Wines, which is daily most laudably acknowledged by the public and eminent medical men of all countries, as the increasing patronage of the highest families in the land is a sufficient guarantee.

They beg to call attention in particular to their Pure Tonic Wines as being so valuable to invalids and persons of weak stomachs.

A sample case, containing full-sized sample cases, will be forwarded to any address on receipt of 6s. 6d., or a dozen for 24s.

It is a well-known fact that impure and adulterated Wines are the greatest foes to health, producing acidity in the stomach, and debilitating the digestive organs, while pure Wines will accelerate the digestive powers, invigorating, strengthening, and bracing the nervous system.

Their Tonic Wine is admitted to be most essential to invalids, both old and young, and should never be absent from the homes of the weak and sickly. Its properties are duly acknowledged by the leading men of the Faculty both at home and abroad.

To prevent imposition each bottle is sealed with the name of the firm.

All orders to be made payable to HENRY BURROWS.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

It can scarcely be said that the Calcutta Mail of the 22nd December brings any news what ever from our Indian possessions. The Governor-general at the latest date was continuing his progress, and expected to be joined by Mr. Wilson at Meerut on the 21st. That right honourable gentleman appears to have made a very favourable impression on the unofficial portion of the Calcutta community, who were charmed with his courtesy while they respected his reticence.

A tax on Trades and Professions Licences has been successfully introduced into the Punjab in the shape of an octroi duty. A police rate was previously levied by this means, which is described as the least unpopular form of taxation. Already, the very considerable sum of £300,000 has been thus collected, and it is calculated that in 1862 this tax will yield half a million sterling.

A petition had been presented to the Calcutta Council, from a numerous body of native inhabitants of Bombay, against the Bill for Licensing Trades and Professions. A Parsee gentleman of that presidency, Mr. Pestonjee Byramjee Dantra, has suggested a scheme for raising a revenue of two million and a half sterling per annum, by levying a sliding scale tax upon the festal ceremonies attending births and marriages. It is said that such a measure would be less objectionable to the natives than almost any other tax, but it is doubtful how far it would answer in practice.

The Lieutenant-governors of the Punjab, the North-west Provinces, and Bengal, were all on circuit through their respective districts. Mr. Grant is especially commended for the improvements he has introduced into every department of his Government, and for the judicious energy he has displayed in carrying out well-matured reforms.

In the Madras Presidency Sir Charles Trevelyan as yet shows no symptoms of weariness. One of his Excellency's last measures has been to invite the Madras public to form a municipality, somewhat on the elective principle. It is by municipal action that Sir Charles considers a project for supplying Madras with fresh water may best be carried out, and also some mode adopted for improving the sewage.

It has been likewise proposed to unite the navigation north of Madras, "extending from the River Coom to a place beyond the Pulicat Lake, with the navigation south of Madras extending from the River Adyar to Sadras." To effect this purpose it is only necessary to construct a canal less than four miles in length, and the result would be to supply the Presidency town with water communication of one hundred miles in length. As the cost, however, would be comparatively great, owing to the value of the property to be intersected, the sanction of the Secretary of State for India must first be obtained.

It is satisfactory to learn that the Inam Commission has thus far worked exceedingly well. According to the Commissioner's report 14,347 cases had been decided up to the 3rd of December; and it is stated that the proportion of persons who have declined the commutation is under two per cent. Up to the last day of November 6,730 title-deeds had been issued to Inamdars.

The news from China is destitute of general interest. Some little dissatisfaction appears to exist among the Cantonese at the prolonged occupation of their city by the allied troops, a feeling not altogether unnatural. It is also stated that the allied troops themselves are not on the best possible terms with each other, the French displaying their characteristic selfishness and arrogance. Admirals Hope and Jones were both at Canton, the former having completely recovered from his wounds. According to the Calcutta papers nine European regiments are to be sent from that Presidency to China, besides two from Madras and two from Bombay. A force of 3,000 Sikhs will accompany the expedition.

Under the head of Parliamentary Intelligence it will be seen that the distribution of the Lucknow prize money is not likely to be much longer postponed, but that a further delay may be expected with regard to the Delhi fund.

The question of a paper currency for India, though favourably viewed by the Secretary of State, does not appear to be any nearer to a solution. Mr. Wilson, perhaps, may be able to devise some better scheme than has yet been suggested.

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

BENGAL.

COLONEL THOMPSON, C.B.

The same order in the Government Gazette which awarded praise to Dr. Forsyth and to Colonel Ramsay made mention also of Colonel Manson. We knew nothing of such an officer belonging to Bengal, and supposed, therefore, that he had gained his spurs in one of the sister Presidencies. The Gazette of last Wednesday, however, puts us right on that point. We were therein told that Manson was a misprint for Thompson, and that the thanks of the Home Government were intended for the present Commissary-General. We will venture to assert that there is not an officer of the army who more deserved those thanks than does that gallant colonel. Although in the reorganisation of the department in 1852-53, he held an inferior and subordinate position to Colonel Ramsay, yet he was one of the three officers on whose advice and assistance the reorganiser leant most strongly. He, too, was one of the deputies who enforced the new system, and whose mingled firmness and courtesy in so doing won for him the regard and esteem of every subordinate. But it was not on this account that he was noticed by Government, or that we would thus publicly call attention to his deserts. It is because in a moment of profound peace, with a peace establishment and a peace expenditure, the sudden outbreak of the revolt threw upon Colonel Thompson the entire responsibility of feeding and providing carriage for the troops, and of sending a war establishment into the field; because, far from shrinking from that responsibility, he encountered it with a manly determination sufficient of itself to ensure success; because, assisted only by young officers in the department or by inexperienced officers out of the department, he gave an example to all of the results which one man is capable of bringing about; because, in a word, he bravely devoted every faculty to one great end, and, notwithstanding unheard-of difficulties, succeeded in accomplishing that end. We rejoice, and India will rejoice, that he has met with the special thanks of the Crown. There was not a man in that camp before Delhi upon whose shoulders greater responsibility rested than upon those of Colonel Thompson. Let us think for a moment of what he had to do. Delhi was in the hands of the insurgents; the district around was surging with rebellion, there was no communication with the southern or eastern parts of India, and those in the camp looked with failing confidence to the north. Our army, however, was in the field. Not only was it to be fed, provided with malt liquor, with spirits, and with necessities, but carriage was to be ever ready, hospital necessities, port-wine, stores, and grain of every description, had to be dealt out daily without stint. Besides this, too, there was the food for the horses of the cavalry, for the public cattle, and for the vast host of camp followers to be provided. And the labour of doing this, of thinking in advance of all possible eventualities, of being always beforehand for the morrow, fell upon one man. Those who were in camp with him have informed us how well he fulfilled every duty and satisfied every needful requirement. To do this there was something more required than a lofty sense of duty. It was necessary, in fact, to do that which seemed impossible; and, we believe, that the end was accomplished by a mixture of firmness and courtesy, of the suaviter in modo with the fortiter in re which is so characteristic of the present Commissary-General.

We earnestly hope that the English Government will not consider that it has performed its duty by according a barren expression of thanks to this officer and to those we named in a former paper—Col. Ramsay and Dr. Forsyth. These three officers, in their respective departments, have evinced the highest qualities possible to their situations, and, by the excellence of their arrangements, have put to shame the English system as developed in the Crimean war. They have done more for their country than their country could reasonably have expected from them; for not one of their operations failed. Nor even from those who are always critical when the supply of the stomach is concerned have we heard any reasonable complaint; surely, then, when honours are talked of for some who did little, for others who did nothing, and for a third class who would have done good if they had done nothing, surely we may look for something for those who, in the two most vital departments of military arrangements, succeeded far beyond all expectation. These are the men who, if anything goes wrong, are invariably looked upon by the public as fair game to run down. Surely, then, when they have succeeded, when they have aided as much as the most highly honoured amongst us in extricating this country from its fallen condition, they have a right to look for some permanent and substantial reward.—Englishman.

THE LICENCE TAX IN THE PUNJAB.

The Punjabees are tired of chatter about the income tax, and have acted without waiting for laws. The moment the Licence Bill appeared, the commissioners began explaining its provisions, and the people instantly indicated after their way the points in which the impost would be unendurable. As was but natural, the earliest symptom of the popular agitation was felt at Umrutur, the commercial capital of the province. The deputy commissioner had been sedulous in preparing the minds and tempers of its inhabitants for the infliction of the tax, concerning which rumours reached their ears from all quarters. They looked upon it as inevitable: the tax itself they could endure, nor is it too much to say that they were brought to a recognition of its justice. But what they could not endure was the mode proposed for its assessment. No collector could rely on the mere statement of a native as to what he might be worth: he must have evidence of its truth. But the publicity attending such an inquisition was odious to all, and might be ruinous to many. Nothing is more dreaded by a Punjabee merchant than the publication of his real status to the world. There are numerous houses tottering to their fall, yet so effectually propped up by relatives and correspondents that no suspicion is entertained of their real condition, and it is a literal truth that a bankruptcy is a thing unheard of amongst them. The work entailed on the assessor would be enormous, and the result in many cases hardly more satisfactory than the most dubious decision ever given in a civil court. A very long vista of appeals was in view. And though there was never any fear of any violent outbreak, yet there was cause to fear and even to expect that passive resistance which would show itself in the general suspension of all business, whenever the account books of any influential firm might be demanded. The citizens would have sat in "Dhurna" upon the Government until they were relieved of interference so obnoxious to them.

A duty had long been levied on all imports into the city to meet the expenses of watch and ward. Originally a mere chowkedaree fund, it had gradually developed into a rich and productive octroi. The attention and ability with which it had been managed may be judged from the fact that it had been increased during the last five years from Rs. 16,000 to Rs. 1,25,000; yet not a murmur of discontent had been heard on the subject. It was now proposed by the Commissioner that the city should, as it were, compound for the tax; that it should submit to an increased rate on all imports (with a few exceptions), and to a few separate taxes on certain transactions within the walls. If they agreed to this compromise, the Government might be induced to abandon their former scheme. To dissentients might be granted the privilege of a separate assessment and licence.

This proposal was warmly welcomed by the inhabitants, who saw in it a means of immediate escape from what they considered to be a worse evil than the most capricious exaction of their old rulers. On inquiry it was found to be no less popular at Lahore. The Local Government, therefore, sanctioned the offer of such a compromise (Oct. 27th), wherever the people should show any inclination towards it. The same sentiment was found obtaining in the other large towns as in the two capitals. A circular, therefore, was at once issued, empowering district officers to arrange the terms on which the tax should be so compounded for. The octroi of Umrutur has accordingly been raised to ensure a minimum of three lakhs, that of Lahore, Peshawur, and Delhi to 2½ lakhs each; other towns are made to contribute in proportion to their size and opulence, but all on the same principle and by the same machinery. Of the sums so collected, one-third (in some cities less) is still to be reserved for municipal purposes—but the remainder flows into the coffers of the State, and a revenue is thus at the present moment in course of actual realisation from the non-agricultural classes, equal to one-third of the entire land revenue of the Presidency.

In fixing the scale of duties, grain, as the indispensable necessary of life, has been either entirely exempted, or subjected only to the cess which it has long borne in any particular city. Other ordinary articles of food are either free, or lightly rated. Again, a heavier percentage has been laid upon the comforts and luxuries which are only within the reach of the wealthy classes than on those which find their chief market amongst the petty retail dealers. It is gratifying to be able to add that neither at Umrutur nor at Delhi have the chief citizens been backward or reluctant in throwing the main part of the burden upon the articles in which either they are the principal dealers, and from which they derive their larger profits, or of which they are the principal consumers. They have throughout been found the willing co-adjutors of the English magistrate. The octroi exempts also European goods, because they have paid 20 per cent. upon the seaboard.

One limitation to the operation of the scheme has been introduced, most important as bearing upon the strongest of the objections that can be urged against it. By the original circular the compromise was permitted in all towns and villages. It has since been ruled that villages should be subjected to the Licence system only: the choice should not be allowed to them. The reason assigned for the charge is that any octroi in the smaller towns will press as heavily upon the agricultural as the non-agricultural class, and even more so. This is no doubt true; and it is also true that there are not the same hindrances to enrolling the shah or bunya of the village under his proper head, as could not but be experienced in discriminating between the complicated classes of a large mercantile city. These two reasons are alone sufficient. But there is a yet stronger justification for this and even for a wider alteration in the original intention, which the working of the scheme must bring into early prominence. On the one hand it is most undesirable—in fact simply suicidal—that the price of any article should be very heavily enhanced by frequent taxation on its route to any distant destination. On the other hand it is hardly less undesirable that the main lines of traffic should be diverted from lesser towns, and at nearest only touch their skirts. A town thus avoided loses all vitality and power of growth, and rapidly becomes as it were the ghost of its former self. The condition of Marlborough, and that of the once thriving towns on their turnpike roads in England, are instances in point. Perhaps it might be wished that the second circular had included in its sweep even such towns as Sealkote and Buttala; in short, that the traders in all, save what might be termed the termini of traffic, the marts of trade in which there is real accumulation of wealth, and in which there prevails large manufacture and purchase of luxuries—had been required to take out their separate licences. The main argument against the octroi principle is that it must either indefinitely enhance the price of many commodities, or emasculate the towns which traffic, when thus hampered, will shun. This argument has but little force against the application of the principle to established cities only, but has great weight if all towns are included in that category. The main arguments against the introduction of the licence system are the difficulty of correct assessment and its unpopularity, objections which appear to be insuperable as regards its introduction into cities like Umritsur and Lahore, but to be comparatively trifling as regards the lesser towns. On all sides, therefore, the distinction is a real one, and it would be politic to act upon it.

But whatever modifications may hereafter be found necessary, there can be no doubt that this measure is a great step in advance. Not only is there a large revenue now accruing to the State, (and assuredly never, save at Delhi in 1857, has his dat qui cito dat been more applicable in India) but the temper of the people as regards taxation has been tried. It has been tried, too, amongst the nation, which, so far from having been cowed, has rather drawn fresh spirit from the matter. And the result of the trial proves that the non-agricultural class will cheerfully bear its burden, provided that it be laid upon them in some form not diametrically and wilfully opposed to their associations, feelings, and habits. The measure cannot be described as "thorough," it is no perfect specimen of political economy. But it may fairly be said that while Government has neither waived its dignity, nor abandoned one tittle of its object, yet the tax has been thrown into the shape which best harmonises with the character of the people on the one hand, and our relations towards them on the other.

The tax is working easily, the licences are nearly all assessed, and the increase to the State revenue is already thirty lakhs. It will be half a million by 1862, a return which indicates that the same system all over India would produce at least five millions sterling, besides feeding the municipalities. The true objection of course is that it taxes goods in transit; but that objection may be pushed too far. Taxes which do not interrupt trade in France may be borne in India.

It is needless to say that this tax, though in one way a licence tax, is in no sense a tax on incomes. Above all, it is not a tax enforcing publicity. Had it been, it would probably have been followed by an instant and simultaneous insurrection of the city populations.—Friend of India.

CLASS DIVISION IN INDIA.

Mr. Wilson remarked to the deputation from the Chamber of Commerce and Indigo Planting Association, that he was very sorry to note the presence here of jealousies between class and class, and pointed out how necessary it was that mutual sympathy should be fostered, and that instead of disunion it was only combined action that could enable us to hold the country. Nothing is more gratifying than to find that Mr. Wilson holds such opinions, and that he fearlessly and openly enunciates them. It was a noble lesson, which if well considered would teach many to be ashamed of their lukewarmness in the cause of the general interest, and which should warn them that the time for cringing to the great men in office had passed away; that a bold and independent bearing would no longer entail the serious displeasure of Government House, or, if it did, they need no longer care a fraction for it. The want of sympathy which Mr. Wilson notices so strongly as existing between classes of Europeans here instead of having given way before the terrible events of 1857 has increased. Our Governor-general in Council soon taught the whole non-official community that he neither wished for their sympathy nor cared for their co-operation. We need not repeat our grievances here, from the refusal to accept the services of volunteers to the gagging of the press. But we have only to look to the course of legislation for a very satisfactory explanation of the disunion and bitter feeling which pervade this society. The proposed laws for the improvement of the courts of the country place the outside English community under hateful courts, whilst the services are carefully exempted from their operation. The taxation which it is deemed necessary to lay on the people is not allowed to touch the exclusive services. The marked separation of classes in a country like this is thus the work of Government itself, and we are compelled to believe that the Government looks on the separation with more than complacency. A sympathetic amalgamation of officials and non-officials with one common interest would bring an influence and power to bear on the action of the Government which could not be resisted. We have seen the greatest encouragement given to the educated native of Calcutta to place himself in opposition to the non-official element. As Mr. Mackinlay said, the officials patted the simple native on the back, and urged him to the battle, no doubt smiling at the confusion they thus caused in the camp of the opposition. An amalgamation of the natives and Europeans is by no means looked on as a satisfactory consummation. The interests of these two classes are identical; the reforms required in the laws, in the police, in the revenue, are for the advantage of both. There is no single interest or improvement on which they are antagonistic; yet by working on the peculiar temperament of the native, by taking advantage of his timidity and natural love for seeking the patronage of the powerful, these two classes are played against each other with effect. The native has been led to believe that the Englishman demands a special privilege, which in some manner derogates from the dignity of the native; he is made to believe that the Englishman's fear of corrupt courts, unknown laws, and ignorant judges, with no bar to protect him, is a demand for a great privilege, which not only debases the native, but enables the non-official Englishman to oppress him. A careful study of the question would show the worthlessness of this argument, but it is not our intention to treat of that at present. We allude to it simply as an example of the action of this Government in causing that disunion Mr. Wilson has found so strange. All place-hunting natives, all expectants of patronage, and all anxious for the countenance of Government House take their cue accordingly, and are weak enough to throw their weight on the wrong side. If they really understood their own interests, they would act in the opposite direction. The services themselves have rather imitated the aristocracy of England, and have created a West-end, a line of demarcation between the interloper and themselves, as clear as that which marks the City man and the Belgravian in London. The explanations lately tendered by members of the services in Council as a defence of their conduct is a curious example of the case we now put. These gentlemen thought that it was sufficient defence to declare that the Council always intended to out down the pay of their servants, as their contribution to the exigencies of the time. They could not understand that the salaries established by Government can only be looked upon as the value they put on the services rendered, not the value, less a fair amount as their quota of taxation. This absurdity never struck them; but the only view they condescended to take was one to prevent the two classes from amalgamating upon a common grievance; and to encourage the feeling of exclusiveness, which, in the weakness of our nature, is a feeling we are too prone to indulge in without counting what it costs us.—Englishman.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SINDIAH, MAHARAJAH OF GWALIOR, says the Phoenix, is, we hear, willing to pay for a contingent of European troops, to be constantly stationed in his dominions, and near his capital. He would like to be able to call such a body of European troops his own, but would engage not to interfere with their management or discipline. The passion of the Maharajah for an army of his own is as great as was ever that of Jeswant Rao Holkar for a large military force. Sindiah, however, is thoroughly loyal, and affected by every word of praise or remonstrance directed to him by the Government of India. It is said that the people of the city of Gwalior have been most agreeably disappointed in the bearing towards them of the European troops stationed for a time in the Fort of Gwalior, and of those subsequently cantoned at Morar. They expected riotous, turbulent, overbearing soldiers, flushed with conquest, and have discovered that British soldiers are, in general, quiet, orderly, well-conducted men.

THE DALHOUSIE INSTITUTE.—At a recent meeting the subscribers to the Dalhousie Testimonial Fund agreed to make over the surplus of Rs. 75,000 to the Calcutta Institute, on condition that the building which the latter proposed to erect should be named the Dalhousie Hall. But the supporters of the Institute found that it would be impossible to raise money for a Hall, while the idea of an Institute would call forth large subscriptions from all classes, and from those who had already contributed to the Dalhousie Fund. To effect a union of the two funds so as to meet the necessity for a vigorous Institute for literary, philosophical and scientific purposes, it was agreed at a final meeting on Saturday last that the testimonial fund should surrender the term Hall, and the literary fund the term Calcutta, and both unite in the name "Dalhousie Institute." The object of the testimonial fund is thus most fully carried out, and for the first time there is a prospect of Calcutta possessing for her residents, and especially her youth, that which is found in every petty provincial town in England. The permanency of the Institute, and the wise appropriation of the funds will be secured by vesting the whole in a body of trustees whose offices are permanent, such as the sheriff. On the part of the Dalhousie fund, Messrs. Grey, G. Brown, and Macleod Wylie, Col. Baird Smith and Baboo P. C. Tagore have been appointed to secure the objects contemplated. The Dalhousie Institute thus starts on the basis of the Dalhousie and Venables funds, amounting to Rs. 88,000. There will be no difficulty in increasing that sum to upwards of two lakhs. In the new building the prominent feature will be a hall containing the statues of the two greatest Indian proconsuls—Lords Wellesley and Dalhousie, and a bust of Mr. Venables. Calcutta architecture has another opportunity to redeem its character. Will it succeed?—Friend of India.

RAJAH RHADAKANT DEB.—The educated part of the native community of Calcutta have united to honour Rajah Rhadakant Deb by subscribing for a portrait of the rajah, to be placed in the hall of the Asiatic Society, or in any other public hall. A sum of Rs. 1,527 has been already raised. Rhadakant Deb's services to Sanscrit scholarship are well known. His lexicon, Subda Kalpa Druma, is considered by his countrymen as invaluable. But with their great wealth, why not raise a hall also, in which the portrait can be hung?

BORAX.—A correspondent of the Delhi Gazette says:—"The Ladakh and Thibet traders, with their flocks laden with borax not disposed of at the Rampore Fair, passed through Simla later than usual, owing to the early fall of snow this season. They will not sell their borax under Rs. 8 a maund, a sum the Simla merchants decline to give. As much as 10,000 maunds of unrefined borax is said to be stored at Jagadhray, the mountain entrepot for the merchants of the plains. Good borax is selling at Kasheepoor, forty miles from Bareilly, at Rs. 5 a maund."

GRANTS OF SOONDERBUNS LAND.—The Lieutenant-governor of Bengal has directed the insertion of the words "properly embanked" before "cleared and rendered fit for cultivation" in the terms of grants of Soonderbuns land. It is evident that in the case of lands exposed to salt water banking out is involved in the requirement of rendering them fit for cultivation. Mr. Grant has resolved to enforce the conditions of clearance and cultivation, except in cases of an extraordinary character. The cultivation of the wastes has been greatly retarded by allowing holders to appropriate more land than they can make use of.

EMIGRATION FROM JUGDESPORE.—The Englishman publishes facts which illustrate a previous statement of our own as to the increase of coolie emigration in 1857-8-9 from Jugdespore, owing to the rebellion. "In 1857 8 9,864 were embarked; of these 2,229 came from Shah bad, 1,658 from Ghazepore, 1,388 from Sherajgunj. In 1858-59 22,068 embarked; of these 5,522 were from Shahabad, 2,721 from Ghazepore, and 3,378 from Gya, the rest from various quarters."

NATIVE CREDULITY.—Two budmashes lately entered into conversation with a native traveller from Jeypore, who was on a visit to his son in Lucknow. They induced him to believe that they had discovered the secret of transmuting silver into gold, by subjecting rupees to a process of incantation. The poor man supplied them with his "little all" of Rs. 40, with which one of the scoundrels quietly decamped. The other formed several small towers of clay, placed one of these, which he said contained the rupees, in the stranger's cloth, and told him to hold it fast until he returned from the grave of a saint much venerated by his class, when he would find the coin changed into gold.

THE PUNJAB SPECIAL FUND for the Relief of Sufferers by the Mutiny was closed on the 31st August last. The total sum which was distributed in the districts north of Delhi was Rs. 5,93,259. Of this the residents in the Punjab contributed Rs. 34,000. A sum of Rs. 2,523 was given to the native Christian colony of Dehra Doon, and Rs. 349 to loyal native sufferers. Of the other recipients, one was a civil servant, 38 military officers and their families, 52 non-commissioned officers, and 130 widows and orphans. In all, 59 men, 165 women, and 42 children received grants. The expenses of management were Rs. 2,195.

CALCUTTA CUSTOM HOUSE.—The Englishman states that the Committee appointed to report on increased accommodation for the Calcutta Custom House, rendered necessary by the new tariff, estimate the cost of the necessary alterations and additions at Rs. 222,950, exclusive of a new building. Temporary iron barracks are now being erected on the site fixed for the new Post office. The present range of opium godowns is to be used, and in their place others erected near the present Revenue Board office. For the time the confusion and delay in the Custom House are excessive.

LALLA NARAIN DASS rendered active assistance to the Government in the endeavour to save the life of Dr. Dopping, a British officer, during the mutiny at Delhi, and the rebels plundered his house in consequence. On account of his loyalty a garden was restored to him by the Extra Assistant Commissioner, and certain Government paper and shares to the value of Rs. 28,000. Before a special committee he sued the Delhi Prize Agents for Rs. 80,000, the amount realised by the sale of property taken by them from his house. Mr. Ritchie, the Advocate-General, recommended payment, and a special committee of officers, appointed by Government, have directed that his claim be complied with.

THIRD BENGAL FUSILIERS.—The Delhi Gazette gives the following as the strength of the 3rd Bengal European Regiment:—1 colonel, 3 captains, 10 subalterns, 1 surgeon, and 179 rank and file. We believe this may be taken as a fair sample of the numbers of the other five. The 3rd are marching to Futehghur, to relieve H.M.'s 8th, which is under orders for Calcutta.

LIGHTHOUSE ON THE ALGUADA REEF.—The Englishman states that Captain Fraser, who was employed at Lord Dalhousie's suggestion three years ago to report on the erection of a lighthouse on the Alguada Reef, off the Arracan coast, has been instructed at last to superintend its erection. The scheme was dropped on the general suspension of public works in 1857. The reef lies in the direct course between Calcutta and Rangoon.

MOFUSSIL MAGISTRATES.—In his closing charge to the Calcutta Grand Jury yesterday, Sir M. Wells animadverted on the carelessness and confusion which characterised the documents in two cases sent up from the Mofussil. In the first, of a European who occasioned the death of a native from rupture of the spleen by kicking him, 33 papers were sent up. It was so simple that a magistrate would have decided it in a quarter of an hour. In the second, in which one Carrington was charged with the murder of a native who was robbing him, 95 documents had been forwarded in an open envelope. Is the Judge not afraid of the wrath of the Sudder and every Regulation Court in the country?

THE RAJAH OF KUPPOORTHULLA, who recently married a Christian girl, has established a mission to be supported entirely by himself. Mr. Woodside, of Ochra Doon, and Dr. Newton, medical missionary, have charge of the new mission. The Rajah has thrown off all caste prejudices, and is diligently studying the Scriptures, with a view to baptism. This is the first instance in which a native chief has established and supported an entire mission on his own estates. Dhuleep Singh gave liberal donations to the American and other missions.

MEMORIAL AT JHANSI.—The Jhansi correspondent of the Delhi Gazette says, Government intend to erect a cross on a masonry terrace, with two slabs suitably inscribed, near the quarry, into which the mangled remains of those who were massacred during the mutiny were cast.

INADEQUATE ENCOURAGEMENT.—The master of the Ajmere school recently claimed as a right the admission of a pupil who had passed the university entrance examination to the office of deputy collector. The Director of Public Instruction in the North West, allowing the moral and intellectual superiority of natives educated in English, draws attention to the difference between book-knowledge and official aptitude and experience. The Government, according to the Lahore Chronicle, have consequently ruled, "that in instances of uncommon intelligence, of great moral worth and character, supported by respectability and position in society, a teshsheeldarship may be awarded." The Hindoos, like the modern Greeks, consider a Government situation as the only object of education, and it is well that the question should be thus definitely settled. But a teshsheeldarship is a poor reward for such qualifications.

EXPORTS (Calcutta, Dec. 22).—Operations in almost all descriptions of produce, excepting Indigo, continue on a very moderate scale, owing, in some measure, to the unfavourable accounts from home, and to the light stocks and supplies from the districts and the existing high prices. Raw Silk and Corals have been almost without operation, prices asked for them being much above what shippers appear disposed to give. Sugar has been in very limited business. Saltpeetre has been in better operation since the receipt of the last telegram from Bombay. Rice continues languid for Great Britain, but is in fair operation for the colonies. Linseed has been in active demand for Great Britain. Rapeseed has also been in good demand, but light stocks have somewhat checked operation. Jute has been in fair operation. Hides have been in good demand, especially for Great Britain.

IMPORTS (Calcutta, Dec. 22).—The market continued in the same state as last reported till within the last six or eight days, when a sudden demand sprung up, consequent on some favourable advices from the Upper Provinces for 39 inches wide Grey Shirtings of light makes, in which a fair amount of business has been done at an improvement of 1 to 1 1/2 annas per piece. Grey Madapolams, heavy and fine makes, have also been in good inquiry. Grey Jacoets and Grey Mulls of low qualities have been and are still in demand. We do not expect the market to improve much during the next three months—say to the end of March—after which the dull season commences. If imports continue as at present prices of all Grey Goods may advance an anna or two more, but if they increase, prices are sure to come down more. Bleached Cottons of light make are selling pretty fairly for local requirement; and as the season for demand for the Upper Provinces is approaching, some improvement in price may be expected, provided imports continue moderate. Chintzes and Turkey Red Goods are in limited operation, as they generally are at this season. Woollens are almost out of season. Metals continue dull.

CHOLERA AT CALCUTTA.—The Cochin Courier learns that Cholera has broken out in the gaol at Calicut, and that out of 400 prisoners, 100 were carried off. This fearful mortality, it is said, occurred within the brief period of five days.

MADRAS.

THE "LALOOP."

There are few unknown spots left upon the globe, and still fewer unknown races, but an original form of society is hard to find. As all men, whatever their language, laugh and cry alike, so all men, whatever their colour, seem to aggregate themselves under conditions pretty nearly identical. Peru, as it was when Pizarro landed, offers perhaps the only marked exception on a great scale. No other society has ever reached a semi-civilised stage, built great cities, organised a post, established regular government, yet rejected altogether the right of private property. Hindoo society is original, so far as the institution of caste operates, but on all other points is identical with the typical Asiatic form. Japanese society is supposed just now to present unique characteristics, but we suspect a little more inquiry will reveal a plan of life not greatly differing from the Italian form of feudalism. The Damos occupy a position very like that of the old nobles of Rome, under a tolerably energetic Pope. While, however, all great societies seem always to submit themselves to laws pretty nearly identical in spirit, there are one or two little races with absolutely unique forms of organisation. The Natchez of America, with their extraordinary form of despotism, present one. The Druses offer another, and unless Major McCulloch deceives us, the Munnipoorees may furnish a third. The people of this great valley are governed, organised, and taxed on a scheme which, so far as we know, is without a parallel in the world. There is a Rajah, of course, and of course he is absolute, interferes with the course of justice, and is as corrupt as it is well possible for a savage to be, who lives under the dread of the corrective axe of some assassin. But besides the Rajah the Munnipoorees are oppressed by an institution called the lalooop. The lalooop is not a tax. It is not a system of caste. But it is a sort of composite of the two, resembling begar run mad more than any other system ever observed by civilized human beings. Every man belonging to the Meithe or respectable races of Munnipore is bound to perform "lalooop," that is, to perform service for the State, or, more frankly, for the Rajah, for one quarter of his entire life, without pay, maintenance, or reward. This portion of time, moreover, is not taken at once, but every man, whatever his grade, must turn out for ten days in every forty to do the Rajah's bidding. The Brahmuns cook for him. The families of the great officers wait on him as menial servants. Another class construct all the bridges and buildings. Another ought to mount guard, but do instead whatever they are bid. The Tengkul do gardening and mason's work. The Kei pound the rice for the Rajah's household. Every man of every grade must perform lalooop, shopkeepers, goldsmiths, workers in bell-metal, carpenters, weavers, and, indeed, all manner of artificers. The work is rigidly exacted, and its effect is to kill all progress. The good artificer works with the bad one, and receives no more "thanks for his work than if it was as bad as that of his less skilful associate. He becomes disgusted, and his only aim is to anass quickly, by his superior intelligence, enough to purchase his release from work. This done, he thinks no more of his trade. Thus all are ever at the rudiments, and no progress is made." Even masonry work, which under such a system ought to flourish, as in Egypt and Peru, is very inferior. Only one brick bridge has been built, and the people for a long period were afraid to pass over even that.

Connected with this lalooop, and springing out of the habit of association it produces, is another system not so original, indeed precisely resembling that of the Benefit Clubs of our great manufacturing towns, a fact Major McCulloch does not recognise. "Whether civilisation," he says, "in its advance proportionately increases the happiness of individuals may be questioned. It certainly tends to their isolation.

A person in London might die all alone of sickness without its being known to, or even much cared for, by his next door neighbour. This could not well happen in Munnipore. Each district divides itself into neighbourhoods, who, again, divide into 'singloops' or 'wood clubs.' The elders of the neighbourhood settle all minor disputes occurring in it, and in case of the illness of a member they tell off individuals to attend on the sick person, whilst should he die, the wood club to which he belongs brings the wood for his funeral pyre. The sympathy of his neighbours and their attentions must have a soothing and beneficial effect upon the sick person, and the depression of spirits which more especially in epidemics weighs down a people must be considerably alleviated."

The marvel is, not that they should be able to organise themselves, but that they should care for the sick. Most Asiatics, Chinese and Hindoos especially, would let a sick man rot of their own family rot in the nearest ditch.

To Europeans no system could appear more intolerably oppressive than the lalooop. It is worse than the worst form of Russian serfage, for the serf has at least either land or maintenance in return for his labour, yet the Munnipoorees do not appear unhappy. They are rather a jolly race, apparently without that melancholy of habit which is the characteristic of the Bengalee. They are fond of athletic sports, and one really exciting game, hockey on horseback, seems universal among them. They teach the children to play as soon as they can sit the country pomes, proficiency in the art being a sure passport to royal favour. Their Hindooism sits lightly on them, and though superstitious, and believing in priestesses under "possession," they seem to have none of the darker forms of credulity so common in Asiatic highlands. They are a tolerably moral race, very faithful to the marriage vow, and consider thieving improper in married persons, though young men may practice it with comparative impunity. Altogether Major McCulloch's picture is of a race by no means incurably evil, and deserving a better fate than to spend a quarter of their lives in unpaid compulsory labour.—Friend of India.

GOVERNMENT WATER.—The principle on which the charge for water supplied for irrigation in the Godavery and Krishna Deltas should be assessed has been considered by Government; and in a minute dated the 7th December it has been determined "to charge a uniform rate of three rupees an acre on all land fully irrigated for a single crop." Two-crop land is, if possible, to be dealt with, not by fields, but by tracts; a consolidated rate of four rupees a year is to be levied when the irrigation is complete; sugar-cane land is to be included under this latter rate; and temporary irrigation of dry crops is to be charged on tracts at one rupee an acre. These rates are to be applied invariably to Government and Inam lands, and also to Zemindary land; but in the last named case a consolidated payment may be arranged for, either for the whole tract, or according to the quantity of water supplied. The director of revenue settlement has been requested to draw up rules prescribing the time and manner for ryots to signify their desire to take or to discontinue taking the water. This resolution of Government is to be made universally known throughout the two districts above named, and is to be brought into immediate operation in Zemindary, Inam, and Government lands. But those Inams which were irrigated at the expense of Government when originally granted, are, as a matter of course, to be exempted.—Athenæum.

EUROPEAN VETERANS.—The head quarters of the European veterans will be transferred from Vizagapatam to Palaveram, and Colonel Hammond, recently transferred to the Invalid establishment, will be appointed to command the same.

FRESH WATER SUPPLY.—Sir Charles Trevelyan makes the following remarks in a highly practical minute on a project for supplying Madras with fresh water:—"I deeply feel the responsibility of having to deal with the vitally important subject of supplying fresh water to Madras. The health, the contentment, the improvement, of a population more numerous than that of any other city in her Majesty's dominions, except London, depends upon it. The supply of wholesome water from wells, which sufficed while Madras was a small settlement, is now not enough even for drinking, while for the personal cleanliness and sewerage of the inhabitants of the crowded parts of the city it is totally insufficient. To remedy this great social defect, at the earliest possible period, is a plain duty of every person who exercises authority or influence here. After mature consideration, I have come to the conclusion that the work ought to be undertaken by municipal action. The supply of fresh water is indissolubly connected with the sewerage, and this last must be provided for by the municipality. The supply of fresh water also intimately concerns the daily comfort and expenditure of every inhabitant, and it is right that those who pay should have a voice in the application of their money, and should have reasonable assurance that they are not called upon to pay more than the occasion requires. The present municipal commissioners have faithfully and honourably discharged their trust; but as the commission consists only of two members nominated by the Government, in addition to the commissioner of police, who is the chairman, it is constituted on too narrow a basis to undertake a work of great magnitude, for which the rates would have to be mortgaged for a considerable time to come. The course I recommend is:—1st. That Madras should be divided into convenient municipal districts. 2nd. That, after the opinion of the rate-payers in each district has been ascertained as to the fittest persons to represent them, one person should be selected by the Government to represent each district in the municipal council. 3rd. That the council so constituted should be vested with all the powers possessed by the present municipal commissioners; and 4th. That the municipal council should proceed at once to consider what would be the best mode of providing for the water supply and sewerage of Madras, and should borrow, on the security of the rates, whatever sum might be necessary for the purpose." The Government of India raised no objections to these proposals, merely remarking that it would have been disposed to doubt whether the inhabitants of Madras would like to elect representatives subject to the approval of Government. On this point, however, it presumed that the Government had reason to believe that the arrangement would not be unacceptable. In order that this matter might be placed beyond doubt, all the papers connected with the two projects were furnished to the local journals "with the view to the free discussion of the project of a municipality and to the formation and expression of a public opinion on the subject." These are the words of the Government resolution, and most remarkable they are, since it is the first time that the existence of a public, and of its right to express an opinion, have been officially recognised.—Athenæum.

INAM COMMISSION.—The results of the Inam Commission up to Dec. 3 have been reported to Government by Mr. Commissioner Taylor. On Oct. 1 the number of decisions was 3,705. During October 3,216 cases were decided, and in November 7,425; making a total of 14,347 decisions up to Dec. 3. 9,213 titles have been confirmed; quit rent amounting to Rs. 15,332 has been stipulated to be paid in addition to former quit rent; Rs. 2,944 were paid in redemption of new quit rents; and Mr. Taylor reports that the proportion of persons who have declined the commutation was now less than two per cent. The number of title deeds actually issued to Inamdars up to November 30 was 6,730. The investigations have extended to nineteen talooks in the Masulipatam district. Of the titles confirmed, 135 were, in respect of religious and charitable grants, of a permanent character, 6,550 were personal grants, enfranchised at the option of Inamdars, 1,811 also personal grants, but enfranchised compulsorily, and 117 personal grants not enfranchised, and confirmed on present tenures. The total extent in acres of the confirmed Inams was 88,069, the estimated assessment on which was Rs. 1,40,420. Government, in its order on this report, expressed itself gratified to find that the progress was so good, and intimated that the report would be immediately forwarded to the Secretary of State for his information.

THE REVENUE.—We have heard with great pleasure that the revenue returns for last year exhibit a surprising increase over the most prosperous of all former years. We have now touched 415 lakhs. This is attributable to the wise reductions in assessment; the result is natural, it is only that which has been foretold over and over again. The marvel is that the effect should have followed the cause with such astonishing rapidity that the two seem almost simultaneous. In a few years Madras will become one of the most flourishing kingdoms on the face of the earth; provided always that stupid mistakes in government do not mar the fair promise.

EXCAVATIONS AT AMARAVATI.—Sir Charles Trevelyan has asked the co-operation of the Madras Literary Society in excavating the Buddhist remains at Amaravati, the great entrepôt of the Bepar cotton trade. The Zemindar of the place, in searching for treasure, at the end of last century, found a stone casket with relics. They were deposited in the Madras Museum. He made use of the masonry of the top of the construction of his new capital, but Colonel Mackenzie saved it from total demolition. Some of the slabs are in the Calcutta Museum. Colonel Mackenzie describes the ruins in the Asiatic Annual Register, but Mr. Fergusson's account is much more accurate.

A NEW SANITARIUM.—Captain Blgrave, the District Engineer of Vizagapatam, has reported on the "Gali Parvatam" as a sanitarium. The road is from Waltair, 40 miles to Kotur, where the ascent begins. At Rayvalsa, 2,500 feet above the sea, a rest-house for troops and stores is to be erected. At Harris Valley, 4,000 feet above the sea, a well cleared site has been chosen for barracks, godowns, and officers' quarters. The road from Kotur to the new "Doon" is 12 miles, and is about to be improved. Colonel Taylor had raised a fine crop of potatoes. The hills are well suited for the coffee plant. The thermometer at sunset stands at 68 degrees, or 20 degrees lower than at Waltair.

THE RIVER SEVERI, which flows through the Hyderabad territory into the Godavery, has been surveyed. For six months of the year it is navigable for boats drawing from five to six feet of water as far as Kunta, a British village twenty-four miles above the junction of the rivers. The Government have accordingly made Kunta one of the two great salt depots in the Godavery district. The other is to be situated at the junction of the Indrawati with the Godavery. Between the Severi and the Indrawati there are, according to Sir Charles Trevelyan, "abundant supplies of fine teak." Kunta is close to one of the routes of the Brinjaries who export the products of Nagpore and Bustar to Jeypore and the coast, whence they bring salt in return.

KATTIWAR.—Some of the vernacular newspapers have been of late loudly, and we believe, justly sounding the praises of the Court of Bhownuggur. The liberal and enlightened policy pursued by the thackoor in the government of his principality, and various other means devised by him for the improvement of his country, and the amelioration of the condition of his subjects, are so well known, that we do not see any necessity for saying anything at length thereon. The thackoor, Juswutsunjee, is a patron of education, and has established in his dominion schools for the education of both sexes. On the 2nd of December, the boys and girls' schools were examined by Mr. Hope, the educational inspector in Guzerat. On the 18th, a public exhibition of the schools took place, and prizes were then awarded to the most deserving pupils in the presence of Messrs. Peel and Hope, and of about forty of the leading native gentlemen of the place, including the thackoor's minister, Mr. Gowrishunker. A very gratifying instance of the thackoor's liberality was brought to notice at the exhibition, of his having undertaken to meet the expenses of education in civil engineering of two of the senior pupils of the English school at Bhownuggur, who have been sent to Poona for that purpose. On the 21st, Messrs. Peel and Hope were received at the durbar by the thackoor, and after the usual ceremonies were over, his highness took considerable delight in showing to these gentlemen a splendid clock, which he has caused to be erected for the convenience of his subjects, and which not only shows on the dial the time of the day, but the month, date, and days of the week. This piece of mechanism, the like of which the capital of Western India does not boast of possessing, is, it is stated, the entire workmanship of a Parsee of very great ingenuity, and whose name is Darsjee, a citizen of Bhownuggur.

A SCHEME FOR REPRESENTING THE EXCHAMBER.—An official letter has appeared in the Bombay Gazette regarding the Licence Bill. It is addressed to Lord Elphinstone by a Parsee gentleman named Pestonjee Byramjee Dantra. The writer, after speaking of the Bill in question as one which has occasioned universal dissatisfaction, from the unjust and inequitable nature of the tax, and the inquisitorial proceedings which would be required to carry it out, makes a proposition to the Government, which, in his opinion, would be more consonant to the wishes of the people. An income tax, Mr. Dantra considers, would be distasteful to the people of India for the same reason which has made him condemn the Licence Bill, namely, the inquisitorial nature of the operation required to collect the tax. But instead of this, he proposes—1st, a tax on marriage ceremony; and 2nd, a tax on the occasion of baptizing a child and performing similar ceremonies among all classes of the community. From the statistics the writer furnishes from the published registry of the Parsee Panchayet for the years 1856-1857 and 1858, it would appear that on an average 300 marriages and re-marriages take place in each year, giving an average of 600 persons per annum among the Parsee population of Bombay, which he estimates at 100,000 souls. This average applied to the whole population of India, which he considers at least thirteen crores, gives a result of 780,000 persons entering the marriage state annually. Mr. Dantra divides those who marry into eight classes, and proposes that the taxes "should be determined by the collector according to the circumstances of the people, and in large cities by a punchayet. The classes are to pay Rs. 100; Rs. 75; Rs. 50; Rs. 25; Rs. 15; Rs. 10; Rs. 5, and Rs. 3 respectively; and taking Rs. 15, the average amount of marriage fee, the writer considers that an annual increase from this source may be estimated at one crore seventeen lakhs of rupees. With respect to the fees for baptism, Mr. Dantra thinks the classes may be divided into six, paying Rs. 25; Rs. 15; Rs. 10; Rs. 5; Rs. 3, and Rs. 1 respectively. Taking the number of births annually (excluding those that are in their infancy, and those castes which do not observe such ceremonies), at about thirty lakhs, the writer estimates the annual increase from this source "at the average rate of Rs. 5 for the ceremony of baptism among Christians, circumcision among the Mahomedans and Jews, wearing the Janwees or sacred thread among Hindoos, and the Sudra ceremony among Parsees," at one crore fifty lakhs, thus making both sources of taxation yield an annual aggregate sum of two crores sixty-seven lakhs of rupees. Mr. Dantra also suggests that all covenanted servants and others, either in the Government service or other employ, should be taxed according to the first class. The writer states that the above taxes will be more congenial to the wishes of the people than Mr. Harrington's Licence Bill, inasmuch as they will bear less hard upon the poorer classes. The suggestions are curious, but we do not imagine that Mr. Wilson will adopt them to supply the existing deficiency of the Indian revenue. The same objection that is urged against the Licensing Bill or Income-tax Bills, will be made to Mr. Dantra's scheme of taxation, as an investigation into the circumstances of each family will be necessary in order to fix the amount of the baptismal and marriage fee.—Era and Press.

THE FIRE AT SURAT.—The following particulars of the late fire at Surat have been communicated to a Scinde contemporary:—"At half past two P.M. on the 3rd Dec. we were alarmed by a sudden cry of "fire," which proved to be in our immediate vicinity. It broke out in the house of a Hindoo, next to Mr. Framjee Cooverjee (clerk in the Kurrachee Commissariat Office), and rapidly spread amongst the surrounding buildings. The wind was blowing fresh from the west at the time, but owing to the energy and indefatigable exertions of the Parsees and other natives the easterly course of the devouring element was checked, by which, most fortunately, the edifices of the wealthiest portion of the Parsee community were saved from total destruction. By these timely efforts the progress of the flames was in some measure arrested, and was diverted more toward the west, but so rapid were their ravages that in less than two hours upwards of fifty most substantial buildings were burned to the ground. Not long after the outbreak of the fire, Mr. Belais, the collector, and the assistant judge arrived at the scene of the conflagration, and used their utmost in directing the exertions of those employed in extinguishing it. They lost no time in sending to the Fort and the native lines for the Europeans and native troops, who speedily arrived, and after much labour and fatigue managed to subdue the ravages of the fiery element about 11 P.M., after it had raged with almost unabated fury for nine hours. The fire broke out in Loharpore locality, and originated by a Brahmin's house taking fire whilst the inmates were cooking—a rather unusual time for them to be preparing food. About 280 houses have been totally consumed, and the loss is estimated at not less than five lacs of rupees. Fortunately there appears, from the many conflicting reports we have received, to have been no lives lost, which is a matter for congratulation, considering the vast amount of property destroyed.

POREBUNDER.—We have written for more troops before undertaking to thrash these fellows (the Waghers), and even then we all think it will be a very hazardous piece of work. The mountains, for hills they cannot be termed, are of themselves very formidable, a good two miles up, and the ascent frightful. Guns cannot be brought into play, and when we get to the top, we have the satisfaction of knowing that they are strongly entrenched in a first rate fort, which we should then have to take. I really think from what I have seen when out to reconnoitre their position, that if three or four columns of attack are formed, consisting of 500 or 600 men each, not more than one-eighth of the whole will ever reach the top, even supposing that they allow us to come up without opposition, and shut themselves up in their fort. This, however, they are not likely to do. We cannot go up by the few regular pathways, inasmuch as their matchlockmen are so prettily placed as to command every one of them, and our fellows would be knocked over as soon as they made their appearance. We can't starve 'em out, for the hills are about forty miles round, and they can come down and loot a village whenever they wish; it would require a very large force to surround so much ground, as you may imagine. We are to-day making an attempt to let them in for some fun in this way. At three this morning, 100 of the 1st grenadiers and 200 of the 14th, with Hill, Fullerton, and Hallett, and 214 subs, started to conceal themselves in high jungle, under their position; at eight a.m. a party in undress, with some of the Sebundee, start with artillery waggons, for the ostensible purpose of cutting wood, and we hope that the Waghers will come down and attack the wood party (as they did once before), in which case our 300 concealed men will let them come well out into the "maidan," and thus be enabled to cut off their retreat. Walker, with three or four guns and cavalry, will in such case proceed at once to assist the wood-cutters and Sebundee.—Sind Kosid, Dec.

TWO GUZERATTEE POETS.—The Bombay journals expatiate on the abilities of two Guzerattee poets. Dulpatram Dhyabhy recently recited in the house of a Parsee merchant an allegory in which the arts and manufactures of England were represented as doing battle with the trea-tures of India, and rich natives were urged to bring over the enemy and induce him to enter their service. Acting unconsciously on the Horatian maxim, a number of the Hindoo community have resolved to honour Kavi Dulputram, another living Guzerattee poet, by raising a fund, the interest of which is to be applied for prizes, bearing his name, in three schools. The poet is a native of Ahmedabad, and is employed in the educational department. The Goozerat Vernacular Society employs him in the composition of poems in that vernacular. At a meeting of the Buddhivurduk Sabha recently he read a satirical poem on the customs of Hindoo females on occasions of death. The natives on the Bengal side of India are not so ready to honour merit even when dead.

CHINA.

HONG KONG.—Dec. 15.—The London Mail of the 26th October arrived here yesterday, though it left Singapore on the 2nd.

There is no certain intelligence in regard to the intentions of the Chinese, but it is reported that the fortifications of Peking are being strengthened, and that large numbers of Tartar troops are concentrated on the Peiho. Another report mentions that the Taku forts have been to some extent dismantled, and will be abandoned on the appearance of a large English force. Should that be done, the English commanders will require to exercise the greatest caution in ascending up to Tientsin—if they attempt to do so—lest their vessels be caught by masked batteries in the turnings of the river.

The rebels in the north of Ngan Hwui have achieved a victory over an Imperialist force through the treachery of a mandarin whom the emperor had dubbed "the Loyal man of his Age," on account of former services he had rendered to the Imperialist cause. Fungpan, the Imperialist commander in this conflict, has been allowed to retire from his post, doubtless in consequence of his non-success. Looking over the series of victories and defeats the rebels appear to be rather losing ground.

The Cantonese at Shanghai continue to be unpopular with the native Chinese of that city, and there have lately been some attacks upon them, as also outrages on their part.

In our last issue we noticed the ratification of the United States' Treaty with China. A curious question, yet unsettled, has arisen in connection with it. It reduces the tonnage duties and opens two new ports, so an unofficial application has been made to the Tountai at Shanghai for the admission of British vessels on the terms which it provides. Only the British supplementary treaty—not that of Nankin—contains the favoured nation clause, and as the supplementary treaty was abolished by the first article of the treaty of Tientsin, there is some doubt as to how British claims stand; but clearly enough both the Nankin and the supplementary treaties are in force until either the new treaty is ratified, or war is declared. Such, it is reported, has been the decision of the Hon. Mr. Bruce.

At Canton the new Customs' Service continues to prosper, and appears to have got over the outcry which at first was raised against it. A new, and more probable, though as yet unsubstantiated allegation is, that though quite able to put down smuggling on the part of the foreigners, it only throws it out of their hands into that of the foreigners who are again employing snake-boats for the purpose of smuggling. There appear certainly to be some very serious objections, some of them legal, to the Anglo-Chinese Customs on their present footing, but these will be developed by and by.

The scheme of emigration to the British West Indies succeeds slowly. The first ship has not yet been despatched, but a sufficient number of emigrants have been already secured, and so many as 150 came up to the depot at Hong Kong in one day. It is almost impossible to over-estimate the blessings which will be conferred both on the Chinese and the West Indies should this scheme succeed in procuring a sufficient outlet for the redundant population of China.

The long- vexed question of the dollar in Japan appears to be nearly settled now, the Japanese asserting that it was the foreigners themselves who caused difficulties in the way, by refusing to receive dollars back again. That is not very probable, unless it should have arisen from their anxiety to obtain gold instead; for we understand that an enormously profitable trade has been, and is, driven at Japan, in exchanging silver for gold. Mr. Cornwallis mentioned, in his account of his visit to Japan, that gold could be obtained there as easily as silver, and such really appears to be the case. It has been asserted that this traffic is illegal, but Art. X. of the Treaty provides that "Coins of all description (with the exception of Japanese copper coin, as well as foreign gold and silver uncoined) may be exported from Japan."

Local matters continue tolerably quiet. There is only another libel case, the eighth or ninth within the last two years. The Daily Press published, the other day, an article both long and strong against the Rev. Mr. Lobscheid, who is now applying at the magistrate's-court that the proprietor and editor be committed for criminal trial before the supreme court.

A severe clan fight has been raging for several days among the Chinese on the mainland at the head of Deep-bay; and excursions have been made by foreigners from Canton into the surrounding country, without meeting any ill-will on the part of the native inhabitants.—Overland China Mail.

A VISIT TO NAMTOW.—There was a gun-boat went to Namtow last week for the purpose of remonstrating with the mandarin there in regard to the seizure, by some villagers, of a Chinaman who was going to bring his family to Hong Kong, in order to emigrate to the West Indies. Immediately on the gun-boat reaching Namtow the mandarin was communicated with, and promised to send a messenger to the village. On landing next morning, the party were informed that the man had been brought up from the village, and would be sent down to the gun-boat, but that they were requested not to enter the town. This difficulty, however, was got over, and a free conversation was held with the Chihien himself on the subject of emigration. In regard to the imprisonment of the emigrant, he said that the village to which he belonged had been very troublesome, and constantly engaged in fighting with another clan; and the man himself admitted that it was the unsettled state of the country which had induced him to give up his land and emigrate. The mandarin was reminded that village fighting was constantly going on in his district, to the great destruction of lives and property; and that, till urged by foreigners, he had done nothing to enforce the laws of the empire in that matter, to release the emigrant, or to bring his captors to justice.—China Mail, Dec. 1.

CANTON.—From Canton there have been rumours of some unfriendliness towards foreigners on the part of the neighbouring villages. Missionaries, who had gone out from the city to prosecute their vocation in the country, found they were not so well received as formerly, and that even a hostile feeling was manifested; but some small parties of officers who have since gone out, found the people quiet, and, to all appearance, well disposed. It is not to be wondered at if the Cantonese should not yet be well satisfied with foreigners. By the special clause appended to the new British treaty, it is provided that the indemnity money and the expenses of the last war, amounting in all to four millions of taels, are to be levied on Canton, and it is to be held in possession till the money is paid. In that case Canton may be held till doomsday. Yesterday morning (Dec. 7) there was a fire on the river, which threatened to do much damage to the shipping. A number of matchsheds, which were sometime ago put up at the Sin-taow-lan jetty, burst out in flames, burned for about ten minutes, and communicated the fire to some cargo boats which were lying at the jetty. From these it spread to a Chinese armed cruiser, and that vessel, after burning a few minutes, drifted up the river with the tide, her guns being surrounded by flames, and the explosion of her powder-magazine anxiously expected. The tide drifted her alongside the steamer Hong Kong, where her powder exploded. Then on she went, causing the Cumfa to slip her anchor, and passing so close to the choppers of the American and Spanish consuls as to greatly endanger them. She next got foul of the Messrs. Jardine's yacht, and would have destroyed it, had not one of the Custom-house boats, and Mr. W—, in his own boat, managed to get up her anchor, or else to cut her cable, and then cast adrift. What finally became of the burning vessel we do not know, but suppose it went up stream. It must have been rather exciting to see such a vessel at the command of the tide, with a number of heavy guns on board pointed in all directions. The Shamrock affair has been settled in a manner which shows that the objections taken to its seizure were altogether untenable. Inasmuch as it was the first conviction, the superintendent of customs waived his indubitable right to confiscate the vessel, and contented himself with the cargo. Mr. Fernandez has also paid a fine of 3,000 taels, and has promised not to send his vessels to such places in future. The vessel was returned to him yesterday afternoon, and it is not likely that he will peril his steamer in the same manner in a hurry.—China Mail.

JAPANESE INTELLIGENCE.—Two notifications of some importance have recently been issued by Mr. Alcock, the British Consul General at Japan. Of these the first relates to the currency of the dollar. It has been frequently asserted that the Japanese refused to carry out that provision of the treaty which provided that all foreign coins should be current in Japan, and should pass for their corresponding weight in Japanese coin. But Mr. Alcock intimates that the Japanese Government has been led to believe that British merchants themselves create unfair obstacles by objecting to receive the dollar back in payment. He expresses some doubt as to the fact of their having done so, but leaves it to their own judgment and good sense to determine not to do so. The other notification intimates very peremptorily that it is not at the option of British subjects, at the open ports in Japan, to choose where they shall lease ground, purchase buildings, and erect dwellings and warehouses; because it is provided that the British consuls and Japanese authorities shall arrange as to the places to be occupied by British residents. It is intimated that any British subject who violates this provision of the treaty, not only does so at his own peril as regards protection for person and property, but also renders himself liable to penalties.

WRECK OF THE "CHIEFTAIN" ON THE PRATAS.—We regret to have to notice another wreck on the Pratras, that of the British ship Chieftain, Captain De Faye, on its way from Shanghai to London, loaded with silk and tea. The Chieftain left Shanghai on the 27th November, and proceeded favourably until the evening of the 1st December. When steering S. by W.  $\frac{1}{2}$  W. at a quarter before twelve at midnight, breakers were reported ahead, about four points on the starboard bow, and two on the port bow. The helm was immediately put hard on starboard, with the hope of keeping her off on the port tack, but before coming round she struck, and immediately fell over on her port side. Finding her surge heavily on the rocks, the captain ordered the masts to be cut away, as he was afraid of their coming down and killing some of the crew. On sounding the pumps he found the ship was filling fast with water. At daylight he saw four fishing-boats at anchor; one came on board, and agreed to take the crew for a third of what cargo she might carry to Hong Kong; sometime afterwards the others came with crowsbars, and wanted to break open the hatches, which the captain prevented by threatening to shoot them, but, finding the vessel was fast breaking up, they determined to abandon her, which was done on the morning of the 2nd. Having got as much silk and tea as the boat could carry, they left in the evening. The remaining Chinese then took possession, and immediately commenced to plunder. When the crew left the vessel she was level with the sea, and her back was broken. They left with moderate weather, but next day it came on to blow, and the boat, being deep, was in danger of being filled with water, and so they were compelled to bear away before the wind, and heave one boat, the greater part of the cargo, and nearly all their private effects overboard, or she would have foundered. They ultimately got safe into Macao on the 6th, and came over here on the 7th in the Sir Charles Forbes. Only sixteen bales of silk were saved, which they brought over here with them, but of course they are soaked with water.—China Mail, Dec. 8.

CEYLON.

COLOMBO, Dec. 30.—The weather has continued to give much anxiety to coffee curers, being unusually rainy for the season of the year. Much of the coffee has arrived in a wet state from the interior, and it has been found a most difficult task to dry it. Nevertheless, the addition to our exports is not slight. Five ships have sailed for London, taking 16,341 cwt. of plantation coffee and 10,620 of native. A vessel has taken to Melbourne 1,791 cwt. of plantation and 200 of native. The total addition to our exports in the fortnight has been 28,952 cwt. of coffee, in the proportions of 18,132 plantation and 10,820 native. The exports of plantation to date are far in excess of those of corresponding periods in previous years, while native is above the average. The total is 119,077 cwt. against a little over 80,000 in each of the three previous years.

The exports of cinnamon, coconut oil, coir, and plumbago, are all large for this early period of the season. The position and prospects of our various staples will be found noticed in our commercial article.

Since we last wrote, the sittings of the legislative council have been brought to a close, and the governor has taken his departure for the cool regions of the interior, whither all who can escape from Colombo are hastening.

In closing the session, Sir H. Ward stated that the arrival of the decision of the secretary of state on the railway question, would probably necessitate an early meeting in February or March. While the question is in abeyance, it appears that the colony has to pay £100 a day for salaries and interest. The surveying staff are engaged in surveying various routes to Kandy, while it is rumoured that we are likely to have a tramway, instead of a first class railway.

As the Governor pointed out, the business transacted in the course of the session has been important. The Kandian marriage law has been passed. The laws respecting courts of requests have been codified. The establishments of the northern province have been revised and settled; and, in ordinary, supplementary, and surplus bills, a large and generally useful expenditure has been authorised. The defences of Colombo and Galle are to be strengthened—the magnificent harbour of Trincomalee is to be properly lighted, and the eastern coast of the island carefully surveyed. And, not less important for the interests of the island, a Bill has been passed to enable the planters to introduce coolies from India, whose services shall be secured to them for three years. The labour difficulty continues to be the difficulty of the colony, and we fear that what with shortness of hands to gather, and excessive wet interfering with curing, a considerable portion of the crop of this season will be lost or damaged. An immense extent of coffee property is in the market. Alpitia Kande, one of the oldest estates in the Kadugapava district, was yesterday sold for £3,020, Mr. Donald Macgregor being the purchaser. The desire to obtain land for cultivation does not seem to have abated, as witness the purchases made, and the prices paid at the late sale at Kandy.

It is obvious that except in years of drought in southern India, we cannot calculate on a regular and full influx of labourers from the sources which have hitherto supplied us. Hence the necessity for systematic efforts extended over wider fields. By means of good steamers, regularly plying, and perhaps by the offer of somewhat better wages and other advantages, we must endeavour to make Ceylon as attractive as Mauritius and the West Indies. We have always felt that the introduction of Chinese would be a hazardous experiment, but we begin to foresee that the Mongolian race must yet be drawn upon, at least for artisans. How a railway is to be made with an insufficiency of coolies for coffee cultivation, is a problem not easy of solution. Happily it does not press for a solution—the bullock bandies being well up to the work required of them as yet. We suspect most planters are making up their minds for an advance of wages.

While the available reserve of the colony is so rapidly diminishing, and while many useful public works are deferred for want of means to carry them out, it is satisfactory to learn that, after all, 1860 is to have its pearl fishery, though a small one. The net proceeds are estimated at £7,500. The trade of Colombo is so rapidly increasing that it is absolutely impossible to provide sufficient room within the fort. The scheme of giving accommodation for the landing of grain and the shipment of coffee in a central part of the rettah or native town is therefore to be carried out by a vote from the surplus funds. If the labour difficulty does not stay the wheels of progress, the prospects of the colony are good, and we cannot doubt that with such a body of Europeans as we have now in Ceylon, every difficulty will be met and overcome.

The Hindustan, extra steamer, did not reach Galle until the 19th. The regular steamer, the Candia, with the mails of 26th November, followed on the 23rd. We are now in hourly expectation of receiving English news via Bombay to 3rd December.

We believe the next number of the Gazette will announce the temporary appointment of Mr. Lawson (at present acting judge of the District Court of Colombo) to a seat on the bench of the Supreme Court. Mr. C. H. Stewart, the deputy Queen's advocate, is to perform the District Court duties, in addition to his own, for three months, during which the temporary arrangements are expected to last. The colony would be satisfied, we believe, with the confirmation of Mr. Justice Sterling as chief justice, Mr. Morgan being confirmed as puisne judge.

THE STRAITS.

ACHEEN.

The Friend of India—in noticing the rude treatment Captain Haughton met with on his recent visit to Acheen, for the purpose of endeavouring to procure some Andamese, reported to be held in slavery there, to serve as interpreters at Port Blair—states that "the present king was called to the throne on account of the wealth made by his father in the British settlement of Pinang. He is the son of a Mestizo Arab."

This account of the king's parentage is a mistake. The son of the Pinang trader did not enjoy his royal dignity very long. After a troubled reign of about six years, he was obliged to retire from Acheen, owing, in a good measure, to the interference of Sir Stamford Raffles, who was sent by the Supreme Government to inquire into the affairs of Acheen, and who strongly supported the claims of Johore Alum, the king who had been temporarily superseded by the Pinang trader's son. A treaty of friendship and alliance was entered into in 1819 between the East India Company and Johore Alum, Sir Stamford Raffles being one of the Company's Commissioners, and this treaty is still in force, although its obligations would not seem to be much respected by the present ruler of Acheen. The Arab usurper, if we may so call him, went from Acheen to Calcutta in 1820, where he succeeded in obtaining the grant of a pension of 500 dollars per month, and which he enjoyed at Pinang until his death, many years afterwards.

Since the period when these events occurred, the Acheen monarchy has been gradually dwindling to a mere shadow of its former power. The chiefs of the different districts are virtually independent, and scarcely accord even a nominal recognition of the sovereignty of the king. With this decay of power, the character of the Achinese seems also to have deteriorated, and they appear to be now much more uncivilised than in former times. In the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries they maintained prolonged contests with the Portuguese at Malacca, repelling attempts of the Portuguese to take Acheen, and fitting out naval expeditions, sometimes consisting of more than fifty thousand men. Queen Elizabeth sent Sir James Lancaster on a special embassy to Acheen in 1602, and the account of his reception and entertainment shows the Acheen king and nobles to have been men of much more civilisation than those of the present day. In 1784 Captain Forrest, who repeatedly visited Acheen, describes the king as being a person of much intelligence, speaking Malay, French, and Portuguese. He had spent sometime at the Mauritius, on his way to Arabia, and had improved himself, at the arsenal at Port Louis, in the art of casting guns and shells. Captain Forrest was decorated with a kind of order of chivalry, apparently instituted by this monarch, called the order of the Golden Sword.

The Achinese always showed a strong preference for an alliance with the English, and an aversion to the Dutch, but owing, we suppose, to the former having taken very little interest in Acheen since 1820, this state, like all the others on Sumatra, has been obliged to succumb to Dutch influence; and a year or two ago a treaty was entered into with the Government of Netherlands India, which will probably, in course of time, lead to Acheen becoming a Dutch dependency. The withdrawal of the English from the frequent communication with Acheen which prevailed in former times, is probably, in a great measure, to be ascribed to the erroneous interpretation which has generally been put upon the clause of the treaty between Holland and Great Britain in 1824, by which the latter engages not to form settlements on Sumatra, nor conclude treaties with any native prince, chief, or state thereon. This has sometimes been considered as cancelling all the engagements subsisting between Great Britain and states on Sumatra, but Lord Palmerston in his correspondence with the Dutch Government regarding Siak, about twenty years ago, very clearly laid down that all treaties entered into previous to 1824, and not inconsistent with the arrangements then made with Holland, were to be considered as still operative. The clauses in the Achinese treaty providing for freedom of trade, mutual friendship, &c., must be held as still binding on the respective parties to it, and it is a pity that the English Government should not have more constantly kept up an intercourse with Acheen, and maintained alive those friendly relations which the treaty provides for. The East India Company, after its commercial existence was put an end to, seems to have given very little attention to the affairs of the Indian Archipelago, and the Straits settlement being reduced to a mere dependency on Bengal, the Governor had no authority beyond the three stations, and was discouraged from interfering in any matter which tended to raise discussion with the Dutch, or which entailed the slightest extra expense on Government.

We trust that a new policy will soon be inaugurated in the conduct of British affairs in the Indian Archipelago. While it is not at all necessary, and perhaps not desirable, that we should form new settlements in this part of the world, it is both necessary and desirable in the highest degree that we should keep up a constant and friendly intercourse with native states and princes. It would only require a very small squadron of men of war to do so, and the effect of their constantly moving about from place to place would give confidence to traders and tend to put down piracy much more effectually than irregular outbreaks, followed by long years of inactivity, as has hitherto been the case. Such a system as that we advocate would prevent British officers on such missions as that of Captain Haughton from being treated with insolence or rudeness, and it would, in all probability, repress that tendency to outrage and anarchy that at present seems to prevail in European settlements in the Archipelago wherever the governing power is weak, as at Sarawak.—Singapore Free Press.

BATAVIA.—The opening of a telegraphic communication between Batavia and Singapore by means of a submarine cable had excited much interest. The communication was scarcely completed, when it was interrupted by the cable being broken in two places between Batavia and Muntok (Banka), but the accidents having fortunately occurred in comparatively shallow water the Bahiana was soon enabled to repair the damage. A line has since been laid by the Bahiana between Muntok and Palembang. The European residents at Cheribon have addressed a request to the Government to be permitted to form a rifle corps under the command of the Resident. It appears that this has been caused by suspicious movements having been observed amongst the Hajis. A rifle corps has also been formed at Batavia, of which the Vice-President of the Council of India is patron, and the Resident of Batavia honorary commandant.

CENTRAL ASIA.

Oct. 25.—Nazir Naem Khan represented to the Ameer that Sirdar Shere Ally Khan had, at the instigation of Sirdar Mahomed Ruffeek Khan, become his enemy, and treats him very ill. The Ameer sent for Shere Ally Khan, and told him that the Nazir was an old and honest servant, and it will be difficult to get another man like him; it was, therefore, not proper to treat him ill. Oct. 28.—The Ameer held a private conversation with Sirdars Shere Ally Khan, Sultan Mahomed Khan, and Mahomed Usman Khan, wherein the Ameer declared that he will go to Jellalabad this year, and thence send Sirdar Shere Ally Khan to Peshawur, to see the British authorities.

Nov. 1.—The Bokhara agent asked permission to go and see the tomb and garden of King Baber, which he had heard were greatly admired. The Ameer granted him the permission, and also ordered the Akhoonzadah Sirajooddeen to accompany him. The agent returned in the evening, and represented to the Ameer that the 2,000 gold coins which had been plundered from the Bokhara merchants in the Mamena-road by the ruler of Indkhyoe have not been made good to the merchants, although he had repeatedly spoken to Sirdar Mahomed Ufzul Khan about it, who had paid no attention to his representations. He therefore hoped the Ameer would write to the Sirdar to made the ruler of Indkhyoe restore the plunder to the merchants. The Ameer said that when he (the agent) returns to his country he will give him a letter to the Sirdar.—Nov. 2.

—News from Turkistan is to the effect that Sirdar Mahomed Ufzul Khan has arrived with his troops in Tashkirghan, and Sirdar Mahomed Azum Khan is at Khanabad, the inhabitants of which place have fled towards Budukhsan. As soon as Sirdar Mahomed Ufzul Khan goes to Koondooz, Sirdar Mahomed Azum Khan will march to Budukhsan. Sirdar Shere Ally Khan entertained the agent of the Bokhara King at his house.—Nov. 3.—Sirdar Mahomed Shereef Khan ordered his men not to allow any Candahar people to enter Cabul, and the inhabitants of the villages be allowed to go to their houses. Shah Pusund Khan, the head khasburdar of the Ameer, who had been sent with Sirdar Mahomed Shereef Khan to Indrab, returned to the Ameer, who asked him why he had returned. He replied that he has returned with Sirdar Mahomed Shereef Khan, with whom he had been sent. The Ameer was very angry, and ordered him to go back to Indrab immediately. He instantly marched with 200 Khasburdars and some ammunition to Indrab.—Nov. 4.—Sirdar Shere Ally Khan sent Turwur Khan Loharee and Naib Zoolfikar Khan to persuade Sirdar Mahomed Shereef Khan to obey the Ameer's orders, but he replied that he was going to Mecca, and would not serve the Ameer any more. Sirdar Peer Mahomed Khan entertained the Ameer and all his chiefs at his house. In the evening Mirza Ahd Khan, Sahebkar of Sirdar Mahomed Ufzul Khan, brought some of the new Jezailchees to be reviewed. The Ameer having reviewed them, gave them five rupees each for expenses, and ordered them to go to Balkh.—Nov. 5.—A servant of Sultan Ahmed Khan, ruler of Heerat, who has come on leave to Cabul, states that Sultan Ahmed Khan has confined Mahomed Ukrum Khan, son of Esakhan Khohee, because Mahomed Ukrum Khan, when ruler of Subzawar, tyrannised over his subjects, and because his sister was married to Sirdar Sultan Ally Khan, son of Sirdar Kohundil Khan, of Candahar, who always rewarded and granted khilluts to the people of Heerat; also because Mahomed Ukrum Khan and Esakhan were leagued with Sirdar Sultan Ally Khan, who, being dissatisfied with this conduct, had gone over to the King of Persia. Nov. 6.—Sirdar Shere Ally Khan having sent Sheredil Khan, Nazir Naem, and Mirza Ahd Khan to bring Mahomed Shereef Khan to the Ameer to have him pardoned, went himself to the Ameer and begged his forgiveness for Mahomed Shereef Khan; but the Ameer said that he did not wish to see Mahomed Shereef Khan's face, and will not pardon him unless he goes to Koondooz. Mahomed Shereef Khan replied that, whether the Ameer spare his life or not, he will not go to Turkistan. Nov. 7.—It was mentioned in the durbar that in Candahar a gold mine in the hills of Bala Walla has been discovered, and Sirdar

The serv. of the undermentioned officers are placed at the disposal of the govt. of the Punjab and its dependencies:—

Mahomed Azum Khan has ordered a regiment to watch over it. He himself goes there every morning, and returns in the evening after fixing his seal over the mine. At first it was discovered by a moolla, who extracted every day 80 miskals of gold, and sold it to two shroffs, who, having quarrelled among themselves, complained to the Sirdar, who summoned the moolla, and the moolla pointed out the place from whence he got this treasure.—Nov. 9.—Sirdar Peer Mahomed Khan represented that his contract of the mint of Cabul has ceased, and that he has lost Rs. 4,000 by it. On the Ameer asking him how he had lost Rs. 4,000, he replied that the merchants of Cabul take the kuldar coin to Bokhara and realise great profits there by it. The Ameer summoned Sirdar Khan Lohanee, and ordered him to levy a tax on all the coin the merchants have already taken to Bokhara and may take in future.—Nov. 10.—Sheer Ally Khan represented to the Ameer that by his Highness' going to Jellalabad in the winter his subjects are greatly oppressed by the sepoys; it was, therefore, necessary that the Ameer should remain in Cabul and order any of his other servants to go there.—Nov. 11.—The mother of Sirdar Mahomed Uslum Khan represented that she has received a letter from her son, requesting her to ask the Ameer to call him back from Koondooz. The Ameer sent for Sirdar Mahomed Hussun Khan and ordered him to go to Koondooz in place of his brother, Sirdar Mahomed Uslum Khan.—Nov. 12.—An urzee from Mirza Ibnulkhalig, son of Mirza Ahd Khan, was received, stating that Sirdar Mahomed Uslum Khan was coming to Cabul without the consent of Sirdars Mahomed Afzul Khan and Mahomed Azum Khan, who do not permit him to go, as the country has been recently conquered, and news of disturbances daily arrives from all quarters. The Ameer ordered Mirza Uskur Khan to write to Sirdar Mahomed Uslum, that if he will not remain a year more at Koondooz and obey Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan's orders, the Ameer will be greatly displeased with him. The Ameer ordered Sirdar Mahomed Hussun Khan to postpone his going to Koondooz. Sirdar Shere Ally Khan despatched the family of Sirdar Mahomed Ameen to Kandahar, keeping one of his wives at Cabul to remain with her son, Mahomed Ismael Khan, ruler of Kohistan.—Nov. 13.—Sirdar Sultan Mahomed Khan represented that he wishes to send his son, Dillojan, to Lughman, to take care of his estates there. The Ameer granted him permission.—Nov. 14.—The Kotwal represented that a man had died leaving property to the value of Rs. 360 and two shops. The Ameer ordered him to keep the property till the arrival of the brother from Balkh, who was in the service of Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan, and who was the sole heir of the property.—Nov. 15.—A merchant from Bokhara states that some valuable merchandise from Russia had arrived in Bokhara, and the King has made large purchases, as he is leagued with the Emperor of Russia. The people of Bokhara are afraid that if the Russians take possession of Bokhara they will murder them all.—Nov. 16.—Sirdar Shere Ally Khan begged the Ameer to pardon Sirdar Mahomed Shereef Khan, but the Ameer replied that he would not forgive him unless he goes to Turkistan. Sirdar Shere Ally Khan then proceeded to Mahomed Shereef Khan's house, and persuaded him to go to Turkistan, and when the latter had consented to do so, he asked him to go to the Ameer to pay his respects. He replied that he will never go to the Ameer, but proceed at once to Turkistan. The same day he marched off to Turkistan with a few followers, leaving all his troops at Cabul. The Ameer then wrote to Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan that he has this day despatched his younger brother, Mahomed Shereef Khan, who will soon join him, and requested him to be kind to him.—Nov. 17.—The two regiments of Sirdar Mahomed Azum Khan marched this day for Koondooz, under command of Mahomed Azeem, commandant of the 1st regiment. The Ameer ordered them to halt some days at Moozung till further orders. The Ameer proceeded to the Shahbagh, to inspect some mares there. Sirdar Shere Ally Khan was entertained by Surwur Khan, Lohanee, at his house, where the Sirdar remained till evening. Mirza Ahd Khan asked permission for the Bokhara Agent to proceed to his country. The Ameer replied that the Agent had received expenses for twenty days, after which time he would be allowed to go. Sirdar Nizamooddowla Khan, son of Nawab Mahomed Zuman Khan, represented that Shah Doolah Khan has written to him to give his compliments to the Ameer. The Ameer asked whether he has sent his paper. Nizamooddowla Khan replied that he had sent it to Balkh for Ameenooddowla Khan and the latter has sent it to him, but that he has lost it. On the Ameer persisting on having the paper, Nizamooddowla sent for it, and on perusing it, the Ameer was very angry, and said that Shah Doolah has degraded himself. The contents of the paper have not transpired. Fifteen camel loads of Candahar pomegranates and five of dates and figs, sent by Sirdar Mahomed Ameer Khan, from Candahar, for the Ameer and Sirdar Shere Ally Khan, arrived in Cabul this day.—Nov. 18.—An urzee from Sirdar Mahomed Uslum Khan was presented to the Ameer by Mahomed Hussun Khan, asking permission from the Ameer to come to Cabul, as he was not treated well by Sirdar Mahomed Azum Khan. At the same time an urzee from Sirdar Mahomed Azum Khan was presented by Mirza Ahd Khan, saying that Mahomed Uslum Khan complains falsely of the ill-treatment. The Ameer became very angry, and ordered Mirza Uskur Khan to write to Mahomed Uslum Khan that, if he ever again wrote anything against Mahomed Azum Khan or intended to come to Cabul, the Ameer will be displeased and employ him in cleaning his horses as a syce. Moolla Khan, the Bokhara agent, asked permission to go and see the Ameer's garden. The Ameer ordered Sirajooddeen Akhmoonzade to accompany and show him the garden.—Nov. 9.—A servant of Sirdar Mahomed Hossain Khan, who has recently arrived from Hameean, mentioned to Sirdar Mahomed Hussun Khan that he had met Mahomed Shereef Khan at Kurdundeewar, who told him that he was going to Herat by way of Dehzeurg. Mahomed Hussun Khan went and told the same to Sirdars Shere Ally Khan and Mahomed Usman Khan, who both consulted and wrote to Mahomed Shereef Khan to come back. They then went to the Ameer and begged him to write to Mahomed Shereef Khan to return back to Cabul. The Ameer replied that he would do nothing of the kind, and that he may go where he likes.—Nov. 20.—Intelligence from Turkistan is to the effect that Sirdar Mahomed Zuman Khan, son of the Ameer, and ruler of Talkan, having quarrelled with Sirdar Mahomed Azum Khan, proceeded with his troops towards Balkh, and on reaching the fort of Muzar Shereef, his former residence, and which was given by Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan to Ameenooddowla Khan to reside in, he asked the latter to leave the place. Ameenooddowla Khan replied that he would not give up the fort. On this preparations for war were made, but intelligence of the affair soon reached Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan, who immediately made for the place and interceded between them. He gave the fort to Mahomed Zuman Khan and took Ameenooddowla Khan to Tukhtabul.—Nov. 22.—News from Balkh is, that Sirdar Admud Khan, being straitened for his daily expenses having received nothing from Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan, and Sirdar Mahomed Zuman Khan having quarrelled with Ameenooddowla Khan, and Sirdar Mahomed Azum Khan having proceeded towards Tukhtabul, and the former having burnt his tent, Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan having heard of this sent men to persuade and bring them back, but they both refused either to return back or to go to Cabul. The cantonments which the Europeans had built at Bala Hissar, and which Sirdar Mahomed Ameen Khan had converted into stables for his horses, have been ordered by the Ameer to be re-built for the regiments of the late Wuzer Mahomed Akbur Khan.—Lahore Chronicle.

Rewards to Natives.

NOTIFICATION.

Foreign Dep., Gov. gen.'s Camp, Agra, Dec. 2.—On Tuesday, Nov. 29, H.E. the Viceroy and Gov. gen. held a durbar for the private reception of the princes and chiefs of Central India and Rajpootana.

The undermentioned princes and chiefs had audiences of H.E.:—

The Maharaja Sindhia of Gwalior.

The Maharaja of Jyepoor.

The Maharaja of Kerowly.

The Maha Rao Raja of Ulwur.

The Nawab of Tonk.

The Maharaja of Dholpoor.

The Nawab of Jowra.

The Maharaja of Bhudawur.

The Jageendar of Jussow.

Each chief was accompanied by a few of his nearest relations and of his principal officers of state.

On arrival and departure the Maharaja Sindhia received a salute of nineteen guns; the Maharajas Jyepoor and Kerowly each a salute of seventeen guns; the Maha Rao Raja of Ulwur, the Nawab of Tonk, and the Maharaja of Dholpoor each a salute of fifteen guns; and the Nawab of Jowra a salute of thirteen guns.

On Wednesday, Nov. 30, the abovementioned princes and chiefs, with their attendants, the principal native residents of the Agra division of the North-West Provinces, and the civil and military officers of Agra and the adjoining districts, were received by the Viceroy and Gov. gen. in open durbar.

When all were assembled, the Viceroy and Gov. gen., accompanied by H.E. the C. in C., entered and took his seat under a royal salute.

The Maharaja Sindhia of Gwalior sat on the right hand of the Viceroy and Gov. gen., and the Maharaja of Jyepoor on H.E.'s left hand.

Suitable khilluts were bestowed on all the native princes, chiefs, and gentlemen present, and the following rewards were given for loyalty to the British Government and good services during the rebellion:

* 1 commandant 1 acting sr. t. maj. 1 acting qmr. sergt.; 1 acting sergt., with the pay of sergt., for pay sergt.; 1 acting sergt., with the pay of sergt., for orderly-room clerk.

To the Maharaja Sindhia, increase of territory and exemption from some of the obligations imposed on the Gwalior State by the Treaty of 1844.

In conferring these rewards upon the Maharaja, the Viceroy and Gov. gen. addressed his highness in a few words.

To the Maharaja of Jyepoor, the Pergunnah of Kote-Kassin was given.

H.E. announced this gift to the Maharaja in a short speech.

To the Maharajah of Kerowly, a khillut of the value of Rs. 20,000, and remission of debts due to the British Government.

The Viceroy and Gov. gen. in conferring these rewards upon the Maharaja, publicly thanked his highness for the steady and active loyalty he evinced throughout the rebellion, especially in issuing a proclamation soon after the first disturbances broke out, declaring his own intention to adhere to the cause of the British Government, and calling upon his subjects to support him in sending troops to assist in preserving order in British territory, and afterwards in rendering assistance to the chief of Kotah at a critical juncture.

To the Maha Rao Raja of Ulwur, a khillut of the value of Rs. 20,000.

After investiture, the Viceroy and Gov. gen. addressed the Maha Rao Raja.

To the Nawab of Tonk, a khillut of the value of Rs. 20,000.

On investing the Nawab, the Viceroy and Gov. gen. thanked his highness for the aid he afforded to the British Government throughout the rebellion, and for his stout defence of the fort and town of Tonk against the rebel army under Tantia Topse. H.E. also assured the Nawab that the Pergunnah of Nimbhara, which passed during the disturbances into the hands of the Oodeypore State, would shortly be restored to him.

To the Nawab of Jowra, a khillut of the value of Rs. 20,000, an increase in his salute to thirteen guns, and a remission of a part of his highness's contribution towards the expense of the Malwa contingent.

The Viceroy and Gov. gen. thanked the Nawab for his steady attachment to the British Government, and for the exercise of his influence in supporting its authority in Malwa.

On investing the Maharaja of Dholpoor with his dress of honour, the Viceroy and Gov. gen. thanked him for the services he had rendered at the commencement of the rebellion in saving the lives of Christian subjects of the Queen, and for his personal loyalty to the British Government on all occasions, but H.E. exhorted the Maharaja to enforce his orders on the officers of his durbar, and not to allow Dholpoor to become an asylum for criminals accused of committing heinous crimes in British territory.

Rewards were also conferred by H.E. on the principal sirdars and ministers of the native states who were most forward in carrying out the orders of their several chiefs for the support of the Queen's troops and the maintenance of British authority.

To the Rao Raja Dinkur Rao Rughonath, Dewan and First Minister of the Maharaja of Sindhia, H.E. addressed a short speech.

The following rewards were also given:—

To Baba Mohurgurh, commander of the Maharaja Sindhia's troops, a khillut of the value of Rs. 5,000, and confiscated lands with a yearly rental of Rs. 2,000, free of revenue to Government in perpetuity.

To Baba Bulwunt Rao, commandant of the Maharaja Sindhia's troops, a khillut of the value of Rs. 5,000, and confiscated lands with a yearly rental of Rs. 2,000, free of revenue to Government in perpetuity.

To Moulavi Mohammed Nasir Khan, Nazim of the Maharaja Sindhia's Adalat, a khillut of the value of Rs. 5,000.

To Lala Sahib Sree Navas Gobind, the Vakeel of Maharaja Sindhia, a khillut of the value of Rs. 3,000.

To Resadlar Kazim Ali Khan, a khillut of the value of Rs. 2,000, and confiscated lands paying an annual revenue of Rs. 200 a year to Government.

To Thakoor Luchmun Sing, Minister of the Jyepoor State, a khillut of the value of Rs. 3,000.

To Nawab Fyz Alee Khan, Commander-in-Chief of the Jyepoor forces, a khillut of the value of Rs. 2,500.

To Pundit Shooddeen, private secretary to the Maharaja of Jyepoor, a khillut of the value of Rs. 2,500.

To Moulavi Mohinddeen Khan, magistrate of Jyepoor, a khillut of the value of Rs. 2,000.

To Bhopal Sing, an officer of the Jyepoor State, a khillut of the value of Rs. 1,500.

To Sobhay Sing, another officer of the Jyepoor State, a khillut of the value of Rs. 1,000.

To Capt. Jewun Ali, commandant of Jyepoor art., a khillut of the value of Rs. 1,200.

To Chummun Lall Dass, an officer of the Jyepoor State, a khillut of the value of Rs. 500.

To Thakoor Pertab Sing of Ludana in Jyepoor, a khillut of the value of Rs. 1,200.

To Ganga Sing, Vakeel of the Kerowly State, a khillut of the value of Rs. 1,000.

To Thakoor Lukindur Sing of Ulwur, a khillut of the value of Rs. 3,000.

To Nawab Khan Jehan Khan, a relative of the Nawab of Jowrah, for his services at the siege of Delhi, a khillat of the value of Rs. 1,500.

To Raja Jusuunt Rao Bahadur of Luckna, in zillah Etawah, a khillat of the value of Rs. 5,000, in addition to a jagher already granted to him.

After the concluding ceremonies, the Viceroy left his seat under a royal salute, accompanied by H.E. the C in C. The Maharajas of Gwalior and Jyepoor having been conducted from the tent, the assembly broke up.

On Thursday, Dec. 1, the Viceroy and Gov. gen., accompanied by the Secretary and Under-secretary to the Government of India, and by the officers of H.E.'s personal staff, paid return visits to the several princes and chiefs in succession at their respective encampments.

H.E. was met by the chiefs themselves, and by their principal ministers, in accordance with established custom, and was received at each encampment, both on arrival and departure, with a royal salute.

In each case the usual offerings were presented and accepted, and the customary ceremonies having been observed, H.E. retired.

By order of H.E. the Viceroy and Gov. gen. of India,

C. BEADON,
Sec. to the Govt. of India with the Gov. gen.

Return of the Madras and Bombay Troops.

Head Quarters, Camp, Agra, Nov. 28.—The Madras and Bombay troops that have been recently occupying stations in the Saur and Bundelcund territories, and the Gwalior division, will shortly return to their own presidencies.

Lord Clyde cannot permit them to quit Bengal without expressing his thanks for the useful service they have rendered during the past two years.

A portion of the Madras troops was employed in the autumn of 1857 in various parts of the Bengal presidency.

A detachment of the E troop native horse artillery and the C company Madras sappers and miners were engaged and distinguished at the relief of Lucknow; the sapper company subsequently remaining with General Sir J. Outram's force at Alumbagh, taking a part in the siege and capture of Lucknow, and being afterwards constantly employed in Oude, under Sir Hope Grant throughout the year 1858.

A portion of the C company 5th native batt. art. was present in the arduous struggle at Cawnpore in Nov., 1857; and, together with the detachment of the E troop Madras horse art. previously referred to, was at the action at Cawnpore in Dec., 1857, and subsequently served in the Futtehpore district.

Four guns of No. 2 Madras horse battery, manned by the A company 3rd Eur. batt., accompanied the force under General Franks, in his advance through Oude, and took part in the siege and capture of Lucknow; two guns of the battery having for many months formed the artillery portion of the detachment occupying the important post of Bunnee, in Oude. This company and battery subsequently took part in the operations in Azimgurh and Behar, under Sir E. Lugard, and in the final campaign in Oude last cold season.

Another portion of the C company 5th native batt. Madras art., the 4th and 6th regts. Madras L.C., the 17th and 27th regts. Madras N.I., and the corps of Madras rifles, have seen varied service, and been of much use in Chota Nagpore, in Shahabad, in Gornuckpore, in Oude, and in the Futtehpore district, and latterly have been employed in the occupation of Bundelcund.

The corps named in the margin,* forming, with a wing of the 12th royal lancera, H.M.'s 43rd L.I., and detachments of royal art., and of Hyderabad contingent cav., the force under Maj. gen. Sir G. C. Whitlock, partook of the various operations under the direction of that officer, and have since been employed in the reduction and occupation of Bundelcund and Saugor.

Of the Bombay troops in the Gwalior div., the sappers and miners, the 3rd lt. cav., and 24th N.I., were distinguished during the advance of the Central Indian f. f., under Maj. gen. Sir Hugh Rose, G.C.B., and have been since usefully employed at Jhansi and in the neighbourhood of that place.

The 10th N.I. saw much service, and was distinguished particularly when forming part of the column under Brigd. Smith.

The 9th N.I. has been employed on various services in Central India.

The whole of these troops now leaving Bengal, whether of Madras or Bombay, have gained additional credit for the armies to which they belong, and Lord Clyde congratulates them on being about to return to their own presidencies after a career of honourable service elsewhere.

By order of the Right hon. the C. in C.
D. M. STEWART, Lieut. col.,
Asst. adjt. gen. of the army.

The Victoria Cross.

WAR OFFICE, Jan. 20.

The Queen has been graciously pleased to signify her intention to confer the decoration of the Victoria Cross on the undermentioned officer and soldiers of her Majesty's army, whose claims to the same have been submitted for her Majesty's approval, on account of acts of bravery performed by them in India, as recorded against their several names, viz:—

60th Rifles.—Lieut. A. S. Heathcote—For highly gallant and daring conduct at Delhi throughout the siege, from June to September, 1857, during which he was wounded. He volunteered for services of extreme danger, especially during the six days of severe fighting in the streets after the assault. Elected by the officers of his regiment.

8th Hussars.—Troop serg. maj. J. Champion—For distinguished bravery at Bejapore on Sept. 8, 1858, when both the officers attached to the troop were disabled, and himself severely wounded at the commencement of the action by a ball through his body, in having continued at his duty forward, throughout the pursuit, and disabled several of the enemy with his pistol. Also recommended for distinguished conduct at Gwalior.

60th Rifles (1st Battalion).—Colour serg. G. Waller—For conspicuous bravery at Delhi on the 14th of September, 1857, in charging and capturing the enemy's guns near the Cabul Gate; and again, on the 18th of September, 1857, in the repulse of a sudden attack made by the enemy on a gun near the Chaudney Chouk. Elected by the non-commissioned officers of the regiment.

60th Rifles (1st Battalion).—Colour serg. S. Garvin—For daring and gallant conduct before Delhi on the 23rd of June, 1857, in volunteering to lead a small party of men, under a heavy fire, to the "Sammy House," for the purpose of dislodging a number of the enemy in position there, who kept up a destructive fire on the advanced battery of heavy guns, in which, after a sharp contest, he succeeded. Also recommended for gallant conduct throughout the operations before Delhi.

60th Rifles (1st Battalion).—Bugler W. Sutton—For gallant conduct at Delhi on the 13th of September, 1857, the night previous to the assault, in volunteering to reconnoitre the breach. This soldier's conduct was conspicuous throughout the operations, especially on the 2nd of August, 1857, on which occasion, during an attack by the enemy in force, he rushed forward over the trenches, and killed one of the enemy's buglers, who was in the act of sounding. Elected by the privates of the regiment.

60th Rifles (1st Batt.)—Private J. Divane—For distinguished gallantry in heading a successful charge made by the Beeloochees and Sikh troops on one of the enemy's trenches before Delhi, on the 10th of September, 1857. He leaped out of our trenches, closely followed by the native troops, and was shot down from the top of the enemy's breastworks. Elected by the privates of the regiment.

60th Rifles (1st Batt.)—Private J. Thompson—For gallant conduct in saving the life of his captain (Capt. Wilton), on the 9th of July, 1857, by dashing forward to his relief, when that officer was surrounded by a party of Ghazees, who made a sudden rush on him from a serai—and killing two of them before further assistance could reach. Also recommended for conspicuous conduct throughout the siege. Wounded. Elected by the privates of the regiment.

60th Rifles (1st Battalion).—Private S. Turner—For having, at Delhi, on the night of the 19th of June, 1857, during a severe conflict with the enemy, who attacked the rear of the camp, carried off on his shoulders, under a heavy fire, a mortally wounded officer, Lieutenant Humphreys, of the Indian Service. During this service Private Turner was wounded by a sabre cut in the right arm. His gallant conduct saved the above-named officer from the fate of others, whose mangled remains were not recovered until the following day.

10th Regiment.—Private J. Kirk—For daring gallantry at Benares, on the 4th of June, 1857, on the outbreak of the mutiny of the native troops at that station, in having volunteered to proceed with two non-commissioned officers to rescue Capt. Brown, pension paymaster, and his family, who were surrounded by rebels in the compound of their house; and having, at the risk of his own life, succeeded in saving them.

CORRESPONDENCE.

INDIAN SECURITIES.

TO THE EDITOR OF ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

DEAR SIR.—Reading a letter in your last issue upon the value of Indian securities, induces me to ask another question relating to the same subject.

Bills on Calcutta given at the India House in payment of interest due upon 5 and 5½ per cent. paper are negotiable at two shillings the rupee, whereas, in your published "India exchanges," India Government Bills on Bengal, at 60 days' sight, are quoted at 2s. 2d. the rupee.

You would render an important service to many of your readers if you would publish instructions as to the best method of dealing with these bills, for the guidance of those who, on leaving Calcutta, have had their Government Securities enfac'd for payment of interest in London.—I am, sir, your obedient servant,

January, 1860.

A SUBSCRIBER.

[Our correspondent appears not to be aware that the Secretary of State for India grants bills on the Treasury of Bengal for the amount of interest due upon the enfac'd paper, not at any rate of exchange, but for the sum due in rupees. The cash can at once be obtained for these bills from any of the Indian banks, or from Mr. James Low, 5, Austin Friars, who will always purchase at the exchange of the day.—ED. A.I.M.]

AN EXCHANGE HALL.—The proprietors of the Bombay Times and Standard have resolved to open an exchange hall for the accommodation of the merchants and ship-masters of the island. The large hotels and the "broker" system have hitherto rendered such an exchange unnecessary in Calcutta. The merchants already have their exchange, and the ship-masters use the hotels, or frequent the offices to which their ships are consigned. The leading mercantile firms of Bombay have agreed to support the project. The subscription is Rs. 5 a-month, or Rs. 50 a-year. The hall is to be the focus of all mercantile and telegraphic news from Europe and the East.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

PRIMARY CHARGE OF THE LORD BISHOP OF CALCUTTA.

On the principle of "better late than never," we venture, even at the eleventh hour, to lay before our readers an outline of the excellent charge addressed by Bishop Cotton to his clergy, and dedicated to the Venerable J. H. Pratt, M.A., Archdeacon of Calcutta, "in grateful acknowledgment of his cordial welcome, his ever-ready help and counsel, and his Christian example." After a few introductory remarks on the present position of the Church in India, and on the strength and union to be derived from partaking of the Holy Communion, the right reverend prelate proceeds to set forth in order the four groups of subjects he proposes to discuss. These are—the relation in which the Indian Government stands to Christianity, especially with regard to education; the part to be borne by individuals and societies towards educating the natives; the general progress of missionary enterprise; and, lastly, the spiritual condition of the European community, and the duties of the clergy appointed to minister to them.

A strong objection is raised, at the outset, to a phrase inserted in a recent official report on education, which declares it to be "as unmeaning to talk of a Christian Government as it would be to talk of a Christian system of police, or a Christian system of roads and canals." The object of Government, says the report, is simply to afford protection to life and property, and to facilitate "the production and distribution of the material means of happiness." It was certainly travelling beyond the legitimate province of an educational report to introduce Warburton's theory on the nature and purport of Government, and with still less propriety it is assumed that this theory is universally received as indisputable truth. As Bishop Cotton well observes, instead of being admitted as fact, this theory is opposed to those even of the heathen philosophers Plato and Aristotle, who, "though they differ from each other as to the mode of a State's formation, yet agree as to the moral objects which it should set before itself when it is formed." The greatest English writers of all ages have taught a totally different doctrine, and even the report itself is inconsistent with itself, for if the province of Government be restricted to practical and material objects, how can it be called upon to "establish lectures on poetry, ethics, and history, which certainly do not either protect life or produce food?" Archbishop Whately, indeed, has enunciated an almost equally narrow view of the duties of the State, but even he insists that "the Christian is to act in all the relations of life, in whatever circumstances he is placed, on Christian principles." Consequently, "a Government composed of Christian men can never free itself from Christian responsibilities." As to the sneering remark that one might as well talk of a Christian system of roads as of a Christian system of government, the one refers to animate and rational beings, the other to inanimate things, so that no real analogy exists between them. But, adds the Bishop, with very pardonable sarcasm, "perhaps, with regard to roads, some of our English shareholders would have found it advantageous if even railway companies had allowed themselves to be Christians, and had acted on Christian motives in conducting their affairs." The theory in question, moreover, implies a very vague and imperfect comprehension of Christianity, which is assuredly something more than "a mere collection of abstract doctrines and ritual observances." It is either the one true religion, the one revelation of God to man, or it is a worthless imposture, "for unless it is everything, it is nothing—it must be either a human tradition, or the Divine code which claims to regulate in moral questions all earthly institutions." It must not, however, be thence inferred that it is the duty of the British Government to "involve itself in religious and proselytising enterprises." It is bound, indeed, to frame its public acts "in the spirit of truth, righteousness, and mercy, and it should require of its officers and representatives that they do no discredit to Christianity by leading immoral lives." But beyond persuasion and example, there is no lawful method of propagating the Christian faith. All manner of coercion, whether by threats or promises, is utterly wrong, and wholly opposed to the spirit of true religion.

"Therefore we repudiate all wish to reward converts for their Christianity by any undue favour, such as a preference to Government appointments beyond the just claims of diligence, good moral conduct, and fitness for the work; and we quite admit that Government ought to stand aloof from the propagation of Christianity in this country, because it is scarcely possible for any Government, at least in Asia, to avoid the unintentional exercise of a stronger influence than persuasion."

His lordship then passes on to the vexed question as to the introduction of the Bible into Government schools, and vindicates Lord Stanley's celebrated despatch from the charge of being "a scandal to a Christian country and pregnant with terrible results." In the first place, it was little more than a repetition of the educational despatch of 1854; and secondly, it sanctioned the study of the Bible if quite voluntary and conducted out of regular school hours. And to show that this permission is not a dead letter, the Bishop quotes two facts from Mr. Venn's pamphlet—the one being that the first and second class of the Government College at Agra receive religious instruction on Sunday at their own request;—and the other, that the students of the Dacca College have applied to one of their teachers to instruct them in the New Testament every Sunday morning. It is true that in Ceylon the study of the Bible forms part of the regular Governmental course of education, and that a class for religious instruction is held every morning for half an hour previous to the secular teaching. But, after all, attendance at this class is quite voluntary, and it is also worthy of notice that the teachers of the Government schools in Ceylon are invariably Christians, whereas in India a Christian teacher in a zillah school is a rare exception; and it cannot be desirable that the truths of Christianity should be expounded by an unbeliever. His lordship then sums up the whole question:—

"Strictly speaking, education must be the work of the Church, helped and encouraged by the State; but as this is at present impossible in India, the best substitute is that the professors and masters should be persons who will silently diffuse a moral and religious influence over their teaching. We do not indeed want them to proselytise. It would be most dishonourable for them, at least in their public instructions, to attempt it. But they should be persons who in all their teaching, and still more in the daily example which they set before their pupils, will show that they are Christians, and that they believe Christianity to be in two senses universal—universal as to the classes and races for whom it is designed, and universal as to the subjects over which it claims to be supreme."

It must be remembered that if secular and religious education had not been, as it were, divorced at the outset, the Hindoo would never have been induced to accept instruction at the hands of those whom he considered as unclean. Great and sure progress has been made since the Rev. James Thomason submitted to Lord Hastings in 1841 his scheme for the foundation of the Hindoo College, and which was "carefully divested of a missionary character, the object being simply to instruct the natives in the English language, literature, and science." It is better, therefore, to continue to advance steadily and perseveringly, without giving offence or alarming the susceptibilities of the natives, than to make open demonstrations of a proselytising and so far intolerant tendency. To judge fairly of the present attitude of the Government, it should be contrasted with that assumed less than half a century ago. "In 1812 a missionary to British India could find no rest for the sole of his foot except in the Danish settlement of Serampore, or the heathen kingdom of Ava," and in 1813 Warren Hastings declared in the presence of the House of Commons that he had "heard of the conversion of one Indian."

"But now"—exclaims the Bishop—"we can plant missions all over the country, when and where we will; we can obtain Government help for schools in which the Bible is taught to every scholar; we can bring our books and our teaching to bear on every class of the population."

"From this"—continues his lordship—"it follows that we should do our utmost to avail ourselves of the present system by fresh educational efforts, for which grants-in-aid may be demanded; that we should try wherever we can through private influence to bring into operation the permission conceded to Government teachers of explaining the Bible to voluntary classes; and that, where this is impossible, we should ourselves do more for the young educated Hindoo. Let us seek for access to them; let us study their characters, their prejudices, their wants, their difficulties; and when in any Government school there is no teacher able and willing to meet the desire of any students for instruction in Christianity, let some minister of Christ be at hand to supply his place, just as one of our missionaries at Burdwan has gathered round him a few young men from the purely heathen school of the Maharaja. Lastly, it is of the highest importance for us to influence the educational department, by training up native Christians, who may be fit for employment in Government schools, and pointing out to men of high principles in the English Universities that great opportunities for usefulness are open to them by becoming candidates for the more important appointments."

With regard to the Sonthal Schools Bishop Cotton deeply regrets the order issued by the late Court of Directors prohibiting all Government aid to the Sonthal Schools of the Church Missionary Society, because in no case could the suspicion of proselytism be more safely disregarded than in that of an uncivilised tribe with extremely vague notions on religious matters. His lordship likewise deplores another order of the Court which forbade students of the University in the examination for honours in moral sciences to take up voluntary subjects, such as the works of Butler and Paley. Candidates, indeed, might be examined on these subjects, but they were not to be entitled to any marks or credit for any proficiency they might evince. Strong remonstrances, however, had been sent home to the Secretary of State to cancel this order, which threw a certain degree of ridicule upon the whole examination.

The word "neutrality" is regarded by the worthy prelate as particularly objectionable. The royal proclamation avoids the use of it, though promising the most ample tolerance and complete abstinence from intervention. There is, in fact, no neutral ground between Hindooism and Christianity, and the Government has actually departed from neutrality by forbidding certain practices of the Hindoo religion as immoral and improper in a civilised country. The principle of official non-intervention, however, is sound and just. "Coercion and favouritism are alike un-Christian. Our heathen fellow-subjects have an undeniable right to demand, in simple justice, that no civil or military functionary should use his public position for the purpose of making converts."

With regard to grants-in-aid to missionary schools, the Bishop of Calcutta adopts the views of the late Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, which he strengthens by an argument that must be allowed to have some force. The tendency of a zealous missionary, says his lordship, might be to neglect secular in favour of religious instruction, but this tendency would be controlled by the Government Inspector and the conditions of the grants-in-aid. But a missionary of this stamp is not easily kept in check by any considerations. Headstrong, narrow-minded, blinded by his mission, he despises common sense, and looks upon natural causes and means as antagonistic to the teaching of the Divine Spirit through his own instrumentality. With all due deference for the experience of Mr. Halliday and the undoubted judgment of Bishop Cotton, we are still disposed to adhere to the admirable letter and memorandum published not long since by Lord Ellenborough and Sir George Clerk. The Bishop himself admits that the grants-in-aid system is unsuited for the purposes of vernacular education, though this is really the first great want to be supplied. At present not more than two per cent. of the rural population of Bengal know how to read or write, so that it is mere waste of time and money to distribute Bibles and tracts among them, for "those who have never been taught to reflect at all can hardly understand why the service of Christ is better than that of Siva or Kali."

Dr. Cotton then goes on to express his approval of the objects aimed at by the Christian Vernacular Education Society, and an entirely opposite feeling to the proposal to "make use of the best (training) institutions of various missionary societies in different parts of India, and to extend the benefits of the selected schools to the missions of other Christian denominations in the neighbourhood, by sending pupils from them for instruction to the favoured institutions." The plan is admitted to have a Catholic and unsectarian air, but it is reasonably doubted if it could be found to answer in practice. It is highly desirable to maintain a friendly intercourse between the various denominations of Christians in India, but this is not likely to be the more cordial, because "ministers of different persuasions acquire, for the sake of their pupils, a kind of title to interfere with the management of a training school." Training schools are excellent institutions in themselves, but the first and most urgent necessity is the establishment of Christian vernacular schools in connection with the missions.

"If the multitudes of India are to be Christian, they must be raised from their present extreme degradation; the work of missionaries would be half done if the mass of the people could read and reason with tolerable intelligence. They must be taught to discern the difference between good and evil before they can see that Christ is the representative of the one, and that the other is enshrined in their own idolatry."

In Bengal the prospect is described as by no means encouraging, so far as general missionary work is concerned. Among the older of the educated natives there appears to be setting in "a reaction from latitudinarian indifference to the strict principles of Hindoo orthodoxy," while the younger men manifest "a readiness to admit certain truths in theory without accepting their practical consequences." During the last cold season the missionaries were not unfrequently insulted by the peasantry, and for the most part encountered positive hostility. Curiously enough, both Hindoo and Mahomedan boys speak of Christianity as "the true religion," and even state the evidence in favour of the Christian religion with much intelligence, and yet neither accept its doctrines nor attempt to practise its precepts. Some of the native converts, again, wear their new religion very airily, and an anecdote is mentioned of some Christian families in the district of Krishnagar, of whom great things had been expected, who, to gratify a private grudge against a particular catechist, called in a Roman Catholic priest, and afterwards endeavoured to justify the proceeding by the argument that "the Roman Catholic body must be the true Church, because we find in the Creed, I believe in the Holy Catholic Church." They assigned, indeed, twenty other reasons, the most cogent of which were that "boys in the Protestant school do not get clothes and dinner free, that early marriages are discouraged, and that no pensions are given to superannuated teachers."

The importance of a native pastorate is freely acknowledged, but Dr. Cotton considers that a knowledge of English is almost indispensable in a native pastor, and sets his face against the idea that any advantage is gained by encouraging "a lower order of clergy, of a more homely type for work among the poor." It is impossible to acquire a competent knowledge of theology without a certain familiarity with the English language. The Bible and a few explanatory or illustrative books may be studied in the vernacular, but no acquaintance can be formed with the works of the great English divines without the power of reading them in their own tongue.

The Bishop next repudiates the idea enunciated in the "Calcutta Review" that the missionaries ought to go about as fakirs, and denies that asceticism is a virtue inculcated by the Gospel. The missionaries, however, should make themselves master of Hindoo literature, so as to be able to rivet the attention of their hearers by apt quotations from their own favourite poems, such as the "Ramayana" and "Mahabharata," which contain many passages of a high and pure morality.

The last head of this admirable discourse refers to European congregations. If men are no longer required to attest the sincerity of their religious convictions by martyrdom, they are bound, especially in India, to prove it by self-denial and the purity of their lives.

"Now," says the worthy bishop, "it cannot be denied that the example of many so-called Christians in India must hinder rather than further the progress of Christ's gospel. No doubt things are better than in the days when Job Charnock, the founder of Calcutta, offered a heathen sacrifice on the tomb of his wife, when the Baptist missionaries who were collecting funds for a chapel were told that it was a matter of indifference whether a man worshipped God in a church, a heathen temple, or a Mahomedan mosque, and when an acute contemporary observer declared it to be impossible that we could long retain India from 'the inhuman manner in which we wielded the sceptre.' But still if we estimate our own conduct by a standard very far below that which convinced Justin Martyr, we could hardly bid the Hindoos judge of the truth of Christianity by what they see around them, on the principle that the tree is known by its fruits. In spite of all our boasted civilisation, the reports of our courts of justice sometimes contain fearful revelations as to the lives led by nominal Christians in India, and terrible results of their intercourse with the native population. So, too, great mischief must be caused by the ill-treatment and abusive language to which the natives are sometimes obliged to submit. These offences, indeed, are generally committed either by men of little moral or mental culture, who find themselves invested with almost uncontrolled power over their fellow-creatures, or by thoughtless young officers recently arrived from England. They are, I trust and believe, exceptional, and I will therefore allude to them no further than to remind the chaplains, especially of military stations, that it is their duty to God, to England, and to India alike, to use all their influence to check them."

His lordship then makes some extremely sensible remarks on the necessity of treating converts with gentleness and forbearance, and of preaching in a more practical manner than is customary with the English clergy. The state of Calcutta next comes under review, a city of hovels as well as of lordly mansions, and in which there exists a considerable population of Europeans and Eurasians steeped in abject poverty.

"There can be no city where there is more need for the constant visitations of an active body of clergy and scripture readers than Calcutta. It is now one of the chief mercantile cities of the British empire, in population it is said to be only second to London itself; from its position, its commerce, its importance as the capital of India, and the chief point of contact between Asia and Europe, it has become like imperial Rome, a colluvies omnium gentium: not only the native population, but English and East Indian and descendants of the old Portuguese settlers, or of the slaves whom they imported, and sailors, and traders to and from all nations are here mingled together in temporal and spiritual want. No one can attend a meeting of the District Charitable Society without perceiving how much work there is for the clergy of a distinctly pastoral character, and that too of a most difficult kind. They have to encounter faults and peculiarities to which in England they are unaccustomed, and they do not meet with those which are most common at home. From early marriages and frequent deaths, they find families in strange and unnatural relations; widows who have hardly ceased to be girls, step-mothers charged with the care of their husband's children, before they are well able to take care of themselves."

The inadequacy of the Church Establishment in India to do the work required at its hands is clearly shown and deeply lamented:—

"During this last year the deficiency has been absolutely deplorable. In theory, no doubt, the effective force of our ecclesiastical establishment is much greater than it ever has been before, but though the despatch of the late Secretary of State, promising a permanent supply of eighty chaplains, with ten supernumeraries, was dated February 8th, not a single one of these already gazetted has yet arrived in India; and as during the hot season and the rains some already in the country have necessarily broken down through illness, we have at present such stations as Umritsur, Dinapore (with three hundred men in hospital), and Howrah, absolutely vacant; Agra, Allahabad, Benares, Cawnpore, Meerut, Peshawur (with all the contiguous stations, Attock, Campbellpore, and Nowahera), left with one chaplain only, liable at any time to fall ill from overwork; no chaplain at all for the territory beyond the Indus; and only four for the great province of Oude, which contains seven stations, thronged with European troops."

The remaining portion of the Lord Bishop's Charge having already appeared in these columns, it would be superfluous to reproduce it in a summary. A more appropriate charge was probably never delivered, and, considering how very brief has been his lordship's acquaintance with India, it is most creditable to his industry, zeal, and ability.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—JAN. 24.

On Tuesday, the 24th instant, her Majesty opened Parliament in person. The Speech from the Throne contained the following passages relating to China, India, and Japan:—

"My Plenipotentiary and the Plenipotentiary of the Emperor of the French having, in obedience to their instructions, proceeded to the mouth of the Peiho river, in order to repair to Peking to exchange in that city the ratifications of the Treaty of Tien-tsin, in pursuance of the LVIIth Article of that Treaty, their further progress was opposed by force, and a conflict took place between the Chinese forts at the mouth of the river, and the naval forces by which the Plenipotentiaries were escorted.

"The allied forces displayed on this occasion their usual bravery, but after sustaining a severe loss, were compelled to retire.

"I am preparing, in concert and co-operation with the Emperor of the French, an expedition, intended to obtain redress and a fulfilment of the stipulations of the Treaty of Tien-tsin.

"It will be gratifying to me, if the prompt acquiescence of the Emperor of China in the moderate demands which will be made by the Plenipotentiaries shall obviate the necessity for the employment of force.

"I have directed that papers on this subject shall be laid before you.

"The last embers of disturbance in my East Indian dominions have been extinguished; my Viceroy has made a peaceful progress through the districts which had been the principal scene of disorder, and by a judicious combination of firmness and generosity my authority has been everywhere solidly, and, I trust, permanently established. I have received from my Viceroy the most gratifying accounts of the loyalty of my Indian subjects, and of the good feeling evinced by the native chiefs and the great landowners of the country. The attention of the Government in India has been directed to the development of the internal resources of the country; and I am glad to inform you that an improvement has taken place in its financial prospects.

"I have concluded a Treaty with the Tycoon of Japan."

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JAN. 24.

INDIA.

The SPEAKER announced that he had received from Lord Canning, her Majesty's Viceroy in India, letters acknowledging the Vote of Thanks passed by this House on the 14th of April last. The Resolutions of the House had been published in General Orders, and communicated to the several officers, civil and military, to whom they referred. Letters of acknowledgment from Lord Elphinstone, Governor of Bombay, and from the other governors and commanders specially named in the Resolutions of the House, were also read.

THE ARMY IN INDIA.

Colonel SYKES gave notice that, on Tuesday week, he would move for a copy of the Report of the Committee on the Reorganisation of the Army of India, and for other documents relating to that subject.

FINANCES OF INDIA.

Mr. VANSITTART gave notice of his intention, on an early day, to move for a Select Committee on the finances of India.

INDIAN PRIZE MONEY.

The Earl of ELLENBOROUGH observed that as it was now nearly two years and a half since the recapture of Delhi by the British troops, he might be excused for repeating a question he had put in the course of the previous session, viz.:—Whether any measure had yet been adopted with a view to the distribution of the property captured by the army in India during the war of the mutiny; and upon what principles such distribution, if intended, was to be made.

The Duke of AROLYL replied that the answer given to the question by the noble earl who was at the head of the government when it was last put, explained the principle upon which the distribution would proceed, viz., that all the property captured by the army being in the hands of mutineers, and which property was forfeited to the State, should be given to the army as prize money; but with the very proper reservation that property captured belonging to persons who could prove their loyalty should be deducted from the amount and returned. The work of deciding what was due under these circumstances was peculiar and complicated, and it need not be a matter of surprise to their lordships that the Indian Government had not yet been able finally to decide the amount of prize money that was due. As to part, the amount had been ascertained, but not the whole; every endeavour would, however, be made to complete the settlement, and give to the army the reward they had so well earned.

The Earl of ELLENBOROUGH wished to know on what principle the distribution was to take place, whether those who were not actually in the fight, but were present, and for all practical purposes must be considered to have belonged to the army by which the property was captured, would be entitled, as well as those who were actually engaged?

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JAN. 27.

BANKS IN INDIA.

Mr. R. CRAWFORD moved for copies of the Acts passed by the Governor-general of India in Council for the incorporation and regulation of the banks of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay.

DELHI AND LUCKNOW PRIZE-MONEY.

Mr. J. A. TURNER asked the Secretary of State for India whether any and what steps had been taken towards effecting the payment of the prize-money due to the troops engaged in the capture of Delhi and Lucknow, and when it was probable that the money would be forthcoming?

Sir C. WOOD said, with regard to the Delhi prize money, Government had not received from India a statement of the amount, there being some difficulty in ascertaining what came legitimately under the description of prize. As soon as that was settled, the Government would be informed what the amount was, and then they should proceed to a distribution. With regard to the Lucknow prize-money they received a statement of the amount a day or two ago, and measures were now being taken for making the usual application to her Majesty to declare the prizes.

PROMISSORY NOTES IN INDIA.

Mr. R. CRAWFORD asked the Secretary of State for India whether he had under his consideration any plans or proposals for authorising and regulating, by means of a bank or otherwise, the issue of promissory notes payable on demand in India.

Sir C. WOOD said this was a measure that had been discussed some time in India, and last year a despatch was received on the subject. He could not say, however, that he agreed with the despatch, or that he was prepared with any measure for the establishment of a paper currency in India, though he thought it desirable that one should be established.

PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION (INDIA) BILL.

Sir C. WOOD obtained leave to bring in a Bill to regulate probate and administration with respect to certain Indian government securities; to repeal certain stamp duties; and to extend the operation of the Act of the 22nd and 23rd Vict. c. 39, to Indian Bonds.

Mr. H. BAILLIE wished to ask whether the Government meant to repeal a clause in the Trustees Act of last session, which had been held not to extend to property in India. He thought this was a first step towards an Imperial guarantee of Indian securities.

Mr. CRAWFORD asked whether the effect of the Bill would be to enable owners of property in India to deal with that property either in this country or in India?

Mr. MALINS deprecated any alteration of the law which would place Indian stock in a different position from that which it now held. A noble and learned lord (St. Leonards) had expressed his determination to procure the repeal of the provisions of the Act of last session; but he hoped the Government would not support that proposal.

Mr. GREGSON recommended some simplification in the terms of the late Indian loan.

Mr. AYRTON understood that the object of the Bill was to render promissory notes drawn and payable in India subject to the probate law of this country; and in this view he approved of the measure.

After a few words from Mr. A. MILLS,

Sir C. WOOD stated in explanation that the Lord Chancellor had held that the recently created Indian stock did not come under the same denomination as the original Indian stock; and it was to enable holders of that stock to administer to it in this country that the Bill was proposed.

Leave was given to bring in the Bill.

INDIAN SECURITIES.—The Daily News publishes the following letter from a correspondent at Norwich, signed with the initials E. C. M.—“In reference to your article in Friday's paper upon the drain of bullion occasioned partly by the purchase of the rupee paper, yours is doubtless the correct view of the matter (which has been overlooked in a quarter where one would expect to find reliable information), viz.: that the Indian markets will probably rise so as to make the purchase of this paper no longer a profitable transaction here. Allow me also to point out to your numerous readers the fact that the Indian Government have the power to pay off this loan in Calcutta, by giving six months' notice, which, of course, they will do as soon as they can get the money at 4 or 4½ per cent., instead of 5, which doubtless they will be able to do, and before long, and the knowledge that the Government possess this power already begins to operate with those who would otherwise be purchasers. It was said some short time since that Indian bank notes were to be made 'legal tender.' If this was done, surely the drain of gold would be considerably lessened. In conclusion, allow me to call the attention of your readers to the probability that at no very distant date the Indian Government will be able to raise money that may be wanted for railways, &c., at 4 or 4½ per cent. Therefore those who purchase Indian securities, should turn their attention to the present Five per Cent. Indian Guarantees, which are already in this country, and which cannot be paid off.”

NAVIGATORS TURNED NAVVIES.—Sailors are now being employed in the excavations for the main drainage in the Dhurrumtollah road. It is rather a novel sight for Calcutta to see the British tar going through his work in the sun, with pickaxe in hand. This change will doubtless be productive of much good, as affording honest means of support to some of the large number of unemployed sailors at present in Calcutta, and thereby tend, in no little measure, to the decrease of crime.

JAMS, JELLIES, and MARMALADE,

By BARNES, MORGAN, and Co.

(the Originators of this method of preserving), Upper Thames-street, London, E.C. This mode of Preserving is now acknowledged to be far superior to any yet invented. The contents will keep good for any number of years without the Tin imparting any metallic taste to the Preserve, and never candy or ferment. To Regimental Messes they are peculiarly adapted, being more portable than jars, and not liable to breakage. B. M. and Co. would also recommend their Pickles, Sauces, Tort Fruits, &c., and their large stock of York and Cumberland Hams, Cheeses, and Bacon.

NELSON'S MEDICATED BELT.

(Ed. Nelson, Naval Surgeon from 1832 to 1857.) Gentlemen who are subject to pains in the back or loins, Rheumatism, Lumbago, or who are given to corpulency, are advised to wear NELSON'S MEDICATED BELT, as it gives a great support to the entire frame, and a comfortable and genial warmth to the back and abdomen, promoting health and digestion. Gentlemen who ride for business or pleasure should wear this Belt as a preventive of Rupture, &c.

NELSON'S MEDICATED MARINE BELT for the prevention of Sea Sickness and the support of the back and loins during a long voyage.

"All those whose duty or pleasure calls them to sea should possess this Belt, for, putting aside its use on board ship, it is invaluable as a Riding Belt, fitting easily, and supporting the back."

"Lower Parade, Leamington, August 3. 1858." These Belts are sold by Mr. WHITBURN, Chemist, 174, Regent-street, price 21s. each, or direct from the Maker, WM. ELSTAB, 13, Avery-row, New Bond-street. Circulars free. Orders from the country must have the size of waist and hips, and a Post-office Order for 21s., payable to WM. ELSTAB, at Cavendish-street.

These Belts can be had of any tailor.

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE, Bottled for Exportation, may be procured at all times, in the most suitable condition for all climates, from F. FRIEND and Co., 2, Abchurch-lane, who bottle only ALLSOPP'S ALE and solely for shipment.

Preparing for publication, in One Volume Octavo,

BY J. R. YOUNG,

A COURSE OF MATHEMATICS, PURE AND MIXED,

More especially designed for the Use of Candidates for the

MILITARY & CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

WITH A VARIETY OF PROBLEMS IN, AND PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS OF THE FOLLOWING SUBJECTS:

1. ALGEBRA, TRIGONOMETRY, AND MENSURATION.
2. ANALYTICAL GEOMETRY (CONIC SECTIONS), STATISTICS, DYNAMICS, AND HYDROSTATICS.
3. THE DIFFERENTIAL AND INTEGRAL CALCULUS, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c., &c.

The object of this work is to furnish Candidates for the Military and Civil Service Examinations with such a practical knowledge of Pure and Mixed Mathematics as may prove most serviceable to them in the course of the ordeal to which they are about to be subjected. On such occasions a mere theoretical acquaintance with principles is by no means sufficient. It is also necessary that the young aspirant should have been trained by actual experiments, as it were, to the application of the abstract rules, the enunciation of which he has otherwise mastered only by an effort of memory. To assist him in thus gathering the fruits of his intellectual industry, Mr. J. R. YOUNG has devised a multitude of problems, of greater or less difficulty, in Algebra, Trigonometry, Mensuration, Analytical Geometry (Conic Sections) Statics, Dynamics, Hydrostatics, the Differential and Integral Calculus, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c. The chief peculiarity of this work, however, is one that will recommend it to a very large class of students. The most difficult questions are rendered comparatively easy, by the practical simplifications that are introduced in their mode of solution. Instead of a pompous and puzzling display of technical phraseology, the utmost care has been taken to explain the most knotty points in a plain, unaffected manner, intelligible to every ordinary capacity. In this respect, Mr. Young's "Course of Mathematics" will be found to possess a decided superiority over all preceding works on the same subject.

London: WM. H. ALLEN and Co., 7, Leadenhall-street.

UNFURNISHED HOUSES at CLAPHAM COMMON.

Mr. McLACHLAN, of 35, St. James's-street and Clapham-common, is instructed to LET THREE HOUSES in the GROVE, adjoining that beautiful spot, Clapham-common. They consist of dining, breakfast, and double drawing-rooms, and five bed-rooms, with the usual domestic offices, coach-house, stable, &c. The houses have just been put into thorough substantial and ornamental repair, and are fit for immediate occupation. The locality is highly respectable; and as the rents are moderate, and several Indian families reside in the neighbourhood, Mr. McLachlan begs to recommend the houses to the attention of families recently arrived from India. The drainage is warranted. Omnibuses to West-end and City pass constantly. One mile to the Balham Station, for Pimlico, Crystal Palace, Brighton, &c.

TO INDIANS.—To be LET, Furnished, a most comfortable HOUSE, suited for a small family, within a mile of Hampton-court Railway. It is well situated facing the south, on rising ground and gravelly soil, with a small Garden attached, and the use of a Meadow. It is perfectly dry and warm. Five bed-rooms, two sitting-rooms, and the usual offices. Rent for three months, £25.
Address A. M., 16, Regent-street, S.W.

OUTFITS TO INDIA.—Families requiring PLATE, CUTLERY, &c., will find SLACK'S ELECTRO-PLATE the most durable. It is generally used by the principal Officers in H.M.S., also by his Excellency Lord CLYDE, Commander-in-Chief.

WORKS IN THE HINDUSTANI LANGUAGE,

BY

PROFESSOR OF ORIENTAL LANGUAGES IN KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON; MEMBER OF THE ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND, &amp;c.

REDUCED IN PRICE.

The indisputable superiority of this Series of Works to all others of the same kind having created a demand very far beyond their most sanguine expectations, the Publishers take the opportunity to testify their gratitude for the public favour so unequivocally manifested, by making a considerable REDUCTION IN THEIR PRICES. They are further encouraged to take this step by the consideration of the greatly-increased number of Europeans who will henceforth be located in India, and to whom the possession of these Works may be regarded as indispensable. Serviceable to all, they will be found especially adapted to meet the requirements of Officers of her Majesty's Army serving in India.

DICTIONARY, HINDUSTANI-ENGLISH and ENGLISH-HINDUSTANI. Second Edition, greatly enlarged, and revised throughout. By D. FORBES, LL.D. In One Vol. royal 8vo, price in cloth, £2. 3s.; or, half-bound, £2. 5s. 6d.

* * * This edition of Dr. Forbes's Dictionary contains a greater number of words, with their explanations, than are to be found in any other dictionary in the language; and here, for the first time, the whole of the Hindoo words have been printed in the Devanagari as well as in the Persian characters.

A ROMANISED DICTIONARY, HINDUSTANI-ENGLISH and ENGLISH-HINDUSTANI. By DUNCAN FORBES. Royal 8vo. (Nearly ready.)

A SMALLER ROMANISED HINDUSTANI DICTIONARY. By DUNCAN FORBES. (In the Press.)

GRAMMAR of the HINDUSTANI LANGUAGE in the Oriental and Roman Characters, with numerous Copper plate Illustrations of the Persian and Devanagari Systems of Alphabetic Writing. To which is added a copious Selection of Easy Extracts for reading in the Persian Arabic and Devanagari Characters, forming a complete introduction to the Bugh-o-Bahar, together with a Vocabulary and Explanatory Notes. By DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D. Octavo, cloth, 10s. 6d.

HINDUSTANI MANUAL; a Pocket Companion for those who visit India in any capacity, containing a compendious Grammar, Exercises, and Vocabulary of Useful Words. 18mo, 8s. 6d.

BAGH-O-BAHAR; consisting of Entertaining Tales in the Hindustani Language. By MRS. ANNA, of Delhi. A New Edition, carefully Collected with Original Manuscripts, having the essential vowel points and punctuation marked throughout; to which is added a Vocabulary by DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D. Royal 8vo, cloth, 12s. 6d.

* * * The Bagh-o-Bahar is the text book in which Cadets and Assistant-Surgeons have to pass an examination in India. This edition was prepared under the authority of the Honourable the East India Company.

BAGH-O-BAHAR, Roman Character with Vocabulary. By DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D. 18mo. (Just ready.)

* * * This book is being printed in a clear and distinct type, and will be very moderate in price.

BAGH-O-BAHAR. Translated into English. By DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D. With Notes by the Translator, illustrative of the Manners, Customs, and Ideas of the Natives of India. A New Edition, Revised and Corrected throughout. Octavo, cloth, 8s.

HE BAITAL PACHISI; or, the Twenty-five Tales of a Demon. A New and Corrected Edition, with a Vocabulary of all the words occurring in the Text. By DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D. Royal 8vo, 9s.

2. Martial Law.
3. Courts-Martial.
4. Courts of Inquiry.
5. Courts of Request.
6. Courts of Request.
7. Forms of Courts-Martial.
8. Precedents of Military Law.
9. Trials of Arson to Rape. (Alphabetically arranged.)
10. Rebellions.
11. Riots.
12. Miscellaneous.

By Lieutenant-colonel W. HOUGH, Late Deputy Judge-advocate-general, 1st Cavalry, and Author of several Works on Courts-Martial.

In one thick 8vo. vol., price 25s.

"It would be impossible to over-estimate the utility of this work to members of the military profession as a comprehensive exposition of the law especially applicable to them, and to the practice of military tribunals; and it would be difficult to speak in terms of commendation too high of the manner in which it has been executed."—Morning Chronicle.

THE MILITARY ENCYCLOPEDIA; a Technical, Biographical, and Historical Dictionary, referring exclusively to the Military Sciences, the Memoirs of distinguished Soldiers, and the Narratives of Remarkable Battles. By J. H. STOCQUER, Esq.

"Mr. Stocquer's former works, and his well-known proficiency in the military sciences, will insure a favourable reception for this very useful book, which possesses the advantage of compressing into one portable volume a vast mass of information on military subjects, arranged especially for reference. No one could be better qualified than Mr. Stocquer for such a task, and certainly he has accomplished it in a very able manner. In a volume which occupies but little room, the officer and soldier may here command at a glance the cream of many valuable works, and obtain information on almost any point of interest. This work, indeed, forms for the camp and barracks what Maundrell's 'Treasury of Knowledge' represents in the counting-house; and we cannot doubt that it will obtain corresponding success."—United Service Magazine.

THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS.

A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF BRITISH AND FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

This Newspaper presents a comprehensive and perfect view of British and Foreign affairs, with special reference to those subjects in any way interesting to residents in India, or those at home having connections there. The Intelligence is brought down to the latest possible moment prior to the departure of the Mail. The various departments are so arranged, and the intelligence analysed, as to form a weekly register of permanent interest and value, which subscribers will be glad to preserve.

The weekly issue of "THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS" renders it as eligible a newspaper for Anglo-Indians resident at home as abroad.

Families should send it to their friends abroad.

Parties proceeding to India or China should not fail to order a year's subscription.

Offices ..... 54, Duke street.

The Proprietors beg most respectfully to call the attention of the Trade, Noblemen, Clergy, and the Public to their extensive stock of CHOICE WINES of rare vintages.

B. and Co. are not disposed to comment upon the purity of their Wines, which is daily most laudably acknowledged by the public and eminent medical men of all countries, as the increasing patronage of the highest families in the land is a sufficient guarantee.

They beg to call attention in particular to their Pure Tonic Wines as being so valuable to invalids and persons of weak stomachs.

A sample case, containing full-sized sample cases, will be forwarded to any address on receipt of 6s. 6d., or a dozen for 24s.

It is a well-known fact that impure and adulterated Wines are the greatest foes to health, producing acidity in the stomach, and debilitating the digestive organs, while pure Wines will accelerate the digestive powers, invigorating, strengthening, and bracing the nervous system.

Their Tonic Wine is admitted to be most essential to invalids, both old and young, and should never be absent from the homes of the weak and sickly. Its properties are duly acknowledged by the leading men of the Faculty both at home and abroad.

To prevent imposition each bottle is sealed with the name of the firm.

All orders to be made payable to HENRY BURROWS.

NOTICE.

SORE THROAT, Recent Cold with Cough,

Measles, Fever, and all Inflammatory Disorders, are IMMEDIATELY RELIEVED by Dr. JAMES'S FEVER POWDERS, when given on the first attack according to directions.

In Rheumatism and Chronic Complaints it has performed the most extraordinary cures, when used with perseverance. In Packets, at 2s. 6d., &c. The genuine has "F. NEWBURY, No. 46, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD," London, on the Government Stamp.—Proprietor of the COD LIVER OIL CAKER. Established A.D. 1746.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

PARALYSIS, STIFF JOINTS, NEURALGIA.—For all affections affecting nerves or muscles, so constantly recurring during winter, no remedies can bear comparison with HOLLOWAY'S ointments. The Ointment should be rubbed on the parts affected after they have been well fomented with warm water and dried. This friction should be steadily repeated two or three times a day, so as to insure the constant passage of the Ointment to the diseased joint, debilitated muscles, or vitiated nerves lying beneath. It relieves pain, restores motion, and confers strength. The Pills are an admirable auxiliary to the Ointment; they improve and invigorate the whole system by purifying the blood.

THE MAGNESIAN EFFERVESCENT is

the most agreeable and effective remedy in all cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Acidity, Heartburn, Indigestion, and Biliary Affection, Nausea, Fever, Thirst, and Sea-sickness. It is highly recommended by the profession, and will be found especially valuable to those going to India or travelling in warm climates; as a mild and efficacious saline aperient it stands unequalled, and will be found peculiarly adapted for delicate females and children. To be obtained through respectable chemists, and wholesale from Messrs. BAILEY, Farringdon-street (put up in stoppered bottles at 4s. 6d. for India), and smaller size at 1s. 11d. and 2s. 9d.

Prepared only by EDWARD FRICHARD, Chemist, 10, Vigo-street, Regent-street, W.

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month, and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

POSTAGE.

Via Southampton (pre-payment compulsory), letters under

Newspapers for the East Indies, when not exceeding 4 oz. 2d. each; when above 4 oz. and not exceeding 5 oz. 3d. each—an additional penny being charged for every additional 4 oz. or fraction thereof. For all countries or places eastward of Suez, the charge is 3d., whatever the weight of the newspaper. Books under 1 lb. 6d.; under 1 lb. 1s.; and for every additional 1 lb. an additional 1s.

The Mails for China are despatched at the same rate of postage as those to India; but must be pre-paid.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Bombay Mail of the 9th January is unusually interesting to all ranks of her Majesty's service, as containing the details of the China expedition, which will be found in our present issue. It is estimated that the entire force will amount to 20,000 men, of whom about 8,000 will be native troops. The Bengal native army will furnish five battalions of volunteers, four consisting of Punjabees and one of Hindostanees. Each man will be required to affix his name or seal to a document binding himself to serve for two years. These battalions will muster 800 strong, and will be accompanied by a small force of irregular cavalry, not yet specified. The Bombay native regiments, the 3rd and 5th, are put down at 1,000 each; and the usual Foreign Service privileges will be granted to the contingents of all three Presidencies. The chief command is vested in Lieut.-gen. Sir J. Hope Grant, and the following appointments on the general staff are announced as authentic:—

Generals Napier and Michel, Generals of division.
Colonel Stephenson, now in China, Deputy Adjutant-general.

Colonel Mackenzie, Quartermaster-general.
Colonels Bruce and Haythorne, Chiefs of the Staff.

The despatch of so large a force will probably induce the Emperor of China to turn a willing ear to the moderate terms foreshadowed in the Speech from the Throne.

In the Bombay Presidency Major Honner appears to have routed the Waghers in a very spirited manner. The enemy, though strongly posted on the Abhipoor, was resolutely attacked, both in front and rear, and after a gallant resistance went off into the jungle, where they fell into an ambuscade, and lost nearly five hundred prisoners. The loss on the part of the British is stated at sixteen killed and forty wounded, among the latter Lieut. and Adjutant Lewis, 1st N.I., who received a ball in the chest while leading his men up the face of the mountain.

With equal energy and success General Chamberlain has conducted an expedition into the Wuzerees Hills, to avenge the murder of the late Captain Meham. On the 22nd of December he came up with that fierce tribe, and killed about twenty men, and, by the latest accounts, was following them into their strongholds, with a view to inflict a yet severer chastisement.

Meanwhile, undisturbed by war's alarms, the Viceroy continues his progress through the Upper Provinces, distributing rewards and presents with more than royal munificence. In company with the new Financial Commissioner, as our Indian contemporaries are pleased to designate him, his Excellency has visited Meerut, Roorkee, and the once Imperial City, and, if appearances are to be trusted, the vast expenditure thus incurred will not be altogether in vain.

The Nepal frontier is now clear, though grave doubts are entertained in many quarters as to the reality of the Nana's death. It is not, however, a matter of much importance. Though worthy of the most ignominious fate, nothing could now be gained by his execution, and his life can hardly be an enviable one. His rivals in guilt and late companions in flight and misfortune are awaiting their trial at Lucknow, and some of them, at least, will expiate their crimes on the gallows. Then we may hope that the hand of the Avenger will be stayed, and that no more human blood will be shed under the illogical and utterly futile idea of redressing the shedding of blood.

Elsewhere it will be seen that only fourteen candidates have passed the competitive examination on entering Addiscombe. We have heard that eighty students were required for the engineers and artillery, but that no more than forty-five presented themselves before the examiners, and of these only fourteen could be passed, though every possible allowance was made for shortcomings. Under the old system the result would have been very different, for then boys were prepared for the scientific branches from the time they exhibited any talent of a mathematical order. As things now are it can scarcely be expected that parents will give their sons a special and exclusive training, on the mere chance of their obtaining a certain number of marks.

There is rumour abroad, for the truth of which we do not vouch, that the miracle of the House of Notre Dame de Loretto is about to be rivalled, if not surpassed. On the 1st of June, say the quidnuncs, the India House is to fall into two pieces, and be transplanted—that is, the personnel, not the matériel—in part to Cannon-row, and in part to Manchester-buildings. Others, however, assert that the Victoria Hotel, at Westminster, is to be the future seat of Government for three years, at a rental of £5,000 per annum. We know not how this may be, but it is singular that the announcement, if true, should not have been made at yesterday's meeting of the hotel shareholders. The old building, we presume, will be publicly disposed of.

We understand that Mr. T. L. Seecombe is about to be appointed Secretary to the Financial Department at the India-house.

BENGAL.

THE FELON AND THE HERO.

In one of the dark cells of the Central Gaol at Lucknow, on the cold floor, with no covering but the ordinary coarse blanket allowed felons of his class, lies the noted rebel Khan Bahadoor Khan. This wretched man, upon whose features the guilty conscience stands out in stern relief, is whining his complaints to the gaoler, that he is uncomfortable in the company of common felons, many of whom, doubtless, recall to mind the scenes of assassination, carnage, and massacre near the Kotwally, at Bareilly. This sanguinary wretch, whose career would induce us to suppose he had been nurtured with the lion's whelp, and preyed from infancy upon the mangled carcass, appeals to us as if we had no recollection of his dark deeds, and solicits, with an air of perfect obliviousness, some favour which the gaoler would only grant to misdemeanants imprisoned for short terms. As might have been expected, Khan Bahadoor is the true type of the licentious Asiatic, whose withered frame and relaxed nerves too plainly indicate a career of profligacy and crime. This arch-traitor and assassin will, we now learn, be escorted to Bareilly, there to expiate the many crimes of which he is guilty. We look back upon his career during the mutiny, and find a long account of treason and murder without one redeeming feature of mercy to his credit. Not satisfied with having swept the plain from the Ganges to the slopes of Almorah, he desired to make Nynee Tal an aceldama, where his filthy green flag, spotted with the blood of generous manhood, should again float over the lacerated bodies of European victims. Nothing could be more contemptible than his puerile efforts to robe himself in a dress of honour said to have been received from that idiotic scapegoat of the rebellion the little Mogul. Self and selfishness only is apparent in all his acts. The low cunning and treachery of his race is fully displayed. Nought is wanting, and from his part in the dark tragedy one may illustrate and embellish a dozen more. He never troubled himself about law, order, safety, or protection, unless the fires of insurrection approached his own neighbourhood, and then they were made to recede, to blaze away in another direction. Trade and travel were at an end, the interchange of product had ceased, and life itself was like a sparrow in the closed hand of a strong man. The levies who rejoiced sounding the praises of the new lord of Rohilkund went forth on a plundering expedition after a morning meal, with as much merriment as if going to a punchayet, or a marriage feast. The wealthy man spent most of his time in irons or under torture, until he had parted with his wealth. The vindictive had only to name an enemy, to ensure his house being broken into, his family violated, and himself shot over his own threshold. From one stage to another Khan Bahadoor's power, which at first was supreme, slipped from him until it finally died out, with the last act of massacre and murder within its grasp. When all were slain, all were stripped, the fanatic hordes, counselled as to the best mode of bringing their leaders to a settlement of accounts. The only man at Bareilly whose mind was employed in any one measure of civilised action, was Sobharam, and he, to save his own life, finally became murderer and assassin. We may well call to mind the scene of the Sandnee sowars, covered with sweat and dust, riding into the presence of the would-be ruler of Rohilkund, and compare that hour with the present, when the once mighty in massacre lies low, and nought but the confused dreams of a brain troubled with remorse, and seeking escape from reflection in large doses of morphia, is seen imploring relief from the stern discipline of a condemned cell.—Lucknow Herald.

THE VICEROY'S PROGRESS.

We are bound to admit that the forebodings as to the effect of Lord Canning's progress have not visibly been justified. The tour has been expensive beyond the dreams of the economists, but its success has not been wholly inadequate to the outlay. Throughout there appear to have been neither mistakes nor confusion. The viceroy has maintained the almost regal dignity which befits the representative of Great Britain, and his formal addresses have been remarkable for a tone of stately conciliation. In all, Lord Canning, whether acting on a defined policy, or pressed by circumstances, adopts language which radically modifies the position of the princes with whom he has come in contact. From the first outburst of the mutinies we have advocated an entire change of the imperial policy towards the palatines of the empire. Up to that date they were the rulers of semi-independent states, politically a source of danger, financially an incubus on the revenues of India. That event which revealed their weakness, demonstrated also their possible utility. The State administered by a native, leaves room for native ambitions, destroys the cohesion of the military classes, and interposes, as it were, a break in the current of hostile opinion. The native states, before politically a nuisance, it is now politically advantageous to preserve. Annexation, as a policy, must be considered given up. But as the paramount power can in no degree surrender its responsibility to the people, or its right in the extreme case to guide the efforts and concentrate the resources of India as a whole, the position of the princes must be changed, guaranteed in their possessions and maintained in their authority, the native chiefs must take their place as recognized and cherished feudatories of the British crown. That is palpably the position the viceroy assigns them all. He thanks not as their ally, but as the representative of his and their sovereign. In most cases his lordship employs the very phrase, "faithful feudatories," which implies subjection. In all cases it is for their loyalty, not their assistance, that his praise is given. All share, not in the plunder of a defeated foe, but in those voluntary though substantial favours with which the crown is accustomed to reward all who fight its battles, or consolidate its power. The Maharajah of Gwalior, the highest in rank, as well as in services, receives a direct pecuniary grant, an income such as we pay to our great captains, and do not pay to our great allies. The change is manifest, and is one which may be accepted both by the English people and the princes with unalloyed satisfaction. The empire is rendered one and indivisible, not by the destruction of every subordinate power, but by admitting them to recognised positions in the structure. We build on the half-shattered walls instead of blasting them away.

The first and most important consequence of the new policy must be, the renewal of confidence between the princes and the Government of India. There has been none for years. The conviction, false or true, that they were doomed, distorted their views of every proposal and every reform. A recommendation to keep fewer troops became a design to diminish their means of resistance. Advice as to the finances was presumed to cover an intention of sequestration. An offer of European aid was supposed to introduce enemies into their capitals. Above all, request for new roads, and the abolition of transit dues were viewed with extreme jealousy. The roads would facilitate an invading march, the abolished transit dues protected native manufactures. This spirit may endure some years yet. It is not easy to eradicate from an Asiatic mind the notion that power will be turned to profit. But a few years of consistent abstinence will re-establish confidence, and enable us to advise without the certainty of being misunderstood. Already Scindiah asks for Europeans. Already it is easy to cut railways through the heart of Rewah. Already our advice as to new police and a re-arrangement of the fisc is listened to in Malwa without distrust. The beginning of confidence is replacing continuous suspicion, and results we could have obtained only by force may be secured by the cheaper, if less speedy, method of conviction.

In view of the possibility of these results we are not prepared to condemn the expense of this progress, astounding though it must have been. There are heavy rewards yet to be assigned, and the income surrendered in gifts, grants, jaghires, small states, and remissions, cannot represent a capital of less than three millions sterling. The Maharajah of Gwalior alone received one million in the grant of three lakhs a-year, a remission of his debt, and the new contract as to the assigned districts. Nevertheless enormous as these sums may be, they are not indefensible. We have a reputation for liberality to regain. Natives who resisted us have felt for a century our power to punish. It is time that our power to reward should be equally appreciated. The gifts have been lavish as those of a great Mogul, but it is to the power of the Great Mogul that we desire to succeed.—Friend of India.

INDIAN IRON.

A correspondent of the Englishman makes the following remarks on the Kumaon Iron Report:—

"I have read with great interest your remarks on what is stated to be a Report on the Iron Works at Kumaon and iron deposits in the Himalaya, by Mr. W. Sowerby, Civil Engineer. It is the old story—Iron cannot be made to advantage in India, and therefore Mr. Sowerby recommends people to go to England for it. The shop again—Do not go to that man's shop to buy shoes, as he does not make good ones, come over to mine.

"I have been for many years impressed with the notion that few people from England will recommend the making of Iron in India; and in this respect Mr. Sowerby, Civil Engineer, only follows in the wake of Mr. William Jory Henwood, R. S., &c. The latter gentleman went up to Raneegunge, stayed two or three days there, and then sent in a report to Government, 'that all was barrenness from Dan to Beersheba.' A more superficial and inaccurate report was never sent before Government; Mr. Sowerby's report is equally superficial in respect to the minerals in the neighbourhood of Raneegunge, and likewise in his comparison of the Raneegunge iron mines to the Madras iron works. That the Madras works are, always have been, and always will be, a losing concern is true, but there is no analogy between Porto Novo and the coal and iron district of Raneegunge. Few people in Calcutta know much about either the mineral district of Raneegunge or the Porto Novo iron works. I shall therefore show the advantages which Raneegunge has over Porto Novo. I will commence with the latter-named place first.

"Porto Novo is on the Coromandel coast, about 100 miles south of Madras; the ironworks being situated four miles to the north of the River Coleroon, on a small river called the Velam. The iron ore for the supply of these works is brought from Salem, and conveyed, in the first instance, about seven miles to the River Cauvery, and it is then conveyed down a series of rivers a distance (by land) of about 150 miles to the ironworks; the fuel has to be brought from the same locality.

"Compare the above with Raneegunge. The ore and fuel are found both on the same spot of ground, and an iron furnace might be erected within a few yards of either. How is it possible that the Porto Novo Ironworks can be a paying concern, conveying ore and fuel seven miles by land, and then 150 miles (or more, for rivers do not run in a straight line often) by water? I have estimated that the richest ore could scarcely stand a land carriage of twenty miles, and fuel four or five miles at the most.

"With respect to the ore, notwithstanding anything Mr. Sowerby may say to the contrary, it is as fine as any ore of the same class in the world. I am not aware what ore was shown him in Calcutta, but I speak of the clay iron stone, which is considered the best for making iron for railway purposes. There are some primitive ores in the neighbourhood of Raneegunge containing full 70 per cent. of iron; these may be considered refractory, but this ore, if used at all, would not be used by itself in any iron works. There is also a red ochre ore on the coal land, not rich but certainly not refractory. I have had iron made from both of these ores, and found them smelt easily,—the iron produced being fully equal to Swedish iron.

"With respect to coal, the best Raneegunge coal, used in most of the Scotch iron works, the remark, however, is perfectly absurd. If it be slightly inferior to the coal used in English furnaces, the difference in quality would be made up by using a little more of it, coal being produced cheaper in Raneegunge than in England.

"The iron works at Porto Novo are only 18 feet above the level of the River Velam; the Raneegunge coal field is about 600 feet above the level of the sea, and the country is cold and pleasant for many months in the year. Raneegunge is a little above 23 north latitude, and Porto Novo in 11-30. There can, therefore, be no comparison as to situations, as it is never cold at Porto Novo.

"There is another most inaccurate statement of Mr. Sowerby, who says that 'the Bengal Works would have the additional disadvantage of having a worse material in the shape of bad coal to contend against.'

"A worse material for fuel than at Porto Novo!—certainly Mr. Sowerby is not serious in making this assertion. At Porto Novo they use, or did use, for I cannot say what they are using at this moment, 'dried billets of wood as fuel.' Is Raneegunge coal worse than this? In no part of the world did I ever hear of 'dry wood' being used for the reduction of iron ores except at Porto Novo; for the acid in the wood would alone deteriorate the quality of the iron. This would seem to have been courting failure, and iron works so conducted, what with dry wood for fuel, and the conveyance of both ore and fuel a distance of 150 miles to the iron works, might be expected to be 'carried on at loss.'

"To sum up the disadvantages of Porto Novo:

"1st. The want of a sufficiently hard wood for making charcoal.

"2nd. The using of billets of dry wood instead of charcoal.

"3rd. The very low situation and latitude of Porto Novo.

4th. The want of pit coal,—1st, for roasting the ore; 2nd, for working the steam engines; 3rd, for heating the hot air pipes, &c.

"5th. The having to convey both ore and fuel upwards of 150 miles to the iron works.

"Advantages of Raneegunge as a situation adapted for the manufacture of iron.

"1st. Ore and coal found both associated in the same locality.

"2nd. Labourers for making iron abundant.

"3rd. Railroad near the coal and ore. The new rails now sanctioned go within a few miles of the iron ore.

"At Raneegunge fine iron has been made for generations by the natives, but iron was never made at Porto Novo until the works were opened there by the late Mr. Heath."

FLAX CULTIVATION IN THE PUNJAB.—Lieutenant-colonel J. Clarke, in a letter, states that for flax cultivation in the Punjab credit is due not to Mr. Cope, but to himself as the originator of the experiment. Far be it from us to withhold the tribute of our applause to that officer for having originated the experimental flax culture conducted by Government, and for having evinced a most lively interest in the matter; but from information received from different sources regarding the culture of that article in the Punjab, we are disposed to think that greater credit is due to Mr. Cope, as we understand that long before the experiment above referred to was projected, that gentleman most zealously entered into a series of operations, the successful results of which, according to Mr. McLeod, served in a great measure to induce Government to act upon Col. Clarke's suggestion for carrying on that experiment; and therefore we presume we have not made any mistake in having conferred on Mr. Cope the honour of being the originator of the project, by which we do not mean the above experiment, but the cultivation of the flax plant in the Punjab for the sake of its fibre. We repeat Colonel Clarke has rendered a great service by having originated the experiment in question, but Mr. Cope has done, we believe, a greater service in having previously prepared the way for such experiment. We did not assert that credit was exclusively due to Mr. Cope, but we said that it was due to him as well as to all others who had taken a good deal of trouble in the matter; we did not mention any other names, as full particulars had been given in the correspondence between Mr. Davis and Mr. Thornton, published in the same number of our journal; as we were led to believe that the greater share of the credit was due to Mr. Cope for reasons stated above, we mentioned that gentleman's name only. With reference to the concluding part of Colonel Clarke's letter, we may mention that a very strong fibre has been obtained from the flax plant grown in certain districts by some European gentlemen with the double purpose of obtaining the seed as well as the fibre. But the fibre thus obtained was found to be deficient in gloss, which is the great point; it was very strong, but a harsh, coarse fibre, and consequently it was not of the quality now required at home. To obtain a superior fibre fit for the use of our manufacturers, it will be necessary to make a great change in the system of culture at present pursued by the natives, and to effect that change a great deal of trouble and expense will be necessary. Although the flax sent to England from the Punjab has been favourably reported on, it still is susceptible of a good deal of improvement. There is no difficulty in obtaining a strong fibre from the plant commonly grown by the natives in any part of India, but this fibre can never answer for the purposes for which flax is now in great demand in the United Kingdom.—Indian Field.

RETIREMENT OF MR. RICKETTS.—We are sorry to learn that Mr. Ricketts' health compels his immediate retirement. This will create a vacancy in the Supreme and Legislative Councils. For some time General Birch has been talked of as likely to step from the Secretariat into the Council Chamber; but we believe on this occasion Mr Cecil Beadon is the coming man, not only because his claims on the score of ability are equal to those of any, but because it is a civil and not a military vacancy; and hitherto it has not been usual to have more than one military member besides the Commander-in-Chief. When Sir James Outram is made a governor or a commander-in-chief, General Birch will probably have his turn, and in that case a round man would be put into a round hole. Meanwhile, we cannot but look upon it as a matter of public regret that Mr Ricketts should be obliged to withdraw from the Council Board at the very time when no man could render so valuable service as he would, and he continued at his post. There is scarcely a department of Government which is not destined ere long to undergo changes in a greater or less degree, and no one is better qualified than the departing member to give the wisest counsel as to the best reforms for the civil branches in particular. Mr. Ricketts, we see, arrived in India in 1821, and we believe has only two seniors in the Civil Service. We have no means of ascertaining what were the different appointments he held during his long and brilliant career, but in 1849 he was made a member of the Revenue Board, and in 1856 was appointed commissioner for the revision of civil salaries and establishments throughout India. The experience and practical knowledge acquired in both these appointments, added to his clear judgment and high tone and liberal sentiments, would enable him to afford invaluable aid towards the decision of those great and important questions which must presently come under consideration. We feel convinced that Mr. Ricketts will, when he leaves, take with him the respect of all, and what is perhaps better than all, a proud consciousness of having done his duty. Mr. Ricketts' actual residence in India will be, on New Year's Day, exactly thirty-six years eight months and twenty-one days.—Hurkaru.

CAPTURE OF BURJORE SING'S FAMILY.—A native letter, just received from an authentic source, informs us (Delhi Gazette) "that the family of Burjore Sing have been captured by the people of the Raj of Datia. As the Regent Rani with the young Raja had gone out on a tour towards the pergunnah of Secunda within that territory, she learnt through Rae Guneshie Lall, Superintendent of the State, and Moonshi Mumraj, nazim of Secunda, both of whom have shown throughout the disturbances their utmost zeal in causing the apprehension of rebels in that part of the country, that the family of Burjore Sing, consisting of his wife, two daughters, his son and his aunt, were concealed in the house of a Thakoor in the village of Seegwan in the said pergunnah. The Rani immediately on the 24th December despatched Dewan Lachman Singh and Mumraj, at the head of about a thousand troops of foot and mounted men with two guns for their capture. The house of the Thakoor above-mentioned having been surrounded, the son of Burjore Sing, a boy of about twelve or thirteen years, twice tried to cut his throat with a sword, but failed, making only a slight cut in the neck. The sword was soon wrested from him, and he taken prisoner, and after a search of about four or five hours, they were found concealed in two or three houses in the village. Burjore Sing's wife and his eldest daughter, however, had taken poison before their capture, and died on their road in the carriage, while they were being brought to the Rani's camp at Indurgurh. On the arrival of the party the Rani ordered the bodies of the dead to be burnt, according to Hindoo custom, and the aunt of Burjore Sing, an old woman of about seventy years of age, and his youngest daughter, a girl of about five, with his son, were sent under the custody of a strong guard to Datia. A part of the force with the guns was left at the village of Seegwan for the apprehension of the Thakoors, who had concealed the family of so notorious a rebel, and the punishment of the villagers. The durbar of Datia have shown beside the present in three other instances their zeal and readiness to assist the British Government in the destruction of the rebels of Bundelkund, viz. 1st, the capture of Mama Moroo Bulwant, father of the late Ranees Jhansi; 2ndly, apprehension of the chief rebel of Jungit; 3rdly, the opposition of the party of Burjore Sing and Dowlut Sing, and their defeat in the engagement of the 20th October last."

LUCKNOW, Dec. 31.—I forgot to mention that Ram Buksh, of Dhoondeakhera, had been sentenced to death on a careful investigation into his case. He was proved beyond the possibility of doubt to have been the principal instigator in the murder of the Europeans who took refuge in the temple, for escaping the hands of the fiends who took so conspicuous a part in that dreadful massacre. The circumstance of a letter on his person from his wife was a remarkable incident which was brought forward in the trial, and went further to convince men of his guilt than any other evidence, however conclusive, which may have been elicited. Irrespective of that, however, the evidence was quite overwhelming. Nevertheless, the contents of the letter confirmed and corroborated facts incontestible in themselves as to the guilt of the prisoner. Another case has also been recently tried and brought to a satisfactory conclusion; I allude to the parties who have been tried for being implicated in the murder of the late Mr. Murray, of the deputy commissioner's office, Oonao, and his wife. This was also a case of much difficulty, and involving intricate and elaborate inquiries; but, like all the investigations into political trials in Oude, the authorities here have shown themselves fully alive to the great interests at stake, and have proceeded on the facts elicited with the greatest caution, weighing fully all the main points against the prisoners with much circumspection, and in a purely legal and impartial light. It has, however, been proved beyond the possibility of doubt that the prisoners had been the active agents in bringing about the murder for which they were condemned, and both have been sentenced to transportation for life, a very inadequate sentence, in the estimation of the public, for the crimes alleged and proved against these men. I scarcely credit the rumours which have been circulated about General Mummoo Khan having implicated Wajid Allee; at any rate it would be bad policy on the part of Government to arrest the latter on the word of the former, knowing, as we all do, the antipathy the natives have for Wajid Allee for the services he rendered to us, and for which he has been so handsomely rewarded. I do not mean to say that Wajid Allee is guiltless. I merely wish to be understood to say that, to arrest him on the word of the great political prisoner, Mummoo Khan, without corroborative circumstances, would be wrong; and lead, perhaps, to untoward results, not at all creditable to our cause, and needlessly give rise to suspicion on the part of those whom we have fully recognised as innocent of political crimes, and rewarded in that light. —Delhi Gazette.

DELHI, Dec. 29. — The Governor-general arrived here this morning about a quarter past 9 o'clock. The guns at Selimgurh announced his excellency's entrance into the city by the Calcutta Gate, and after a little delay, owing to some mistake regarding the proper road, the party left the city by the Cashmere Gate, and proceeded at once to the camp. The Commander-in-chief was with his excellency the Governor-general, and a large party of civil and military officers formed at the bridge of boats, and accompanied their lordships to their tents. The troops were drawn up in line, with their right resting on the Governor-general's tent, and extending thence down the main street of the camp to the road, and thence towards the Cashmere Gate. On the right were the 88th Connaught Rangers, then the 2nd Fusiliers, 13th Punjab Infantry, 23rd Punjab Infantry, 4th Sikh Irregular Cavalry, and on the left No. 9 Light Field Battery. On the Governor-general entering the Calcutta Gate a royal salute was fired from Selimgurh; and on his excellency arriving at his tent, one from the field battery. A levee, which was largely attended, was held at 3 p.m. The weather was beautiful, and by some excellent arrangement the dust laid so effectually that the assembled spectators had a clear view of all that was going on. The camps halt till Monday. The bishop holds a confirmation on Saturday, at 3 p.m., and the distribution of prizes at St. Stephen's College takes place to-morrow—Jan. 1st. The Bhurtpore Rajah had a private audience of the Governor-general yesterday forenoon. Mr. Brandreth, commissioner of Delhi, accompanied by a few other officers, went out to meet the Rajah, and conducted him to the Governor-general's tent. After the usual ceremonies had been gone through, the viceroy inquired into the state of his highness's health, studies, &c., and concluded with a recommendation for him to persevere in acquiring the English language, &c. At four o'clock the viceroy paid the return visit, the whole of his excellency's escort forming a magnificent cavalcade. The Governor-general, accompanied by the Commander-in-chief and staff, also visited the fort; and Lord Canning, the Jumma Musjid, in the course of the afternoon. Mr. Wilson accompanied the viceroy on his return visit to the Rajah of Bhurtpore, after which he, Mr. Wilson, was to proceed by carriage dawk to Lahore. The flat has gone forth, and the European troops are to be located in the palace. Good airy barracks are to be erected, and all useless buildings cleared away. The Dewan-i-Aum is to be converted into the hospital, the Dewan-i-Khas to be kept as it is, untouched and uninhabited, except, I suppose, on occasions of festivity. The arsenal will be removed from Delhi to Agra, and eventually, that is when these improvements are completed, one full regiment of European infantry will garrison Delhi. The artillery will also be inside the fort. The Jumma Musjid, which is to remain in statu quo at present, will have all the houses round about it cleared away, so that the guns which are to be placed in position at the fort gates will entirely command it and the city, should the "powers that be," in a moment of mistaken leniency, restore the mosque to the Mahomedans. I regret to say that the Lord Bishop was so seriously indisposed as to be utterly unable to hold the confirmation yesterday. Monday (to-morrow) is now the day fixed, but it is very uncertain whether his lordship will be able to carry out his intentions even then. —Delhi Gazette.

ROORKEE, Dec. 23.—I beg leave to send you a rough account of our doings in Roorkee since the arrival of the Governor-general, Lord Canning, which you may depend upon as correct. His lordship arrived per carriage dawk on the morning of the 21st, accompanied by Lady Canning, the Honourable J. Wilson, and Lieutenant-colonel Yule, and put up with Captain Turnbull, the superintendent of canal irrigation. At 9 a.m. the same morning he visited the Thomson College Establishment and Roorkee Press, and returned at 11 a.m. He then at 3 p.m. visited the shops, along with her ladyship and staff. Captain A. Allen, the superintendent, received his lordship at the grand entrance, and took him over the whole of the works, at which he appeared greatly pleased, especially the mathematical instrument department and moulding department. In the evening he attended again and saw a large cylinder cast, weighing some 60 maunds. On the morning of the 22nd he started for Hurdwar, to visit the head of the canal, at half-past seven o'clock, accompanied by Lady Canning, Lieutenant-colonel Yule, Mr. Wilson, Captain Turnbull and aide-de-camp, a party of ten, by carriage. The small screw steamer was sent up to Dunowrie, six miles from Roorkee, to bring down his lordship and party; so the Roorkee started on her trip up the canal under charge of the engineer, Mr. Watson, and two old salts to steer the boat. She started at 11 a.m., and reached Dunowrie at 2 p.m., the boat being partly towed up, so as to enable the engines to be cleaned. We waited until 5 p.m., when his lordship arrived with his party, and proceeded at once on board the steamer (which was all ready with steam up), and away we started at a speed of twelve miles per hour, and reached Roorkee in twenty-five minutes. They appeared highly pleased with all they had seen, and I don't think Roorkee's workshop will lose any of its honours by the visit of his lordship. The party started for Meerut the same evening after dinner. —Delhi Gazette.

JUNG BAHADOOR'S BLOOD MONEY. — The following is from Lucknow, dated 19th December, 1859:—"Seven of the leaders of the Lucknow mutineers are now here in the Sikcha Gaol. That Mummoo Khan and Ammer Sing had surrendered to the Nepalese on the 2nd Dec., Khan Bahadoor Khan on the 9th, that Benec Madho had been killed after a desperate action with Colonel Puhlwan Sing, and that the Nana's magazine had been captured, the telegrams will already have acquainted you with. As I predicted in my last, Jung Bahadoor has finally abandoned his vacillating policy, and adopted a decided course. He is to be royally rewarded. The whole of the Terai, formerly belonging to Nepal, together with a considerable portion of the old Oude territory, will be given to him and his heirs in perpetuity. The boundary line will be towards the N. E. point of Oude, the Gogra, where that river separates this province from Pileebet. It is to continue towards Rampore and Singhai, in the Baraitch division, and pass along the river Mohaun as far as the Karualla stream. There it will cross the Mosela and Kamar rivers, include the populous and productive districts of Bankee and Bhinga, the whole of the Nanparah jungle, a large portion of the confiscated Toolseepore estate, and finally stop at Khancot, the extreme south-eastern point of Oude. The length of this ceded territory will be about 240 miles, the average breadth nearly forty miles. Hitherto the Terai has yielded scarcely any revenue either to the king or to ourselves; but now, that its magnificent trees are becoming of the highest importance to us, we make a gift of it to that, up to last month, so very doubtful an ally, Sir Jung. Railway contractors will have to pay still higher than the present exorbitant prices for timber. The tax upon each tree, which before the annexation was eight annas, has now been raised to four rupees. I do not believe Sir Jung will follow the exclusive policy of his country, but he must be very different indeed from other natives, if he does not squeeze as much more as he possibly can out of those who are compelled to accept his timber on any terms. The Talookdars of the cultivated portions of that territory will probably not be very well satisfied at this change of rulers, but it is the Oude Railway Company that will have the least cause to be pleased at this transfer on the nearest source, whence they can procure materials for sleepers. Rajahs Rundhoj Sing of Kyrgurh, Koolrag Sing of Budraha, and a few other landlords, will probably be indemnified with slices of confiscated estates. As for any portion of such lands being given to Europeans for their services in the Bailey guard, believe it not. The report has been got up by the authorities to soothe, not to satisfy the unrewarded and unrecognised outsiders, who fought and suffered in the Residency. High hopes have been raised, which are not to be dashed to the ground at once, but are gradually to die out." —Englishman.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT.—The Oude Gazette learns from letters direct from the Governor-general's camp "that great changes in the military branch of the administration may be expected to be inaugurated with the beginning of the year 1860. First and foremost, the general staff of the three Presidencies is to be amalgamated, so that there will be only one adjutant-general, and quartermaster-general, and one commissary-general of the army for all India, whose head-quarters will be Calcutta, with, of course, considerably-increased powers, though, it is believed, not wages."—According to the Englishman, "Colonel Pakenham, at present adjutant-general of her Majesty's forces, will be appointed adjutant-general of the joint army, and the appointment of quartermaster-general will be bestowed upon Colonel Becher, at present acting in that capacity in the local army." The office of chief of the staff will, it is said, be abolished.

COLONEL HOLDITCH is to be appointed Official Deputy Adjutant General of her Majesty's forces, in room of Colonel Mackenzie, who is to be the Quartermaster General of the China force.

SIR C. TREVELYAN AND THE CIVIL SERVICE.—"The attention of Government has been drawn to the rule under which a member of the covenanted civil service is now required to join a new appointment. The rule allows one month where the distance does not exceed 300 miles, two months where it is above 300, but does not exceed 600 miles, and three months where it exceeds 600 miles. This rule not only acts with great inequality, allowing the same time, for example, for a journey of twenty miles as for one of 300 miles; but it has become more unsuitable as a general rule than it was at first, in consequence of the introduction of steamers for journeys north and south, and of the railway for those to the westward. The Governor in council is of opinion that the time has come for amending the rule; and he resolves to publish the following in place of the present rules. No precise time will be prescribed for taking up a new appointment; but the Government will trust to the right feeling of the officer concerned to join as early as he can, with reference to the means of locomotion available for the journey. It will be the duty of the civil auditor to bring to the notice of Government any instance in which an officer shall have taken an unusually long time to join a new appointment. This rule will apply also to the uncovenanted civil service; the present rules under which members of that service are required to join a new appointment are hereby cancelled."

REDUCTION OF NATIVE ARMY.—From the 1st of January each regiment of Madras Native Infantry is to be reduced to fifty havildars, fifty naitques, and 700 privates. Exception, however, is made to the Pegu Police Battalion, the Madras Sapper Militia, and to corps on or warned for foreign service.

MR. R. S. ELLIS.—We have much pleasure in copying the announcement from the Madras official Gazette of the 30th December, that Mr. R. S. Ellis, late deputy commissioner at Nagpore, is to have a furlough to Europe for a year, to embark at Bombay. Sir Charles Trevelyan has thus done his best to remedy the injustice done by the Bengal secretariat to Mr. Ellis, in ordering him to return to his own presidency till the pleasure of the Home Government about the issuing of a Nagpore commission had been taken, when they knew that in consequence of the reforms they intended to make it was quite certain no commission would be required, and knew also that Mr. Ellis had only given up his furlough and come out at great inconvenience to himself to take part in the commission, if there were one, with the promise that he should be at liberty to return to Europe as soon as it was over. Unfortunately, the permission of the Madras Government comes too late to save Mr. Ellis a useless voyage, for he has already sailed from Bombay on his way back to his own presidency; but it is creditable to Sir Charles Trevelyan that he has taken the earliest opportunity of showing that he knows how to treat a man who has done good service to the State.

SIR HENRY DAVISON, the Chief Justice of Madras, who is at present at the Neilgherries, suffering from ill-health, is about to proceed home for a temporary period.

H.M.'s TWELFTH LANCERS have been ordered home. One wing, we are informed, has already embarked. This gallant corps, a year after its arrival in India, was ordered to the Crimea; after the expiration of that war it returned to Bangalore, and, about a year afterwards, one wing was attached to General Whitlock's column and the other sent to duty at Secundrabad. We do not remember of any European cavalry having undergone so many hardships within the last few years as the gallant Lancers.

THE OPERATIONS AGAINST THE WAGHERS.

The official despatches leave no doubt as to the decisive character of the victory gained by Major Honner over the Waghers on December 18. His success must not be estimated only by the number of enemies slain or taken prisoners; though in this respect also it is complete and final. Its chief value is the moral effect it will have throughout the whole of the district in which the Waghers had so long braved our arms with impunity. Rumour had, as usual, exaggerated the fact that this robber tribe, through the mismanagement and misconduct of some of the European troops who were first sent against them, had resisted us for a time with tolerable good fortune, and had made clear their escape from the formidable army which drove them out of Beyt and Dwarka. The fame of the Waghers began to grow, and soon there were numberless stories of the prowess and enterprise of these sons of the mountain in their wars against the British Government. As the political agent in Kattywar says, it was even at one time credibly reported that these wild and daring Waghers had cut their way through H. M.'s 28th Regiment. To those who know what wretched creatures the Waghers really are, such a tale seems ludicrous enough; and, disgraceful as the explanation is, we imagine that, when all the facts of the case are disclosed,—which they probably will be when the Government thinks sufficient time has been given for the storm of public indignation to blow over, and for the whole affair to be forgotten,—it will be found that the men of the 28th were not beaten by the Waghers in fair fight, but that they were drunk, and so had forgotten to attend to their picket duties. But, as this was not known, people set down the ill success of the Okhamundel expedition to the credit of the superior bravery and activity of our barbarian foes; and the bubble of the Waghers' reputation was in consequence blown to such vast dimensions that we had almost despaired of seeing it collapse. Major Honner, however, with the troops under his command, has put an end to all fancies that another Rohilla war was prepared for us in the country of the Waghers. He has restored the damaged prestige of the English name, and shown these contemptible marauders in their true colours as a mob without organisation, courage, or discipline, who, even when sheltered by stone walls from an enemy advancing up a precipitous hill, do nothing more than "fire a few well-directed shots from rests, and, if pressed, immediately run away."

But the exploit of Major Honner is not the less brilliant on account of the cowardice of the Waghers. Imagination plays quite as conspicuous a part in war as reality. A skillful leader, when he calculates his chances of success, throws into the opposite scale the reputation as well as the numbers and position of his enemy; and it does not detract at all from the merit of the officer who, with prudent audacity, planned and executed the attack on Abhpoora Fort, that the Waghers gave up the day as lost, and fled as soon as the heads of our columns approached their entrenchments. It is difficult, without the aid of a good map, to make clear the exact nature of Major Honner's operations. But it may be possible to convey in words alone even to the unmilitary reader a general idea of the perils which our troops had to overcome.

The Waghers were posted in a fort on what was deemed, previously to Major Honner's escalade, an inaccessible peak of the hill Abhpoorah. Here they had gathered themselves together, with their wives and children, as if determined to make a glorious ending of the campaign. Their numbers were variously estimated at from 1,000 to 2,000—probably the former number is the more correct,—and they had arms which were none of the best, but which they knew how to use. They were justified in calculating that they could hold their own in this position where, as artillery would not be brought into action, the advantages of fighting would be all on their side, against any force which the British might send to capture their stronghold. But British officers have never been so successful as in storming inaccessible positions. It is just the sort of work requiring the exercise of daring, almost reckless, gallantry, which best suits their eager disposition. No other troops in the world would have thrown themselves against entrenchments on the brow of a steep hill defended by heavy batteries, as our soldiers did when they carried the Russian redoubts at the Alma. Happily, too, there are some officers, of whom Major Honner is one, who do not think it is the part of a good general to give his foe every possible superiority of position, and to scorn to take a mean advantage of him by the paltry tactics of attacking him at once in the front, on the flanks, and in the rear. The gallant major is not one of those leaders who send their men to knock their heads against stone walls, from a mistaken feeling of chivalry that there is something unfair to your opponent in going round a fortress, and taking it on its unprotected side, after he has been at the utmost pains to prepare himself for defending it against a strong attack from the front. Major Honner's plain duty, as commander of the expedition, was forthwith to subdue the rebellious Waghers by driving them out of the stronghold in which they trusted. He had 1,058 men, besides a small mountain train. Instead of hurling these in a body against the face of the breastworks which the Waghers had armed in front of the fort, the commander divided his troops into seven parties, of one or two hundred men each. These were so disposed round the base of the hill in a wide circle—the extreme right of the attack being thirty miles distant from the extreme left—as to bar every outlet against the Waghers. The principle of the attack was the same as that of the old Highland hunts, in which the gillies commenced beating the forests from all quarters at a great distance from one another, and then, gradually converging towards a common centre, enclosed the game in impenetrable toils.

Captain Walker, with 128 of the 1st Grenadiers, lay in ambush on the right, guarding the passes into Okhamundel. Next him, and in his rear, came Lieutenant Pym with 120 horse. In succession, at measured distances, came 118 men under Lieutenant Lewis, of the Grenadiers, who was shot in the chest, while gallantly leading on his men, and had to resign his command to Ensign Bell; and 200 Grenadiers under Major Honner himself, who had the rare felicity and honour to be the first man to enter the fort, thus proving his claim to be regarded as the most daring soldier as well as the most skilful commander in the force. The next detachment was composed of equal numbers of the 14th and 17th N.I., 400 in all, under Capt. Hill, with the mountain train, which was carried over the hills into positions into which it had seemed impossible that guns could ever be brought. Captain Hill again was supported on his left by Lieut. Hallett with fifty Grenadiers, and Lieutenant Maunsell with forty of the 11th. This party was to have acted with 500 Seebundee of the Nawab of Goonaghur; and one of the only two flaws in the whole enterprise was caused by the cowardice of these men, some of whom came to Lieutenant Hallett, saying, "they could not possibly go up, as the Waghers were too good shots to let any escape." Finally, on the extreme left, and only four miles, on the other side of the hill, from Captain Walker's ambush, Captain Anderson, with 250 men of the 11th, was to have completed the ring; but his guides misled him, and, though he took part in the battle, he was too late to cut off the retreat of the enemy.

The chief and most active share in the attack was taken by the detachments under Major Honner, Captain Hill, and Lieutenant Lewis; but all bore their parts well, and, from the officers down to the men who dragged the guns uphill, worked most zealously and courageously to carry out the plan of their leader. Our loss, as was inevitable in such an operation, was heavy in proportion to that of the enemy, we having 12 men killed and 44 officers and men (four of whom are since dead) wounded, while the Waghers are estimated to have lost only 25 men. We are happy, however, to find that the report of one or two British officers being killed is incorrect. No officer was killed; and only two wounded, Lieuts. Lewis of the Grenadiers, and Newton of the 11th, the former dangerously. The rebels attempted to execute again the same tactics which they had pursued so successfully before at Beyt and Dwarka. As soon as they found they could no longer avoid a hand-to-hand fight, they tried to fly with their wives and children to another place of refuge. But this time their retreat was cut off by Captain Walker, who has captured in all 839 of the tribe, and, as the Seebundee have also taken a good many prisoners, the tribe may now be said to be broken up. The whole affair is one of the most brilliant recorded in the history of the Bombay Army; and the warm eulogies bestowed by the Governor in Council on Major Honner and the force under his command will be heartily joined in by the whole service and by the public.

THE FRENCH CORVETTE La Cordeliere, under the command of Commodore V. F. de Langle, left Bombay harbour on the evening of the 5th Jan. for Muscat.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE SUBMARINE TELEGRAPH FROM ADEN.—The Imperator, Captain Atkin, with a portion of the submarine cable to connect Kurrachee with Aden, arrived on the 24th December, anchoring 9 A.M. She brings Mr. Newall, of the firm of Messrs. Newall and Co., the great submarine cable contractors; Mr. Forde, telegraph engineer (a partner of Mr. Lionel Gisborne); Captain Myers, of the firm of Messrs. Lieman and Hulske, the first instrument makers of Berlin, and a staff of electricians from Germany. Mrs. Newall and Mrs. Atkin also accompanied the above. The Imperatrice has been at Galle for some days, awaiting the arrival, it is supposed, of a partner of Messrs. Newall and Co. She is, however, expected about the 5th Jan., when the expedition, which will consist of Imperator, Imperatrice, and the Retribution, will leave Kurrachee, paying out the cable towards Aden. A temporary office will be opened immediately at Munora Point; and during the early part of the ensuing month arrangements to have an office in camp will be completed. The company have spared no expense towards making the staff comfortable at the stations of Muscat and Hiniani Island, otherwise known as the Kooria Moorias. At the latter station a wooden house is in course of construction, material for which has been sent out from England at great expense. At Muscat the British agent has, until a station can be built, placed the old residency at the disposal of the company. —Sindian.

BRIGADIER COGHLAN.—Lord Elphinstone, in his minute reporting on the claims of persons who had rendered good service to the State otherwise than in the field during the late troubles, has, inadvertently we are persuaded, omitted to refer to the aid the Government received, at the darkest period of these troubles, from the political resident at Aden, Brigadier W. M. Coghlan. His lordship's silence on the claims of this officer is all the more inexplicable, that, in his remarks on the patriotic spirit evinced by Sir James Higginson and Sir George Grey, he freely recognises the extreme value of the particular service rendered by Brigadier Coghlan in common with them—the despatch of reinforcements to Bombay. "No one," he says, "on this side of India is likely to have forgotten the relief which was experienced when the 33rd Regiment and Captain Bolton's Company of Royal Artillery arrived at Bombay from the Mauritius." We believe that there are yet fewer in this Presidency who have forgotten the arrival of a still earlier, and therefore still more valuable, reinforcement from Aden, a wing of H. M.'s 86th, despatched by the Political Resident to the help of the local Government, under circumstances which entitle the service that he rendered to rank with what was done by the Governors of the Cape and the Mauritius. Before these officers were applied to, the political resident at Aden was asked if he could spare any of the European troops in garrison at that settlement. Nothing could have been more gloomy than the aspect of affairs there at that very time. The news of Meerut and Delhi had fanned into a blaze, by ministering to the Arab hatred of the Kafir settlers; and the sultan of the neighbouring territory was at no pains to conceal his hostile sentiments towards the British. He stopped the daily supplies of provision and forage from coming into the British camp, plundered British subjects, and challenged the British resident to meet him in the field. Within the settlement, too, were elements as threatening. Twelve hundred native sepoys, whose loyalty had yet to be tested, and some thousands of intolerant Mahomedan inhabitants, were inside the fortifications. The European troops in garrison consisted only of a wing of H. M.'s 86th Regiment, and a portion of a company of artillery; barely men enough, one would have thought, for the pressing requirements of the settlement. Whatever less interested judges may say of the decision, as prompt as it was delicate, of the political resident on the relative urgency of the two cases, the danger to the empire on the one hand and that to the settlement on the other, those at the Presidency to whom the arrival of the wing of H. M. 86th's from Aden was as the bow in the cloud cannot so easily forget their obligation to that officer. —Bombay Gazette.

MR. T. L. JENKINS, the Master in Equity, retires from office, and proceeds home either by the next mail or the one after it. Mr. G. Taylor, who acted during Mr. Jenkins' absence on leave, will be appointed to the situation.

MR. ARNOLD, Principal of the Poona College, who came out to India in December, 1857, has resigned. He will be succeeded by Professor S. Owen, of the Elphinstone College, at present on leave in England.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.—A special general meeting was held at the office of the chamber at noon on Wednesday, the 28th December, 1859, for the purpose of electing a chairman in the room of H. D. Cartwright, Esq., resigned. Members Present.—A. T. Binny, Esq., in the chair; A. C. Gumpert, Esq.; E. P. Repton, Esq.; Alexander Wallace, Esq.; Wm. Sim, Esq.; G. Steel, Esq.; G. Hamilton, Esq.; R. P. Nixon, Esq.; C. Leggett, Esq.; H. D. Cartwright, Esq.; John Fleming, Esq.; R. McIlwraith, Esq.; W. J. Morgan, Esq.; George Lord, Esq.; S. Burstall, Esq.; R. Latham, Esq.; W. Cassels, Esq.; J. Farrar, Esq.; H. Brook, Esq.; and J. Ritchie, Esq. The chairman having read the requisition calling the meeting, the following resolution was brought forward:—Proposed by J. Fleming, Esq., seconded by G. Hamilton, Esq., and carried unanimously.—That Mr. Henry Scott be confirmed as chairman of the chamber, and Mr. Andrew Grant be elected deputy chairman. The meeting was then dissolved, after a vote of thanks to the chairman for his conduct in the chair.

TROOPS FOR ENGLAND.—The following details of H. M.'s home regiments, under the command of Lieut. J. H. Maxwell, proceeded to England by the ship Windsor Castle, Captain Pare, on the 3rd January:—Lieut. R. P. Jones, three sergeants, one corporal and seven privates of H. M.'s 3rd Dragoon Guards; one corporal and one private of H. M.'s 6th Inniskilling Dragoons; seven privates of H. M.'s 8th Hussars; six privates, one woman, and a child of H. M.'s 12th Lancers; two sergeants, one corporal, and six privates of H. M.'s 14th Light Dragoons; one sergeant and three privates of H. M.'s Royal Artillery; one subaltern, two sergeants, one drummer, two corporals, and twenty-four privates of H. M.'s 1st Royals; one sergeant of H. M.'s 4th Foot; one sergeant, one corporal, and eleven privates of H. M.'s 18th Foot; one private of H. M.'s 33rd Foot; one corporal and six privates of H. M.'s 57th Foot; one sergeant and eleven privates of H. M.'s 66th Foot; six sergeants, three corporals and twenty privates of H. M.'s 91st Foot; and two privates, two women, and two children of H. M.'s 95th Foot.

A BRAHMIN'S VISIT TO ENGLAND.—Mr. Mahiputram Roopram, deputy educational inspector of Kaira, intends proceeding on a tour to England, his chief object being to get a personal knowledge of the different systems of instruction adopted in the schools of Great Britain, and test their applicability to the Indian schools. Mr. Mahiputram is an intelligent young Brahmin, of unassuming manners, and though ranked among the young Bombay, he has gained popularity from the ignorant and bigoted, as well as from the enlightened members of his caste. His will be the second instance of a Brahmin from this Presidency visiting England. There is at present in England the Brahmin lad who accompanied Mr. Tucker of the civil service. We hope the wealthy Hindoos of Bombay will present Mr. Mahiputram with a purse to defray the expenses of his tour, after the example of the Parsees, who assisted their countryman, Dr. Rustomjee Byramjee, who is now an assistant surgeon in H. M.'s Bombay army, when he visited England to qualify himself for admission into the covenanted medical establishment of India.

Mr. W. E. FRERE, Provisional Member of Council, who has leave of absence for three months, proceeded by the China steamer of the 31st Dec. to visit the Straits, China, and Japan.

Mr. G. FAWCETT, Revenue Commissioner, southern division, whose time of service expires on the 3rd February next, will retire; and in all probability Mr. Richard Spooner, at present Commissioner of Customs, will be his successor, and Mr. Henry Hebbert is not unlikely to be the new Commissioner of Customs.

BOMBAY SAPPERS.—The 2nd and 5th companies Bombay Sappers and Miners, under the command of Lieut. J. H. Bedford, are ordered from Lullutpore to Poona.

RECRUITS FOR THE CHINA EXPEDITION.—The recruiting for the above expedition still continues, and men are being daily sworn in for it who formerly belonged to the late Company's Bengal army, most of the men attested being fine able-looking fellows.

BANK OF BOMBAY.—The half-yearly report of the Bank of Bombay proves the financial condition of the Bank to be most satisfactory. We learn from the profit and loss account that the directors have conducted their business in so safe and profitable a manner as to be able to declare a dividend for the last six months of 11 per cent., in addition to a dividend of 9 per cent. for the previous half year, to write off as loss the sum of Rs., 2,57,416-7-8,—the amount of depreciation of Government securities sold—and still to leave at the end of a year of great financial difficulty a balance of reserved fund amounting to Rs. 1,93,252-13-8, being only about Rs. 2,000 less than the reserved fund at the end of 1858. The auditors' report is singularly clear and complete. It gives full particulars, which leave no doubt that the business of the Bank is managed with a prudence, and the accounts kept with a carefulness and regularity, that reflect the highest credit on Mr. Stuart, the secretary, and the other officers of the establishment. We hope the Bank will continue to flourish under Mr. Blair, who is to succeed Mr. Stuart, when the latter gentleman leaves for England.

CAPTAIN SINCLAIR, at present officiating at the Presidency as assistant adjutant-general, is about to take a furlough to Europe. He will be succeeded by Captain George Leckie, the present assistant adjutant-general at Poona. This appointment will give universal satisfaction. The Bombay army contains no more gallant, intelligent, active, and accomplished officer than Captain Leckie—nor one more generally esteemed for his personal worth, obliging disposition, and conciliatory manners. The appointment reflects credit not only on the commander-in-chief, but on Colonel Green, C.B., the able adjutant-general of the army, whose recommendation, it may be supposed, influenced the commander-in-chief's selection.

THE REV. W. H. CUMMINS having declined to take the chaplaincy of Nusseerabad in relief of the Rev. C. T. Wilson, who is appointed to St. John's Church, Colaba, the Rev. G. A. F. Watson is to be ordered to proceed to Nusseerabad as chaplain, visiting Neemuch once in three months.

THE ELPHINSTONE INSTITUTION was closed on the 3rd Jan., in honour of the death of its founder, the late lamented Honourable Mountstuart Elphinstone. The students and ex-students are to meet in the Town Hall on Jan. 10, at 3 o'clock, to consider what should be the form of their memorial of Mountstuart Elphinstone.

BUTCHER'S ISLAND, which has so long been a station for the Indian Navy, is to be converted into a military sanitarium for the troops located at Bombay, and the naval officers employed there have been directed to vacate the island without delay. The naval detachment will be provided with quarters on board the Ajdaha and Palinurus, which are to be fitted up for their accommodation.

BOMBAY TO MOHOL.—The line of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway from Bombay to Mohol was opened to the public on Monday, the 2nd January.

THE JAGER CORPS.—Three hundred men of the Jager Corps, with a due proportion of officers, left Poona for Kurrachee by railway yesterday via Bombay, where they will embark in the Dalhousie steamer. A second detachment of the Jagers, consisting of two hundred and twenty men, will leave Poona this evening by railway for Kurrachee, embarking at Bombay in the I. N. steamer Victoria to-morrow. It is expected that the men of the Jager Corps who have elected to return to the Cape and transform their bayonets into reaping-hooks, as colonists, will be despatched from Bombay about the 25th. We have always had a sincere regard for this high-spirited and gallant corps of volunteers for H. M.'s service, and regret to see them thus broken up and separated. No European regiment ever behaved better, or bore a higher reputation in this place in every respect, both as soldiers and citizens, than the Jagers; and we part with them with great reluctance.—Poona Observer, Jan. 7th.

FRENCH DISCOUNT BANK.—A Bombay branch of the French Comptoir d'Escompte has been opened in this town, to facilitate the transaction of business with France. Branches of the same bank have also been opened lately in Calcutta, Madras and Bourbon. Messrs. Volkart Brothers are appointed agents for Bombay.

IMPORTS (Bombay, Jan. 9).—Cotton Manufactures.—The market for Piece Goods remains in a depressed state. Stocks are still very heavy, with little or no demand from up-country dealers. A fair business has been done, however, at a further reduction of prices. Almost all descriptions of Grey Goods, with the exception of Shirtings of 9 lbs. and upwards and Madapolams, are quoted lower. Bleached and Glasgow Goods are in moderate inquiry as before, with a slight reduction of prices in a few kinds. Turkey Red Goods continue dull, and prices have further declined. Yarns.—The market for both Mule and Water has become somewhat firmer, and in one or two counts prices are quoted one-eighth anna higher. Dyed Yarns are in moderate request. Metals.—Copper is in active demand, and Braziers and Sheathing, which were scarce, have again advanced in price. Brass is quoted lower. Iron is quiet, and has receded in price, with the exception of Sheet and Hoop Steel is neglected. Spelter continues dull. In Lead there is no thing doing. Cochineal. In good inquiry, at slightly-advanced rates.

EXPORTS (Bombay, Jan. 9).—Cotton. Since our last report the unfavourable advices received from Liverpool and China have caused a reduction in the prices of the staple of from Rs. 8 to 10 per candy, but latterly, a few buyers having come forward to make purchases for the Europe market, prices recovered from Rs. 3 to 4. There is very little doing in the market at present. The arrivals of Dholleria and Compta continue large, the former staple is fair and very free of leaf, the latter is of poor quality and with a good deal of seed. The cotton exports from Bombay during the year 1859 were—to Europe 625,605½ bales, being an increase of 268,352 over 1858; and to China 161,916 bales, being an increase of 59,812 over the previous year. Total exports, 785,521½ bales. Wool. This is at present in very active demand, and a fair amount of business has been effected at full prices. There is a good supply at market. Oilseeds. The market is firm. Mustard is in good demand at a slight reduction in price. Rape-seed much inquired for, and has advanced in price. In Pease-seed there is not much doing. Supplies of Ground Nuts are being received, and the article is quoted at Rs. 17 to 17½. Heaps remains unaltered. Coffee. Stocks of both Mocha and Malabar are very light, and high prices are asked. Pepper has improved in demand, and is quoted higher. Madras Root. In moderate inquiry, and prices have given way.

The Army for China.

H. E. the Governor-general issues this Notification for the information of the Bengal Native Army.

2. It is likely that an army will shortly be required from India for the Queen's service in China.

3. This army will be composed partly of European and partly of native troops.

4. The European portion of it will consist of seven regiments of infantry (in addition to the two regiments recently sent to China) and some cavalry; but respecting this portion of the force, H. E. the G. in C. will in due time issue the necessary directions.

5. The native portion of the army will consist, in the first instance, of five battalions of infantry, of which four will be selected from such Punjabee regiments as may volunteer for the service, and one from the Hindostanee regiments which may volunteer. Some irregular cavalry will also be sent.

6. The strength of the battalions will be 800 privates each, with the due proportion of native commissioned and non-commissioned officers, in eight companies.

7. Each man, whether belonging to a regiment volunteering collectively, or coming forward separately, will be required to sign or seal a paper, declaring himself to be a volunteer. This precaution for securing individual willingness will be taken after the offer of a regiment, or of any man belonging to it, shall have been accepted by the Governor general.

8. The period for which volunteers are now required is two years, if it should happen that the service in China extends beyond two years any man who may wish to be relieved at the end of that term will be relieved.

9. Depots will be formed in India of regiments volunteering; to which men who do not proceed on foreign service will be attached; and the property left behind by the men, and any of their families, will be carefully looked after at these depots.

10. The native volunteer battalions proceeding to China will enjoy the established privileges of foreign service, viz.:—

I. The privilege of granting family money certificates.

II. The nomination of heirs to family pension in case of their decease.

III. Pay and full batta in addition to free rations. The full batta will be drawn from the date on which each man's offer of service is accepted.

IV. Rations, gratis, on board ship, and on shore while on foreign service and until re-landed in Bengal. The commissariat department will issue the rations, of which the cost will be defrayed by Government.

V. On embarkation, haversacks, canteens, and hammocks, and a great coat per man, at the public expense, the articles to be accounted for by quartermasters in the periodical returns.

VI. Half batta during leave of absence on medical certificate.

VII. After a return of a regiment from foreign service if in time of peace, a quadruple proportion of native officers and men will be entitled to furlough, for periods proportioned to the distances of their homes and with the privilege of half batta during such furlough.

11. The native force will be armed with the smooth bore musket, such as is used by the regiments of Bengal and Madras N.I. now serving in China; and in order that uniformity of ammunition may be preserved throughout the entire native force in that country, corps now armed with rifles will, before embarkation, have them exchanged for the smooth bore musket.

12. Each volunteer regt. will have the following complement of European officers:—

A commandant.

A second in command.

An adjutant.

An interpreter and quartermaster.

A medical officer (surg. or asst. surg.)

Eight (8) officers doing duty.

An apothecary.

13. H. E. the G. in C. is requested to issue such further subsidiary orders as may be necessary, respecting the formation of the force, European and Native, proceeding to China.

R. J. H. BIRCH, Major General,
Sec. to the Govt. of India, with the Gov. Gen.

Court Martial.

MR. J. DAVIDSON, LATE INSPECTOR OF THE LAND TRANSPORT TRAIN.

Hd. Qrs., Poona, Dec. 28.—At an European General Court Martial assembled at Cantonment Mhow, on Friday, Dec. 2, 1859, James Davidson, late inspector of the land transport train, was arraigned on the following charges:—

1st Charge.—For having, on or about the month of June, 1859, when serving at Indore, in the commissariat department, as an inspector of the Government land transport train, between Wassind and Neemuch, embezzled and fraudulently misapplied the sum of Rs. 539 or thereabouts, the property of H.M.'s Bombay Government, which was entrusted to him, the prisoner, for public purposes.

2nd Charge.—For having, on or about the 14th of June, 1859, at the same place as mentioned in the preceding charge, and when similarly employed, embezzled and fraudulently misapplied the sum of Rs. 231 6 annas, or thereabouts, the property of H.M.'s Bombay Government, which he, the prisoner, had collected on behalf of the Government aforesaid as transit fares.

The above being in breach of the Articles of War:—

Finding.—Guilty of the first charge,

Guilty of the second charge, but the Court finds that the exact amount of transit fares embezzled and fraudulently misapplied by the prisoner was two hundred and thirty-one Rupees and fourteen annas (Rs. 231-14-0 and not Rs. 231-6-0) as laid in the 2nd charge.

Sentence.—The Court having found the prisoner guilty of both charges, as above specified, sentences him, the prisoner James Davidson, late inspector of the transport train, to undergo imprisonment with hard labour for the space of 2 years, and further the Court directs that the prisoner shall make good at his own expense, the full sum of Rs. 770 and 14 annas, being the amount proved to have been embezzled and fraudulently misapplied by the prisoner.

Approved and confirmed.

 Lieut. general C. in C.

Head Quarters, Poona, Dec. 27.

The imprisonment awarded by the foregoing sentence is to be carried into execution in the House of Correction at Bombay, and is to have effect from the 27th instant.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

SATURDAY, Feb. 4, 1860.

FEMALE ARTISTS.

It is, we believe, a common complaint of English ladies in India that their early accomplishments, acquired frequently after a considerable outlay of money and a lavish expenditure of time, are of little, if any, use to them in their eastern homes. There is no inducement to indulge in the industrious idleness of fancy-work, where there are so few to envy or admire. Besides, how cold and lifeless is the most elaborate embroidery to which they could aspire when compared with the priceless shawls of Cashmere, or the gorgeous scarves of Delhi? And who would care to display her spaniels and peonies in Berlin wool to the trenchant criticism of the white ant? As to muslin or lace, neither Honiton nor Valenciennes can compete with Benares or Dacca; with what hope of distinction, then, can the most cunning needlework of the languid dame or damsel venture to entertain in entering the lists against such competitors? True, there is music, "the only sensual gratification," according to Addison, "which mankind may indulge in to excess, without injury to their moral or religious feelings." But in the absence of good instruments, it is no easy task to keep up one's musical taste and skill, and still less easy to make any progress. Again, music is a gregarious amusement, except in the case of genuine artists, and even they thirst for public expression and public applause. There remains, however, the delightful recreation of painting. Not drawing merely, but "painting," whether in oils or in water-colours. We would ask our readers to visit the Gallery of Female Artists now open in Pall Mall, and judge for themselves of the boundless and ever-changing recreation to be obtained by a tolerable proficiency in this graceful and peculiarly feminine art. It may be that only here and there one may rival Mrs. Elizabeth Murray in her powerful delineations of Moorish life, but very many may follow in her steps, and commit to canvas the picturesque forms of native life in Hindostan. And where can be found a greater variety of scenery, of trees and flowers, of Turner-esque lights and shadows, and even of quaint or beautiful ideas to be worked out into real creations? Earnestly, then, do we entreat "parents and guardians" to cultivate the slightest trace of artistic talent in preference to confusing the brains, and overcharging the memories of their children or wards with a mixed farrago of Latin, Greek, Hebrew, German, French, and Italian grammars. The pencil is a far more general resource than the harp or the piano, and infinitely better than French novels or German mysteries. A genuine love of art will teach a due appreciation of the beauties of nature, and admiration of created things will surely engender a humble and grateful veneration of Him who created them, and saw that they were good.

FIBROUS SUBSTANCES OF MADRAS.

OPPOSED to the late Russian war upon principle, we have now to deplore it from the experience of personal sufferings. We have this moment completed the melancholy task of wading through upwards of one hundred and sixty pages of the driest possible reports on the subject of fibrous substances grown within the limits of the Madras Presidency. If the said fibres are only one-half as tough as the notices written concerning them, there can be no doubt of their fitness for the execution of even capital punishment. The sudden stoppage of the usual supply of hemp caused by the rupture between the Courts of London and St. Petersburg compelled the manufacturers of Great Britain to seek for substitutes in all directions. The Madras Government at once responded to their cry of distress by instructing their collectors and magistrates to report upon the fibrous substances grown in their respective districts. This was natural and commendable, but we cannot compliment the gentlemen who acted upon those instructions, on the excellence or practical utility of their reports. Indeed, the same fault may be traced in all the official records of the local Government. There is a painful minuteness of detail, without any corresponding power of taking a broad comprehensive view of the subject of the inquiry. There is a clerk-like love of tabular statement, but without "pointing the moral" by drawing the obvious deductions and generalisations. There is a pedantic and ostentatious display of linguistic acquirements, but without any evidence of a familiar acquaintance with the habits, wants, and industry of the people. The reports, in short, are all pre-raphaelite miniatures, in which a speck of dust is as carefully reproduced as a characteristic feature, and the interpretation of which is left to those who delight in symbols and mysterious combinations of figures. But even assuming that in the present instance better reports could not have been obtained—and it is an assumption totally unwarranted—we are at a loss to understand what could have induced the Government to incur the expense of publishing them in their original baldness. It would have been far less expensive, and certainly far more advantageous to public interests, to have submitted them to a gentleman of moderate scientific attainments, capable also of separating the grain from the chaff, in order that the various statements might be collated and condensed into a clear, concise exposition of their results. Instead of this, the reader is wearied with endless repetitions of the same story, only that some versions are rather more tediously minute than others. The Collector of Madura, for instance, gives the Tamil names in Tamil characters of the fibrous plants and trees in his district, then the Tamil names in English characters, then the English names of such as have any, and, finally, the botanical names.

The other reports are after the same fashion, and tell of every weed used by a semi-barbarous village or tribe to furnish materials for twine. With the exception of the Sunn hemp, or Crotalaria juncea, the Hibiscus cannabinus, the Cocos nucifera, and the Rhea grass, it is evident that the Madras Presidency cannot be counted upon for the supply of fibrous substances. These, indeed, are amply sufficient, and, with a little encouragement and skilled supervision, will answer every economical purpose. The other fibrous plants are resorted to by the natives as poor substitutes, and are not worthy of being seriously noticed by British manufacturers, whose attention is fruitlessly distracted by the pedantic minuteness and over-elaboration of such reports as those now under our notice. We trust that, for the future, some simple forms will be issued to local authorities for their guidance, in the hope of arriving more expeditiously at the object aimed at, and of avoiding a surplussage of details which embarrass and confuse rather than afford any real information.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

EAST INDIA LOANS.

On the motion of Mr. GREGSON, a return was ordered to be produced of the amount of "en-faced" India Government Rupee Loans registered at the India House up to the 31st day of December, 1859, specifying the respective loans and their amounts.

INVESTMENTS BY TRUSTEES.

Mr. A. MILLS asked the Attorney-general whether any measure would be introduced in the present session to amend so much of the Act 22 and 23 Vic. c. 35 as related to investments by trustees in East India Stock?

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL said the clause had been introduced by that House into a Bill which had come down from the House of Lords, but the construction which had been put upon it had had the effect of making it a dead letter, though it might, at the same time, be a dangerous power in the hands of fraudulent trustees. The noble and learned author of the Act (Lord St. Leonard's) had brought in another Bill, which would very probably come down to that House; and it would then afford hon. members an opportunity of discussing the subject.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—JAN. 31.

DELHI PRIZE MONEY.

Lord BERNERS gave notice of a question he would ask at an early day as to whether the prize roll had been sent by the Governor-general of India to enable her Majesty's warrant to issue for payment of the prize money due to the officers and men engaged in the siege of Delhi. He observed that on account of the small force which had to storm the city, it was thought prudent to order that the troops should not plunder, but a promise was given that all the property taken should be considered as prize, and regularly distributed. This had not been done; two years and four months had since elapsed, and the soldiers who were at Delhi felt very sore about it, thinking that faith had not been kept with them.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—JAN. 31.

LAND-TAX (INDIA).

Mr. KINNAIRD asked what had been done by the Government in India to give effect to the orders contained in Lord Stanley's despatches as to the redemption of the land-tax, and the repeal of the regulation XIX. of 1810?

Sir C. WOOD had not heard whether the Government had adopted any measures with regard to the regulation in question. He was glad to state that steps had been taken in Madras for the redemption of the tax on land for building purposes.

LICENCING BILL (INDIA).

Mr. DANBY SEYMOUR asked the Secretary of State for India, what course the Government intended to take with regard to the Licencing Bill in India; and whether that Bill had been passed through all its stages by the Legislative Council at Calcutta?

Sir C. WOOD said the Bill, after passing a certain stage, had been postponed until the Legislative Assembly should meet again, which had not yet been the case, and he was therefore unable to say what course the Government intended to pursue.

MISCELLANEOUS.

PERSIA.—Some interesting news has been received in Paris from Persia. The Shah, since his return from his journey through the provinces of his empire, has determined to appoint a cabinet council, likewise an inferior council, to be composed of twenty-four persons, who will not interfere in political questions. Issa Khan will preside over the latter council, and Aga Ismail will submit the resolutions of the council to the Shah for his approval. The members appointed are Mirza Mousia (late Vizier at Teheran), Iskendar Khan, Choussein Khan, Mirza Ali, Mirza Moustapha Khan, Reschim Khan, Choussein Khan Sartep (Postmaster-general), Riza Chouli Khan (Director of the School of Teheran), Mirza Riza, (General of Engineers), Mohamet Ibrahim Khan, Mirza Mohamet Ali (Secretary).

RESOURCES OF INDIA.—The prospectus of the India and Colonial Cotton, Flax, and Fibres Company (Limited) is issued. The proposed capital is £100,000, in shares of £25 each. It is mentioned that "the primary object of this company is to cultivate and promote the cultivation by others of flax, hemp, and the above mentioned fibres, more especially the rehea, the very many valuable properties of which are becoming more and more appreciated every day. The directors also hope to be able in a short time to produce cotton in considerable quantities. For the growth of the latter material, as well as of the rehea fibre, the soil of the Sunderbunds, near Calcutta, where there exist vast tracts of uncultivated land, close to the New Port on the Mutlah, is known to be admirably adapted. In commencing operations the directors propose to turn their attention, in the first place, more particularly to the Punjab and North Western Provinces of India for flax and hemp, and to Assam and the Sunderbunds for rehea and cotton." The promoters further mention that they have already received offers from large landowners in India to cultivate to an enormous extent, and from English manufacturers to take almost any quantity that can be produced at remunerative prices.

MESSRS. WHITE AND GREGORY, Indian agents and bankers in the Haymarket, have obtained first-class certificates in the Bankruptcy Court.

BOOKS.

The Universal Review. No. XII. W. H. Allen and Co.

He must, indeed, be a fastidious reader who cannot find in the current number of the Universal Review at least one article to please his taste. If he be interested in the mechanical arts and engineering, he will alight upon abundant matter for reflection in the carefully-elaborated comparison of the works of Isambard Brunel and Robert Stephenson, great sons of greater sires. Does he take thought for the internal prosperity of the myriad inhabitants of Hindostan? Then let him peruse the paper on the "Monetary System and Financial Condition of India," and deplore the timidity, infatuation, or ignorance which delays the introduction of a portable and easily convertible currency as a medium of barter, a stimulant to industry, and the key of commerce. If literary and critical recreations be more in his line, has he not the embarras des richesses in making his choice between the earnest and graceful appreciation of the labours of Charles Kingsley, the sprightly and humorous eulogy of Father Prout's Reliques, and the grave and scholarly dissertation on Lord Macaulay as a litterateur, an historian, and a politician. Does he prefer fiction? Is there not the tale of Lucy Adenbroke's "long engagement," and the dire results that thence ensued? Or, finally, does he cling to the old-fashioned essay and love to listen to a "talk" about things? Then let him turn to the paper on "Philosophical Romance," or to the lighter remarks on "Verbal Landscape-Painting." Should none of these be in his vein, he is indeed hard to please.

THE WUZEREER EXPEDITION.—The following telegram to the Lahore Chronicle intimates that the "Koorum Field Force," under the command of Brigadier-general Chamberlain, was successfully engaged with the Wuzerees on the 21st Dec.:—"Camp in the Wuzereer Hills, 22nd Dec., 8 p.m.—The Koorum Field Force has just returned from a successful attack on the Wuzerees, who were driven for several miles over their crags and away from their winter settlements. Four of their largest encampments were completely destroyed, with all their winter stores, and much cattle was also seized. Many of the tribe behaved with daring gallantry. The enemy lost twenty killed, and more than that number wounded. Our loss was one killed and about six wounded. General Chamberlain may probably follow them up to-morrow, unless the rain continues, which has fallen all the afternoon."

The honourable Mr. Elliott, member of the Legislative Council of Madras, arrived in Bombay on the 5th Jan., by the P. and O. Co.'s steamer Ganges, from Madras.

A NEW INSURANCE OFFICE has been opened by some of our enterprising native merchants, under the style of "The China Merchant Insurance Company." The secretary is Mr. Byramjee Cursetjee, manager of the China Merchant Steam Navigation Company.

MESSRS. THACKER, VINING, AND Co., booksellers and publishers, have made arrangements for publishing very soon a new monthly photographic portrait gallery, which will contain likenesses of all the most eminent Englishmen and natives in India. Such an undertaking cannot fail to achieve a wide success.

GOVERNESS or COMPANION.—A Clergyman has great confidence in recommending a LADY of high principle, mental power, and great intelligence. She may accept an appointment for India as Governess or Companion, and would particularly desire an engagement in a religious family of Evangelical views. She is by birth a lady, and can impart a finished English education, with Continental, French, and German, Music, and Drawing.

BY J. R. YOUNG,

A COURSE OF MATHEMATICS, PURE AND MIXED,

More especially designed for the Use of Candidates for the MILITARY & CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

1. ALGEBRA, TRIGONOMETRY, AND MENSURATION.
2. ANALYTICAL GEOMETRY (CONIC SECTIONS), STATICS, DYNAMICS, AND HYDROSTATICS.
3. THE DIFFERENTIAL AND INTEGRAL CALCULUS, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c., &c.

The object of this work is to furnish Candidates for the Military and Civil Service Examinations with such a practical knowledge of Pure and Mixed Mathematics as may prove most serviceable to them in the course of the ordeal to which they are about to be subjected. On such occasions a mere theoretical acquaintance with principles is by no means sufficient. It is also necessary that the young aspirant should have been trained by actual experiments, as it were, to the application of the abstract rules, the enunciation of which he has otherwise mastered only by an effort of memory. To assist him in thus gathering the fruits of his intellectual industry, Mr. J. R. YOUNG has devised a multitude of problems, of greater or less difficulty, in Algebra, Trigonometry, Mensuration, Analytical Geometry (Conic Sections), Statics, Dynamics, Hydrostatics, the Differential and Integral Calculus, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c. The chief peculiarity of this work, however, is one that will recommend it to a very large class of students. The most difficult questions are rendered comparatively easy, by the practical simplifications that are introduced in their mode of solution. Instead of a pompous and puzzling display of technical phraseology, the utmost care has been taken to explain the most knotty points in a plain, unaffected manner, intelligible to every ordinary capacity. In this respect, Mr. YOUNG's "Course of Mathematics" will be found to possess a decided superiority over all preceding works on the same subject.

THE INDUS and its PROVINCES; their Political and Commercial Importance in connection with Improved Means of Communication. Illustrated by Statistical Tables and Maps.

By W. P. ANDREW, F.R.G.S.,

Chairman of the Scinde and Punjab Railways, and Indus Steam Flotilla; Author of "Indian Railways as connected with the Power and Stability of the British Empire in the East," &c., &c., &c.

"The Indus and its Provinces" is really as interesting to the general reader as it is essential to the merchant, the trader, the politician, and the historian."—Morning Chronicle, May 27, 1858.

"Not contented to repose on his laurels as the early advocate for the construction of Railways in India, Mr. Andrew has steadily persevered in developing his original idea, and now, after twelve years of incessant application, we find him concentrating his energies on the improvement of land and river communication in Scinde and the Punjab, though with ulterior views, extending far beyond the immediate benefit of those Provinces."—Allen's Indian Mail, June 12, 1858.

London: WM. H. ALLEN and Co., 7, Leadenhall-street.

JAMS, JELLIES, and MARMALADE, PRESERVED IN TINS,

By BARNES, MORGAN, and Co.

(the Originators of this method of preserving), Upper Thames-street, London, E.C. This mode of Preserving is now acknowledged to be far superior to any yet invented. The contents will keep good for any number of years without the tin imparting any metallic taste to the Preserve, and never candy or ferment. To Regimental Messes they are peculiarly adapted, being more portable than jars, and not liable to breakage. B. M. and Co. would also recommend their Pickles, Sauces, Tart Fruits, &c., and their large stock of York and Cumberland Hams, Cheese, and Bacon.

NELSON'S MEDICATED BELT.

(Ed. Nelson, Naval Surgeon from 1832 to 1857.)

Gentlemen who are subject to pains in the back or loins, Rheumatism, Lumbago, or who are given to corpulence, are advised to wear NELSON'S MEDICATED BELT, as it gives a great support to the entire frame, and a comfortable and genial warmth to the back and abdomen, promoting health and digestion. Gentlemen who ride for business or pleasure should wear this Belt as a preventive of Rupture, &c.

NELSON'S MEDICATED MARINE BELT for the prevention of Sea Sickness and the support of the back and loins during a long voyage.

"All those whose duty or pleasure calls them to sea should possess this Belt, for, putting aside its use on board ship, it is invaluable as a Riding Belt, fitting easily, and supporting the back."

"Lower Parade, Leamington, August 3, 1858."

These Belts are sold by Mr. WHITBURN, Chemist, 174, Regent-street, price 21s. each, or direct from the Maker, WM. ELSTAB, 12, Avery-row, New Bond-street. Circulars free. Orders from the country must have the size of waist and hips, and a Post-office Order for 21s., payable to WM. ELSTAB, at Cavendish-street.

These Belts can be had of any tailor.

THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS.

FOR INDIA AND THE COLONIES.

A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF BRITISH AND FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

This Newspaper presents a comprehensive and perfect view of British and Foreign affairs, with special reference to those subjects in any way interesting to residents in India, or those at home having connections there. The Intelligence is brought down to the latest possible moment prior to the departure of the Mail. The various departments are so arranged, and the intelligence analysed, as to form a weekly register of permanent interest and value, which subscribers will be glad to preserve.

The weekly issue of "THACKER'S OVERLAND NEWS" renders it as eligible a newspaper for Anglo-Indians resident at home as abroad.

Families should send it to their friends abroad.

CLAPHAM COMMON.

UNFURNISHED HOUSES at CLAPHAM COMMON.

Mr. McLACHLAN, of 35, St. James's-street and Clapham-common, is instructed to LET THREE HOUSES in the GROVE, adjoining that beautiful spot, Clapham-common. They consist of dining, breakfast, and double drawing-rooms, and five bed-rooms, with the usual domestic offices, coach-house, stable, &c. The houses have just been put into thorough substantial and ornamental repair, and are fit for immediate occupation. The locality is highly respectable; and as the rents are moderate, and several Indian families reside in the neighbourhood, Mr. McLachlan begs to recommend the houses to the attention of families recently arrived from India. The drainage is warrantable. Omnibuses to West-end and City pass constantly. One mile to the Balham Station, for Pimlico, Crystal Palace, Brighton, &c.

OUTFITS TO INDIA.—Families requiring PLATE, CUTLERY, &c., will find SLACK'S ELECTRO-PLATE the most durable. It is generally used by the principal Officers in H.M.S., also by his Excellency Lord CLYDE, Commander-in-Chief.

SLACK'S NICKEL ELECTRO-PLATE.

Manufactured solely by RICHARD and JOHN SLACK. It has stood twenty years' test, and still retains its superiority over all others for durability and silvery appearance. Cruet Frames, from 18s.; Corner Dishes, £8. 8s. per set, forming eight dishes; Tea and Coffee Sets, £8. 0s.; and every article as in Silver.

Ordinary Medical Attendant, Mr. J. SMELLIE, Surgeon. Second Edition of SMELLIE'S Work on Electro-Galvanism, 2s. 6d., by post, 2s. 8d.

BLAIR'S GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

Price 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per box.

This preparation is one of the benefits which the science of modern chemistry has conferred upon mankind; for during the first twenty years of the present century to speak of a cure for the gout was considered a romance; but now the efficacy and safety of this medicine is so fully demonstrated by unsolicited testimonials from persons in every rank of life, that public opinion proclaims this as one of the most important discoveries of the present age. These Pills require no restraint of diet or confinement during their use, and are certain to prevent the disease attacking any vital part.

Sold by all medicine vendors. Observe "Thomas Prout, 220, Strand, London," on the Government stamp.

RUPTURES.—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS is allowed, by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of HERNIA. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body, two inches below the hips, being sent to the Manufacturer.

Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON.

A Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d. Postage, 1s. A Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage, 1s. 6d. An Umbilical Truss, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage, 1s. 10d. Post-office Orders to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE-CAPS, &c. for VARICOSE VEINS, and all cases of WEAKNESS and SWELLING of the LEGS, SPRAINS, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 7s. 6d. to 16s. each. Postage, 6d.

JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228, Piccadilly, London.

NEWBERRY'S COD LIVER OIL CAKES.

"We have examined a specimen of gingerbread made by Messrs. Newberry—each cake containing a teaspoonful of Cod Liver Oil. The gingerbread is extremely light and pleasant, the flavour of the oil being completely covered. This seems likely to prove a very useful mode of administering Cod Liver Oil to children, and to others who are nauseated by the offensive odour and flavour of the Oil as generally taken."—Medical Times, 12th Feb., 1859. Eight Cakes, 1s. 9d.; Sixteen (about 1lb.), 3s.—F. NEWBERRY and SONS, 45, St. Paul's-churchyard. Established A.D. 1746.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

INFUENZA.—This disease, now so prevalent, and often fatal, is an epidemic form of fever, attended by irritation of the windpipe, inflammation of the throat, and constant cough. When erroneously treated by the ordinary medicines adopted for colds the most serious consequences ensue, and too often the mistake is mortal. This mischance can never happen when reliance is placed on Holloway's medicines, for whether the symptoms arise from inflammation, colds, or irritation (influenza), these remedies relieve, in the first, by lowering the circulation; in the latter, by soothing the excited nerves. At this season no family is safe without Holloway's preparations, which do not contain a grain of noxious ingredients to injure the constitution.

THE MAGNESIAN EFFERVESCENT is

the most agreeable and effective remedy in all cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Acidity, Heartburn, Indigestion, and Biliary Affection, Nausea, Fever, Thirst, and Sea-sickness. It is highly recommended by the profession, and will be found especially valuable to those going to India or travelling in warm climates; as a mild and efficacious saline aperient it stands unequalled, and will be found peculiarly adapted for delicate females and children. To be obtained through all respectable chemists, and wholesale from Messrs. BAWCAY, Farringdon-street (put up in stoppered bottles at 4s. 6d. for India), and smaller size at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d.

LENTUM, A NEW COMPOSITION

for Artificial TEETH and GUMS, recommended to Invalids and all who suffer from Indigestion. Its flexibility and lightness give the greatest power in mastication, avoiding all pain or pressure on the gums, without springs, wires, or any unsightly gold. It supports all loose and tender teeth, and does not require the extraction of stumps. Prepared only by

MR. ALFRED JONES, SURGEON-DENTIST to

64, GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.

TO SUFFERERS with CORNS and

BUNIONS.—Ask for a Box of YOUNG'S CORN and BUNION PLASTER, which will eradicate corns or bunions in a very short time. Be careful that you have YOUNG'S—the name is printed on the label; all others are imitations. Price 6d. and 1s. per box, or by post for thirteen postage stamps. Address H. YOUNG, 31, Shaftesbury-place, Aldersgate-street, E.C. May be had at most chemists throughout the world. Agents wanted abroad. N.B.—A Liberal Allowance to Wholesale Dealers.

THE NEW MORNING DRAUGHT.

HOOPER'S SELTZER POWDERS make a most agreeable, effervescent, tasteless Aperient Morning Draught, and are acknowledged by every one who try them to be infinitely superior in every respect to any Seltitz Powders, effervescent more briskly, are quite tasteless, are painless in operation, and effective in result. Mixed as suggested in the directions, even children take them with a relish. Sold by HOOPER, Chemist, London-bridge, in boxes (and in bottles for exportation), 2s. 6d. each.

GENTLEMEN, if you want a Treat, try

EAMES'S PATENT TROUSERS, a perfect and elegant fit, falling gracefully over the instep, with or without straps, giving that freedom and comfort so necessary in walking or riding. If you try them once, you will soon change your tailor. The texture and pattern are the best the market can produce. The price, 17s. 6d. to 25s. What a luxury to have perfection in a Coat—to fit easy, and without a crease! Try EAMES'S, Practical Tailor, 10, VERNON-PLACE, Bloomsbury-square, W.C. You will be pleased with the fit, style, and price.

The Society has paid for claims by death, since its establishment in 1841, no less a sum than £503,619.

Assurances are effected at home or abroad on healthy lives at as moderate rates as the most recent data will allow.

ARMY AND NAVY.—No extra premium is required on healthy lives in the Army or Navy unless in actual service.

VOLUNTEERS.—No extra charge for persons serving in any Volunteer or Rifle Corps within the United Kingdom.

RESIDENCE ABROAD.—The Policies issued by this Society give greater facilities to parties going to or residing in Foreign Climates than those of most other companies.

MASTER MARINERS are assured for life or for a voyage at equitable rates.

INDIA.—Officers in the Army and civilians proceeding to India may insure their lives on the most favourable terms, and every possible facility is afforded for the transaction of business in India.

Premiums for India have been computed on the actual results of European life in that colony, extending over the whole period of the East India Company's experience, and will be found generally lower than those of other companies, and especially favourable for military men.

Civil rates charged on lives of military officers holding civil appointments for the term of such appointments.

Immediate reduction to English rates on the assured returning to Europe permanently to reside.

Policies may be made payable either in London or in India, at the rate of Two Shillings sterling per Company's Rupee.

INVALID LIVES assured on scientifically constructed tables based on extensive data, and a reduction in the premium is made when the causes for an increased rate of premium have ceased.

STAMP DUTY.—Policies issued free of every charge but the premiums.

DAYS OF GRACE.—In the event of death during the days of grace, the risk binding on the Society if premium paid before the days of grace expire.

Every information may be obtained at the chief office, or on application to any of the Society's agents.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.—Under the Provisions of an Act of Parliament, this Company now offers to future Insurers Eighty per Cent. of the Profits, with Quinquennial Division, or a Low Rate of Premium without Participation of Profits. The next Division of Profits will be declared in June, 1860, when all Participating Policies which shall have subsisted at least one year at Christmas, 1859, will be allowed to share in the Profits.

At the Five Divisions of Profits made by this Company, the total Reversionary Bonuses added to the Policies have exceeded £213,000.

At the last valuation, at Christmas, 1854, the Assurances in force amounted to upwards of £4,240,000, the Income from the Life Branch in 1854 was more than £200,000, and the Life Assurance Fund, after division of profits (independent of the Guarantee Capital), exceeded £1,540,000.

LOCAL MILITIA and VOLUNTEER CORPS.—No Extra Premium is required for service therein.

INVALID LIVES.—Persons who are not in such sound health as would enable them to insure their Lives at the Tabular Premiums, may have their Lives insured at Extra Premiums.

LOANS granted on Life Policies to the extent of their values, provided such Policies shall have been effected a sufficient time to have attained in each case a value not under £50.

ASSIGNMENTS OF POLICIES.—Written Notices of, received and registered.

MEDICAL FEES paid by the Company, and no charge will be made for Policy Stamps.

BURROWS and Co., WHOLESALE WINE MERCHANTS, LIVERPOOL.

Stores ... .. Lime-street.
 Offices ... .. 54, Duke-street.

The Proprietors beg most respectfully to call the attention of the Trade, Noblemen, Clergy, and the Public to their extensive stock of CHOICE WINES of rare vintages.

B. and Co. are not disposed to comment upon the purity of their Wines, which is daily most laudably acknowledged by the public and eminent medical men of all countries, as the increasing patronage of the highest families in the land is a sufficient guarantee.

They beg to call attention in particular to their Pure Tonic Wines as being so valuable to invalids and persons of weak stomachs.

A sample case, containing full-sized sample cases, will be forwarded to any address on receipt of 6s. 6d., or a dozen for 24s.

It is a well-known fact that impure and adulterated Wines are the greatest foes to health, producing acidity in the stomach, and debilitating the digestive organs, while pure Wines will accelerate the digestive powers, invigorating, strengthening, and bracing the nervous system.

Their Tonic Wine is admitted to be most essential to invalids, both old and young, and should never be absent from the homes of the weak and sickly. Its properties are duly acknowledged by the leading men of the Faculty both at home and abroad.

To prevent imposition each bottle is sealed with the name of the firm.

All orders to be made payable to HENRY BURROWS.

BENGAL.

THE EXTRA SHILLING ON SALT.

From the moment when new taxes became inevitable, we have pleaded for a moderate increase of the salt duty. That impost, however offensive to European ears, is almost the only tax of which no native complains. It has never been mentioned in a petition, never quoted by rebels ransacking their brains for a telling grievance. The mass of the people do not know of its existence, and it is more than probable that the educated classes would regard its abolition as a wilful dilapidation of the public means. The tax thus acceptable to the people is in itself probably the lightest poll-tax ever imposed. On the twelve pounds of salt which every human being ought to eat per annum, it amounts to seven annas, or say two days' labour. The English beer-tax alone, which is almost as universal in its incidence, amounts to more. Moreover, the old relation of the tax to prices has of late years gradually disappeared. While wages have increased some seventy-five per cent., and the price of rice has doubled, that of salt has remained stationary. The consumption last year in Bengal was unprecedented, even if we suppose that some ten lakhs of maunds were exported to supply a deficiency in the North-West.

The Government of India, which always legislates in fear of European economists, has for months resisted all persuasion to attack the salt. Orders from home, however, appear to have removed the theoretical difficulty, and on the 21st Decr. the duty in Bengal was raised a shilling a maund. No Act is necessary to justify this increase, as the statute-tax is Rs. 3.4 a maund, and the increase only brings the highest or Bengalee duty up to Rs. 3. A Bill is necessary only for the North-West, and it is already introduced.

Had the tax been universal throughout India the relief to the revenue would have been very large. The consumption, taking Mr. Plowden's figures in the rough, is Maunds.

Bengal .. .. .	70,00,000
Bombay .. .. .	29,00,000
Madras .. .. .	50,00,000
N.W.P. .. .. .	22,60,000
Punjab .. .. .	10,00,000
Total .. .. .	1,81,60,000

The extra tax, if equally inflicted, would therefore yield upwards of £900,000. Unfortunately it is not to be so imposed. The smaller Presidencies irresponsible for the revenue have, of course, protested angrily against taxation. In deference to their remonstrances the additional tax is reduced in Bombay to 4 annas, and in Madras to half that amount. The North-West Provinces and the Punjab will, however, not be treated as independent monarchies; and the tax, therefore, ought to produce

Bengal .. .. .	Rs. 35,00,000
Bombay .. .. .	7,25,000
Madras .. .. .	6,25,000
N.W. Provs. .. .. .	11,00,000
Punjab .. .. .	5,00,000
Total .. .. .	Rs. 64,50,000

This amount, be it remembered, is a real gain to the State. There is no addition to the expenses of collection, no excuse for creating new departments. A reduction of consumption is the only danger, and unless all evidence as to the rise of wages in India is delusive, the new impost will not affect the average quantity consumed.—Friend of India.

RUSSIAN SETTLEMENTS ON THE AMOOR.

In the north-east of Asia, between the wall of China and the snows of Siberia, there is a country hitherto, perhaps, less known to Europeans than any other region of the world—namely, the territory watered by the River Amoor and its tributaries.

The maps tell us that this territory is extensive; Major Collins informs us that it is capable of supporting a population of fifty millions, and likely in future times to become the seat of an empire. Major Collins is an enterprising American, who has conceived and executed the bold project of exploring this region, and has since established himself there in the capacity of commercial agent to the Government of the United States. As an enterprise, this exploit is hardly inferior to that of Dr. Livingstone in the south of Africa. We are indebted to the Bombay Standard for three interesting notices of Mr. Collins' report.

In February, 1856, he addressed to the President of the United States a proposal to explore this country, with the object of setting up a telegraphic communication between Moscow and St. Louis, and in April of the same year left New York, backed by the authority of his Government, but depending on his own pecuniary resources. He proceeded first to St. Petersburg, and thence through Moscow and Novgorod, and the western provinces of Siberia, to Irkutsk. This place, one of the principal Russian settlements in the interior of Asia, is situated near the southern boundary of their territory and the borders of Chinese Tartary. Here he dined with General Mouravieff, the Governor of Eastern Siberia, whom he had previously met at St. Petersburg. A year had passed before all that was to be seen at this place and on the journey to it had been surveyed, and the approach of the termination of winter made it possible to proceed. Mr. Collins left Irkutsk on the 9th of March, 1857, and proceeded to Chetah, a town situated on a small river which falls into the Ingodah, which again is one of the tributaries of the Amoor. He had now, therefore, reached the water communication which connected him with the Pacific Ocean.

At Chetah Mr. Collins had to wait until the ice broke up, which was not until the 18th of May. He amused the interval by going to see a silver mine at a place called Zarentonsky, which has the reputation of being the richest in the world. He descended a vertical shaft 240 feet, and proceeding along some echoing passages into an immense chamber, found himself surrounded by walls of solid silver. The superintendent said that this mineral wealth extended through the whole mountain, as far it had been explored.

The distance from Cronstadt to Chetah is 4,565 miles. The conveyance of merchandise for this distance occupies at least six months, by the shortest and most expensive mode of conveyance; by the longest and cheapest, part of two years. The Americans may, therefore, fairly hope that when the stream of the Amoor is opened to commercial enterprise the greater part of the trade of this country will fall into their hands. The voyage from San Francisco in California to the mouth of the Amoor occupies forty days; from the mouth of the Amoor to Chetah, supposing steamers ready to make the voyage, twenty days. The saving of expense would be very nearly in proportion to the saving of time. At the same time Mr. Collins calculates that the productive capabilities of the country would be greatly stimulated by the opening of a market, the absence of which prevents its exporting anything as yet, except furs and precious metals; while the consumption of foreign merchandise would increase 100 per cent.

The voyage down the river from Chetah to Nicolavsky, twenty miles from its mouth, was performed by Mr. Collins in a barge belonging to a Russian merchant at Irkutsk, and occupied fifty-two days. The distance is 2,667 miles, and can be navigated by steamboats all the way. On the other hand, it must be observed that the upper part of the stream and its smaller tributaries are closed by ice for six months in the year, from November 15 to May 15, and the stream of the large river itself for a somewhat shorter period. The inhabitants of the neighbouring country are Tartar tribes, partly settled and partly migratory, the country to the south being nominally subject to China, that to the north to Russia. The trade is at present limited to the supply of the wants of the officers and troops, and some settlers connected with the Russian establishments on the Amoor. The supplies for the troops come down the river from Siberia, although Nicolavsky is, as we have seen, only six weeks' voyage from the American continent:—

"At this port must concentrate for the present," says Mr. Collins, "the whole trade of the seacoast of Siberia, with the incidental trade with Kamshatka, America, Japan, China, and such other coasts, territories, and islands as may be hereafter annexed to its Government. The northern overland route will be abandoned so soon as steam and post stations can be established on the river, and the whole trade of Siberia must fall into its lap. Somewhere upon this coast, near or upon the Amoor, must be built the St. Petersburg of the Pacific."

"The best entrance, as yet discovered or surveyed, into the Amoor is from the south, through the Straits of Tartary, stopping at De Castries for a pilot. The greatest depth of water possible at the most favourable state of tide is seventeen feet; but for a sailing vessel, without the assistance of lighters, or any means in case of grounding, except her own crew, more than thirteen feet is not safe; and square-rigged vessels of that draft, from the narrowness of the channel and its tortuousness, with the prevalence of adverse winds, will frequently be detained many days. The best vessels to navigate the straits and ascend the river, in the absence of steam tugs, will be schooners drawing not more than ten feet."

In April, 1858, Mr. Collins first heard of the establishment of a Russian company to open the trade of the Amoor. It had received the sanction of the Emperor in the previous January. The objects of this company are to establish commercial relations with the native inhabitants; to keep up steamboats and sailing vessels on the River Amoor and its tributaries, and open the trade of the country through which it flows to the ports of the Pacific Ocean.

THE WUZEEREE EXPEDITION.

Although the murderers of the late Captain Meham are yet at large, some retribution has already overtaken the tribe which protects them. We need not recapitulate the circumstances of the murder, which are already before the public, but will briefly record the measures which have since been adopted. The murder is ascertained to have been committed by a party of five men, chiefly of the Hutti-Khey! Wuzerees, but attached to a marauding band under the leadership of a notorious robber named "Zungee," who is himself a Khabul-Khey! Wuzereee. All inquiries tend to show that the crime was not premeditated, and that the robbers had not been warned of the approach of the travellers. Their falling in with Captain Meham was purely accidental. Their act was greatly disapproved of by the Wuzereee tribes, and even "Zungee" himself is known to have declared that it would prove their ruin. But this general disapproval of the deed on the part of the tribes did not lead the frontier authorities to anticipate that the criminals would be given up; and the only course to be adopted was to hold those sections of the tribe, to whom the murderers belong, or who might be protected by them, responsible for their deed. If this were not done, every outlawed vagrant might commit such crimes and find an asylum in the hills, where capture is impossible.

It seemed imperative that such a lesson should be read as would force the tribe, from motives of self-interest, to overawe such characters, and it has been found from long experience that this "tribe" influence over individuals is our only security for peace on the border: it accords with their own ideas of their responsibilities, and is the one institution which binds their rude societies together, and to some extent supplies the place of a more civilised code. Deprived of this single check, the hill tribes around us would be plunged into constant strife and bloodshed, and its maintenance therefore recommended itself as much on the score of humanity as of policy.

The two sections of the tribe, then, who were found to be implicated in the murder were the "Kahyl Khey!," to which the leader of the robbers belongs, and the "Hutti-Khey!," which furnishes the greater number of its members. The latter it would be necessary to arrange for at Bunnoo, and the former (in the present instance the most guilty) at Kohat. The several sub-divisions of this tribe are located, in winter, on both banks of the "Koorum" river below "Billund Kheyl," to about where the "Heyti" river joins it from the West. To that point the country is tolerably open, and the cultivation of the tribe is chiefly in the bed and on the banks of the stream. There are two seasons when the tribe is peculiarly open to punishment, viz., the present time and in the spring. More real injury can be inflicted now, and more visible injury in the spring.

A force proceeding against them at this season would carry off their winter stores, and compel them to retreat to their higher hills, which would be virtually driving them almost to starvation.

In the spring the crops would be destroyed, upon which the tribe is dependent in the summer. It was accordingly determined that immediate measures should be adopted to obtain retribution, and to avenge the murder of a British officer. Orders were issued for the assembly of a force at Kohat, and in the meantime the deputy commissioner was instructed to proceed to one of the frontier posts, to summon the Wuzerees chiefs, and to demand the surrender of the murderers. As was anticipated, they declared their inability to comply with our demands, and after fully and clearly explaining to the assembled chiefs that the sole and only object of Government was to obtain retribution for the foul outrage committed, Captain Henderson declared the "Kabyl Kheyl" to be the enemies of the British Government, and that they would be proceeded against accordingly. Captain Henderson at the same time carefully explained to the chiefs of other divisions of the tribe that so long as they abstained from interference in the matter, and in no way aided the "Kabyl Kheyl," they would be looked upon as the friends of Government, and would be treated as such. Hostages for their non-interference and good conduct were readily given by them.

The force which had been directed to assemble at Kohat consists of head quarters of the following regiments:—The Guides, 2nd Punjab Infantry, 1st Punjab Infantry, 3rd ditto, 4th ditto, 4th Sikh Infantry, 4 guns, 2 mountain ditto.

The Peshawur mountain train and a company of Sappers broke ground on the 14th of Dec., and were joined at Thull on the 21st idem by the 6th Punjab Infantry, who marched from Dera Ishmael Khan via Buhadyor Kheyl. 1,000 Khut-tuck Irregulars also accompany the force. Owing to recent reductions the regiments are weak, so that the whole force, exclusive of the 1,000 Khut-tucks, does not exceed 2,500 soldiers of all ranks. Brigadier-general Chamberlain commands, and is accompanied by Captain James, the Commissioner of Peshawur, and Captain Henderson, the deputy-commissioner of Kohat. The Wuzerees were reported to have mustered about 2,500 strong in one of their strongholds, some four coss from Trans-Koorum, where it was said they intended to make a stand.

The Meranzaie valley is described as being in a most satisfactory state. Peace and order reigns where, but three years ago, all was rebellion and rapine. To such expeditions as the present is this change attributable. The villages against which an expedition was undertaken in 1856 are now all sending their quotas of stalwart youths to fight under our standard.—Lahore Chronicle.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE DALHOUSIE SANATORIUM.—The project for the formation of the Dalhousie Sanatorium seems to have originated with Colonel, now (Sir Robert) Napier, who in 1850-51 was Civil Engineer in the Punjab; and who taking advantage of the deputation of Major Longden to Chumba in search of building materials, requested him to report on the fitness of any peculiar locality adapted for a sanatorium. Colonel Napier considered that the elevation should not be less than 5,500 feet above sea level, and after various sites had been examined, and some correspondence taken place on the subject, a committee was appointed, consisting of—President: Col. Napier; Members: R. Montgomery, Esq., Major Longden, R. H. Davies, Esq., Dr. White; who selected a site on the hill called Kutu-Clugh, situated in latitude 32 deg. 32 min. north, and longitude 70 deg. east; its situation was open, and its elevation 5,700 feet above sea level. The supply of water was abundant and accessible, excellent roofing slate abounded in quantities, and large supplies of building timber were available. The want of facilities for procuring limestone was the only objection. It was also reported easy of access, and the committee considered that a good line of road might be made from the foot of the hills without any serious deviation from a regular incline, at a gradient of three or four in the hundred, and of a length of twenty to twenty-four miles, and the whole length of the road to the sanatorium would be as follows:—

	Miles.
From sanatorium to foot of hills . . .	24
From foot of hills to Pallankote . . .	20
	<hr/> 44
Pallankote is distant from Lahore . . .	95
" " Jullundur . . .	75
" " Sealkote . . .	75
" " Goograh . . .	109
" " Amritsur . . .	80

so that the proposed sanatorium is within easy distance of the principal stations about Lahore. The committee having decided that the above-mentioned locality was the most eligible for the establishment of a convalescent depot, submitted the following proposals:—

1st. That the sanction of the Supreme Government might be obtained for the transfer of the requisite extent of land.

2nd. That a road for laden camels might be constructed to connect the proposed sanatorium with the foot of the hills.

3rd. That a committee be formed to mark out boundaries, &c.

4th. That a medical officer be directed to reside at the sanatorium for a certain period, to report on the climate and keep meteorological registers, &c.

The whole of the proceedings were submitted to the Supreme Government, and the Governor General sanctioned such preliminary steps as were deemed necessary, and the deputation of a medical officer to record the necessary observations on climate, &c.; all the other matters in connection with the proposed sanatorium were to be submitted to the late Board of Directors. Dr. Clemenger, of the 49th Native Infantry, was the officer deputed to the proposed site, with instructions to submit a full and complete report on the climate, resources, &c., of the site selected. Dr. Clemenger's final report was submitted in 1852, and forwarded to the Supreme Government, and the required sanction for establishing the sanatorium was received in 1853. A fair road has since been constructed, and Captain Fagan, then ex-engineer of Anarkullee, was appointed ex-officer for carrying on the construction of the proposed barracks and other buildings. Captain Fagan resided in Dalhousie some three years, and also Captain Nightingale, the officer who surveyed and constructed the road leading from the foot of the hills. There are at present but six houses erected, three very good ones, and three small ones, much out of repair. Both Captains Fagan and Nightingale spoke very highly of the sanatorium. The climate is good, water abundant, building materials plentiful, and it is within an easy distance of all the important stations of the Punjab. For European settlers the situation is an admirable one, and in the event of a small number of Europeans making it a residence, the Hon. the Lieutenant Governor has promised every assistance, and intimated that a doctor will be appointed, as at other hill stations.—Delhi Gazette.

HER MAJESTY'S 75TH REGIMENT OF FOOT, under command of Lieutenant Colonel Radcliff, marched out of the cantonment of Meerut this morning (Dec. 27), en route to Allahabad, from whence, very probably, it will embark for Calcutta, for service in China. On the 10th May, 1857, the first act was played of the great tragedy, entitled the Indian Rebellion, the scene being laid at Meerut. On the 11th, the 75th marched out of Kussowlie, after twelve hours' notice, and reached Umballa in thirty-six hours. On the 8th of the next month the regiment was in action at Badlee ke Serai, where it stormed a battery of six guns, flanked by other powerful batteries. Major-general Barnard gave the highest praise to the regiment for its services on this occasion, and the character for promptitude, resolution, and courage it then acquired has ever since been maintained. The regiment was present before Delhi during the entire siege. It fought twenty-six actions under its walls, besides innumerable skirmishes. Two days after the storm it marched from Delhi, only 150 strong, forming part of Colonel Greathed's moveable column designed to reopen the communication with Cawnpore. The regiment distinguished itself in the brilliant actions of Bolundshahur and Agra, and at the latter place was reinforced by 90 recruits, after which it continued its march, and having been engaged at Alaiunge, reached Lucknow in November, the right wing, about 130 bayonets, remaining at Alumbagh, the left wing, 115 strong (or rather we ought to say 115 weak), proceeding to Dil Koosha. On the relief of Lucknow the left wing joined head quarters at Alumbagh, and formed part of the gallant Outram's force quartered at that place, where it remained until February. It then marched to Cawnpore and thence to Meerut. Nearly every officer present at Kussowlie on the breaking out of the mutiny was either killed or wounded in assisting to effect its suppression.

MOVEMENT OF TROOPS.—The 1st E. B. Fusiliers march from Umballa immediately, to relieve H. M.'s 46th regt., at Mooltan. The 46th will relieve H. M.'s 87th R. I. Fusiliers at Jullundur, and the 87th proceed towards Allahabad and Calcutta, embarking there for China. The 2nd Battalion Rifle Brigade are expected shortly to pass through Delhi en route up-country, and rumour has it that they will perhaps halt at Delhi, and relieve the 88th, but this is as yet only rumour.

RETRIBUTION.—The marble belonging to the Palace of the Nana at Bithoor, confiscated by Government, is now being worked up for forming the pavements for the aisles of the Cawnpore church.

LAWRENCE HALL, LAHORE.—"TO THE FRIENDS AND ADMIRERS OF SIR JOHN LAWRENCE.—GENTLEMEN,—A proposal having for some time existed for the erection at Lahore of a building to be known as the 'Lawrence Hall,' to perpetuate the eminent services rendered by the late Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab, subscriptions are now invited for the purpose. It is needless here to enlarge on Sir John Lawrence's claims to our gratitude and admiration, they are acknowledged with pride by Englishmen of all classes and in all climes, and we owe it to ourselves not to allow him to pass from amongst us without securing some enduring memorial of our sentiments towards him whose name is indissolubly connected with the best interests of the Punjab. So soon as an adequate amount has been subscribed, a meeting will be held at Lahore, with a view of ascertaining in what manner this project can best be carried out.—Yours faithfully, R. Temple."

THE WUZEREES EXPEDITION.—The following is from camp in the Wuzerees Hills, dated 24th December, 9 P.M.:—The force under General Chamberlain returned this afternoon from a pursuit of the Cabool-Khail, which commenced yesterday morning, and which enabled Captain Henderson, with his mounted levies, to capture five thousand sheep and three hundred head of cattle and some camels. The tribe has been signally punished and humiliated. The effect on the other tribes has been good. The number of our wounded on the 22nd was fourteen.—Lahore Chronicle.

A DESCRIPTION OF A SUBALTERN'S ROOM.

A small iron sofa, without any head,
By day made a couch, by night made a bed;
A chair with three legs, propped up with a stick,
An allowance of candle, no tallow, all wick;
A miniature portrait of some pretty face,
A small chest of drawers, that pack in a case;
A carpet that doesn't half cover the floor,
A target, chalked out on the back of the door;
An old tiger skin, placed by way of a rug,
Whereon sat a greyhound, a mastiff, a pug;
Apparatus for washing, a foot-tub, a pan,
Part of an Army List—half of a fan;
A fawn-coloured glove, a lock of pale hair,
Both highly-prized gifts of some lady fair;
A case of blunt razors, a shako, a plume,
A fishing-rod, rifle, a shot-belt, a broom;
A broken-down candle-stick, smelling of brass,
The Mutiny Act, and a cracked looking-glass;
A mould to cast bullets, the top of a flute,
The end of a pipe, and the half of a boot;
A regimental sword-knot, a treatise on drill,
And some lighters, made out of the last received bill;
A musical snuff-box, a bottle of port,
An unstrung guitar, an unfinished report;
An invite to dinner, the card of the priest,
A sketch of the Colonel, described as The Beast;
Two swords and an ore scabbard, a box of cigars,
Some snuff and tobacco in two broken jars;
A letter from home, the "Troop's Orderly Book,"
An old hat and sabretache hung on a hook;
A map of the country, a mane comb, a spur,
An opera cloak all bedizened with fur;
An old pair of boots, the smock-frock of a cad,
A desk without lock, and the roll of the squad;
A pair of tin-snuffers, but wanting a tray,
The last printed contract of oats, straw, and hay;
"Hints to Young Officers," part of a novel,
One-half of the tongs, and a bit of the shovel;
"The Sword and Lance Exercise," half-bound in red;
A chaos of things spread over the bed;
A large meerschaum pipe, the Rules of the Mess,
And his toilet laid out on the coal-box to dress;
Boxes—parcels—so heaped on each other,
'Twould puzzle a saint to tell one from the other;
A lot of loose furniture, piled in a heap,
With "Paradise Lost" and "The Life of a Sweep."
Two puppies wrapped up in a cholera belt,
A new Albert cap, and a shocking bad felt;
An easy arm-chair, only wanting a back,
A sketch, in burnt cork, of my wonderful hack.
A gun case, a money bag wanting a lock,
A large pistol, loaded with ball, and full cock;
A powder flask lying close under the candle,
A ponderous lock on the door without handle;
A large book of prints—a foreign costume,
And towels and slippers strewn over the room;
An empty canteen, an old leather stock,
A Bible, a Prayer-book; the face of a clock;
A red hunting coat with whip in the pocket,
A tea-caddy open, containing a locket;
Some eau-de-Cologne, an account of a fight.
In the midst of this chaos, as gay as you please,
On the rickety chair perched quite at his ease,
A pipe in his mouth, and his feet in the grate,
His thought ever bent upon changing his state,
He puffs and he puffs, while the volumes of smoke
Are enough e'en the throat of a German to choke;
Till puffing and dozing he falls half asleep,
While visions of field days around him will creep,
Till wearied of watching he turns to his lair—
How like you my subaltern?—say, lady fair.

INDIAN UNCOVENANTED SERVICE.—A memorial of the Uncovenanted Service, of all the Presidencies, to the Secretary of State, has been published in the Calcutta journals; it is signed by upwards of four thousand persons, and its prayer is as follows:—"I. That the bar, which at present excludes uncovenanted servants, whatever their merits or special qualifications, from holding offices heretofore reserved for covenanted officers, be removed, and that it be left to the discretion of the Supreme and Local Governments to promote meritorious uncovenanted servants to such officers, under such regulations as may be deemed necessary. II. That on the production of a medical certificate of incapacity for further service, a pension equal to one third and one half of average salary or authorized official emoluments for the last five years be granted to all uncovenanted servants after fifteen and twenty-two years' actual service respectively, such service being reckoned from the age of twenty-one years, and excluding all periods of absence from duty, except casual and privilege leave. III. That all uncovenanted servants be allowed the option of retiring, without production of a medical certificate, on half of the average salary, or authorised official emoluments drawn by them for the last five years' actual service, reckoned from the age of twenty-one years, and excluding all periods of absence from duty, except privilege and casual leave. IV. That sick leave during the entire period of service be limited to three years, as at present, but to be taken continuously, or by instalments, as may be desired. If leave be obtained for more than one year continuously, the absentee to be subjected for the first twelve months to a deduction of one-half of his salary, and during the remaining period of absence to a deduction of two-thirds salary, provided that in no case shall a larger sum than £600 per annum be drawn. V. That uncovenanted servants, after ten years' service, be allowed furlough for one year on one-third salary, and without loss of appointment; that a second furlough of one year be allowed on the same terms after an interval of five years from date of return from previous furlough; and that furlough for two years continuously be allowed after fifteen years' service, on one third pay. VI. That uncovenanted servants proceeding to any part of the United Kingdom as pensioners, on sick leave, or on private affairs, be allowed to draw their pensions, or absentee pay, at the India House, in like manner as members of the other Indian services."

A FRACAS.—A correspondent of the Delhi Gazette describes a fracas at Umballa. An officer of H. M.'s 27th was living in the lines of the 7th Hussars. His house was required, and he was ordered to quit. He did so, but left his wife until he could obtain other quarters. The General in command threatened to place sentries round the house, and allow no one to come in. The same threat was addressed to the Postmaster, Mr. Houghton. These disputes are of constant occurrence in cantonments. The houses ought to be purchased by Government under an Act, and assigned as quarters. There could then be no question about the right of occupancy.

FIRE AT UMBALLA.—The splendid mess house of H. M.'s 7th Hussars at Umballa has been accidentally destroyed by fire.

IMPORTS (Calcutta, Jan. 9).—The Piece Goods Market has steadily improved, especially for Light Grey Cottons, and we are now enabled to report a fair advance on the following descriptions. A great excitement has prevailed, dealers being eager to purchase at prices which importers had not expected to realize before the departure of the last mail. 39 to 40 inches 5 to 7 $\frac{1}{2}$  lb. Grey Shirtings have gone up 3 to 5 annas per piece, 7 to 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  lb. 1 to 1 $\frac{1}{2}$  anna. Grey Madras 3 to 3 $\frac{1}{2}$  lb. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 2 annas. Grey Jaconets 6 pie to 1 anna. Grey Mulls 6 pie per piece. Advices from Mirzapore received on Sunday last, and subsequently represent the market there very favourable. Sales of Light Shirtings were being made at well maintained prices; but heavy goods had advanced in price 4 to 5 annas. We do not expect this rise to affect our market, as it is a temporary one caused by a demand there for the cold season. Accounts from Furruckabad report no rise; and from Behannah a slight fall in price. On the whole, we are inclined to think the present rise in our market is not of long duration. As regards bleached Cottons, white Shirtings of low qualities are in fair request, but without any improvement in price. White Jaconets have commenced engaging inquiry (the season for operation is approaching), and sales have been made 1 to 2 annas per piece higher. White Mulls are also engaging inquiry, this being the season for demand, and sales are being effected 6 pie to 1 anna per piece higher. Lappets, Spots, Scarfs are in good demand at improved prices. Prints and Chintz are selling very moderately at scarcely paying prices. Turkey Reds have engaged a little inquiry for up-country, and have all slightly improved in price. Male Twist continues dull, as is generally the case at this time of the year. Woollens are also dull, having gone out of season. Metals generally dull, and rather lower in price. Since writing the above, advices from Mirzapore report a fall of 1 to 2 annas per piece on Grey Shirtings, caused by the arrivals of two steamers there from Calcutta. This confirms our remarks as made above.

EXPORTS (Calcutta, Jan. 9).—There has been a better feeling manifested in our produce market, influenced by advices from home of firmness in prices, and in some instances a fair advance. Prices of several principal articles of produce here which had been firm have advanced, and stocks being light, the native dealers have been rather unreasonable in their demands. Raw Silk continues at extreme prices. Corahs are very firmly held, and buyers are not disposed to increase their offers. Sugar, Benares kind, is freely engaged by the Bombay and Gulf shippers at firm prices. Saltpetre is in limited operation, with very light stocks and firm prices. Linseed is in fair demand, at rather better prices. Rapeseed is almost without stock. Jute is in fair request, but good qualities very light in stock, and price has advanced.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CANNANORE, Dec. 29.—Since my last no news of any moment has transpired. Cholera is making fearful ravages all along the coast. During last month the number of cases reported was 1,920; of these 1,757 proved fatal. This epidemic prevailed in 12 out of the 17 talooks of the Malabar district. It is still raging fearfully at Calicut. Very few cases at Cannanore, but none in the cantonment; this is owing to great improvements made for its sanitary condition. Troops all healthy. I regret to say that cholera broke out last week among the detachment of H.M.'s 66th regiment at Calicut; immediate measures were adopted to prevent its spread, by removing the men from the barracks into tents pitched on the north beach. Calicut is a very crowded town, and the jail (in which this direful scourge first broke out) is in the centre of it. The removal of this building from its present site has been strongly recommended, but whether the present embarrassed state of the Indian Exchequer will allow it seems unlikely. The office of Fort Adjutant at Cannanore closes on the last day of this year; the appointment being abolished and the duties of that functionary carried on by the Brigade-major in addition to his own, without any increase in allowances. Captain C. E. Taylor, the Brigade-major of Cannanore who has just returned to India from sick leave, has been appointed Brigade-major at Trichinopoly, and Captain R. H. Bolton, now Brigade-major at Tonghoo, in Burmah (which appointment has been abolished), to Cannanore; Captain W. T. Snow, of the 20th Regiment N.I., who has been acting at Cannanore during the absence of Captain Taylor on sick leave in Europe, will continue to perform the duties of Brigade-major until the arrival of Captain Bolton from Burmah, when he will join his corps, the 20th Regiment M.N.I., now under orders to march from Bangalore to Vellore. Order by telegram was received on Saturday last for the 11th Regiment M.N.I. to hold in readiness to embark from Cannanore to Burmah. The 18th Regiment M.N.I., on being relieved by the 20th from Bangalore, proceed by rail to Madras, and from thence brought round here by sea, the same vessel being also ordered to convey the relieved regiment to Burmah. The 11th regiment is a strong corps, the strength of native commissioned, non-commissioned, and rank and file being 983, with 14 officers present, viz., Lieutenant-colonel C. Ireland (commanding), Major G. Sturrock, Captains C. J. Fullerton, C. F. F. Halsted, G. Girdlestone, and J. C. West, Lieutenants E. M. Norie (Adjutant), E. F. H. Armstrong, S. W. B. Sherman, J. Sampen (quarter-master), and C. J. Elliott, Ensigns M. H. S. Harris, E. A. Campbell, and A. T. Woodhouse. The medical officer present with the corps (Surgeon A. Shewan) is about to retire from the service; another doctor will, in consequence, be appointed to join and proceed with the regiment to Burmah. There is a rumour still that H. M.'s 66th Regiment will be ordered to China, but I do not believe this. The families of this regiment now on their way from Europe expect shortly to land at Madras. A non-commissioned officer and six privates of the corps, under the command of Lieut. J. B. Short, left Cannanore on the 2nd inst., by bullock transit to Madras, to escort the families to Cannanore.—Englishman.

A SAD MISCHANCE.—The Madras Spectator relates a fatal accident that happened on Mr. Ochterlony's coffee estates near Godalower, in Ootacamund. That gentleman had gone out, accompanied by a surveyor, to take observations from some hills. They were attended by a horsekeeper, who carried instruments, &c., as also a loaded rifle, because elks abounded on a particular hill, and a large tiger had been seen in the neighbourhood, which had destroyed many cattle. One face of the hill was covered with short grass, whilst the other slope was covered with long grass and led to a neighbouring forest. Shortly after ascending the hill, Mr. Ochterlony, observing an elk, took his rifle, and stationed himself in a spot where he could see any animal that approached him in that direction. Mr. Ochterlony's attention was directed to something moving below him in the long grass, and, concluding it was a wild beast, raised his rifle and fired. His horror may be easily conceived when, approaching the spot, he found that he had shot his poor horsekeeper, the bullet having penetrated his brain.

DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.—We understand that the Director of Public Instruction, Mr. A. J. Arbuthnot, proceeds to Europe on leave, a few weeks hence, and that his successor in that office will be E. B. Powell, Esq., M.A., the learned Principal of the Presidency College, and present Sheriff of Madras. This intelligence affords us the liveliest satisfaction, and we feel sure that we do but anticipate the general voice of the public, when we say that his appointment is the best that could be made, the common consent of his colleagues in the educational department, and the universal opinion of all competent judges of his merit out of doors, having long designated him as the fittest person in the Presidency to fill that highly important situation, whenever a vacancy should occur. Had any other than himself been chosen, we feel convinced that the dissatisfaction both within and without the college walls would have been as great as the pleasure will be when his appointment becomes known. Sir C. Trevelyan is emphatically going to put "the right man in the right place" on this occasion, and we congratulate his Excellency on his unexceptionable choice.—Athenæum.

REDUCTION OF THE NATIVE ARMY.—Economy in matters military is still the order of the day in this presidency. It has been notified that all the native regiments which compose the coast army are to be reduced to 50 Havildars, 50 Naigues, and 700 privates. All men in excess of this number are to be borne as supernumeraries, until absorbed or otherwise disposed of, but those of three years' service or under are to be discharged with one month's pay and half batta for each year of service as a gratuity. The Pegu Police battalion, the Madras Sapper Militia, and corps on or warned for foreign service, are exempted from the operation of this order.

THE BANK OF MADRAS has notified that a dividend at the rate of 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. per annum will be paid to shareholders on the 10th January.

DEATH OF MR. A. COLE.—Tidings of the death of A. Cole, Esq., Professor of Fine Arts in the School of Industrial Arts, reached the Presidency by telegraph on the 4th of January. The melancholy event took place at Coonoor on Tuesday, the 3rd. Mr. Cole was a man of great ability and taste in his profession, and a general favourite in the social circles of Madras, on account of his amiability and accomplishments. He will be much regretted by many, and his place at the School of Industrial Arts will not, we fear, be easily supplied with a professor equally competent to fill it.

COCHIN, Dec. 24.—The Dewan of Cochin, it would appear, is resolved to show his veneration for the memory of General Cullen in a permanent manner. He has projected the erection of a Rest-house at Velan Thavalan, in the Chittoor district, by public subscription, for supplying refreshments to travellers free of charge. The Dewan has headed the list with a donation of Rs. 1,000; but it seems to be a matter of general complaint that public servants are compelled, volens volens, to contribute to the memorial fund in honour of the great benefactor of Travancore and Cochin. The scheme is put forth in the true suppliant style—"the smallest contributions thankfully received"—and the tassildars, under instructions from the Dewan, are said to be actively canvassing even the poor coolies for a few annas out of their miserable earnings.—Courier.

STAFF APPOINTMENTS.—Holders of staff appointments have been in a considerable state of trepidation for some time past in consequence of an order of the late Court of Directors to the effect that they must return to regimental duty, after a five years' tenure of office. A despatch from Sir Charles Wood on this subject has been published in the official gazette, which explains that the order "is intended to apply to all appointments on the general staff of the army, but not to officers on the civil staff department, connected with the army, or to civil or political situations." Those who are thus entitled to retain their appointments are enumerated as follows in a general order of 1831, dated 7th October:—"Officers employed permanently as residents or political agents, or assistants to residents or political agents, officers employed in civil charge of districts, audit department, commissariat department, ordnance commissariat, judge advocate general's department, secretary to the military board, paymasters, agent for army clothing, secretary to the clothing board, superintendent of the gun-carriage manufactory, superintendent of the gunpowder manufactory, superintendent of family certificates and pensions, surveyor-general's department, barrack master at the presidency."—Athenæum.

H. E. SIR C. TREVELYAN left Madras on a tour through the southern portion of the presidency on the 5th Dec. He embarked on board H.M. Indian steamer Punjab, and will first proceed to Pondicherry, Cuddalore, and Porto Novo. Afterwards his journey will be extended to Trichinopoly, Tanjore, Tinnevely, Madurai, Palamcottah, Dindigul, and the Pulney Hills. This having been accomplished, he will embark again at Tuticorin, and make Ceylon his next brief resting place; going thither to meet the governor, Sir Henry Ward. From that island he designs proceeding in the Punjab to the western coast as far up as Sedashegurr, the extremity of our presidency in that direction, and will honour with his presence the stations lying along the coast,

CHINA.

HONG KONG, Dec. 30.—The London Mail of the 10th November arrived here on the 27th inst.

The most important intelligence of the fortnight comes not from China but from Japan, where trade has been suspended by the native authorities, but with the approval of the British Consul-General, on account of the improper conduct of some of the British residents there, and because of outrages committed on Japanese by drunken sailors. The Consul-General says that British merchants at Yokohama have made "insane demands" on the Japanese authorities, "often with menace and violence," while there has been procrastination and want of system on the part of the Japanese. In the desire to purchase gold coins, on which there is a profit of nearly 100 per cent., demands have been made on the Japanese treasury, in violation of the treaty regulations, under fictitious, often indecent, names, and for fabulous sums which no language can express. In addition to all this there appears to have been smuggling going on. It is not possible that the interests of legitimate trade in Japan (which can only be slowly developed), and the honour of England in the East, should be suffered to be periled by such proceedings as these.

The personal relationships of foreigners in Eastern Asia is a subject on which little has yet been said, but it is one of great and increasing importance—for personal insults are rarely forgiven until they are avenged in blood. They often exercise a very wide influence on the progress of public affairs. The conduct of the French at Tientsin, last year, both towards women and respectable Chinamen, had, no doubt, a great deal to do with the determination of the Chinese Government to close the Peiho against foreign ships of war; and when, as happened the other day at Macao, some of the crew of an American ship of war entered a respectable merchant's house, and caused the ladies to flee, we can easily understand what ongoings there are in more distant places, where there is hardly any appeal to the public opinion of the civilized world.

The deficiency in the rice crop is now telling on the price of that necessary of life, and much suffering, if not even famine, is anticipated.

From Shanghai there is no news of any interest, except an ominous interdiction of (Roman Catholic) Missionaries travelling in disguise. This is grounded by the Chinese on there being "a crisis in military operations," which should not be laid open to spies. Faint rumours of hostile preparations are still heard.

The first ship with emigrant coolies for the West Indies has already been despatched, containing a fair proportion of women and children; and another will soon be sent, almost entirely filled with families. A very fair idea of the knowledge which many old English residents here (who never mingle with the natives) have of China, is that they at first ridiculed this scheme, and declared that not a single Chinese family could be got to emigrate.

On the evening of the 27th and yesterday morning there were fires in this town, but neither of any importance. The work of cutting an easy path up to Victoria Peak and erecting a Sanatorium and flag-staff up there continues to be carried briskly on. His Excellency the Governor proposes also to have a summer bungalow upon it for his own use, and if the experiment turns out successful, as there are many reasons to hope it will, next cold season may see the erection of a small town on and about the Peak. We regret to hear that the sisters of charity propose to remove from this and locate in Macao. They have been of much use here in administering both to sick foreigners and Chinese, and in training up infant children. Some annoyance has been caused in Victoria by house property being assessed at enormously high rates, much beyond its value or the actual rent paid.—Overland China Mail.

Return Home of H.M.'s 12th Lancers.

Head Qrs., Camp Meerut, Dec. 21.—No. 158.—With the sanction of govt. H.E. the C. in C. is pleased to direct that the 12th lancers be held in readiness to return to England, and that the soldiers of this corps desirous of extending their service in India be allowed to volunteer under the following rules and regulations:—

The 12th lancers are permitted to volunteer for the 1st drag. gds., 2nd ditto ditto, 6th ditto ditto, 7th ditto ditto, 7th hussars, 17th lancers, and the regts. of Bengal lt. cav.

The volunteering from the 12th lancers will be conducted in the manner laid down in G.O. dated Jan. 20, 1859, No. 16, viz., of the left wing at Mirzapore, and of the right wing at Secunderabad, under the orders of H.E. Lieut. gen. Sir Patrick Grant, K.C.B.

By order of H.E. the C. in C.

W. L. PAKENHAM, Col.,
Adj. gen. H.M.'s forces in India.

Reduction of Civilians' Salaries.

Financial Dept., Dec. 16.—No. 105.—Read the following despatch, from the Rt. Hon. the Sec. of State for India to the Rt. Hon. the Gov. gen. of India in Council:—

Financial Dept., No. 110.—Dated Nov. 4, 1859.—My Lord,—I have to acknowledge the receipt of the several despatches in this department specified in the margin,* forwarding representations from certain members of the Bengal Civil Service relative to the reductions of civil salaries recommended in the report of Mr. Ricketts, and referred to in your financial despatch, dated June 30 last, No. 90.

2. The report in question and the recommendations of your Government in relation thereto, are at present under my consideration in Council, and the decision thereon will be communicated to you at as early a period as possible.

3. In the meantime, I am desirous that the memorialists, as well as the members of the Civil Service generally, should be informed that the representations forwarded by them will receive careful consideration; that her Majesty's Government are fully impressed with the zeal, ability, and self-devotion which have always distinguished the civil as well as the military service of India, and that any measure which may be adopted in regard to the important question of civil salaries, will be framed not only with a due regard to the interests to the State, but also to the just claims of the servants of Government.

Service Boons to Warrant Officers.

Dec. 7.—No. 36.—With reference to G.O. by H.E. the Gov. gen., dated Oct. 12, 1859, it is hereby notified for general information, that the boon of two years' service conferred on those men of H.M.'s Eur. local forces, who did not take their discharge under the G.O. No. 883, of June 20 last, is applicable to all warrant officers, non commissioned officers, and soldiers of the local forces, without exception. But the boon is to be applied solely in calculating the length of service of any man as a soldier, and is not to be reckoned towards the completion of fixed periods for promotion in departments or for enhancement of retiring pensions, or towards good conduct pay, or claim to gratuity and medal, or any other advantage for the obtainment of which actual service is necessary.

Illustration.—Warrant officers of departments are admitted to retiring pension after the undermentioned periods of service, viz.:—

Twenty-seven years' effective service in India, including 12 years' as warrant officer; 25 years' effective service in India, including 14 years' as officiating warrant officer, or soldier in the department to which they belong, counting from date of transfer from corps to department; 22 years' effective service in India, including 17 years' as officiating warrant officer, or soldier in the department to which they belong, counting from date of transfer from corps to department.

A warrant officer who has served twenty-five years in the army, and twelve in a department, may claim the pension, because the boon gives him the two years deficient in his army service, but a warrant officer who has served twenty-seven years in the army, and ten years in a department, cannot claim the pension, by adding the boon to the latter, because the addition of the boon of two years is not applicable to service in a department, but in the army exclusively.

The New Judge in the Rohilkand Division.

Camp Datagunge, Dec. 22, 1859.

No. 219 a.—With reference to the resolution of the Rt. Hon. the Gov. Gen., No. 1426, dated 14th May, 1858, creating an additional Judgeship in the Rohilkand Division, the Hon. the Lieut. Gov. is pleased to resolve that the newly appointed Judge shall be located at Shahjehanpore, and that his jurisdiction, both as Civil and as Sessions Judge, shall comprise the Moonsiffes of Shahjehanpore.

Powayn, Tilhur, Jullalabad,

in the district of Shahjehanpore, and the Moonsiffes of East Budaon, West Budaon, and Datagunge, in the Budaon District.

The Moonsiffes of Subeswan and Islamnugger, of the Budaon District, will be added to the jurisdiction of the Civil and Sessions Judge, Bareilly.

The above distribution of territorial jurisdiction will have effect from the 1st January, 1860.

Agent for Gun Carriages, and any other similar appointments, except Superintendent of Army Clothing.

F. D. ATKINSON, Major,
Offg. Secy. to the govt. of India.

The Lahore Light Horse.

The following revised establishment and scale of allowances for the "Lahore Light Horse," has been ordered.

The Lahore Light Horse will be divided into two troops, and consist of:—

1 commandant, consolidated salary, rupees (800) eight hundred per mensem.

1 adjutant and quarter master, consolidated salary, rupees (500) five hundred per mensem.

2 commandants of troops, pay and allowances of their regimental commiss-ion, with the troop command and contract allowances authorised in regiments of European light cavalry, and (if infantry officers) double horse allowance.

2 subalterns, pay and allowances of their regimental commiss-ion, and (if infantry officers) double horse allowance.

1 assistant surgeon, pay and allowances as a lieutenant of cavalry, with a medical staff salary of rupees (500) three hundred, or (165) one hundred and sixty-five per mensem, according as his service exceeds or falls short of ten years.

1 riding master, 1 regimental sergeant major, 1 quarter master sergeant, 2 troop sergeant majors, 1 farrier sergeant, pay and dry batta as in European cavalry regiments.

Arms and accoutrements the same as those of European light cavalry regiments.

Uniform the same as in regiments of European light cavalry.

All soldiers enlisted to be of European or Eurasian parentage.

* Letter dated June 24, 1859, No. 92, requesting instructions on certain points connected with new warrant regarding promotion, dated Jan. 31, 1859.

Camp equipment to be of the same description, and in the same proportion as that in use with European light cavalry regiments.

Allowance of quarter master in lieu of petty stores, to be in the same proportion as in European light cavalry corps.

Allowance for butts and targets in the same proportion.

Horses for the Artillery.

Head Quarters, Camp Saidabad, Dec. 10.

The C. in C. having recently observed, from personal inspection, that horses have been allotted from remount depots to field batteries which, from want of size and stoutness, are evidently unfit for that branch of the service, desires that future allotment committees will exercise the utmost care and attention in the very important duty of selecting horses for artillery purposes.

H.E. further directs that officers commanding troops and field batteries, when they have reason to be dissatisfied with a batch of remounts, will not in future neglect to apply for station committees to examine the horses to which they may take objection; and, at the same time, his lordship warns the original committees of selection of the responsibility they are liable to incur in the case of very unfavourable reports being made to army head-quarters on the horses specially assigned by them.

Lord Clyde apprehends that, although there may have been some difficulty during the last two years in selecting for the artillery an adequate number of good and serviceable horses, that difficulty has now altogether ceased.

If, however, at any time a remount depot should be unable to furnish a troop or field battery with a sufficient number of suitable horses, his lordship directs that, instead of meeting the requisition with a supply of remounts utterly useless for the work required of them, a report of this inability be promptly made to the proper authorities.

Civil Servants Joining.

The attention of govt. has been drawn to the rule under which a member of the Covenanted Civil Service is now required to join a new appointment. The rule allows one month where the distance does not exceed 300 miles, two months where it is above 300 but does not exceed 600 miles, and three months, where it exceeds 600 miles. This rule not only acts with great inequality, allowing the same time, for example, for a journey of 20 miles as for one of 300 miles; but it has become more unsuitable as a general rule than it was at first, in consequence of the introduction of steamers for journeys north and south, and of the railway for those to the westward.

2. The Governor in Council is of opinion that the time has come for amending the rule; and he resolves to publish the following, in place of the present rule. No precise time will be prescribed for taking up a new appointment, but the Government will trust to the right feeling of the officer concerned to join as early as he can with reference to the means of locomotion available for the journey. It will be the duty of the civil auditor to bring to the notice of Government any instance in which an officer shall have taken an unusually long time to join a new appointment.

3. This rule will apply also to the uncovenanted civil service: the present rules under which members of that service are required to join a new appointment are hereby cancelled.

BY THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF.

CLAIMS OF PENSIONERS TO MEDALS.

By order of H. E. the C. in C.:—
The pension paymr. at Bombay has brought to notice that much inconvenience and extra labour are caused to his office by the claims of pensioners to medals, clothing, batta, arrears of pay, &c., not being settled prior to the men leaving their corps.

The C. in C. therefore directs that heads of depts. and comdg. officers shall settle all such claims promptly when the units are present with their regts., as it is more easy to examine fully into the nature of such claims, the regimental records being at hand to refer to at once to substantiate or negative them.

INDIAN NAVY STORES.

Superintendent's Office, Bombay, Dec. 28.—The C. in C. has pleasure in intimating to the service at large that H. E. the gov. in council has been pleased to extend to vessels of the I.N. the rule by which stores and provisions shipped on board vessels of the R.N. are exempted from duty under the following conditions, and subject to final confirmation at the expiration of 12 months.

Stores and provisions purchased from merchant vessels in the harbour to be allowed to be transhipped free of duty to H.M.'s I.N. vessels riding in the port of Bombay, provided, however, that only one transhipment shall take place from any one merchant vessel to any one of H.M.'s I.N. vessels.

Stores and provisions purchased from bond to be allowed to be shipped free of duty on board H.M.'s I.N. vessels.

No drawback to be allowed on items purchased from retail shop or warehouses.

No transhipment or export to be made unless under the special orders of the commr. of customs or his deputies.

All officers obtaining goods under the above rules to sign a declaration on honour that the same are actually required for use on board their ships, and that on no account whatever will any portion be landed within the limits of the continent of India.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Hd. Qrs., Poona, Dec. 27.

1. The C. in C. directs the discontinuance of the practice, hitherto observed, of forwarding to army head quarters numerous enclosures and copies of correspondence on subjects requiring H. E.'s decision.

This practice has been found to retard the despatch of business, for the enclosures must be referred to in order to acquire the information which should be supplied in the letter from the transmitting officer.

In future, all facts requisite to be known, or arguments proper to be weighed for the due consideration of the subject of a letter, are to be therein stated clearly and in full. The letter, in fact, is to be complete in itself, and to set out all the information that has been furnished to the writer on the subject, all that has been urged by subordinate officers, and every point necessary to the perfect understanding of the case, so that the C. in C. may have it thoroughly before him in one paper, on which he can pass his decision without reference to other documents.

If necessary, previous correspondence on the referred subject may be forwarded in original for reference on minor matters, and will be returned when no longer required.

It must be remembered, however, that there are certain cases in which the transmission of accompaniments cannot be avoided. This order applies only to those when they can be dispensed with, and is, moreover, not intended to interfere with the requirements of sections applications, and appeals courts martial, and other military courts separate G.O.C. pages 4 and 10.

All letters which do not henceforth conform to the above requirements will invariably be returned for revision.

SERVICES OF MR. ATKINSON.

Commodore's Office, Bombay, Jan. 10.

In publishing the subjoined G.O. notifying that Mr. H. Atkinson, late 1st asst. mr. attendant, has been permitted to retire from the service, the C. in C. cannot omit alluding to the very valuable services which this officer has rendered in the naval dept. during a period of upwards of forty years. The high testimonials which he bears from every officer under whom he has served are a lasting record of the fidelity and zeal with which he has invariably fulfilled his duty, and he retires on a pension higher than that to which he is entitled, but which has been granted in consideration of his long and excellent service.

Asst. surg. H. F. McGrath, having reported himself for duty in the I.N., is directed to join the Prince Arthur.

Sick Officers.

Bombay Castle, Dec. 29.—No. 1,018.—Under the authority of the Govt. of India, the Rt. Hon. the Gov. in Council is pleased to publish the following rules, in modification of existing orders:—

1. When a Madras or Bengal sick officer has passed a station committee, the superintending surgeon, as president of the standing invaliding committee, may be applied to without the intervention of the civil or garrison surgeon, and the certificate of the standing medical committee will be accepted by the Govt. as final, without the counter-signature of the Dir. gen. med. dept.

2. The Adj. gen.'s dept. at Bombay may grant to Madras or Bengal officers, in cases of urgent sickness, leave without regard to any security bond that may be required by the pay dept.

3. When in the opinion of the Bombay medical committee immediate change of air may be imperatively necessary, sick officers may be permitted to proceed without awaiting telegraphic instructions from the Adj. gen.'s office in Calcutta.

4. The foregoing two rules only apply to really emergent cases.

5. Security bonds taken for advances made at Bombay shall be limited to the amount of such advances.

TEGG'S FIRST BOOK OF ARITHMETIC FOR CHILDREN.—If numbers first came from the East, the people of the West have so far improved upon the science as to make it their own. Some will have it that numbers are an invention of the Evil One, whence we may infer that they are themselves bad arithmeticians. The fault, perhaps, should not be altogether laid at their door, for the study of arithmetic has hitherto been very repulsive to children, and the effect of early prejudice is proverbially difficult to eradicate. We use the word "hitherto" advisedly—notwithstanding Mr. Disraeli's sarcasm—because "hereafter" the same objection need not apply. There is now an excellent little primer to be had of all respectable booksellers, and certainly at 85, Queen-street, Cheap-side. If arithmetic can ever be clothed in a pleasing garb, the feat is at last achieved, and the honour is due to Mr. William Tegg, whose "First Book" we commend to all persons who wish to teach their children how to make out bills, and how to run them up. The latter accomplishment, perchance, is instinctive, but the former one is sufficiently valuable in this utilitarian age to insure a large demand for this useful little manual.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

BOMBAY, Tuesday, Jan. 17.

The Berenice, her Majesty's Indian Navy, proceeding to Suez to embark the artillery en route hither for service in China, takes a mail for England, which she will put on board the Bentinck, from Calcutta, at Aden.

Very little of general interest has transpired since the last mail left, except in connection with the China force. That is gradually assuming yet larger proportions, and the appointments on the general staff are verging towards completeness. The following, we believe, may be relied on:—Lieut.-Gen. Sir J. Hope Grant—Commanding; Col. Haythorne (now in China)—Chief of Staff; Col. Mackenzie (Dep. Adj.-Gen., Bengal)—Adjutant-General; Colonel Stephenson (now in China)—Dep. Adj.-General; Col. Bruce (Chief of Police, Oudh)—Dep. Adj.-General, Moran Force; Major Drummond and Major Taylor—Assist. Adjts.-General; Col. Holdich, C.B. (Commanding Gondah Station and Trans Gogra)—Qr.-Master-General; Col. Ousely (Dept.-Assist.-Qr.-Mast.-Gen., Oudh Division)—Dep.-Qr.-Mast.-General; Capt. P. S. Lumsden (60th N.I.), and Capt. G. Allgood (49th N.I.)—Assist.-Qr.-Masts.-General; Gen. Napier and Gen. Michel—Generals of Division.

Since last mail several additions to the Bengal portion of the force have been sent to us. The whole list at present stands thus:—

MADRAS.—EUROPEANS.—No. 7 Battery 14th Brigade Royal Artillery; her Majesty's 1st (King's) Dragoon Guards—two squadrons; A and K Companies Sappers and Miners; her Majesty's 44th (East Essex) Foot; her Majesty's 66th (Berkshire) Foot.—NATIVES.—A Company 5th Battalion Artillery (Golundauze); 1st Supplemental Company (Golundauze).

BOMBAY.—EUROPEANS.—Her Majesty's 31st (Huntingdonshire) Foot; her Majesty's 56th (West Essex) Foot.—NATIVES.—3rd Regiment Native Infantry (1,000 strong); 5th Regiment Native (Light) Infantry (1,000 strong).

The only information we have of the "cavalry" is afforded by the Mofussilite of the 10th—on dit, that it is to consist of a troop or squadron of the 2nd Dragoon Guards. Of the "irregular cavalry," the same journal has heard that it will comprise "600 volunteers from the four regiments of Sikh cavalry." The Delhi Gazette also says, that three squadrons of irregular cavalry, under Captain Fane, are going, and that volunteers are wanted. Captain Fane is second in command of the 3rd Cavalry Regiment Punjab Irregular Force.

Of Queen's troops (infantry) the Oudh Gazette, usually reliable, has heard that the 24th (1st battalion) are likely to go; and the Poona Observer mentions the 43rd, it being ordered to Calcutta. The latter, however, is more likely to remain at the Presidency, to supply the place of the 60th and 99th.

Toward completing the five battalions of Native Infantry, the 5th and 15th Punjab Infantry, the 33rd Bengal Native Infantry, now at Peshawur, and the 60th Ghoorkas, have volunteered their services.

Sir Hope Grant is said (Lucknow Herald) to have applied for an escort of the Bays to accompany him to China.

Operations against the Waghers.

From A. K. Forbes, Esq., act. pol. agent in Kattyawar, to H. L. Anderson, Esq., sec. to Govnt.

Dated 26th Dec., 1859.

SIR,—I have the honour of forwarding, for the information of Government, copies of two letters from Maj. Honner, the latter containing a very graphic and interesting narrative of his operations against the Wagher position, on the 18th inst.

2. While lamenting with Maj. Honner the loss which his troops unfortunately suffered in the attack, I am not disposed to estimate so lowly as he does the value of the success obtained. I quite concur with him in the belief, that "the events of Beyt and Dwarka had impressed the public mind with an exaggerated notion of the bravery of the insurgent Waghers." People knew that an imposing naval and military force had been employed in Ockamundel, and they were aware that the Waghers had got off almost scatheless. It is easy for any one who is acquainted with the natives of India to understand how they would think and talk under such circumstances. I have even heard such absurd notions broached as that of the insurgents having cut their way out of Dwarka through H.M.'s 28th regt. The existence of these erroneous impressions was undoubtedly dangerous, and Maj. Honner, in effectually dispelling them by driving the Waghers headlong from a position which they believed to be inaccessible to artillery, and impregnable, has rendered a greater service than may at first sight appear, and has done much to preserve the future tranquillity of the province of Kattyawar.

3. I shall take measures to ensure a liberal reward to men who, with so much energy and fortitude, assisted in placing the mountain train on the summit of the Dantal hill.

4. It will give me great pleasure to communicate to H.H. the Jam, Maj. Honner's very favourable opinion of the exertions of his Seebundeas. I shall also have gratification in announcing to the Rana of Porebunder, that his men performed the duty which was intrusted to them. The Durbar of Joonaghur feels greatly disappointed that its levies should have failed in co-operating effectively with Capt. Anderson. The failure is the more to be regretted from the fact, that this attack, if successful, would have ensured the capture of the retreating families. I am sure that Government will sympathise with H.H. the Nawab's annoyance at this dereliction of duty on the part of his Seebundeas, the rather because his personal zeal in the cause has been so distinctly evinced by his sending his troops to act in the territory of Noanugger, though the custom of the country would forbid calling upon him for their employment beyond the limits of Joonaghur.

5. I am very glad to observe that Maj. Honner has formed a favourable opinion of the zeal and talent of Azun Unutjee Umeerchand, the Joonaghur Minister. When the Waghers first entered Kattywar, there were, as you know, no regular troops of any kind to oppose to them. This state of affairs continued for a fortnight, and caused me no little anxiety, lest the example of the Waghers, then at the height of their reputation, should be followed by some or all of the turbulent tribes who inhabit this peninsula. Under these circumstances, I selected Unutjee as the only person whom I could send to the spot with full confidence that he would do all that could be done with the means at our disposal. Mainly through his exertions, a considerable body of irregular troops was collected about the Burda Hills, and local information acquired which has been most valuable, and has materially facilitated the operations of the troops. Unutjee had provided his Seebundeas with every necessary; in fact, I was informed by Capt. Black that they were much better supplied than our own regulars. It was of course not his fault that they could not be made to fight. I hope to be able to induce H.H. the Nawab to convey to Unutjee some public mark of approbation; but if, from circumstances which are known to you, I should not succeed in this attempt, I hope I may be allowed to express to him that the Govt. appreciate his exertions.

6. The valuable suggestions contained in the tenth par. of Maj. Honner's last letter, shall receive due attention.

7. I will endeavour to ascertain what degree of culpability attaches to the villagers of Assiawudur, and take such steps as may be necessary in regard thereto.

8. Government will, I am sure, read with pleasure Maj. Honner's testimony to the zeal and efficiency with which the asst. pol. agents, Capt. Black and Lieut. Leathes, performed their duties. I have been very much indebted to both of these gentlemen for the cordiality with which they have worked with me throughout. I cannot let slip this opportunity of expressing my high sense of the services of Maj. Honner himself. His frankness in communicating with me, his tact in his intercourse with the agents of the chief, his industry in making himself personally acquainted with all the pathways leading up to the Abhpooora, have contributed to the result no less than his skill in designing, and gallantry in executing, the attack on the very formidable position held by the insurgents. Maj. Honner has not mentioned the fact, but I think it my duty to inform the Government, that he was himself the first man who entered the fort held by the Waghers on the Abhpooora.

9. Subsequently to the attack conducted by Maj. Honner, Col. Christie arrived with a reinforcement from Ockamundel, and took command. Neither Maj. Honner nor I could have looked with any confidence for such a reinforcement, Lieut. Barton having written on the 11th Dec. to Lieut. Leathes, saying, "that 350 Europeans could not possibly be spared from here (Ockamundel) at present," and mentioning that Col. Christie had that morning started with a column of 209 Europeans and 100 Native Infantry in search of a body of Waghers, who had taken refuge in the jungle near Wussye, and that instructions had been received from the Resident at Baroda, to keep a column always in readiness for such purposes.

10. On the 24th inst. I addressed to Lieut. Leathes a letter, of which I forward a copy—suggesting that troops should be moved from Bhanwar in pursuit of the insurgents. Col. Stiles has now arrived at Porebunder, and taken command of the entire force. Lieut. Pym, with the Guzerat Ir. Horse, and Capt. Anderson and McGrigor, with the 11th N.I. and 2nd L. Cav., have been already detached in this direction, and I hope to open communication with them to-day at Kissod and Wudul, south and north of Joonaghur. Capt. Whitehill, with about 160 Guzerat Horse, arrived here this morning.

11. The insurgents appear, part of them, to have returned to Ockamundel, part to have concealed themselves, or to have moved in this direction in small parties and with as much secrecy as possible, with the view of waiting in the Geer, and harassing the Gaekwar districts from thence. Jodha Manik was wounded in the eye by a splinter of rock detached by a cannon shot, during the actions of the 18th. I have some hopes of being able to capture him, as he is unable to move rapidly in consequence of his wound. Parties of women and children, escorted by ten or twenty armed men, have been seen in the direction of Maecree and Ballagum towards the coast, and it was reported to me that Rama Manik with about sixty men was near Gunod on Friday. The rendezvous at one time proposed was a place called Mudhee, in the Giral hills close to Joonaghur. I am doing my best to keep people in activity and procure information. The inhabitants of the districts near Ockamundel have been found very lukewarm, and unwilling to compromise themselves with the Waghers, whose future enmity they dread. I trust as the insurgents come eastwards these difficulties may be diminished. They will not at any rate have the same advantage in local knowledge which they have hitherto possessed. Eleven persons have been apprehended by the Joonaghur people lately, who will be either taken to Captain Black or brought to me, and from whom we may possibly obtain some information. It would probably have been impossible, even with a much larger force, to have prevented the escape of a considerable portion of the insurgents, especially as there is some reason to believe that they were aware of the day on which the attack was to be made; but their circumstances now are very different from what they were before they were driven out of the Abhpoora. They have lost their strong position, a large portion of their numbers, the stores they had collected, and above all their prestige. Henceforth, though they may continue to give us trouble for a long time, they may be looked upon in the light of common Bahir-wutias.

12. The plan which I propose to adopt at present is that of stationing parties of horse along the two lines from Joonaghur to Dhanree, in the Umreili District and Puttim (Verawul), so as to cover the Geer as much as possible. If, notwithstanding our exertions, the Waghers steal through, it will perhaps be necessary to concentrate the troops, according to the plan originally sketched by me at Dhanree and Korenar, and to send the Seebundee into the Geer to be supported by troops whenever any reliable information can be obtained. Col. Stiles, or the officer who may be detached here in command, will be able to put these arrangements into proper form.

A. K. FORBES, Act. Pol. Agent.

Kattywar Pol. Agency, Camp Joonaghur,
Dec. 26, 1850.

From the officer comdg. Kattywar F.F., to the
Pol. Agent in Kattywar, Joonaghur Camp,
Bhunwar, Dec. 22, 1850.

SIR,—In the last para. of my second letter to you dated 16th inst., I stated my intention to attack the position of the Waghers on Sunday with all my available men. I did so, but (in consequence of the natural obstacles to be overcome) with a success that has not compensated us for our loss of fifty-six killed and wounded, three of the latter since dead.

2. I shall not attempt to describe the mountains or the position held in them by the enemy, but try to explain to you the means we took to get possession of their Fort on the Abhpoora. The operations extended round a circumference of close on thirty miles, and our extreme right and left posts must have been at least that distance apart.

3. Capt. Walker, with 126 Grendrs., was placed three days previously in ambush one mile from his camp in the mountains, holding the ambush with a small picket by day and all his men by night. His tents were at Pastur, eight miles off on my right. Lieut. Pym, with about 120 sabres, was placed in the plain at Paodwulla, in rear of Capt. Walker, also eight miles off. The Waghers had escaped by these passes on two occasions in small parties, as they lead to Oka. Capt. Walker in his ambush, by 8½ a.m. 19th Dec., had taken nearly 500 souls who were attempting to escape; he is still there, and I have as yet received no formal report from him.

4. In my immediate front, Lieut. and Adj. Lewis descended the mountain with 118 men, and while gallantly leading them up was dangerously wounded in the chest by the third shot fired on us. Ensign Bell took on the men, and at an hour and a-half's ascent up the hill, had seven men killed and 15 wounded at a hidden breastwork, which his men subsequently turned and met with little or no further opposition. Next to Lieut. Lewis, but on the left, I ascended with 200 Grendrs. to take a ruined fort called the "Dherkota," which is half-way up the mountain. Very fortunately, this party, though opposed three times, met with nothing to check its onward progress, and, in three hours and three quarters from the time we left our tents, possessed itself of the enemy's fort on the Abhpoora, having had two men wounded and killing one Wagher and wounding another. We entered by climbing one of the low bastions. The opponents of Ensign Bell and Capt. Hill were taken in the rear by my advance. The ascent of the Abhpoora, after passing the "Dherkota," was nearly perpendicular, for I purposely avoided the pathway, and on seizing the first or northern fort, I found complete success unattainable from inability to walk. The whole of the families, amounting to some hundreds, were streaming out of the southern or third fort, all carrying some kind of load, and were protected by a fire of matchlock men, who quietly stood looking at us but beyond our fire (common muskets). There are three enclosures; the first or northern fort taken by us, commands the other; the second or centre fort, in which were the tanks and huts; the third or southern fort. They are much dilapidated and fallen down in parts, but could not be taken without guns if properly defended.

5. The next attack on my left was up the Null-jur pathway on the other side of Moorpoor. It consisted of four mountain train guns manned by Golundauze, and six or seven Grenadiers and 400 men of the 14th N.I. in about equal numbers, the whole under Capt. Hill. He had seven or eight officers. Considerable opposition was met with by this path, but Capt. Hill's arrangements, seconded by the exertions of all his officers, overcame both the natural difficulties of the ascent and the cunning of the enemy. One Jemadar of Golundauze fell mortally wounded, and a sepoy of the 17th was killed. I believe five dead Waghers were counted. After the 1st N.I. had been about an hour or more in the fort, which was then completely free of the enemy, I heard Capt. Lucas' mortars and howitzers opening on a body of insurgents who had retreated from the fort, ascended the Dantal peak, and were opposing the 11th N.I. under Capt. Anderson, although they had 700 of us (tired to be sure) in their rear. Capt. Hill and Lucas were close to me on a ridge of mountains, though it took a long time to communicate. The ascent of the mountain train I did not witness, but I do not think I am exaggerating in saying that no four guns were ever taken up worse or stiffer ground, and I beg especially to recommend to your liberal consideration the men whose names are in the paper marked A. I have heard Rs. 2 named as being a liberal allowance. I beg to hope that at the very least, for the two days' labour, each man may receive 5 Coy's. Rs. from Lieut. Leathes, and not through any native agent.

6. The next attack on the left (I am looking at the hills from Bhanwar) was Lieut. Hallett and 50 Grenadiers, under Lieut. Maunsell of the 11th, with 40 of his men. These were to assist the Joonaghur Seebundee in taking the Dantal, 12 or 14 miles off. They behaved with credit and overcame all obstacles of ground and position, though under fire the whole way up. This attack after some time got mixed up with Capt. Anderson's. One Grenadier was wounded, and Lieut. Hallett had a most providential escape: a matchlock ball from the highest peak of the Dantal, 600 yards off, struck and lodged itself in the brass of a telescope he had slung on his back.

7. I now come to my extreme left attack of 250 of the 11th, under Capt. Anderson. They were to have come up a path called the "Dher Koonakee-keree," which would have nearly completed the ring of operations, and may be some four miles or so from Capt. Walker's ambush. Had they been in time the retreating families would have met them face to face, but we have had fortune against us. The guides I procured would not work: they were in fact afraid. The country was most difficult, the way longer by 2 or 3 miles than my information led me to believe, I mean to the base of the mountain. This path is 21 miles from Bhanwar round the mountains.

8. I believe that no body of regular troops in India since the commencement of the operations consequent on the mutiny of 1857, has exceeded the performance of this body of men of the 11th N. I. On this occasion, Capt. Anderson came to Sursace by forced marches by my order on Saturday; 45 miles in 31 hours. They left their ground again at 1 a.m. Sunday, and were under arms for 20 hours, continuously marching to the base, ascending the Dantal, and returning to the camp, which from the nature of the ground I cannot compute at less than a march of 60 miles. Capt. Anderson was shot through the clothes, and had 4 men killed and 14 wounded (2 since dead); he dispossessed the enemy of the Dantal by a rush, pistolling 2 of the enemy himself. These Arabs and Waghers had four guns firing at them and 100 men on a ridge in their rear, under Capt. Hill, whom I sent to take off their fire from the 11th.

9. These events bring me down to about 3 or p.m. of Sunday: all our men having been 12 hours under arms, with 100 rounds of ammunition on their persons. The firing gradually died away, and the enemy defiled through the jungle, along the southern base of the Venoo, leading on to our ambush. We took 70 men, women, and children, in the fort; they offered no resistance. I had 1,058 men, not including the artillery. The number of the enemy it is impossible to estimate. Those who opposed us and could not regain the fort we never saw again, nor could their numbers at any time be guessed. The prisoners will very likely give the desired information, but I think that their numbers were very small—I have heard 400.

The ravines and ascents were too difficult to allow of any communication between attacks. The voice could not reach across them. The whole of the sepoys who met me demanded to be led after the retreating Waghers (I mention this to show their spirit), but I would not permit it. The jungles were impervious, and water only where we stood. This was after we took the fort.

10. I have now to mention the Seebundee. Those of the Jam of Naonugger ascended the Venoo between Capt. Walker's ambush and Lieut. Lewis' attack. They were of the greatest assistance, and I trust such notice as you deem proper may be taken of them. The Venoo mountain is exceedingly steep, densely wooded, and its head consists of various elevations; the Jam's Seebundee ascended these, but it was as impossible for them to see the string of women and children and men running away under the precipices and in the woods below them, as it was for us, who saw all, to communicate the fact to them. The Seebundee of the Nawab of Joonaghur would not act. 500 men, more or less, were to have been present at Tursace. When Lieut. Hallett had got as far as Reesheshwur, 39 men made their appearance, and told him they "could not possibly go up, as the Waghers were too good shots to let any escape!" In the afternoon I saw some Seebundee through my telescope firing at the retreating Waghers. I fancied these were Joonaghur men. The Rana of Porebunder's men came to the front, but how far they assisted us up the hill I know not. I hope H.H. will be relieved of any anxiety he may feel on this point, as your remonstrances to all the chiefs have naturally caused him to wish for a favourable report from me. The minister Anundjee of Joonaghur is decidedly the best man I have had to deal with here, and regret much that his Seebundee were not forthcoming; he displayed all the method and arrangement of details of a European, and I trust some mark of your approbation may be meted out to him. I will write officially to Lieut. Leathes (for your information) about the guides. They were all, with I think one exception, ordered away, and the regulars took the mountains without their aid. I may also add that we only began to see the Seebundee on the peaks around when the fort was in our hands.

11. The killed and wounded of the enemy may amount to twenty five. They are in my opinion very much overrated as to their courage. The events of Beyt and Dwarka have impressed the public mind with an exaggerated notion of their bravery, prowess, and daring, and I consider this not the least obstacle I had to contend against. They, as a general rule, fire a few well-directed shots from rests, and if pressed immediately run away. To obtain every available man to act against so formidable a foe as these men were represented to me to be, I left the whole of my camp, guns, ammunition, and treasure standing in charge of a few sick men, and Lieutenant Gibb ordered his battery horses to parade in front of the tents to make the enemy believe we were all quiet. I need not observe that all my arrangements were ready on Saturday, and that the whole of the attacking columns removed from their respective bivouacs at 4 A.M. on Sunday, and waited at the base of the mountain until three signal guns were fired from the fort of Moorpoor six miles off as the dawn broke, when the ascent began.

12. The pass up the gorge in front of Bhanwar and along the base of Venoo is most difficult; it had three strong loophole breastworks made of cut stone, from the fort above, and I was told (beforehand) was defended by two hundred men. If such was the case it was impregnable, and I allowed them to consider it so. This pass is called the "Lumb Reeve." I would recommend that the jungle, for one hundred yards on each side of this patch, be at once cut down—a couple of hundred acres would be enough. The grass is generally burned at the Hoollee, by which time the prostrate scrubwood would be dry, and it would take forty or fifty years to again grow to its present formidable impenetrability. A detailed survey of each patchway should be made by one of your assistants, all the water-holes (if any) noted, and the various points which turn and command the pathways described. This document should be lodged in your office for future guidance, if ever required. The tanks on the fort are too large to fill up, and I think impossible to drain. They are depressions in the solid rock. I would, therefore, spend no time or thought on them or the wells. The mountain is untenable if troops are sent quick, and are made to attack from all points at once; but much future trouble would be avoided by always ordering in Seebundees to hold the fort during the continuance of a disturbance in the province similar to the Okhamundel rebellion.

13. I beg to report that a party of fifty Waghers and Dhers, with some wounded, all fully armed, arrived at Assiawuddee, near Kullianpoor on the Okamundel road, in the open day, ate their meals on the river side, and left the place one hour before I myself reached the town. This was on the 20th. I mention this in case you wish to punish the village. Col. Christie's camp was only three coss off, and the insurgents had to go round it, yet no information was given to that officer.

14. Every assistance and information that Capt. Black and Lieut. Leathes could give men was offered and given in the most willing manner. The former officer, leaving his own work, visited my camp three times to render himself of use to me. I trust you will only consider it justice to them to bring their exertions to the notice of Government; for what little success has attended our operations since I joined, is mainly to be attributed to unanimity on their part.

15. I must apologise to you for inflicting this narrative on you. At 2 P.M. on the 19th Dec., when still in the fort, I received an intimation from Col. Christie that he was en route from Okhamundel with nearly 500 men. I immediately sent down and requested the staff officer to write and stop his further advance. I rode out to his camp at Kullianpoor on the 20th, and he, thinking it better to come on to Bhanwar, arrived here this morning, and has assumed the command of the Kattayar Field Force. Had I guessed that he would have been permitted to come, I should have delayed my attack.

A. HONNER, Maj., 1st Gren. Regt. N.I.

P. S. — Col. Stiles has arrived at Porebunder to assume the command of both forces. I hope you got my pencil express about countermanding reinforcements. Horses are required. Before I seal this, I may mention that 250 Waghers, with Jodha Maniek, have crossed the Bhader at the village of Segrus.

A. HONNER, Maj.
From Capt. C. Lucas, comdg. Goozerat Mountain Train, to the staff officer, Burda F.F.

Camp Bhanwar, 20th Dec., 1859.

SIR,—I have the honour to forward, for the information of Maj. Honner, comdg. the F.F., the names of forty-seven biggaries who were supplied me by the pol. agent to assist in carrying the gun-carriages up the hills during the operation of the 18th, and would beg most respectfully to remark that these men worked from six A.M. till nearly five P.M. of the 18th inst. continuously, and for the most part exposed to the fire of the enemy, without water or food, carrying the carriages of the howitzers up and down the hills, which were difficult even for men to climb empty-handed. I would, therefore, trust that as their exertions were certainly extraordinary, their reward may be proportionately liberal. They were employed on the 19th inst. in bringing down the carriages by the Soombee Gorge, from about five A.M. till near three P.M. I fancy that five rupees per diem per man would not be deemed too great a reward, but it is not my place to fix what it should be.

C. LUCAS, Capt.,
Comdg. Gujerat Mtn. Train.

From the Actg. Pol. Agent in Kattiawar, to Lieut. Leathes,

Dated 24th Dec., 1859.

SIR,—I have just received Lieut. Burton's letter of the 17th Dec., of which a copy has been sent direct to you.

2. I should suppose that there was now collected at Bhanwar a larger force than is likely to be required in the Burda hills. It appears that the number of the insurgents left in that district is inconsiderable, and that it is decreasing.

3. Have the goodness, therefore, to suggest to the officer in command the advisability of sending any troops, which he thinks will not be wanted, back to Okamundel, and moving with the rest of his force, as soon as the Burda district is clear of large bodies of the rebels, towards the Veesa-wudder and Puttin districts, or in such other direction as you may ascertain the insurgents to have taken. The Geer is the point for which, according to general opinion, the insurgents will probably make.

4. The officer in command may, however, think it prudent to leave a part of his force in the neighbourhood of the Burda hills, and another part may perhaps be required to take charge of the prisoners. As many as possible of these should be sent to Okmündel, with any troops who may be returning thither.

5. I have written to Capt. Whitehill, commanding Goozerat Irregular Horse, to proceed to this place, with the view of aiding in cutting off the rebels from the Geer.

6. I send this letter open to Cap. Black, who will forward it to you.

A. K. FORBES, Asst. pol. agent.

Joonaghur, Dec. 24, 1859.

RESOLUTION BY THE HON. BOARD.—Dated the 4th Jan., 1860.—The Right Hon. the Governor in Council has perused with much gratification Maj. Honner's account of his operations against the Waghers on the 18th Dec. His report is a very modest narrative of an attack on a formidable position, planned with judgment and executed with the greatest gallantry. His Lordship in Council fully concurs with the Act. Pol. Agent in considering that Maj. Honner has much underestimated the value of the service rendered by him on this occasion, and he notes with peculiar pleasure the fact mentioned by the Act. Pol. Agent, but not mentioned by Maj. Honner, that the officer commanding the force was the first man who entered the fort on the Abhpooora. The Right Hon. the Gov. in Council regards the attack on Abhpooora hill to have been most creditable to Maj. Honner and the officers and men serving under him, and he requests that the Pol. Agent will convey to Maj. Honner his lordship's acknowledgments and commendation.

The Pol. Agent may be informed that Government approves the communication which he proposes to make to the Jam of Naonugger, the Rana of Porebunder, and the Nawab of Joonaghur. His Lordship in Council also requests that Unutjee, the karbaree of Joonaghur, may be informed that Government fully appreciates his exertions.

The Right Hon. the Gov. in Council has read with great satisfaction the testimony borne by Maj. Honner and Mr. Forbes, to the good service rendered by Capt. Black and Lieut. Leathes.

The proceedings of the acting political agent reported in this letter are approved, and the rewards to the men who assisted in dragging the guns to the summit of the Dantal hill sanctioned.

CULTIVATION OF SILK IN INDIA.*

In the few remarks we have to make on the subject of silk cultivation in India it is scarcely necessary to begin, like Captain Hutton, with the Fall of Man, or even to remount to the distribution of animal life subsequent to the Noachian Deluge. In the absence of any authentic record as to the mother of mankind being apparelled in silk attire, it is idle to conjecture the existence of the Bombyx Mori at that interesting period of the world's history. Neither, perhaps, is it a matter of urgent importance to ascertain whether it was the Saturnia Mylitta, or the Bombyx Huttoni, that furnished the materials for the ball-dresses of the daughters-in-law of Noah. Passing lightly, then, over researches which, however profound and philosophical, can hardly be regarded as very valuable from an economical point of view; and leaving an equally wide range for the "acidulated drops" with which Captain Hutton favours those writers or inquirers who have the misfortune to differ from himself, we shall content ourselves with briefly summarising whatever appears of practical utility in that gallant officer's personal observations on the rearing of the silkworm in India.

In the first place we learn that the fine silk produced in Bengal is an indication and result of the degeneracy of the worm. The stock has deteriorated in consequence of the heat and humidity of the climate, and not a little through the injudicious system of feeding now in use. With a view to assist the young caterpillar in mastering the elemental difficulties of existence, the leaves are chopped into small pieces, although by such a course the process of fermentation is greatly accelerated. Gathered leaves begin to fade under the most favourable circumstances as soon as they are plucked, but their juices naturally become more quickly tainted when they are cut up into minute portions. Another effect of the rapid desiccation of the leaf is the necessity for frequent replenishment of the trays, and as frequent disturbance of the creature. In this respect it is not the young alone that suffer, for when the caterpillar is about to moult it attaches itself "by the anal feet to a silken web spun for that purpose on the surface of the leaf," and if detached from its hold it is "rendered unable to shake off, or leave behind it, the old skin." Besides, all the Bombycidae are night-feeders, and as food is supplied to them in a domesticated state only in the daytime, they are thereby deprived of one-half of their proper quantity of nourishment. What marvel, then, that the Bengal silkworm should be a puny creature, capable only of spinning a weak and slender thread?

How different is the case at Mussooree. There the climate is nearly similar, at least in tempe-ture, to that of the north of China, whence the Bombyx Mori and its cognate worms were originally obtained. The resemblance reaches even to the soil, and consequently the tea-plant and the mulberry grow on the barren slopes of the Himalaya as luxuriantly as in the most favoured spots of the Central Flowery Land. For the Bombyx Huttoni, which is "native, and to the manor born," Captain Hutton recommends the wild or indigenous mulberry, for two reasons—the first being that it was upon these trees he first discovered that variety of the silkworm; and the second, that their buds open out at the very time when the worm is hatched, and also because the creatures, even in their more advanced stages, prefer the leaves of the wild to those of the cultivated tree, which are thinner and drier. The caterpillars thrive best when left upon the trees, which also suffer less from their depredations than from having their leaves plucked off wholesale by the hand. It is found that the trees last longer, and that the leaves are more healthy and nutritious, when the former have been allowed to attain to twenty years of age before they are despoiled of their foliage. The indigenous tree, moreover, puts forth two crops of leaves, coincident with the hatching of the two broods of the Bombyx Huttoni. Another advantage of leaving the caterpillars on the trees is that they are thus enabled to gratify their night-feeding propensities, because, as we have already observed, these valuable creatures do not recognise the truth of the French proverb, Qui dort, dine. It may, perhaps, be objected that as wet leaves are found to disagree with the caterpillar in an artificial state, the exposure to rain and the choice only of dripping leaves must prove fatal. It is not so, however, in fact, although in the Himalayas rains or soaking mists continue for days together. The reason being that, "in a state of nature there are no deleterious gases arising from the leaves, whereas in the house the carbonic acid gases arising from the putrefactive fermentation of the vegetable mass is partially absorbed and held in solution by the water on the leaves, and this being swallowed by the worms becomes at once an active poison." Now that there is so much "talk" about developing the resources of India, and at a time when a France-fearing Government weakly sacrifices the manufactures of the country to gratify a magnanimous ally who has always a substantial "idea" upon his hands, it is useful to know that any quantity of raw silk of excellent quality can be obtained from our own dominions, provided only that British enterprise and capital be directed to the proper quarter. If Captain Hutton be correct, that quarter lies on the spurs of the Western Himalayas.

THE MONETARY SYSTEM OF INDIA.

GREAT is Diana of the Ephesians. Wonderful is the influence of that silver idol, the rupee, over the hearts of Anglo-Indian financiers. In spite of the example of other nations, the dictates of common prudence, the warnings of enlightened reasoners and experienced men of business, its altars are still smoking with the breath of many a rare sacrifice, still reeking with the blood of human victims offered up as a thing of course by the priests of a superstition more than a century old, and therefore claiming to live for ever. In plain words, there are still a good many believers in the old creed that India can have but one medium of monied circulation, and that medium the silver rupee. From this faith they cannot swerve a jot, though England should come to be flooded with Australian gold, and hundreds of brave men should yearly perish for lack of a paper currency to replace the barbarous system of treasure-escorts.

That, in spite of all this, we are on the eve of a serious change for the better, can hardly be doubted, while Sir Charles Trevelyan at Madras, and Mr. James Wilson at Calcutta, are doing their best to help it forward. Wishing them all success in their battle with the hindrances offered by the fears of some, the deep-rooted prejudices of others, and the do-nothing policy of a third party, we cannot do better than recommend to curious readers a fairly-reasoned paper in the "Universal Review" for February, on the Monetary System and Financial Condition of India. It is pleasantly written, suggestive, and not too long. Without admitting the invariable force or soundness of the writer's reasoning, we can truly say that any one who wishes for a fair statement of the case in favour of gold coinage and paper notes for India, may read these pages with much profit and small effort.

To the want of a circulating medium more workable and less uniform than the clumsy silver coinage which no one who has travelled beyond Calcutta can help cursing in his heart, the writer traces many of the evils which have darkened the past, and still overcloud the future, of British India. Had there been, for instance, a well-organised paper currency issued by the Government itself, there would have been no treasuries full of rupees to be plundered by mutineers and village-robbers in 1857; while almost every native who possessed a note would have been so far interested in standing by those who had made it a legal tender. Such a system would have done away with the cruel, dangerous, and costly practice of transmitting cartloads of rupees at all seasons of the year, in a killing climate, under the charge of British officers commanding weak detachments of sepoys. It would have kept down the ever-increasing mass of idle poverty and lazy flunkeydom which swarms at present throughout the land, in every village, and round every Government office; and proportionally developed those industrial resources, on which the future welfare of India and our chance of making her pay her own expenses must depend. It would save the careless and much-enduring ryots and other labourers from the grasp of those merciless shroffs and mahajans, "a class of money-lenders the most extortionate, perhaps, in the world," who batten on the evils of a system which keeps their customers hopelessly and wretchedly poor. Between the Government treasuries and these rich native bankers, so little coin is left in circulation that whole villages may often be seen where such a thing as a rupee is practically unknown; business being limited to copper pice and cowries of infinitesimal value. To this cause also may be ascribed in part the great lack of commercial enterprise, the general stagnation of industrial energies, and the fearful accumulation of lawsuits in the Civil Courts throughout India. Perhaps, in these latter instances, the writer dwells too much on one particular influence, overlooking causes of evil inherent in the native character, and allowing hardly enough for the impoverishing effects of our own faulty legislation towards the holders and tillers of the land. No aids to the circulation of money will tempt a native to work hard or long for small profits at a time, nor will any amount of paper issues counteract the evils of an assessment on land so high as to leave the ordinary cottier hardly means enough to keep soul and body together.

"The whole expenditure of the Government"—be it remembered—"in the support of her armies, and the civil and naval services, is defrayed in rupees. Those vast establishments, and all connected with them, are paid every thirty days in these two shilling pieces." Fancy, what in India is continually the case, a number of high placemen in this country attending once a month at a Government office, in person or by proxy, to receive, after due counting on either side, divers huge bags, containing each three or four thousand rupees. Fancy the enormous waste of time and paid labour in collecting these massive sums, in counting them over by tens and scores, in providing for their transmission from one place to another, in guarding them on the way, and after they have been lodged in the appointed stronghold. And yet in India millions of rupees are thus kept locked up from month to month, to be disbursed at certain times to people who, as a class, do little to repay the country that gives them bread.

The process of paying a regiment in India is curious enough to glance at:—

"The early departure from the regimental lines of the gun-limber or quartermaster's cart under a guard of soldiers towards the pay-office; often some miles distant; the weary process of counting and examining the heaps of rupees which cover the floor of the office; its return in the evening laden with some half ton of silver; the laborious work of distribution on the following day, form altogether a very humiliating and ludicrous exhibition in this nineteenth century."

The "treasure parties," as they are called, travelling hundreds of miles at a time, with all their cumbrous train of carts, camp-equipage, and camp-followers, not only entail extravagant expense on the Government, but endanger always the lives of the soldiers, and sometimes the safety of the treasure itself. A weak escort tempts the country people to attack the baggage, not always in vain nor without loss of precious lives; the unhealthy season is sure to do its work on officers and men; and a regiment once split up into detachments for distant duties takes some time to recover its lost discipline. All this would be at once avoided, and an immense saving insured of public money and human lives by the issue of Exchequer-notes; and the enforced introduction of gold coins of the value of five and ten florins would do away with the need for accumulating tons of idle silver in the treasuries of the civil officers.

That the paper notes would circulate fast enough, if once issued in sufficient quantities and for sums small enough to meet the wants of the poorer classes, we have no doubt whatever. There is already a large circulation of bank-notes in Calcutta itself, and no one who has felt the extreme advantage of using them there would question the propriety of making such use more general; only the notes should be issued by Government and made convertible on demand. The amount of notes circulating at one time should never—it is proposed—exceed the yearly revenue. A further advantage would be gained by assimilating the coinage of India to that of England. This could be done by a simple change of names, the rupee becoming a florin, the eight anna piece a shilling, and so on. But would there be no hitch when we come to farthings? A “pie,” and still more, a “cowrie,” represents a sum of which comfortable Englishmen have no conception, though it expresses a very tangible value to many a poor native. Possibly with an increase of the circulating medium such things might pass away into outer darkness.

It really seems waste of time to prove the soundness of the footing on which such an issue of paper-notes would always rest; but, as human minds hold unaccountably different views of things, we may quote again from the afore-named essay. After asking what other security the present holders of “Company’s Paper” enjoy, than the wealth of India and the good faith of Government, and showing that a paper issue duly restricted would rest on exactly the same grounds, the writer proceeds to tax his opponents with inconsistency:—

“They can behold the country plunged deeper and deeper into debt, borrowing million upon million on the security of ‘promissory notes,’ having no guarantee whatever beyond the wealth of the country and good faith of the Government; all this they can witness without uttering one word of doubt as to the value of this security. But when it is proposed to issue a small amount of notes on the very same security, to increase the circulation and thereby facilitate exchanges, stimulate industry, and lighten the burden of the land-tax, they immediately close their eyes to the value of that security. Although these Exchequer-notes would be issued and guaranteed by the same identical Government, and secured on the very same property as the loan-notes, yet they will affirm in the face of all reason and argument, that they are inconvertible paper and without any security whatever!”

He might have stated his case yet more strongly, for the making a legal tender of an Exchequer-note places it on a more negotiable footing than a promissory-note, whose market-value fluctuates with every change in the political weatherglass. One advantage, however, he does not forget to claim for the former, namely—that “once in circulation as money, they would be upheld by the whole community as valuable property, and every person possessing one of them would of course be interested in maintaining their integrity, and consequently in supporting the Government which issued them.” Let the Government loans fall into the hands of English capitalists, if you please; and leave the “convertible notes” to circulate and strike roots of peace and goodwill among the natives of Hindostan.

A uniform metallic currency for the two countries would lead to a “great reduction of labour and expense in our mints, especially in India,” seeing that the immense imports of bullion from one country to the other have always had to undergo the process of recoinage, “at a great waste both of labour and metal.” Besides its undoubted convenience as a legal tender, a gold currency would ease the present strain on silver, and equalise the exchanges of gold and silver between England and her Australian colonies. On this point the writer has not touched, but it has always seemed to us of late years a very pressing argument in favour of a legalised gold currency for a country lying, as it were, on the road between our own island and the gold-fields of the Pacific. A few years hence we may be repenting that such means were not earlier adopted to avert from ourselves the evil consequences which an excessive influx of the Australian metal may perhaps entail. Meanwhile, as we said before, the change must come sooner or later; and we have much faith in the good intentions and practical zeal of such missionaries as Sir C. Trevelyan and Mr. J. Wilson.

With regard to the future gain to the natives themselves, we are not quite so sanguine as the writer from whom we have quoted. They are naturally a lazy, careless race, incapable of great exertion of mind or body, and much preferring to starve in idleness than to win their bread by continuous labour. One Englishman will do the work of four or five natives; for which reasons no comparison can fairly be drawn between their respective wages, any more than we can draw a comparison between the pay of an ensign in this country and one in India. It must, after all, be through English money and English enterprise that the vast and almost fabulous resources of that country can ever be drawn out.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—FEB. 3.

INDIAN MEDALS.

In reply to Sir M. FARQUHAR, Sir C. Wood said that the distribution of the Indian medals had already begun. The delay had arisen in part from the names of the men—as every man’s name was engraved on his medal—not being sent home in sufficient time from India. With regard to the Lucknow prize-money, it had been ascertained to amount to £143,000, and steps were now in progress for its distribution. As to the batta money for Persia, he had to state that the Indian government had received about a month ago a recommendation from the Governor General in Council that batta should be given to the troops employed in the Persian expedition. As half the expenses of that war were to be paid by the Indian government, and half out of the revenues of this country, he had applied to the Treasury to know whether they would pay their part, but had not received an answer.

COMPENSATION TO SUFFERERS.

Replying to a question by Mr. VANSITTART, Sir C. Wood said that notice had appeared in the Gazette of the 29th November, that a commission had been appointed to investigate all the claims made for those losses. It was notified that they were to take four months in examining the different claims that might come before them. Two months of that time had already elapsed. After two months more the investigation would be closed, so that the compensation might be expected about May.

NAVIGATION OF THE GODAVERY.

Sir C. Wood replied to an inquiry by Mr. J. B. SMITH as to what were the intentions of Government with respect to the navigation of the river Godavery, that the subject was one of considerable importance, as the opening up of the river Godavery would be of great benefit in opening up a very fine country to the extent of 500 miles. After the receipt of the report of the officer appointed to make the survey, machinery to remove the first barrier had been ordered in this country. The minute of the Governor of Madras referred to by the hon. gentleman had been laid upon the table of the house. The works would be commenced forthwith, provided a certain objection could be got over. That objection was, no doubt, one of considerable weight. It was that the first barrier to be removed was not in the territory of this country, but in that of the Nizam, who was to a certain degree an independent prince. The government of India was in communication with the Nizam on the subject; and he (Sir C. Wood) hoped the result would be satisfactory. Public works in India were generally remunerative; but the Ganges Canal had not during the mutiny paid for its expenditure. Before the expiration of a year three piers would be erected on the west coast of India for the embarkation of cotton.

INDIA LOAN.

Colonel SYKES having asked the Secretary of State for India whether or not he intended to direct the Five per Cent. Loan, now open in Calcutta, to be immediately closed, the latter replied that immediately after he became Secretary for India he directed that no measure should be taken to raise any further loan in India without the consent of the home government. However, having regard to the nature of the loan referred to by his hon. and gallant friend, he did not think that, consistently with good faith to the people of India, an end could be put to that loan before April next—the close of the financial year—except the entire sum required should have been raised before that time. Seeing that not quite £2,000,000 had up to the present time been subscribed, he did not think there was much chance of the entire sum of £5,000,000 being taken before the end of April; but at that time the loan would close.

OUR INDIAN POSSESSIONS.

Mr. W. EWART asked the Secretary of State for India whether her Majesty’s government had given their consideration to the importance of introducing into the Legislative Council of India representatives of the commercial class, and the class of British settlers, as well as of the natives of India; also to the importance of an annual statement being made by the executive government in India of the financial state of the government, and of the publication of the same for the information of the public in India.

Mr. CAVE asked the Secretary of State for India whether her Majesty’s government still contemplated legalising the exportation of natives of British India as indentured labourers to French colonies.

Sir C. Wood said, in reply, that the constitution of the Legislative Council was a matter of considerable importance, and it should continue to engage the attention of the government. He must, however, observe, that the native landowners of India would not be properly represented by native merchants of Bengal; under present circumstances the civil servants of this country in India were much better representatives of the up-country natives than the native merchants of India would be. The government of India had lately published estimates. He had intimated that while he approved of the publication of the Indian estimates, it was not desirable they should be published till they had been revised by the home government. In reply to the question of the hon. member (Mr. Cave) as to a treaty being negotiated with the French government for allowing the importation into French colonies of coolie labourers from the East Indies, the house was aware that the importation of those coolies into our own colonies had been legalised. A treaty was in course of negotiation, and when it was concluded the hon. member would no doubt find that the interests of the coolies had been duly cared for.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—FEB. 9.

INDIAN FINANCE.

Mr. VANSITTART moved for a select committee to inquire whether it was practicable to introduce a new civil service in India on a cheaper footing, and desirable to abolish the legislative council at Calcutta and the supreme councils of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay, and substitute for them a legislative council for each presidency; to amalgamate the Supreme and Sudder Courts, and to put an end to the existing system of raising loans at the present high rate of interest, regard being had to the fact that India forms a portion of the British empire. The object of the inquiry was to devise some plan of finance for India which would tend to promote measures of simplification and economy in its government.

Sir C. Wood urged that there had been already a system of economy adopted with regard to the civil service, which he thought had gone as far as was consistent with efficiency; but an inquiry on the subject was going on at the present moment. He was not prepared to say that supreme councillors of the presidencies might not come within the category of reduction, especially looking to the mode in which they were now constituted, and that responsible secretaries for each department of the general government should be appointed. Such a plan was under consideration. As to the abolition of the legislative council, although that body had not answered the expectations formed of it, it was a very difficult matter to constitute a council of this description, while the difficulty of introducing the representative principle into its constitution amounted to an impossibility. That subject was also under consideration. With regard to the amalgamation of the Supreme and Sudder Courts, he was in favour of such a plan, and some progress had been made towards its realisation. As to the system of loans, it had been very successful in placing the credit of India high; and generally he hoped that in the next two years the finances of that country would be restored to a satisfactory condition.

Mr. H. J. BAILLIE entered at length into the question of the mode in which this country governed India, arriving at the conclusion that it was done on the same system as that on which Austria had governed Lombardy. If a different system was adopted half of the 100,000 European troops which were now required might be dispensed with.

Colonel SYKES urged that the revenue of India had increased since 1800 in a far greater ratio than its debt. He denied that 100,000 European troops were required in that country. If the motion for the committee was pressed, he should support it, because he believed it would tend to dissipate in some degree the extraordinary ignorance of India which prevailed in this country.

After some further discussion, in which Colonel Percy Herbert, Mr. Torrens, Mr. Danby Seymour, Mr. W. Ewart, Mr. Kinnaid, and Mr. T. G. Baring took part, the two latter gentlemen defending Sir J. Lawrence against an attack made on him by Mr. Baillie, in reference to the policy which had been pursued in the Punjab, to which he attributed much of the extent of the recent rebellion,

The motion was withdrawn.

THE ELPHINSTONE MEMORIAL.

On Thursday, the 16th instant, an influential meeting was held at Willis's-rooms, to take into consideration the most appropriate mode of testifying respect for the memory of the late distinguished Indian statesman, the Hon. Mountstuart Elphinstone.

Sir Charles Wood, M.P., was called to the chair, and among those present were the Duke of Argyll, the Earl of Ellenborough, Earl Stanhope, the Earl of Shaftesbury, Earl Fortescue, Lord Lyveden, Sir James Graham, M.P., Sir F. Baring, M.P., Lord Stanley, M.P., Sir J. W. Hogg, Sir F. Currie, Sir E. Colebrooke, M.P., the Right Hon. E. Ellice, M.P., Sir De Lacy Evans, M.P., Colonel Sykes, M.P., Sir John Lawrence, Mr. M. E. Grant Duff, M.P., Lord Broughton, the Hon. A. Kinnaid, M.P., the Right Hon. Holt Mackenzie, and many other eminent Indian statesmen, warriors, &c., &c.

The Duke of Argyll then proposed, and Lord Ellenborough seconded, the first resolution, which was as follows:—

"That in the opinion of this meeting the eminent public services of the late hon. Mountstuart Elphinstone, throughout a long and varied career of distinction and usefulness, afford a brilliant example of the highest qualities of a British statesman, and deserve the lasting gratitude of his country."

This resolution having been unanimously carried, Lord Stanley moved, and Sir J. Lawrence seconded, the next resolution, which was also carried:—

"That in order to give expression to this feeling, it is fitting that the public estimation of the services of the deceased statesman should be shown by some permanent memorial."

Earl Stanhope then moved the third resolution:—

"That for the purpose of collecting subscriptions, and determining the most appropriate mode of carrying out the objects of this meeting, the following noblemen and gentlemen—(committee named); and that Sir E. Colebrooke, Mr. D. P. Adam, and Mr. Strachey, be also requested to act as honorary secretaries."

This motion, seconded by Colonel Sykes, M.P., was likewise unanimously carried.

A vote of thanks to the chairman, on the motion of Lord Stanley, closed the proceedings.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HER MAJESTY'S LEVEE.—Her Majesty the Queen held her first levée this season on Wednesday afternoon, in St. James's Palace. The following were among the presentations that took place:—Lieut.-col. H. Hope Crealock, on promotion and return from service in China and India, by Lieut.-gen. Sir G. Wetherall; Lieut. F. E. H. Farquharson, 42nd Highlanders, on return from India, severely wounded, and on receiving the Victoria Cross, by Sir G. Wetherall; Mr. Halliday, late Lieut.-governor of Bengal; Maj. E. Harvey, Lieut. R. V. Malden, Asst.-surg. F. H. Smith on return from India, Lieut. R. A. Stevenson on return from India, Surg. J. Williams, Lieut. W. W. Woodford on his return from India, by the Secretary of State for India; Capt. Henley, on return from India, by his father, the Rt. Hon. J. W. Henley; Col. Horsford, Maj. R. Platt, 40th Regt., on promotion, and on proceeding to India, by H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge; Brig.-gen. G. St. P. Lawrence, Agent, Governor-gen. of Rajpootana, by his brother, the Rt. Hon. Sir John Lawrence, bart., G.C.B.; Sir Erskine Perry, on being appointed a member of the Council of India, by Sir Charles Wood; Lieut. R. V. Liddell, on appointment to H.M.'s Indian Engineers, by Lieut.-gen. Sir J. Pennefather, K.C.B. Com. Michael C. Seymour, R.N., on promotion and return from service in China, by his uncle, Rear-Admiral Sir Michael Seymour.

RELICS OF THE GREAT MOGUL.—Mrs. Hodson, widow of Captain Hodson, has had the honour of presenting to her Majesty, in person, two swords, one taken by her late husband from the King of Delhi, and the other surrendered by the King on the 21st September, 1857; the former of which formerly belonged to Jehan Geer, A.D. 1605, and the latter to Nadir Shah.

THE EAST INDIA LOANS.—A return made to the House of Commons states that the total amount of the "enfaced" India Government rupee loans registered at the India House up to the 31st day of December, 1859, is 40,986,579 rupees, of which 6,949,653 rupees have been transferred into stock.

THE DEBT OF INDIA.—The total amount of the stocks, loans, debts, &c., chargeable on the East Indian revenues in India in April, 1858, was £72,426,828, of which £60,600,513 bore interest, and £11,826,315 did not. In England at the end of last year the amount was £30,587,837, including £1,979,517 of India Bonds, £14,956,000 of India Debentures, £4,999,000 of Five per Cent. Stock, and £4,087,080 capital of India railways remaining in the Home Treasury. The registered debt of India (in India) is £50,799,001 bearing interest, and £66,511 not bearing interest.

ISSUE OF THE INDIAN MEDAL.—The medals for the campaign in India are now ready. The obverse is a medallion of the Queen, and the reverse represents Britannia seated on a lion, extending a laurel wreath, encircled by "India, 1857-58." Some of the medals have been despatched to Dover, for the 32nd regiment, and others to Scotland. The ribbon consists of two broad red stripes on a white ground.

NELSON'S MEDICATED BELT.

(Ed. Nelson, Naval Surgeon from 1832 to 1857.)

Gentlemen who are subject to pains in the back or loins, Rheumatism, Lumbago, or who are given to corpulency, are advised to wear NELSON'S MEDICATED BELT, as it gives a great support to the entire frame, and a comfortable and genial warmth to the back and abdomen, promoting health and digestion. Gentlemen who ride for business or pleasure should wear this Belt as a preventive of Rupture, &c.

NELSON'S MEDICATED MARINE BELT for the prevention of Sea Sickness and the support of the back and loins during a long voyage.

"MARK FAVORIAL.

BY J. R. YOUNG,

A COURSE OF MATHEMATICS, PURE AND MIXED,

More especially designed for the Use of Candidates for the MILITARY &amp; CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

1. ALGEBRA, TRIGONOMETRY, AND MENSURATION.
2. ANALYTICAL GEOMETRY (CONIC SECTIONS), STATICS, DYNAMICS, AND HYDROSTATICS.
3. THE DIFFERENTIAL AND INTEGRAL CALCULUS, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c., &c.

The object of this work is to furnish Candidates for the Military and Civil Service Examinations with such a practical knowledge of Pure and Mixed Mathematics as may prove most serviceable to them in the course of the ordeal to which they are about to be subjected. On such occasions a mere theoretical acquaintance with principles is by no means sufficient. It is also necessary that the young aspirant should have been trained by actual experiments, as it were, to the application of the abstract rules, the enunciation of which he has otherwise mastered only by an effort of memory. To assist him in thus gathering the fruits of his intellectual industry, Mr. J. R. Young has devised a multitude of problems, of greater or less difficulty, in Algebra, Trigonometry, Mensuration, Analytical Geometry (Conic Sections), Statics, Dynamics, Hydrostatics, the Differential and Integral Calculus, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c. The chief peculiarity of this work, however, is one that will recommend it to a very large class of students. The most difficult questions are rendered comparatively easy, by the practical simplifications that are introduced in their mode of solution. Instead of a pompous and puzzling display of technical phraseology, the utmost care has been taken to explain the most knotty points in a plain, unaffected manner, intelligible to every ordinary capacity. In this respect, Mr. Young's "Course of Mathematics" will be found to possess a decided superiority over all preceding works on the same subject.

SIXTY YEARS OF SUCCESS HAVE PROVED BEYOND QUESTION THAT

ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL possesses extraordinary properties for promoting the growth and improving and beautifying the human Hair. It prevents Hair from falling off or turning grey, strengthens weak Hair, cleanses it from Scurf and Dandruff, and makes it beautifully soft, pliable, and glossy. Its operation in cases of baldness is peculiarly active; and in the growth of Whiskers, the Beard, and Mustachios, it is unfailing in its stimulative operation. For CHILDREN it is especially recommended as forming the basis of A BEAUTIFUL HEAD OF HAIR, while its introduction into the Nursery of Royalty, and the numerous Testimonials constantly received of its efficacy, afford the best and surest proofs of its merits.—Price 3s. 6d. and 7s.; Family Bottles (equal to four small), 10s. 6d.; and double that size, 21s.

CAUTION.—On the Wrapper of each Bottle are the words, "ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL," &c., in white letters, and their Signature, "A. ROWLAND AND SONS," in Red Ink. Sold at 20, Hatton-garden, London, and by Chemists and Perfumers.

CLAPHAM COMMON.

UNFURNISHED HOUSES at CLAPHAM COMMON.

Mr. McLACHLAN, of 35, St. James's-street and Clapham-common, is instructed to LET THREE HOUSES in the GROVE, adjoining that beautiful spot, Clapham-common. They consist of dining, breakfast, and double drawing-rooms, and five bed-rooms, with the usual domestic offices, coach-house, stable, &c. The houses have just been put into thorough substantial and ornamental repair, and are fit for immediate occupation. The locality is highly respectable; and as the rents are moderate, and several Indian families reside in the neighbourhood, Mr. McLachlan begs to recommend the houses to the attention of families recently arrived from India. The drainage is warranted. Omnibuses to West-end and City pass constantly. One mile to the Balham Station, for Pimlico, Crystal Palace, Brighton, &c.

OUTFITS TO INDIA.—Families requiring PLATE, CUTLERY, &c., will find SLACK'S ELECTRO-PLATE the most durable. It is generally used by the principal Officers in H.M.S., also by his Excellency Lord CLYDE, Commander-in-Chief.

SLACK'S NICKEL ELECTRO-PLATE.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—There is no hazard in saying that the popularity of Professor Holloway's remedies in this country is without a parallel. The instances in which sick persons, professionally condemned to death, have recovered under the operation of these miracle-working Pills, are so numerous and so well authenticated that the most stubborn incredulity is silenced. Hosts of sufferers from indigestion, liver complaints, nervous debility, disorders of the bowels, epileptic fits, and other diseases, have been cured by this unapproachable medicine when every other means had failed. The press teems with testimonials of the parties, and while we wonder we are compelled to believe. These Pills are composed entirely of rare balsams. They are as safe as they are efficacious.

THE MAGNESIAN EFFERVESCENT is the most agreeable and effective remedy in all cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Acidity, Heartburn, Indigestion, and Biliary Affection, Nausea, Fever, Thirst, and Sea-sickness. It is highly recommended by the profession, and will be found especially valuable to those going to India or traveling in warm climates; as a mild and efficacious saline aperient it stands unequalled, and will be found peculiarly adapted for delicate females and children. To be obtained through all respectable chemists, and wholesale from Messrs. BASCLAY, Farringdon-street (put up in stoppered bottles at 4s. 6d. for India), and smaller size at 1s. 1d. and 2s. 6d.

Prepared only by EDWARD FRICHARD, Chemist, 10, Vigo-street, Regent-street, W.

 The Proprietors beg most respectfully to call the attention of the Trade, Noblemen, Clergy, and the Public to their extensive stock of CHOICE WINES of rare vintages.

B. and Co. are not disposed to comment upon the purity of their Wines, which is daily most laudably acknowledged by the public and eminent medical men of all countries, as the increasing patronage of the highest families in the land is a sufficient guarantee.

They beg to call attention in particular to their Pure Tonic Wines as being so valuable to invalids and persons of weak stomachs.

A sample case, containing full-sized sample cases, will be forwarded to any address on receipt of 6s. 6d., or a dozen for 24s.

It is a well-known fact that impure and adulterated Wines are the greatest foes to health, producing acidity in the stomach, and debilitating the digestive organs, while pure Wines will accelerate the digestive powers, invigorating, strengthening, and bracing the nervous system.

Their Tonic Wine is admitted to be most essential to invalids, both old and young, and should never be absent from the homes of the weak and sickly. Its properties are duly acknowledged by the leading men of the Faculty both at home and abroad.

To prevent imposition each bottle is sealed with the name of the firm.

All orders to be made payable to HENRY BURROWS.

A MISSED OPPORTUNITY.

The Government of India is missing, or rather has missed, an opportunity. For the first time in its history it has had the power of creating a new aristocracy dependent upon itself, bound to it by the ties which bound the jaghiredars of the Mahratta States to their chiefs. Every estate granted away above the value of Rs. 10,000 a year has raised a new family to position. These estates have been granted in dozens, some few of them to Europeans. Why should they not all have been entailed, or at least exempted as fiefs of the State from subdivision? There would have been no murmurs at such a condition. The gift was an act of grace, and any limitations in the succession would have been accepted as springing from the fair prerogative of the giver. As it is, there is nothing to prevent the property of the Rajah of Kuppoothulla, or of Mr. Schilling, or of any other of the new men, from being subdivided till his descendants are landed paupers. The estates granted to reigning princes for services identical in character with those of the landlords will descend to heirs male. Why should not the "loyal subject" be rewarded in the same manner and on the same conditions as the "loyal feudatory"?

The political advantage of the limitation must have been considerable. Of all the grantees, not one will probably retain his influence beyond a generation. The present owner may be loyal, and his children, but each child will have but a fraction of his father's power to aid. Once entailed, the confiscated estates might have been the nursery of a new aristocracy, devoted of necessity to the power which alone could maintain the entails, and able, from the wealth which a law of primogeniture ensures to an aristocracy, to contend successfully with their numerous, but divided rivals. The experiment is one every Government of British India has been anxious to try. The power was at last in our hands, and was carelessly thrown away.

There is probably no one of the many evils of Indian social life which tends so rapidly to deterioration as the incessant subdivision of land. The benefits which some writers believe to spring from minute cultivation have in India no existence. Whoever is lord, the peasant never shakes off his rent, and the only result of division is to give the estate half a dozen landlords instead of one, each accustomed to the state and the expenditure natural and becoming in one who held the estate undivided. The system may be too deeply rooted in the prejudices of the people to be attacked. A law, even if it were possible to pass it, would be evaded amidst universal discontent, but no such objection applies to gift estates. They would be held as Crown jaghires, without a murmur from the population. The experiment was worth an effort even if without result, and we regret that the opportunity should have been missed.—Friend of India.

WANT OF ELEPHANTS IN TENASSERIM AND PEGU, AND ITS CONSEQUENCES.

We have been favoured with letters from Rangoon on the subject of the exportation of elephants, and its disastrous consequences on the timber trade of the provinces of Tenasserim and Pegu. It appears that since 1857, upwards of 1,500 elephants, tame, and trained to the working of timber in all its various branches, have been lost to these provinces, by what seems a reckless system of exportation, and which we are sorry to hear is still in progress. In order to understand the serious injury done both to the general revenue of these provinces and to that derived from the trade in timber, we are enabled to go into the following details. The earnings to Government annually from the mere labour of one elephant may be safely estimated at four hundred and thirteen rupees, for, say, 150 logs of timber, dragged from the forest and brought to market by its instrumentality—elephant labour for this service being indispensable. This amount is levied on timber so brought down by a tax of Rs. 2-12 per log, in Maulmain; and a similar rate may be assumed for Rangoon. We have, therefore, in the loss of the above-named number of elephants a deficiency in the revenue alone of Rs. 6,17,750. These figures, of course, assume that the drain of elephants is such as to stop the bringing down of timber entirely in the manner indicated above, which is certainly not the case as yet; but the danger of this state of things is imminent, and it is with reference to this that we call the attention of the Government to the subject. Since the exportations in question commenced there has been an enormous diminution of the supply, and of course a corresponding increase in the price of timber in the Tenasserim provinces, and to the growing scarcity of elephants this is clearly attributable. It must be borne in mind that in that province and its adjacent timber-producing States, as the forests continue to be worked the locality of available timber becomes more and more remote. The loss of elephant labour is, therefore, felt in a ratio correspondingly increased.

In Pegu the entire hopes held out of large supplies of timber have been, so far, disappointed, and our correspondent asserts that scarcity of elephant labour has at least been one of the many aggravating causes that have led to so much grievous dissatisfaction on the part of those interested in the teak trade of this country. Whatever may be the fact with reference to the number of elephants actually in the country, there can be no doubt that the large number already taken from the trained and efficient working animals must for a long time exert a most baneful influence on the trade. It is useless to reply that the country teems with wild elephants. So does Ceylon. But if Government, with all its facilities and a large and expensive staff purposely selected for the purpose, failed to secure more than one or two in a hunting expedition of two years' duration, it will be seen how futile by these means would be the attempt, in any given time, to fill up the ranks, thinned by the reckless process we have inadvertently upon.

We are informed that the people of those provinces are extremely anxious that an immediate stop should be put to this suicidal course. The timber trade of the country may then, in time, assume the important position so long expected from it, and so long predicted by those to whom the public naturally look for correct information on such matters.—Englishman.

MORTALITY IN THE ARMY.

On the occasion of a recent inspection conducted by the commander-in-chief in person, Lord Clyde made the painful discovery that at two stations where three of H. M.'s regiments were quartered, the hospitals had been without quinine for several months, and his lordship proceeded to make some remarks, pithy as proper, on the duty of "the powers that be" with reference to a due supply of drugs as important in India, almost, as curry or khakoe. If prevention be better than cure, quinine, costly as it is, is the cheapest of our medical stores. Dr. Ewart enters somewhat largely into the subject in his "Vital Statistics of the Indian Army," and the result of his inquiries is sufficiently striking. On prophylaxis generally he says:—

"Whether the saving of lives be viewed in connection with the concomitant saving of money, or with the resultant augmentation of military efficiency and improvement in the health and comfort of the women and children, as well as of the soldiers, one thing is certain, the Government would be the gainer by the wide extension of sanitary science in practice, which will, I am persuaded, go further to economise the lives of our soldiers and their families than all the resources of curative medicine put together."

The statistics show that down to about 1853 the annual loss to strength, exclusive of casualties in war, &c., was as follows:—

Bengal .. ..	8.01 per cent.
Madras .. ..	5.2 "
Bombay .. ..	4.86 "

If Dr. Ewart be right, we are to understand that of this terrible mortality the percentage attributable to preventable causes was as follows:—

Bengal .. ..	6.01 per cent.
Madras .. ..	3.2 "
Bombay .. ..	2.86 "

That is to say, the entire mortality of the European Army in excess of two per cent. per annum is attributable to causes within the power of Government to remove. We do not know that there has been much improvement in the sanitary arrangements of our military cantonments within the last seven years. The probability we fear is, that owing to the enormous accession to their numbers, the European troops in India are worse housed and worse cared for now than they were in 1853, when that heaven-born administrator, Dalhousie, had got rid of the one man in power who had fairly grasped the conviction that our soldiers were perishing by thousands, through the false economy of the State. If we estimate the European army of India in round numbers to be 100,000 strong, and bear in mind that two-thirds of that force are on the strength of the Bengal Army list, we are landed by Dr. Ewart's figures at the truly frightful conclusion that more than five entire regiments of our countrymen are annually swept away by Death, under approaches, where we have the means, and lack only the energy, successfully to encounter him. Add to this the multitude of women and children quietly scythed down beside the fathers and husbands tenanted the grave, and the picture becomes too painful to be dwelt upon. Can nothing be done to arrest the terrible reproach that not the Indian climate but our own selfish apathy is chargeable with the terrible mortality of the European troops? Oh, for one short year of a Cromwell's or a Napier's rule, unfettered by heaven-born administrators and long-winded minute-mongers, none of them half as eloquent as Death, with five regiments of brave men and their wives and little ones marching at the heels of "the pale horse" into the other world!

But five regiments of British soldiers are not without their money's worth. It is estimated that we cannot land an effective European soldier in India at a less cost than £100, and a loss of five regiments annually represents a loss of half-a-million of capital every year.

We are almost ashamed to name this consideration in the discussion, but that it so completely disposes of all defence of the State upon the ground that money is wanting to remedy the state of matters now revealed. Half a million sterling annually represents, at five per cent., a capital of ten millions, and until the State is no longer able to borrow money at all, the plea of embarrassment is a shuffle that should be kicked out of Court as often as introduced. Let the Government of India go before the House of Commons and tell it the terrible story we have narrated, and it is a libel upon Englishmen to doubt that they would sanction a loan to any extent necessary to remove this reproach from us.

In turning from this melancholy picture, it is gratifying to know that the mortality has of late years been diminishing, and Dr. Ewart unhesitatingly ascribes the improvement to the freer use of quinine and cinchona bark. Were we not afraid of having a nest of hornets about our ears, we might suggest our doubts of the efficacy of the drugging system in any case; but the most enthusiastic of homeopaths admit that quinine is a specific, and draw, indeed, a vindication of their own practice from the operations of this very medicine. That any hospital in the country should be found without quinine should lead to the instant dismissal of every medical officer in any way responsible for the condition of that hospital; and the destitution would be incredible if it rested upon any authority less impeachable than that of the commander-in-chief himself. Dr. Ewart enters into some curious calculations, comparing the capitalized value of the lives annually saved by the drug with its cost to the State, and we may perhaps notice these on another occasion.—Bombay Times and Standard.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.—Government has at last recognised the services of the Electric Telegraph Department during the disturbances. Mr. Todhunter has been rewarded for his zeal and activity during the trying period by promotion to first-class deputy superintendent and a donation of Rs. 1,000.

MR. TAYLOR, assistant magistrate of Mozuffernuggur, has kindly sent to the officiating principal of Agra College eight volumes of Oriental literature for the use of the library, the whole of the college collection having been destroyed during the late mutiny. Standard works of reference and specimens in natural history would prove highly acceptable donations to this institution.

ASSISTANT ADJUTANT-GENERAL.—Government have abolished the appointment of Assistant Adjutant-general to Sir William Mansfield. Lieutenant Johnstone, of the Bombay army, now holding the appointment, will, in consequence, be obliged, on his return from Europe, to return to his Presidency.

DEATH OF LADY WELLS.—We regret to have to record the death of Lady Wells, which melancholy event occurred on the 5th of January. The deceased lady was ailing but for a short time.

REDUCTION OF PUNJAB REGIMENTS.—Brigadier-general Neville Chamberlain has addressed Government, recommending the reduction of the Punjab light field batteries by one-half their present strength. The Punjab infantry regiments are to be reduced to 600 bayonets, and the cavalry to 420 sabres.

MILITARY RETRENCHMENT.—The recent reductions made by the hon. the Lieutenant-governor of the Punjab in the levies, will cause a saving to the State of about fifteen lakhs of rupees per annum.

DOST MAHOMED is now en route to Peshawur, where he will have an interview with Lord Canning.

THE FURTHER ENLISTMENT of native soldiers is strictly forbidden by Lord Clyde, except in the 66th, or Goorkha light infantry, Sirmoor rifle regiment, Kemaon battalion, Nusseerabad battalion, extra Goorkha regiment, 1st and 2nd Assam light infantry, Arracan battalion, Sylhet light infantry, and Kamroop regiment. These are to have their establishments kept complete.

REBEL LEADERS LATELY IN NEPAUL.—1. Nana Rao, died in Deokur. 2. Bala Rao, died in Deokur. 3. Dabee Buksh, Rajah of Gonda, died in Deokur. 4. Butcha Singh, captured east of Arrah nulla, delivered to the British. 5. Shere Torab Ali Khan, do., do. 6. Azimollah, died at Bootwul. 7. Goolab Singh, Rajah of Birwah, died in Deokur. 8. Rajah Hurlpurshad, captured, died on the way from Deokur. 9. Purgun Singh, Collector of Bhinga, died in Deokur. 10. Moorad Buksh, Subadar Bengal artillery, who opened fire on the boats at Cawnpore, killed east of Arrah nulla. 11. Bane Madho, Rana of Shunkerpoor, killed in Dang by the Goorkha force. 12. Khoda Buksh, general, died in Bootwul. 13. Hurdut Singh, Rajah of Boonkee, died in Deokur. 14. Mummo Khan, Begum's paramour, captured and sent to Lucknow. 15. Khan Bahadur Khan, ditto, ditto, thence to Bareilly. 16. Jwalla Pershaud, confidant of Nana, captured and sent to Cawnpore. 17. Abid Khan, General, brother of Mummo Khan, captured and sent to Lucknow. 18. Mirza Feroze Buckt Bahadur, brother of the ex-King of Delhi, captured in Deokur and sent to Lucknow. 19. Ummeer Singh, brother of Koer Singh, captured and sent to Goruckpore. 20. Umrao Singh, General, captured and sent to Lucknow. 21. Ram Singh, Rajah of Hurraha, captured in Deokur and sent to Durriabad. 22. Dabee Deen, General Nusseerabad Brigade, captured and sent to Lucknow. 23. Bhonee Singh, Subadar late 17th N.I., concerned in the Cawnpore massacre, captured and sent to Cawnpore. 24. Bullee Singh, notorious dacoit, captured and sent to Goruckpore. 25. Sheikh Sookhum, Adjutant Nusseerabad Brigade, captured and sent to Lucknow. 26. Gunga Singh, alias Lord Sahib, captured and sent to Lucknow. 27. Ramchurun, Subadar Nusseerabad Brigade, captured and sent to Lucknow.

MILITARY ITEMS.—H.M. 70th, at present at Rawul Pindee, will relieve the 17th at Jullunder, and the 93rd Highlanders are expected to relieve the 70th at Rawul Pindee.—The officers and men of No. 5 Battery 11th Brigade Bengal Artillery (now at Gwalior) have volunteered for China service.—The 1st E. Fusiliers relieve H. M. 46th at Mooltan.—A detachment 17th M. N. I. left by bullock train on the 12th January, en route to Calcutta.—Head quarters and heavy baggage of H. M.'s 8th Regiment marched on the same day, to Sydadabad, en route to Luchageer, to embark on the steamer Agra and the flats Luchmee and Chumbul.

COLONEL BRUCE, C.B.—The following is the farewell order of Colonel H. Bruce, C.B., chief of police, dated 12th January, 1860.—“Honoured by a call from Government for service with the army in China, I with much regret take leave of the Oude police. I wish to make known to all ranks my thanks for their hearty co-operation and zealous exertions. It is to these exertions on the part of the English officers of this force, and the superior native officers, that efficiency in the field, and success in the police work of the province, is due. The most disturbed province of the empire has been reduced to such quiet and order, that the truncheon has replaced the musket. To this success I owe the favour of Government. Whether as a military body in the field, or as individual policemen in the districts of Oude, there has been but one uniform success. Thus those who have so indefatigably devoted their exertions to discipline, organisation, and improvement, have been repaid. I thank the European officers whom it has been my pride and honour to command, I thank the admirable native officers, and I desire that the non-commissioned officers and men may be apprised of my full appreciation of their services and exertions. Everything depends upon able and experienced instruments, and those placed under me have indeed proved the wisdom of Sir Robert Montgomery's selection. I bid one and all good-bye. May past successes stimulate to increasing exertions, and may all earn honour, reward, and advancement—is my hearty and parting wish.”

MR. FITZHERBERT KIGHT, the celebrated Indian aeronaut who fell into the sea in Back-bay some years ago, from the height of a mile, and was afterwards picked up by a coasting-steamers, unhurt, floating on his balloon, has, we are glad to see, for his services during the siege of Lucknow, and the mutinies generally, received a veterinary surgeon's commission. He has been posted to the Lahore light horse, at Dum-Dum, which he has been directed to join forthwith.

CAPTAIN WALTER FANE, the commandant elect of the China irregular cavalry force, is at present on a visit to Sir Hope Grant. He is picking up as many sowars as he can in Lucknow, where he is likely to get many ready-made soldiers. The salary is excellent—sixteen rupees per month, free of all expense.

THE CAWNPORE AND OUDE DIVISIONS of the army are to be amalgamated; the head-quarters to be at Lucknow. The Saugor district is to be added to the Gwalior division, which is to become a permanent divisional command. These important arrangements are to come into effect on the departure, for China, of Sir Hope Grant and Sir Robert Napier. Cawnpore will be a brigade command only, and the candidates for the brigade and divisional commands are:—Major-general Innes, and Colonels Congreve, Qrmr. gen. Queen's troops), Milman, Boileau, (Engineers), Becher (Qrmr. gen.), McCausland, Blackford, Atherly, Chute, Brown, Dennis, and Hale—the last half-dozen Queen's officers. So long as Sir John Inglis remains, he will, of course, retain the divisional command of the Cawnpore and Oude Divisions.

THE LAHORE LIGHT HORSE have volunteered for service in China. The regiment is small in number, but a good spirit pervades all classes in its ranks, whether European or Eurasian. The corps did good service with Lord Clyde; the men are just the fellows for China, are well clothed and mounted, and it is very probable that the fact of their being within two hours' march of the shipping of Calcutta, may induce government to allow them to go.

UMBALLA, Jan. 16.—The Governor-general, accompanied by the Commander-in-Chief, arrived about half-past nine this morning. His Excellency was received with a royal salute at the entrance of the station, and a succession of salvos from zumbooraks and other miscellaneous fire-arms in the procession of the native chiefs assembled to meet and escort his lordship into the station. The band and a squadron of H. M.'s 7th Hussars, also went out to meet the distinguished party, and together with the civil and military officers of the station, accompanied them to their tents. The troops of the station were out in full uniform lining the road from the tents in the artillery lines, down to the entrance of cantonments; they extended at least three miles on both sides of the road, commencing with H.M.'s 27th Inniskillings, with a squadron of Hussars here and there, then the Loyal Poorbeahs, Khelat-i-Gilazie, and the splendid 93rd Highlanders in full uniform. The latter regiment, as might have been expected, presented the most picturesque part of the performance. The guard of honour was formed of the 93rd with the band. The whole scene would have been magnificent of the kind, if any arrangement had been made for keeping the road clear; but, as it was, the Governor-general and staff had no sooner passed than there was such a rush of elephants, camels, and tatoes, each and all carrying its load of native pomposity, that it was with the greatest difficulty the infantry could preserve their line, and the hussars had still more trouble in doing so. I have never witnessed an interesting spectacle so thoroughly spoilt by the tag-rag and bobtail of an oriental procession. Lord Canning, accompanied by Lord Clyde, the staff, Lord William Hay, and other civil and military officers, rode through the station, and about ten o'clock another royal salute announced that they had alighted in camp, and that the tamasha was over. The Rajahs of Putteeala, Jheend, Naba, and other chiefs are encamped here, and the durbar, it is expected, will be a brilliant one.

Jan. 17.—H.M.'s 87th Royal Irish Fusiliers are expected to march in to-morrow morning; they will be entertained at dinner by the 27th Inniskillings the same evening; and Lady Canning will present them with new colours on the 19th or 20th. The Governor-general held a levée to-day at 11 A.M., which was numerously attended. To-morrow there will be some private receptions and on Thursday the Grand Durbar, at which the illustrious chiefs of Putteeala, Jheend, Naba, &c., &c., will be presented, and a large assemblage of European spectators is expected. Mr. E. S. Brandreth, commissioner of Delhi, is in the Governor-general's camp. Major the Hon. A. C. Dormer, A.D.C. to his excellency the Commander-in-Chief, leaves to-morrow or next day en route for China, to join his appointment. The vacancy on his Excellency's staff will not be filled up. The 93rd Highlanders relieve the wing of H.M.'s 35th on escort duty with the Governor-general.—Delhi Gazette.

RAMPORE, Jan. 14.—It having been decided at a meeting held at Nainee Tal, December 1857, to present the loyal Nawab of Rampore with some substantial testimonial, in token of the great kindness and attention shown by him to the beleaguered residents at Nainee Tal, shut up there by the rebels of Rohilkund in that year, it was agreed the same should be presented to his highness with all the pomp agreeable to the occasion. Accordingly on the 11th instant the Nawab's camp was pitched at a short distance from Rampore at a spot called Agapore, and on the morning of the 12th instant all the officers and gentlemen from all the surrounding stations arrived at an early hour. The usual salute having been given on the arrival of General Walpole, commanding the division, a public breakfast was provided by his highness in the large Durbar tent, supplied with everything the season could afford, and ample justice was done to it by the different hungry travellers who had come from long distances to grace the occasion with their presence. At half-past 11 o'clock his highness the Nawab arrived in a carriage and four in camp, where his troops had already been drawn up in order. He at first proceeded to his own private tent pitched close by, and shortly after, accompanied by the Generals Walpole and Parsons, and the Political Agent, Mr. Roberts, he proceeded to the Durbar tent, where he held a Durbar, which was numerously attended by all the European officers then in camp. At about 12 o'clock, or a little after, his highness proceeded in procession from the camp to the city, the whole cortege forming a most beautiful, brilliant, and charming sight, attended with all the gorgeous paraphernalia of an eastern prince. On arrival at the fort in the city, a salute was again fired, and his highness, taking the hands of the generals and agent, and Major Ramsay, proceeded to the Dewan Khass. After a little time, which was occupied by "natching" and singing by oriental hours, Major Ramsay, accompanied by General Parsons, proceeded to the centre, where the vase had previously (veiled under a piece of gold tissue) been placed on a table, and, uncovering the same with a most expressive and able speech (quite like the man himself), presented his highness with the vase, on the part of the saved residents of Kumaon. His highness returned thanks in a short but very expressive speech, but spoke in so low a voice that he also was hardly heard except by those quite close to him. A beautifully illuminated document on vellum describing the cause of the vase being given, with a list of all those residents of Kumaon who subscribed, was given his highness at the same time, and I am quite sure it will form by no means the least part of this magnificent present. The vase is a most magnificent thing altogether, and the other day was most particularly well described by the Hurkaru while it was lying for inspection at Messrs. Hamilton and Co.'s, Calcutta. An excellent tiffin, well supplied with the great essential, champagne, was furnished in the Dewan Khass at about 2 o'clock, and was done good justice to, after which all enjoyed themselves as they best chose, some starting for the camp again in quest of their cheroot boxes. After tiffin his highness again summoned all to witness the presentation of the khilluts to his high officers; they were, I believe, between fifty or sixty, and very handsome. The first and principal one was presented by his highness, assisted by Mr. Roberts, the political agent, to Prince Abdool Alli Khan Bahadoor, uncle to the present Nawab, and brother to the late faithful servant to Government, and afterwards Nawab of Rampore, Nawab Mahomed Saeed Khan Bahadoor, who died a few years ago, leaving his throne to his truly estimable and worthy son, and who proved his worth by his unexampled loyalty and kindness to the shut-up and needy residents of the almost starving garrison at Nainee Tal. This prince, acting under the orders of his highness, actually held Moradabad against all enemies, and restored it on the English again getting their footing in Rohilkund. This khillut was on the part of the British Government, and was presented through his highness as an extra compliment. No. 2 was to Sheik Wuzee-oo-zuman, Vakeel to his highness, equally good and handsome; 3, to Hakeem Sahadut Alli Khan; 4, Alli Buksh Khan; 5, Sirdar Bahadoor; 6, Futeh Mahomed Khan, &c. &c., but these six mentioned were his highness's most loyal and principal advisers and helpers, throughout all his trials, for it cannot be doubted that few men ever passed an ordeal of so trying a nature, and continued under such adverse circumstances so truly faithful. The Political Agent himself tied on the ornaments, "Sir Pesh," &c., of precious stones, for each of these above-mentioned officers; arms also were presented to them, consisting of guns, pistols, swords, &c. At seven o'clock a very grand dinner was provided in the same spot, and after a very magnificent display of fireworks, which was witnessed by all with great pleasure, his highness himself very good-naturedly sitting out on the top of his Tosshah Khanah to witness the same, all concluded about 11 p.m., when each one was presented with a silver harr, or necklace. Pawn and attar, as usual, having been taken round, all departed with one and the same opinion, that they had spent a very pleasant day, and that a most truly worthy subject of our most gracious Queen had, by his fellow-subjects, been most properly rewarded.—Delhi Gazette.

MEERUT, Jan. 17.—No sooner have we recovered from the bustle attending the Governor-general's visit here, and matters were assuming their old aspect, than we are visited by the Lieutenant-governor the Honourable G. F. Edmonstone, and a small host of assistants, escorted by three companies of the 42nd Royal Highlanders from Bareilly. Our worthy and enlightened Lieutenant-governor looks very well, although older and care worn; he is stouter than when I saw him at Kurnaul, a settlement officer, in 1841. The uncoventanted assistants are giving the residents of the station a ball and supper in the camp, and the officers of the station have invited the camp to share their hospitality at another ball to-night—so that our milliners, our tailors and shoemakers have no end of work for the occasions. The Highlanders are a fine looking set of men, and as Gogra Wallahs have created quite a sensation here. Look where you will you see groups of those jolly stalwart fellows in their Highland costume, the natives mounted on walls and horses with mouths open, staring with astonishment at them. A few of these gay cannie Scots here have their pibrochs, and are going their rounds knocking life into some of their quiet countrymen. An old Scot, who had not heard the thrilling sound of the pipes for twenty years or more, treated the performers so hospitably that they could not find the gate of the compound till the "cock did crow," and they had a fair share of the "barley bree." The camp breaks ground on Thursday morning for Roorkee, where it will be halted for twenty days, and eventually go into Rohilkund, whence his honour moves up to Nainee Tal for the summer.

KURNAUL, Jan. 12.—This morning the Governor-general and all his belongings (on the line of march) arrived at this station. The escort marched early in the morning from a camp ground with an unwritable name, nine miles distant, and got into Kurnaul about 8 o'clock. The road for two miles before the town was reached was crowded with the populace, who had turned out to see the Lord Sahib. There was also a strong muster of the military belonging to the Jheend Rajah, who were paraded in full puff by the way-side. There were cavalry, artillery, and infantry, and a grand cortège accompanied the Rajah himself to meet the big man. The officers and men of his suite were most gorgeously appalled, and in fitting garments, too. There was an air of comfort and ease about them, which contrasted wonderfully with the gingerbread display made by the Bhurtpore Rajah at Delhi. There was the usual amount of powder expended, and great fraternization, and Lord Canining was escorted by his trusty and well-beloved cousin and his troops to the end of his street. There is a great show off of canvass belonging to the native magnate, and if the quarters are as comfortable inside as the outside would lead us to imagine, the lines of his followers have fallen into pleasant places. As I write, the artillery are preparing to fire a salute of 11 guns, and the 35th are ready to receive the aforesaid Jheend Rajah, who comes in all his barbaric pomp (elephants and all!) to visit the Governor-general. There will be much fuss and bustle, and I suppose tomorrow, or next day, we shall be off a day's march nearer to Umballa, where we arrive on Monday, unless there is a change made in the arrangements. The weather is inexpressibly beautiful; rather cool in the morning; but as his lordship is none of the most early risers, we whip along very comfortably, and get from one camp ground to another with all the pleasure imaginable. Besides, there are so many sights to be seen on the road, and so many occurrences following in quick succession, that we "take no note of time but by its loss." One might as well be passing along the crowded streets of a populous city as on the road with the Governor-general. Whole hordes of coolies, all manner of mounted and dismounted civilians, syces, and all denominations mixed in heterogeneous confusion, are continually passing and re-passing. There are chair and table divisions, bed brigades, and column upon column of all the luxurious etceteras used by the great ones of the earth; dashing turn outs, blooming and buxom fair ones, too, are not wanting; and it is altogether as pleasant "an out," as the housemaids call it, as could be desired.—Delhi Gazette.

SAUGOR, Jan. 11.—H.M.'s 80th regt. arrived here this morning, and was played in by the band of the 43rd L.I. The company royal artillery at this place and the 43rd march on the 13th, the former for China, and the latter for Madras, it is believed, but I should not wonder at the corps being sent to China. A report came in last night that Runmust Singh has been caught by Capt. Cave, 16th Punjab inf., but I cannot answer to the truth of the report. I know that an express was received yesterday, announcing that Capt. Cave has made excellent arrangements, and it was expected that Runmust Singh would be caught immediately. Saugor is very dull at present; weather delightful. The 17th lancers are expected here early next month, en route to Secundrabad. The A troop Madras horse artillery will accompany them as far as Kamptee. I have never seen a finer troop or better-behaved men.

THE BUSSAHIR STATE.—The Punjab Government have communicated to the Lahore Chronicle a full account of the settlement of the affairs of the State of Bussahir by Mr. Barnes, commissioner of the Cis-Sutlej States, during last year. Bussahir is a hill State, several marches above Simla, paying the British Government a revenue of Rs. 15,000. On the arrival of Mr. Barnes in the country in March last, the people were in open insurrection, and the case was still further complicated by the Rajah's having joined the popular movement, and abandoned his own party. The commissioner's first step was to send away the Dowager Ranees, and the Rajah's illegitimate brother, Meean Futeh Singh, the two principal centres of disaffection. The mob, 2,000 or 3,000 in number, were then directed to range themselves under their different leaders, instead of remaining in a single body. Something like order being thus restored, the complaints of the "Doom" were heard; when it turned out that the origin of it all was the foolish meddling of the British authorities in 1851, who at that time actually placed the whole resources of the state in the hands of a native named Sham Lal, under the pretence that he was to make a permanent revenue settlement. From that time the revenue had been thoroughly disorganised, and the Rajah's treasury notoriously empty. Mr. Barnes restored the ancient revenue system, sent the Dowager Ranees into private life, and made some alterations in other details of the administration. The result of this was that on his return in October, the country had resumed its usual state of tranquillity.

DELHI, Jan. 18.—The new cantonment is the only interesting topic of news at this station. Ever since the recapture of Delhi it has been the object of the authorities to locate troops so as to exempt the city from a similar calamity to that which befel its poor residents in 1857; a catastrophe from the reflection of which the sufferers shrink up to this day. Last week there was a meeting held here composed chiefly of military officers, presided over by our gallant and experienced Brigadier commanding the station. I presume medical officers have been invited too for consultation, whose opinions are indispensable in this case. A rumour has it that the space required for the cantonment is to come from the Delhi gate up to the Paharee (an elevated spot), not less than a mile from the Cashmere gate. The new cantonment road will make its way through the very centre of the city from one extremity to the other by knocking down a part of the city-wall, and consequently giving birth to a new bridge over the ditch beyond it. The Sudder Bazaar, as solely intended for soldiers and commissariat supplies, is at present partly in and partly out of the city. This was caused merely by the uncertainty of the destiny of the military cantonments, and is much to the loss of the shopkeepers. It is anticipated that a bazaar will very shortly be established in the Durgunge or its immediate neighbourhood. The annual examination of the St. Stephen's College (hitherto a school) is over, and much to the credit of its principal, the Reverend Mr. Skelton; the number of boys attending the seminary is about 450. The course of the 1st class was, fourth book (reader), manual, history, grammar, geography, geometry, algebra, &c. The principal of the college is indefatigable in promoting the interest of the institution, and it is in contemplation to have it modelled after the style of the late Delhi College. Some European professors are shortly expected to take charge of the respective branches of education. The boys and their guardians entertain much hope of success from this. Certainly nobody will object to allow their children the benefit of an English education, which is well appreciated here. Weather cool, very cool after nightfall, and in the morning. The weather-wise people complain of want of rain, and calculate further mishaps for want of it.

ALAHABAD, Jan. 15.—The grand annual fair at the junction of the Jumna and Ganges commenced yesterday. It is a larger gathering than any that has taken place for the last five years. There was none the year after the mutiny, and a very poor one last year,—the concourse of people near the fort being probably considered dangerous. I believe something is collected by Government at this fair from the pilgrims. A great many missionaries are also assembled here, on the same occasion, to preach to the heathen devotees who come to bathe in the waters of the sacred river. Prayer meetings have been held both here and at Calcutta, as well as in England and America, during the past week, with special reference to the extension of Christianity among the heathen. The request to hold these meetings was circulated by the Loodiana Mission to all societies for the propagation of the Gospel, and I understand that it has very generally been responded to. Let us hope that increased success will attend the efforts of those who labour among the heathen. One obstacle at least is being gradually removed,—I mean the positive discouragement of missions on the part of Government, and the virtual prohibition to the employment of native Christians in the service of Government. It is stated that Hicknutoola was sentenced to transportation for life by the special commissioner.

SIR JOHN INGLIS has, the Lucknow Herald understands, been instructed to hunt up the rebels on the right bank of the Jumna, and will avail himself of the troops now in the vicinity of Calpee. H.M.'s 8th regt., en route to Saugor, will halt at that station, and join the 1st cav., Anderson's levy, Roberts's horse, and No. 12 light field battery.

PESHAWUR, Dec. 29.—Intelligence has just been received that Brigadier-general Chamberlain's force has had an engagement with the Wuzerees, in which some twenty of the latter fell, while only one man of his command was killed. It is supposed that a greater number of the marauders were slain; but as the tribe they belong to makes it a point to carry off its dead, it is impossible to state the exact number sent to their last account. Considerable loss was inflicted upon them by the destruction of crops, and a fair share of loot obtained, as a beginning, in the shape of flocks of sheep and goats. Rumour is current that the whole of the hill tribes are fraternising with the Wuzerees; it is at least true that they are in a very unsettled state, and, as if to lend the report some show of truth, another rumour will have it that H. M.'s 51st and 79th Highlanders from Meean Meer, and the 46th from Mooltan, may be expected up shortly. There is something brewing, any way; but what sort of a fire will spring out of all this smoke has yet to be seen. The surmise concerning Sir S. Cotton's departure hence is gaining so much ground that I hear it asserted Major General Windham will be here on the 2nd of January. There is evidently a screw loose somewhere between Sir Sydney and the powers that be. He either wants Peshawur to be a very large station, or be abandoned in toto, and there, no doubt, is where the shoe pinches in higher quarters. It was only the other day that the Executive Engineer's Department received orders to prepare estimates for the immediate completion of the unfinished barracks in the European Infantry lines, as though other corps, as I have already intimated, were to be brought into the station; but just as suddenly was this order countermanded. In the present threatening aspect of affairs the general is perhaps justified in insisting upon having at his command resources capable of meeting any emergency that could arise, either from a general uprising of the hill tribes, or the long-talked-of Russian invasion. But to pass from the Khyber to China. A telegram has been received to-day that the 33rd N.I.'s offer to proceed to China has been accepted, and that they will soon leave the station en route for the celestial seat of war. It is rumoured also, that, as an acknowledgment on the part of the authorities of this new mark of loyalty from this fine corps, its gallant colonel is to be raised to a brigadiership!—New Times.

LUCKNOW, Jan. 15.—The weather has undergone a considerable change within the last week or so, although the accounts from the interior are, that it is still very cold there. Colonel Bruce left this two days ago, to rejoin his new appointment. Major Taylor, the Assistant Chief of Police, officiates for him for the present, but the arrangement is only a temporary one. A successor has, I understand, been nominated, but his name has not transpired. He will be an officer who is not in the police ranks at the present moment; and this arrangement is likely to occasion some dissatisfaction among those who hold appointments already in the police force. The Right Hon. J. Wilson has just arrived in the station, and is putting up, I believe, with the Judicial Commissioner. I fancy his advent will be the forerunner of considerable pecuniary reductions in all departments, but more especially in the civil branch. I think the Chief Commissioner is about to return to Lucknow to meet the Financier, to discuss the main points in the reforms about to be introduced. Brigadier Holditch has left the station and proceeds to join the head-quarters of the 70th Regiment, of which he assumes command, and accompanies the regiment to China, as being one of the corps which has been selected for that expedition. Mummoo Khan's trial has been commenced only, but everything is of course kept very dark. Until the whole affair is completed we cannot expect to hear much, and the little we may hear we must be very cautious in receiving, since important facts are likely to be wilfully distorted. Everything is quiet on the frontier, and there seems no fear of our troops having any work to do again in that direction. Rumour has it again that the Nana is alive, and one or two other celebrities, who have been put down as having no existence, are still in the land of the living. Two officers of the commission have been appointed to define the boundary of our territory, and the land which we are to make over to the Jung. Really it is quite time this was done; we are constantly hearing something about it, but nothing definite. Rugobeer Sing, the murderer of Captain Harris, of the 1st light cavalry, has been sentenced to death, and he richly deserved the punishment. The evidence against him was very conclusive and decided.—Delhi Gazette.

BANKS AT LUCKNOW.—The Delhi Bank is to have a competitor in Oude. The Agra Savings Bank was to open a branch of its establishment in Lucknow from the 15th January.

MEMORIAL CHURCH AT CAWNPORE.—The sum of Rs. 22,134 has already been collected for the purpose of erecting a church at Cawnpore as a memorial of the massacre.

MR. WILSON AT LAHORE.—Mr. Wilson arrived at Lahore on Tuesday morning, the 3rd of January, and alighted at the Lieut.-governor's residence. During the forenoon he received several of the civil officers, and in the afternoon went over the Meean Meer cantonment, and thence to the Shaleemar gardens. The following day, Wednesday, a darbar was held in a tent in the Lieutenant-governor's compound, for the reception of the native chiefs, gentry, and townspeople of Lahore. The Lieutenant-governor and the civil officers were present. The chiefs were introduced one by one by the commissioner, Mr. Temple, who briefly mentioned the services and antecedents of each. Among those present were Raja Tej Sing, Raja Sahibdyal, Sirdar Shumshere Sing, Sindhunwala, the Nawabs of Mumdot and Mooltan, the relatives of the late Raja Deena Nath, Dewan Narain Sing of Ataree, and many others. When Sirdar Jowahir Sing, son of the famous Hurrie Sing Nulua, was introduced, the Lieutenant-governor took the opportunity of presenting him with a medal he had won during the Oude campaign. The chiefs having been introduced, the townspeople were then admitted. The headmen of each trade and profession being present, Mr. Wilson was particular in inquiring about the increased importation of European manufactures. There was scarcely a native present who had not on some article of clothing of European make. This visible fact must have done much to convince Mr. Wilson of the increase of the trade. They were then asked as to the relative merits of octroi and the licences. They expressed a marked preference for octroi. The Commissioner then, by Mr. Wilson's desire, explained to them the superior advantages of direct taxation. But they were clamorous in favour of a tax like octroi. Indeed, the manifestation of popular feeling was strong and remarkable. The same day Mr. Wilson, escorted by the Commissioner, Mr. Temple, proceeded to view the city of Lahore. A ressala of military police horse was drawn out to receive him opposite the Delhi Gate, under Captain MacAndrew. Mr. Wilson seemed much pleased with the appearance of the men. Then Mr. Wilson visited the Wuzerees and Padshahee mosques, the Huzoree Bagh, and Runjeet Sing's tomb. In the citadel he ascended to the top of the Summun Boorj, which commands the best view of Lahore. The old well and Baolee in the heart of the city were visited by torchlight. Outside the city Mr. Wilson went over the Agri-horticultural Society's Garden, Sooltan's Serace, and Ruttun Chund's tank. Mr. Wilson visited Raja Tej Sing at his residence in the city. The same night Mr. Wilson travelled to Umritsur, where he was received by the Commissioner, Mr. R. Cust, and the Deputy-commissioner, Mr. F. Cooper. A large meeting, on Thursday morning, of the leading merchants and traders of Umritsur, was held at Mr. Cust's office. The heads of each trade and profession were called up and questioned in turn. Mr. Wilson's questions were well conveyed by Messrs. Cust and Cooper to the people, and their answers interpreted. The shawl trade occupied much attention; much was said about the material, the manufactures, and the dyes. Many inquiries were made from the silk weavers, also from the Nurheegas, that remarkable class of dealers, also from the "Dulal," or broker class. The bankers were questioned about bills of exchange, paper currency, and the like. The conversation was very interesting altogether. On the afternoon of the same day, Mr. Wilson, accompanied by Mr. Cust and Mr. Cooper, visited the great Sikh Temple and Tank of Umritsur, and the adjacent garden. He also inspected the factory of one of the principal shawl merchants. Thence he visited the fortress of Govindgurh. That same night he started for Jullundur. He was to visit Gooroo Sadho Sing at Kurtarpore, and the Raja of Kupoorthulla. He intends to visit Lucknow on his way back to Calcutta, which latter place he was to reach by the end of January.—Lahore Chronicle.

THE WUZEREER EXPEDITION.—The force which left Kohat on the 16th Dec. are still on the banks of the "Koorum." The fight with the "Kabyl Kheyl" Wuzereers has had a most salutary effect. The tribes against which the expedition was undertaken now sue for mercy, and are using their best endeavours to capture the murderers, whose act has brought ruin on all connected with them. Every village of this tribe (with but one exception) has furnished its quota of men who have gone in pursuit of "Zungee" (the robber chief) and of the murderers. The one recalcitrant village, who, imagining itself beyond our reach, failed to join in the pursuit, has already been punished. On the 28th a detachment under the command of Major Rothney proceeded against it. In the skirmish which ensued, the enemy lost eight men killed. Our party captured 300 head of cattle on this occasion. Our loss was but one man wounded. The force is described as marching unmolested through hills hitherto believed to be unassailable. The seizure of some of the murderers is all that is required to make the matter complete, but even if this is not effected much good will have been done. Severe retribution for the murder of our countrymen has been exacted, and the Kohat frontier may be considered as secure for many years. It is a most remarkable and gratifying fact, that whilst the severest punishment is being inflicted on the offending class, the other tribes not only do not molest, but aid our force. This must be attributed to the excellent policy which has been steadily pursued on the frontier.—Lahore Chronicle.

MERINO SHEEP.—In 1854 the late Col. Holmes, commanding the 12th Irregular Cavalry, imported two rams and ten ewes from the Cape of Good Hope, and introduced them into Hazara. His object was two fold, viz. the improvement of the country breed, and the introduction of the Merino into India. There are now about forty-four sheep, male and female, but as yet no mixed breed has been produced, inasmuch as Colonel Holmes, to whom the sheep belonged, objected to their being put with others of the country until the flock should have been considerably increased. Colonel Holmes was murdered by his mutinous regiment in 1857, and the sheep have since been maintained at the cost of Government. A few rams have been sent to Kagan, which is the most favourable part of Hazara for the breeding of sheep, and it is hoped that the wool produced from the mixed breed will be much valued. Puttoo has already been prepared at Kagan from the Merino mixed with the wool of the country, and the stuff produced is described as much superior to anything made from the produce of the country sheep alone. The pure Merino wool itself is not much valued. It is too coarse for the fabrication of shawls, and too delicate for the rude implements of the people of Kagan.

THE BOMBAY SPINNING AND WEAVING COMPANY have declared a dividend of Rs. 600 per share for the half-year ending 31st Dec. last.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE BIDEN FUND.—The Biden Testimonial Fund is to be appropriated to the construction of a building, or the endowment of an institution, to be designated "The Biden Home for Sailors," the erection of a monument over Captain Biden's grave, and a memorial tablet in St. George's Cathedral, and also the payment of the expenses of the funeral, which, attended as it was by members of every class in society, was a public demonstration of the esteem and affection in which Captain Biden was held. The subscriptions amount to Rs. 4,291.

THE VENERABLE ARCHDEACON SHORTLAND has resigned the Service, and we presume that as a matter of course he will vacate the Archdeaconry, in which no doubt Mr. Dealtry will be duly confirmed. By Mr. Shortland's retirement the Rev. F. G. Lugard becomes Junior Presidency Chaplain, and the Rev. John Gorton, Assistant Chaplain of the season of 1840, will be promoted to Chaplain.

THE ROYAL LADIES OF TANJORE have positively declined to accept the terms offered them by the Government, and unless the terms be much better than general rumour represents them to be, no reasonable person can be surprised to hear of the refusal. The governor was to have been in Tanjore on the 12th January, and was only to have remained one day. Mr. Norton was on the spot to fortify his clients against "the voice of the charmer."

SIR CHARLES TREVELYAN'S PROGRESS.—An account of our governor's visit to Pondicherry is given by the Moniteur Officiel. His Excellency arrived there on Saturday week, and was received by the Governor of the French settlements under the peristyle of Government House, with the utmost cordiality. Sir C. Trevelyan was received with a salute of 19 guns on entering the town, and the troops presented arms when he arrived before Government House; a guard of honour was likewise placed at his disposal. After the French officials had been presented to our Governor, he proceeded to visit the various establishments and public buildings of Pondicherry; in doing which his Excellency appears to have charmed every one by the minute attention with which he examined everything he inspected, and by the affability of his demeanour. At the hospital, he expressed to the sisters of charity his respectful admiration of their conduct in so generously consecrating their existence to the relief of the unfortunate. At the Colonial College his Excellency exhorted the pupils to attend to their studies, to learn Tamil and English, and to present themselves at the uncovenanted service examination at Madras, where it would "ravish" him with joy to be of use to them. In the evening there was a dinner, at the commencement of which M. D'Ubraye proposed the health of her Majesty and Prince Albert. Sir Charles Trevelyan responded by proposing the toast of the Emperor and Empress, and in the course of his remarks expressed his acknowledgments for the courteous reception he had experienced, his admiration of the many useful institutions with which Pondicherry was filled, and of the support afforded them by Government; and in conclusion said that it was his great desire that the two colonies, like the two mother countries, should rival each other only in civilisation and the happiness of their subjects; and he did not doubt that the great man who so skilfully ruled the destinies of France desired to cement still closer the alliance between the two countries; a proof of which feeling was to be seen in the union, for a common cause, of the French and English troops in China. While these toasts were being drunk, a salute of twenty-one guns was fired, and God save the Queen and Rule Britannia were played by the band. Later in the evening there was a ball, when the exterior of Government House was illuminated in the most brilliant manner. Sir Charles left for Cuddalore the same evening.—Athenæum.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HARVEST OPERATIONS IN UPPER SCIND.—The harvest operations in Upper Scind are nearly over, and quantities of grain of all sorts are ready. A large kaffila arrived at Shikarpoor on the 8th Dec., consisting chiefly of fruits. The weather is very pleasant, though doubtless the sudden changes are much felt by the poorer classes, and consequently, fevers, colds, and coughs are its accompaniments. The cultivators in these parts say they have not had such good crops for years, and they are, therefore, in high spirits. The river continues encroaching on the Rookun Bund and lands adjacent. In Mehur, about 6,000 beegahs have been sown for the rubbee season during the week. In the Larkana districts the kurreef harvest has been all gathered in, and in most places the grain has been cleaned. Few sales have as yet been effected, as the grain-dealers from the south had not then made their appearance. Since the last change of the moon the weather has become bitterly cold, and frosts prevail nightly. From Sukkur we have similar reports about the weather, the thermometer there having fallen to freezing point. The late fall of rain has been productive of much good to the rubbee cultivation, without injuring the grain already stored. The sugar-cane promises a good crop this season. A fall in the price of jowaree is expected, owing to the plentiful out-turn of the past harvest; the market is, however, dull. The Roree deputy collector furnishes us with a "chapter of accidents," including the death of a child 18 months old, by falling on some fire; the drowning of another child, 2 years old, by falling into a vat of dye; the suicide of an old woman, aged 80 years, who hanged herself owing to the supposed neglect of daughters; the wounding of a native in five different parts of the body by two robbers who have managed to effect their escape; the burning of three houses; and the escape of a prisoner owing to the negligence of the guard placed over him. To turn to another subject of no less interesting a nature, we learn that the average range of temperature in the open air at day-break was 28 deg., and in a single poled tent at noon 78 deg. ! thus subjecting the human frame to all the mutations and ills incident to a daily difference of no less than 50 deg. The consequence of this great range is already visible in the prostration of nearly all the officials of Meerpoore who are laid up with fever. The cattle are likewise suffering considerably, and many of them dying daily.—Kossid, Dec. 23.

THE LATE MR. ATKINSON.—We (Bombay Times) much regret having to announce that Mr. H. Atkinson, late first assistant master attendant, died at his residence at Colaba on the morning of Jan. 24, at 4 o'clock, from fever. Mr. Atkinson entered the late Company's marine in 1817, and served through the first Burmah war. He was chief officer of the Palinurus in 1827, and commanded her in 1828. In the following year he commanded the Thetis, and in 1830 the Nautilus. Transferred in 1831 to the master attendant's department, he gradually rose to the post of first assistant master attendant, from which office he only retired a few months ago. He had been ailing more or less from that time, but no danger was apprehended until Monday morning. It had been arranged, indeed, that he should take a cruise, on which he would have started on Monday afternoon but for the unfavourable change we have mentioned. From that time he gradually sank, in spite of the utmost medical skill. On the 9th Jan. a G.G.O. notified that Mr. Atkinson was permitted "to retire with a good service pension of Rs. 300 per mensem, from the date on which he ceased to hold office in the master attendant's department." In squadron orders, Commodore Wellesley made the following generous reference to Mr. Atkinson's services. "In publishing the subjoined G. G. O. notifying that Mr. H. Atkinson, late 1st assistant master attendant has been permitted to retire from the service, the Commander-in-Chief cannot omit alluding to the very valuable services which this officer has rendered in the Naval department during a period of upwards of forty years. The high testimonials which he bears from every officer under whom he has served are a lasting record of the fidelity and zeal with which he has invariably fulfilled his duty, and he retires on a pension higher than that to which he is entitled, but which has been granted in consideration of his long and excellent service." It is only to be regretted that this acknowledgment was so long delayed. In private life Mr. Atkinson was as highly esteemed as in public, and we cannot think he has left a single enemy behind him. His remains were interred at Colaba last evening, in the presence of a large concourse of members of the service to which he had been so long attached, as well as of his more immediate friends, by whom he was held in unfeigned esteem and respect.

NAVAL COURT-MARTIAL.—Mr. Hewett, the purser of the Auckland, I.N., which is now stationed at Aden, was tried by a court-martial on the 12th Jan. for disobeying the order of his commanding officer, in refusing to go under arrest when ordered to do so by Captain Stephens, saying, "I will bear no confinement," or words to that effect; and for declaring, when the order was repeated, that he would shed his blood on the quarter-deck before he would go into confinement. The court, over which Commander Cruttenden presided, after hearing Mr. Hewett's defence, found that the charges were proved, and sentenced him to two months' suspension from rank and pay, and afterwards to be placed at the bottom of the list of pursers. The sentence is a most severe one, and, as we believe, not justified by the evidence. Captain Stevens is one of the old-school of commanding officers, which, as the mutiny of the Princes Royal in England lately showed, is by no means extinct yet. While at Jeddah, in the Red Sea, with the thermometer ranging from 90 deg. to 112 deg., he took it into his head to worry his officers by prohibiting them from bathing, except off the bowsprit or from a boat astern of the ship, and forbade them to appear on the quarter deck unless they were in uniform. Mr. Hewett, thinking this order was only directed against the younger officers, and feeling that it would be insulting to him to be compelled to go forward amongst the men to bathe, appeared one morning on deck in bathing costume. He was rudely told to go below and dress, which he did; and, when he came on deck again, he was asked by the captain if he wanted any explanation of the order. Mr. Hewett replied that he did not, but that he had a grievance to make known; and he requested the captain to pay some respect to his commission, and hear him. This only drew forth a sneer from the captain, who, on Mr. Hewett's going on to complain of the order about bathing, peremptorily bid him be silent several times, and at last said the purser must consider himself under arrest. Mr. Hewett thereupon said he was willing to go under arrest, but he could not, in that temperature, bear any confinement. Words to this effect were bandied about between them several times; and at last Captain Stephens spoke of "using other means" if his order were not obeyed in a quarter of an hour. Mr. Hewett turned away, and, no doubt, irritated by what had passed, muttered to himself some words, of which his explanation is, that he said he would shed his blood for his commission rather than have it insulted. These words were not distinctly heard; yet it is on them that the heaviest charge against Mr. Hewett is founded.

LORD ELPHINSTONE has engaged two Maltese workers in plaster of Paris, who arrived recently in Bombay, to take a cast of the statue of the late Hon. Mountstuart Elphinstone in the Town Hall.

TRADE OF KURRACHEE.—From the Kurrachee shipping registers for December we learn that 13 square-rigged vessels and 318 country craft arrived at port, and that in the same period 4 square-rigged vessels and 320 country craft took their departure.

H. M.'s 14th DRAGOONS.—An interesting ceremony took place at Kirkee on Tuesday, the 17th Jan., in the presentation, by the officers of H. M.'s 14th Light Dragoons, of a very handsome silver tea service, on a massive silver salver, the manufacture of one of the principal London silversmiths, to our worthy and esteemed fellow-townsmen Mr. James Hunt, who for a period of thirteen years was a member of that distinguished corps. The ceremony took place in the officers' mess room of the 14th Dragoons, and the presentation was made in the presence of the officers of the corps by their gallant commander, Lieut. Colonel Scudamore, who thus addressed Mr. Hunt on the interesting occasion:—"Mr. Hunt,—In presenting to you this testimonial, I need say but little; the inscription thereon, which I will read, being sufficient. 'Presented by the Officers of the 14th (King's) Light Dragoons to Sergeant-major Hunt, in testimony of his zealous and faithful services as Mess Sergeant during a period of eleven years.' And I hope this may prove to the rising generation in the regiment, what honesty, fidelity, and sobriety, will always merit. Having left the regiment, I am confident you have the good wishes of the officers of the 14th for your future welfare and success."

Mr. MICHAEL O'MEALY, uncoovenanted assistant in the political department of the Secretariate, has been awarded a gratuity of Rs. 1,500 by the Supreme Government for the aid he afforded Government during the rebellion.

THE ABOLITION OF BRIGADE COMMAND has been extended to Bombay. Kurrachee, Mhow, Hyderabad, Malligaum, and Baroda are those abolished. The arrangement is to have effect from the 1st of February, or from the date of the brigadiers quitting the station, if earlier. The junior brigadiers are those who are to return to regimental duty, no matter whether they happen to be incumbents of the commands to be abolished or not.

A PRESENT TO THE QUEEN.—We are informed that Messrs. Watson and Co. have received an order from Sir Cursetjee Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, Baronet, to prepare a splendid court robe, which is intended as a present for her Majesty. The robe is to be of crimson colour, interlaced with gold, and to be made of Indian material, probably from Cashmere.

CELEBRATION OF MARRIAGES.—A bill has been brought into the Legislative Council, enabling all ordained Ministers of the Church of Scotland to celebrate marriages in India. Heretofore the old regulation of the East India Company, which restricted this right to the Company's chaplains, has been in force; but the necessity for abolishing this distinction was made apparent by the discovery of the awkward fact that, while it was in force, chaplains attached to Highland regiments serving in India could not legally perform the marriage ceremony for the soldiers.

MAJOR-GENERAL SIR HUGH ROSE, G.C.B., has applied for leave of absence to England for the period of six months, on private affairs, and he will be succeeded in the command of the Poona Division of the army pro tem. by Brigadier Hale. Lieut.-colonel J. D. Stewart is to command the Poona Brigade and station on the departure of Colonel Sutton to China.

A NEW HOSPITAL FOR EUROPEANS.—Government intend to construct a new European General Hospital at Lower Colaba; and the plans and estimates have already been sent in. The entire cost, it is said, has been set down at four lakhs of rupees. The building will extend from the north side of Mrs. Hough's house—this property itself has been valued at one lakh and seventy thousand rupees—up to the ground now occupied by the Government timber; a portion of the sea-ground to the west being reclaimed for the purpose. The present European General Hospital in the Fort is either to be sold or otherwise disposed of. We are also informed that the gun-carriage manufactory at Lower Colaba is to be removed to Poona; and that the only difficulty raised is, the expense of forwarding the large quantity of coal required for the steam-engine to that station.

BANK OF BOMBAY.—The directors of the bank of Bombay, at each of their weekly meetings on the 12th and 19th January, raised the rate of discount 1 per cent. all round, making it now 7 per cent. on Government, and 9 per cent. on commercial paper. The increasing tightness of the money market is also marked by the usual sign of a fall in the value of all Government securities.

THE SHIP "BUSSORAH MERCHANT," of 531 tons, the property of Messrs. Duncan Dunbar and Sons, of London, has been sold by public auction at the rooms of Messrs. Crawford and Co. to the highest bidder, Hajee Mahomed Seedick, a Mahomedan merchant, for the sum of Rs. 24,000.

COLONEL GREEN, the adjutant-general of the Bombay army, goes home positively in March. He is to be succeeded by Major Stock, the present acting town-major. The appointment was at first offered to Colonel Glassey of the artillery; but that officer declined it upon perfectly legitimate grounds.

PRESBYTERIAN SERVICES IN ENGLISH CHURCHES.—A question having been raised by the Bombay Government on the subject of the performance of Presbyterian service in churches consecrated to the use of the Church of England, it was referred to the metropolitan, who replied that although he had never issued any prohibition of the performance of the Presbyterian service in a duly consecrated English church, his impression was that he had no power legally to authorise it. He had, however, consulted the Advocate-general at Calcutta, as to the legal effect of consecration, and his opinion was, that though it enabled the bishop to forbid the performance of such service, it did not prevent him from sanctioning it if he thought proper. The metropolitan states, that he would be very sorry to prevent the Presbyterian troops from enjoying the benefit of a service conducted with decorum and comfort to themselves, and this probably they could not have in all stations without the use of our churches, until separate churches are provided for them. It is, however, to be distinctly understood that a consecrated church is appropriated to the use of the Church of England, and that it is in the care and custody of the English chaplain, who must always have the right of choosing the hours for the performance of service for the English troops and other members of our church. These rights being secured, the metropolitan will make no objection, if Government wish to use a consecrated church for the performance of Presbyterian service at times of the day when it is not wanted by the English chaplain. At the same time he suggests to Government that this arrangement must involve a certain amount of inconvenience. In the hot months, sunrise and sunset are the only hours when troops can be marched to church, and this cannot but cause difficulty to the Presbyterian chaplains and soldiers. The bishop thinks, therefore, that the only satisfactory solution of the question will be to build separately Scotch churches in those stations where it is intended to place Presbyterian chaplains, as is done for the Roman Catholics. But he wishes it to be understood, that he makes no ecclesiastical objection to the performance of Presbyterian service in a consecrated church on the conditions above specified, and when it is expressly desired by Government.—Madras Times.

DEATHS ON INDIAN RAILWAYS.—It appears from a return lately published by Government on Indian Railway matters in 1858, that at the close of that year there were 473 miles open to traffic, over which were conveyed 2,423,508 passengers. During the year, there were 34 persons killed, and 29 wounded, by accident. Most of the sufferers, however, were people connected with the railways, or trespassers on the lines. One or two passengers were killed and seven injured. On the Bombay Railway, 136 miles long, out of nearly one million travellers, in the year 1858, Major Greathed's report states that none were killed, and only one injured. Seven railway servants killed, and eleven injured themselves; and two were injured by causes which they could not control. One trespasser was killed.

weights, especially 3½ lbs., on the spot, are worth 2 to 3s. more per piece than at the date of last mail. Cambrics and Jaconets are inquired for at former prices. Mulls are lower, and dull of sale. In Bleached Goods several transactions have taken place; Shirtings, Madapollams, and Jaconets of "low" to "medium" quality may all be noted in some request. In Dyed Goods Turkey Red Cambrics are very heavy of sale. Mulls of good colour are in demand; 40 to 45 inches are 1 to 3 annas higher. Dyed Jaconets are inquired for at 4 to 5 annas advance. Metals.—Copper is in good demand, especially Sheathing. Braziers, and Bottoms, which, being scarce, have obtained a slight advance in price; while Tiles and Bolt are dull. Brass Sheathing is dull, and lower in price. English Bar Iron has slightly advanced. Other descriptions of Iron are quiet, and unaltered in value. Lead has declined. Spelter is dull and lower. Tin Plates and Quicksilver are in good inquiry.

EXPORTS (Bombay, Jan. 25).—Cotton.—The continued unfavourable advices from both England and China have not been without their effect on our Cotton market. Prices have given way, but not sufficiently to bring European purchasers into the market. Most of the shipments that are now going forward are on native account, and although freights have considerably advanced since our last report, it has not had any material effect on the prices of cotton. The receipts from the interior continue on a fair scale, and the stocks estimated on Saturday evening, the 21st instant, are stated to be nearly 20,000 candies, or 40,000 screwed bales. The increasing stringency of the money market may have some influence on prices, and with the prospect of an early new crop it is hardly to be supposed ruling rates can long be maintained. It is generally reported that a large crop will be again realised this year, and contracts among the natives are being made deliverable in April next at Rs. 133 to 133½ per candy for fair Dholera.

CEYLON.

COLOMBO, Jan. 16.—During the first fortnight of the year the usual dry, dusty January weather has been varied by a series of very heavy showers of rain, with some thunder. Four vessels have sailed for London, one for Liverpool and one for Amsterdam, taking away in the aggregate 28,009 cwt. plantation coffee, and 6,275 native, together 34,284. Our total exports since 1st October, 1859, are thus brought up to 102,611 plantation, 50,750 native, total 153,361. This figure is slightly in advance of that for the corresponding period last year, while cinnamon and coconut oil are considerably in advance.

The great topic of discussion continues to be the labour question, which has assumed a very critical phase indeed. The Manchester, notwithstanding the report of the Calcutta surveyors, has turned out a very bad bargain, and is to be sold for what she may fetch. Offended, too, at the censorial tone of a letter from the Governor, the two un-official members of the Immigration Board have resigned, and we suspect it will be very difficult to get other gentlemen connected with the mercantile and planting interests of the island to act in so thankless an office—obnoxious as the holders are to censure from Government, and criticism of the severest kind from some of those whose interests they represent and attempt to the best of their ability to subvert. Should the Governor not succeed in persuading any merchants or planters to act, the scheme will have to be worked by Government officers.

Next to the labour question, the railway has continued to excite the anxieties of the colony. Mr. Goodfellow, the agent of Messrs. Peto and Brassey, who has been in the colony for some time, goes home by this mail, and we suppose the views of the company will be very much guided by the report he may make and the offer which may proceed from his employers.

The vacancy on the bench of the Supreme Court has been filled up by the appointment of Mr. Lawson as Acting Junior Puisne Justice, Mr. Morgan taking the post of Senior Justice as a matter of course. Mr. Stewart, the Deputy Queen's Advocate, while continuing to perform the duties of his own office, acts also as district Judge of Colombo. This arrangement secures to Mr. Stewart emoluments superior to those he would enjoy had he received the acting appointment in the Supreme Court.

Our readers will not be sorry to learn that the strife and litigation which have so long disturbed those connected with St. Thomas's College, and through them the community, are likely soon to terminate. Mr. Baly, it appears, is to give up possession on the 1st of February, the compensation to which he will be entitled being left to arbitration.

Mr. Hay Cameron's presence in our Island ought not to escape notice. A third of a century has nearly passed away since this gentleman first arrived in Ceylon as one of the commissioners of inquiry. On him devolved the task of laying down the principles of a liberal charter of justice for the Island, and it must be gratifying to him now to know that, with few exceptions, it has been at length admitted, that the more we go back to the principles of his scheme the better for the administration of justice. Mr. Cameron is the owner of extensive landed property in the colony.

It is not often that the local journals notice that marriages are "on the tapis," but the name of Colonel Maude, of the Royal Artillery, is of historical interest as one of the heroes of Havelock's advance on Lucknow, when Colonel (then Captain) Maude's guns "electrified" the rebels under Nana Sahib. We may, therefore, step out of the usual course to congratulate the gallant officer on his approaching union with the amiable daughter of Acting Chief Justice Sterling.

There is a strike amongst the butchers at Colombo, in consequence of the operation of the new ordinance restricting the slaughter of cattle, chiefly with reference to sanitary considerations. It requires no extraordinary gift of vaticination to say that the butchers must speedily give in.—Ceylon Overland Observer.

BURMAH.

THOMAS ANQUENTIL, "an old soldier and man of letters," as he styles himself, has written a letter to the Rangoon Times of the 24th December, in which he makes some strange statements. He was, it seems, the leader of the party of artisans brought over from France by the so-called General D'Orgoni, for the King of Burmah. M. Anquentil states that he and his party were sold to the King by D'Orgoni, and that overtures to organise a military establishment were proposed to and rejected by him. This conduct so enraged D'Orgoni that Anquentil was compelled to go about armed to escape seizure and confinement in a dungeon. One of the "artisans" was confined in a dungeon for seventeen days, and Madame Anquentil was nearly assassinated. When Colonel Phayre reached Mandalay, the writer of the letter placed himself under his protection, and was by him forwarded to Rangoon, where he received the kindest treatment. How much of the foregoing is true we of course cannot pretend to say.

The Supreme Government, we learn from the Rangoon Times, have sanctioned the introduction into Pegu of Major Spark's code of civil procedure, which is an adaptation of the recently-passed civil code to the requirements of that province. The Supreme Government observe that "very great credit is due" to Major Sparks for his compilation, which is suited to a province "in the state of civilization that Pegu has reached," and have conveyed their thanks to him. In the other non-regulation provinces the code is to be adhered to as far as possible, with a view to its eventual adoption. This course is in accordance with the views expressed by the authorities of the Punjab, Oude, Pegu, and Mysore; from Nagpore there was, as usual, no report from Mr. Commissioner Plowden.

CAPTAIN KEIGHTLY has again been before the Rangoon District Court. He presented a petition, stating that his arrest and imprisonment were illegal as his home was at Calcutta, and that he was entitled to return there from the military court which had been held upon him, instead of which he was arrested on civil process. Major Sparks dismissed the petition with costs, being of opinion that, as petitioner had gone to Calcutta without leave, he could not be allowed to escape from the jurisdiction of the court in that way.

VISIT TO THE KING.—The recent semi-official visit to the Court of Mandalay, made by the Commissioner of Pegu and Agent to the Governor General, is invested with several interesting circumstances which deserve a place in our journal. On the way up the river, within the territories of the King of Burmah, every attention and consideration was shown by the various provincial Burmese officials to Colonel Phayre and suite. The most ample preparations were made to render his ascent up to the capital in every respect pleasant and friendly. He visited the celebrated earth oil wells of this kingdom, tarried a day or two at Paghan examining the memorials of the past history of Burmah, and his expected arrival was anticipated by the King and Court with the utmost cordiality and good will. A large mansion, for it cannot be called a simple house, was erected for his accommodation on the bank of the river, in a beautiful grove, and distant about four miles from the palace. A number of elephants and ponies were placed at his service. Every facility was afforded him to visit any object of interest he pleased. Supplies of provisions were forwarded daily from the royal household for his use and that of his retinue. Music and dancing, and theatrical exhibitions, according to national custom, passed in one noisy round every day before his residence. Colonel Phayre had four interviews with the King, and two with the Prince Royal, or heir apparent to the throne. The Prince is now said to be favourable to the construction of electric telegraphs and railroads within the kingdom. He takes apparently a leading part in promoting all useful enterprises and public works conducted throughout the country. His feelings towards the English are changing. He is far more friendly in his sentiments than he was supposed to be two or three years since. There is, strictly speaking, no war party now in existence at the capital. The resolute peace policy of the King has quenched every ember of strife. His Majesty was especially gratified in having an opportunity afforded him of receiving and conversing with Colonel Phayre in a free and friendly manner. He would have no interpreter to mark the pleasures of the conversation between them. He spoke face to face, and from heart to heart. Of all the Asiatic sovereigns now living, the present King of Burmah is perhaps the most liberal, the most enlightened, and the most humane. With rare tact and industry, which does him great credit, he acquires from day to day a clear and connected account of all the great transactions and politics of other nations. He converses like a philosopher, a statesman, and a philanthropist. He is utterly devoid of all pride, hypocrisy, and artful cunning, asking Colonel Phayre his age, who replied to the question, when the King observed that his own age was 48. Politics, science, and theology were discussed with considerable spirit, and in the most familiar way, his Majesty calling the commissioner, in the most good-natured manner, brother Phayre. The King remarked that the English were very fond of fighting, and pleasantly retorted, that your mothers have great trouble in raising you all till you are 25 and 30 years of age. You then go and fight, and get shot in battle. What good does that bring? When you were overwhelmed with difficulties in Bengal, could I not have troubled you? I prefer peace, observed his Majesty. You may still find out that there are some true friends among us Burmans. With the Chinese question and the disaster that occurred to the British squadron at the mouth of the Peiho his Majesty seems well acquainted. Some very sensible observations were made by the King relative to the mode of settling frontier disputes, which so frequently happen among the little men in authority, on both sides of the boundary. He suggested that the two functionaries should meet, either at Menhla or Thayet, talk over difficulties whatever they may chance to be, and adopt measures to rectify them between themselves. Anything very serious occurring on the frontier could be referred for the consideration and decision of higher authority. If these wishes of his Majesty are not eminently friendly and statesmanlike, it is not possible to adduce sentiments conveying stronger proof of these desirable qualities. Not one word was uttered relative to restoring to his Majesty his lost province of Pegu. He doubtless considers that matter as finally settled. On taking leave of the King the customary presents were tendered to Colonel Phayre and suite, in return for the gifts which were sent to his Majesty by the British Government. The gold cups, ruby rings, lacquered oaks and silks were rightly understood by the Burmese monarch as not being personal presents to the individuals, but were accepted in the name and on behalf of the Government of India. If they could be received as personal gifts, an intimation was made that they would be a little more valuable. These Burmese presents will be forwarded by an early opportunity to Calcutta, to be sold there by public auction for the benefit of the Indian Government.—Madras Times, Dec. 17.

CENTRAL ASIA.

Nov. 24.—An Urzee from Mahomed Ameen Khan was received, stating that Sirdar Mahomed Kooloo Khan, son of the late Sirdar Rehmdil Khan, with his mother and the daughter of Shah Kamran of Heerat, had arrived in Candahar from Persia, and that Hyder Khan, another son of the late Sirdar Rehmdil Khan, had remained with his mother at Mushed, and having robbed 4,000 Boodkees from his father's treasury and taken 34 of the best horses, had proceeded to Teheran. His mother has written to the King of Teheran, informing him that her son has robbed her of the above sum and horses, and proceeded to Teheran. —Nov. 25.—Mahomed Ishak and Mahomed Uzeez, sons of Sirdar Mahomed Azum Khan, asked leave from the Ameer to proceed to Koondooz to join their father. The Ameer embraced them and granted leave. The two Resallas of Mahomed Azum Khan, who were ordered to remain at the fort of Kasee till further instructions, were ordered to proceed with these youths. —Nov. 26.—Nazir Naem, Peerdil Khan, and Mirza Mahomed Hossein Khan went out to meet and bring into the city Sirdar Mahomed Shereef Khan, who went straight to his house without paying his respects to the Ameer. Sirdar Nizamoodowla represented that he had brought a man to send to Shah Doolah Khan. The Ameer ordered Moostofee Aynool Russak to write a letter to Shah Doolah Khan, requesting him to return to the city, when his pay would be increased to Rs. 35,000 and the arrears paid up. —Nov. 27.—The Ameer ordered his son Wullee Mahomed Khan to proceed to Tugab immediately, as the time of collections was passing away. Wullee Mahomed Khan took all his force and two guns and encamped at Seasung. The Ameer then despatched 100 men from the late Wuzeer Mahomed Ukkur Khan's regiment, and 100 sowars to reinforce his force. —Nov. 28.—Mahomed Shereef Khan appointed a man to watch and inform him when the Ameer goes to his Haremsarae. At ten at night the Ameer went to his zenana, and the man informed Mahomed Shereef Khan of the same, who immediately went to see the Ameer. On seeing him, the Ameer became enraged, and swore that he did not wish to see his face again. The Sirdar begged forgiveness, but the Ameer would not hear him, and ordered him to go away from his presence. —Nov. 29.—News from Koondooz is to the effect that the son of Nazir Dillawur and some Kohistanee sowars were proceeding from Khanabad towards the fort of Khoost, and while encamped in a garden under the foot of the hills, they were attacked by two hundred sowars of the Oosbeck tribe, and their horses taken away from them. —Nov. 30.—The Ameer sent for the Bokhara agent and Akhoonzada Sirajooddeen and granted a valuable khillut to the latter, and permitted him to proceed to his country with the following presents for the King of Bokhara:—Two pieces of bosteen, two of mulmul, one bunarsee, two pieces of soznee, two of puttuo, two of lungees, one taka of shawls, one of Kashmeer ubras, two of kumruk, one of jalee, one of long-cloth, one of nainsook, and one of embroidered muslin. He has also deputed Sirajooddeen as his agent to the King of Bokhara.

Dec. 1.—Sirdar Gholam Mahomed Khan, son of the late Sirdar Rehmdil Khan, obtained leave to proceed to Candahar for the purpose of taking possession of the treasure and property which his mother and brother have brought away with them from the estates of his deceased father. —Dec. 3.—An urzee from Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan states, that the King of Bokhara has arrived at Koorshee with a force of 12,000 men, but it is not known whether he will proceed to Khokund or Balk. —Dec. 4.—Mirza Ahd Khan represented to the Ameer that some pecuniary aid should be sent to Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan for distribution to his troops. The Ameer replied that as he does not take anything from the revenue of Turkistan, he will not give any money to the Sirdar. The Mirza rejoined that when Sirdar Gholam Hyder Khan was sent to Kandahar, three lakhs of rupees were given him, then why should not Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan receive anything? The Ameer said that he would not give one rupee. The Mirza again urged that formerly the Sirdar had five thousand troops under him, now he has fifteen thousand in opposition to the King of Bokhara; if no aid were given him, he would not be able to do anything. The Ameer then said that he would send him thirty thousand rupees. The Mirza said that nothing short of a lakh would do for him. —Dec. 5.—News from Turkistan is to the effect that Sirdar Mahomed Afzul Khan has borrowed 12,000 rupees from Ameenoddowla Khan, son of Soojahoddowla Khan, and sent six thousand to Ahd Khan, and the other six to Mahomed Usleem Khan, for expenses. The Sirdar himself has come to Tashkirghan and will proceed to Koondooz. —Dec. 6.—The Ameer sent for Sirdar Shere Ally Khan and Mahomed Usman Khan, and requested them to go and persuade Sirdar Mahomed Shereef Khan to proceed with his troops and guns to Balkh, as the King of Bokhara has arrived at Koorshee, and to keep open the road to Jellalabad, whither the Ameer will shortly proceed. The Ameer then sent for the Kazee of Bala Hissar and asked for a propitious day for him to proceed to Jellalabad. The Kazee said that the 7th of the month will be a good day. The Ameer then ordered the large gun to be prepared and sent out to Seasung. —Dec. 7.—The mother of the late Wuzeer Mahomed Ukkur Khan asked permission to proceed to Jellalabad to winter there. The Ameer granted her permission. The Ameer requested Sirdar Shere Ally Khan to order General Firamirz to proceed with the Regiment of the late Wuzeer and twelve guns to Seasung and await there the arrival of Mahomed Ally Khan, who will shortly arrive there from Ghuznee. He then sent a man to the mother of the Wuzeer to tell her to wait at Seasung till the arrival of her grandson and the general, and when joined with them to proceed to Jellalabad. —Dec. 8.—This day Sirdar Mahomed Ally Khan, son of Sirdar Shere Ally Khan, arrived from Ghuznee with the whole of his artillery and three regiments of foot, and two Resallas of horse. He was ordered to send all his troops to Seasung and himself to remain a few days in the city. He is to accompany the mother of the late Wuzeer Mahomed Ukkur Khan to Jellalabad. —Dec. 9.—Sirdars Shere Ally Khan, Sultan Mahomed Khan, and Mahomed Usman Khan, represented that they have in vain persuaded Sirdar Mahomed Shereef Khan to proceed to Balkh, but he says that he will not go there. They therefore begged that he may be sent to Candahar. The Ameer after some hesitation consented to their representations, and ordered him to proceed to Candahar and act under the orders of his brother Sirdar Mahomed Ameen Khan, to whom a letter has been sent, requesting him to make over the government of Goorshuk in Furrah to Mahomed Shereef Khan. The Ameer has appointed Sirdar Mahomed Hussan to the rule of Cabul during his absence. —Dec. 10.—The Ameer left Cabul for Jellalabad under a salute, and sent a man to the mother of the late Wuzeer Mahomed Ukkur Khan, requesting her to march from Seasung for Jellalabad. —Dec. 11.—Sirdar Shere Ally Khan brought Sirdar Mahomed Shereef Khan before the Ameer, who bestowed a khillut on him and ordered him to proceed to Candahar with his brother, Saifoollah Khan. —Dec. 12.—An Urzee from Sirdar Mahomed Hussan Khan stated that a man, Meer Huzara, had raised an insurrection, and had killed Alleajah Gholam Sudeek Khan, with five other men, who were sent to subjugate him. That on hearing this he himself (Sirdar Mahomed Hussan Khan) surprised him in his fort, and killed him, together with some of his men. He has taken his daughter and several prisoners. —Dec. 13.—Sirdar Shere Ally Khan asked for four hundred percussion guns for his men, which were given to him. —Dec. 14.—The Ameer requested Sirdar Sultan Mahomed Khan to accompany him to Jellalabad, but the Sirdar refused, saying that he had sent his sons to Lughman to collect the revenue there, and that he had incurred large debts. The Ameer wrote to his son, Mahomed Hossein Khan, to send his troops to Cabul, and himself to proceed to Turkistan and place himself under his brothers there, who will, if pleased with him, bestow some estate upon him. —Dec. 15.—The Ameer summoned Sirdar Shere Ally Khan and requested him to go to Sooltan Mahomed Khan, and urge him to proceed to Jellalabad; the residence of Sooltan Mahomed Khan in Cabul was considered dangerous, as what he had promised to do for the Dost was never accomplished.—Lahore Chronicle.

Mr. W. F. ARTHURS has been appointed Lieutenant of Police at Aden. This young gentleman displayed so much bravery with the frontier levy, at the recent emeute in the Thurr and Parkur districts, as to entitle him most deservedly to this mark of approbation at the hands of the Bombay Government.

NATIVE INFANTRY SERVING IN CHINA.

Camp Delhi, Dec. 31.—No. 59.—The regiments of Bengal native infantry now serving in China will in a short time have completed, or nearly so, a period of two years' service in that country.

The 70th N.I. volunteered to proceed to China while yet the majority of the native infantry regiments were in arms against the State; their offer was accepted, and the regiment arrived at Canton early in February, 1858.

The 47th and 65th regiments N.I. (already foreign service corps) expressed their desire to go to China soon after the 70th regt.; and they were despatched to Canton accordingly.

H.E. the Gov. gen., considering the tour of foreign service for these regiments to have expired, has now determined to permit them to return to Bengal; and instructions have accordingly been transmitted to the authorities in China to send them back to Calcutta, so soon as the native infantry regiments of the Bombay army, now being despatched to relieve them shall arrive at Canton.

Overdrawing Accounts.

Foreign Dept., Camp Delhi, Dec. 31.—No. 900.—It has been brought to the notice of the Gov. gen. that public officers in some parts of India are in the habit of overdrawing their accounts with native bankers, and other persons residing or carrying on business within the limits of their jurisdiction.

This practice is entirely opposed to the orders of the government, and is expressly prohibited by Section III., Regulation VII., 1823, of the Bengal Code.

This section is now re-published for general information and guidance:—

"All Judges of Zillah and City Courts, all Magistrates, Joint Magistrates, Registrars and Assistants to Magistrates, all Collectors and Deputy Collectors of the Land Revenue, all Assistants to such Collectors or other officers, exercising the powers of such Collector, are prohibited, under pain of dismissal from office, from borrowing money from, or in any way incurring debt to, any Zemindar, Talookdar, Ryot, or other person possessing real property, or residing in, or having a commercial establishment within the city, district, or division, to which their authority may extend."

Officers politically employed were prohibited by the Orders of the Government of India, dated the 22nd March, 1845, from borrowing money of, or lending money to, any natives of India resident within their respective political circles.

The Governor-general now calls the attention of all officers of Government, employed in any civil or political capacity, in any part of India, to these express prohibitions, and warns them that by any infraction thereof, whether by overdrawing accounts with bankers, or in any other way, they will incur the severe displeasure of the Government.

Residents, agents, commissioners, and other controlling officers, will be held responsible for checking any departure from the strict letter of this order on the part of their subordinates.

Reception of Native Chiefs.

Foreign Dep., Governor General's Camp, Meerut, Dec. 24.—H.E. the Right Hon. the Viceroy and Gov. gen. held a Durbar this day for the reception of the Maharajah of Punnah and the chiefs and principal residents of the Meerut div. of the N.W. provinces, and of the Delhi and Hissar divs. of the territories included in the Lient. Governorship of the Punjab.

The undermentioned chiefs and native gentlemen had private audiences of H.E.:—

The Maharajah of Punnah.
The Chief of Patowdie.
The Chief of Loharoo.
The Chief of Dojanah.
Seth Luchmie Chund Rao Bahadoor.
The Nawab of Kurnal.

The Maharaja of Punnah received on arrival and departure a salute of 11 guns.

The Viceroy was pleased to inform the Maharajah that in consideration of his loyalty to the British Government and of the services rendered by him during the rebellion, the British Government would, in the event of failure of direct heirs, recognise the privilege of adoption according to the ancient custom of the Punnah State.

Afterwards the above-mentioned chiefs, and the other chiefs and gentlemen, together with the principal civil and military officers of the station, being assembled in General Durbar, the viceroy and governor general, accompanied by the Rt. Hon. James Wilson, fourth ordinary member of council, entered and took his seat under a royal salute.

Each native chief and gentleman having been introduced to His Excellency, and their customary tribute and offerings having been presented and accepted, Khilluts were bestowed on all, according to their rank.

The Maharajah of Punnah received as a reward for loyal services during the rebellion a Khillut of the value of twenty-thousand Rs. (20,000), and the honour of an hereditary salute of eleven guns.

In announcing this reward the viceroy expressed his regret that owing to the state of affairs in Bundelcund the Maharajah was unable to attend the Durbar at Cawnpore, and that he should now have had the trouble of coming so far for the purpose, but H. E. was glad to avail himself of the opportunity to thank the Maharajah publicly for his services, especially in saving the lives of Christian subjects of the Queen, and in giving assistance to her Majesty's troops in the recent operations under Brigadier Wheeler.

To other chiefs and gentlemen who had already been rewarded for their services to the British Government by the bestowal of titles His Excellency presented the usual sunnuds of investiture.

After the customary concluding ceremonies, the Viceroy and Governor General left his seat under a royal salute, and the assembly broke up.

In the afternoon, H. E., accompanied by the secretary to the Government of India, and by the officers of H. E.'s personal staff, paid a return visit to the Maharajah of Punnah.

H. E. was met by the Maharajah at some distance from H. H.'s residence, and received on arrival and departure a royal salute.

RECEPTION OF THE MAHARAJAH OF BHURTPORE.

Foreign Dept., Dec. 31.—Gov. Gen.'s Camp, Delhi.—No. 853.—H. E. the viceroy and Gov. gen. received this day, at a private durbar, his highness the Maharajah of Bhurtpore.

His highness received, on arrival and departure, a salute of eleven guns.

A khillut of the value of ten thousand rupees was conferred on the Maharajah, in acknowledgment of the services rendered by the Bhurtpore State during the rebellion, and presents were bestowed on him on the occasion of his recent marriage. Suitable rewards and khilluts were also conferred on the chiefs in attendance on his highness.

After the usual ceremonies and the departure of the Maharajah, the Viceroy and Gov. gen. received the vakeels of the Maharajah of Puttiali, with presents, in anticipation of His Excellency's arrival at Umballa, and returned the usual acknowledgments.

In the afternoon, His Excellency, accompanied by the Rt. Hon. James Wilson, the secretary, and the officers of H.E.'s personal staff, paid a return visit to the Maharajah of Bhurtpore.

H.E. was met by the Maharajah at some distance from his encampment, and received on arrival and departure a royal salute.

After the presentation and acceptance of the customary offerings, H.E. retired.

By order of H.E. the Viceroy and Gov. gen.

Breaking up of the Goruckpore Levy.

Hd. Qrs. Camp Meerut, Dec. 22.—With the sanction of H.E. the Gov. gen., the C. in C. is pleased to direct that the Goruckpore levy shall be broken up, from Feb. 1, 1860, and the men composing it disposed of under instructions which will be communicated to the officer commanding the Dinapore division.

Hospital Medicines.

Camp Calcutta, Dec. 21, 1859.—Head-Quarters, Camp Saidabad, Dec. 10, 1859.—On the occasion of a recent inspection conducted by the C. in C. in person, Lord Clyde made the painful discovery, at two stations where three of H.M.'s regiments are quartered, that the hospitals had been devoid of quinine for several months.

Lord Clyde is obliged to reiterate that every commanding officer must be aware of, that the principal medical officer of a regiment is not the commanding officer.

He is as much responsible that his hospital is duly supplied with medicines as that his men receive their daily pay.

If the regimental doctor has reason to complain of the superintending surgeon, and cannot get what he wants, the commanding officer should address the general officer com. the division.

If that is of no avail he should write to the adjutant-general of H.M.'s forces.

If that resource fail him, it is his bounden duty to address the C. in C. in person.

In the same manner, in common justice to the regiment he commands, he should never rest till he has obtained the best accommodation, furniture, shelter, &c., which the circumstances under which he is placed may permit.

It does not belong to his situation patiently to endure what appears to be ignorance, sloth, or carelessness in the functionaries who are bound to provide his regiment according to their various vocations, whether it be the commissariat, barrack department, the executive engineer, the civil authorities, or the superintending surgeon; it is incumbent on him, as being entrusted with a great and trying responsibility, to report to superior authority when he considers his regiment wronged or neglected, or that it is suffering from causes which it may be in the power of the C. in C. to remove.

Royal Engineers.

Adj. Gen.'s Office, H.M.'s British Forces, Calcutta, Dec. 30, 1859.—Adj. Gen.'s Office, Simla, Dec. 17, 1859.—With reference to the 4th paragraph of G.O. No. 45, dated March 14, 1859, the office of Royal Engineers is re-transferred from Simla to Calcutta, and will be forwarded under arrangements to be made in the gmr. gen.'s dept.

MADRAS.

Reduction in the Strength of the Native Army.

Fort St. George, Jan. 3, 1860.—No. 2 of 1860.—The Hon. the Governor in Council directs that from the 1st inst. each regiment of native infantry of the Madras army be reduced to 50 havildars, 50 naigues, and 700 privates. All men in excess of this establishment are to be borne on the returns as supernumeraries until absorbed by casualties or otherwise disposed of. Until the numbers in the non-commissioned grades, however, are reduced in each regiment to the new standard, one promotion will be made for every two vacancies.

2. The strength of each company will be as follows:—1 subadar, 1 jemadar, 5 havildars, 5 naigues, 2 drummers or buglers, 70 privates.

3. All men, supernumerary to the reduced establishment, of three years' service, or any shorter period, are to be paid up and discharged with a gratuity of one month's pay and half batta, Rs. 7 for each year of service.

4. This order is not applicable to the Pegu police battalion, to the Madras sapper militia, or to corps on or warned for foreign service.

Retirement of the Hon. Mr. Ricketts.

Gov. gen.'s Camp, Delhi, Jan. 4.

H.E. the Gov. gen. has received with great regret the intelligence that the Hon. Mr. Ricketts is compelled by ill-health to resign his seat in the Gov. gen.'s Council, and to retire from the Queen's service in India.

The Government of India loses in Mr. Ricketts an able and zealous councillor, and the Gov. gen. cannot allow the departure of Mr. Ricketts from this country to take place without expressing in his own name and in that of the Council the high value which he attaches to Mr. Ricketts's services, and an earnest hope that the health and strength which he has saccrificed to his public duty may be speedily restored to him.

Mr. Ricketts's resignation will take effect from this date.—By order, &c.,

CECIL BEADON, Sec. to the Govt. of India.

Lieut.-Colonels.

Bombay Castle, Dec. 30.

No. 1,021.—The Right Hon. the Gov. in Council is pleased to republish the following G.O. by H.E. the Gov. gen. of India, dated Camp Agra, Dec. 8, 1859, No. 39:—

H.E. the Gov. gen. is pleased to direct that the following military letter, from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, No. 380, dated Oct. 27, 1859, be published in G.O.:—

India Office, London, Oct. 27.

H.E. the Right Hon. the GOV. GEN. OF INDIA IN COUNCIL.

[Military letter, No. 83, dated June 17, 1859.—Refers certain questions regarding the rules under which lieut. cols. of H.M.'s Indian forces are entitled to promotion to the rank of col., under the royal warrant of Jan. 31, 1859.]

MY LORD.—After communication with H.R.H. the Gen. C. in C., I have to intimate the decision of H.M.'s Government on the several points referred to in your despatch, No. 83, of the 17th June, 1859, as follows:—

1st.—The office of dept. sec. to government, military dept., in Bengal, Madras, and Bombay, may be added to those enumerated in the 18th Clause of the royal warrant of Jan. 31, 1859, as entitling the incumbent, if otherwise qualified, to prom. after five years to the rank of col.

2nd.—The command of local or irreg. regts., under the orders of the C. in C., will be considered as qualifying for prom. to rank of col., under the provisions of Clause 8 of the royal warrant.

3rd.—The rule in Clause 17 of the royal warrant, which directs "that the commands of general officers and other situations on the staff, shall not be held for more than five years, unless by reappointment under special circumstances," is intended to apply to all appts. on the gen. staff of the army, but not to officers on the civil staff departments connected with the army, or to civil or political situations.—I have, &c.,

C. Wood.

The Khakee Uniform.

Bombay, Jan. 9.

The C.-in-C. finds it necessary to explain when the Khakee uniform is to be worn by European troops serving under this Presidency.

It was originally intended as a fatigue dress, more adapted to field service in the hot season than the respective cloth uniforms of the different arms, and as a general rule it must be so restricted.

The system of wearing it at all seasons of the year is disapproved, as the practice has introduced into the army very slovenly habits, at variance with the proverbial correct and neat appearance of the officers and soldiers of the British army.

"Khakee" is not the proper dress in which officers should make visits of duty and ceremony, or appear at the band stands and other places of public resort, or at church, unless with troops when it may be the ordered dress.

Except on occasions of an unusual heat the Khakee uniform is not to be worn in the rains or cold season; taking into consideration the great heat experienced at most of the upper stations of this Presidency, and indeed at all of them in the summer, the C.-in-C. sanctions "Khakee" being worn on guard, at brigade and regimental drills at a distance from the barracks, and on such other occasions as brigade and station commanders may direct, it being understood that whatever may be the dress ordered at any station, strict uniformity between officers and men must be preserved at all seasons of the year.

A relaxation of practice with respect to the particular time when the "Khakee" is to be worn must necessarily be left to the discretion of the several commanders, and must be duly published in station orders; but the C.-in-C. desires to impress upon all that the uniform, as laid down in H.M.'s regulations, is that which must be ordered on all occasions when the adoption of Khakee is not actually necessitated in consideration of the health and comfort of officers and men.

The C.-in-C. requests the particular attention of division and station commanders to this order, and directs that strict obedience thereof be invariably enforced.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

TUESDAY, Feb. 21, 1860.

THE INDIAN DIFFICULTY.

Ir Mr. Baillie anticipated the hurricane of angry expostulation, verging on abuse, which howled around him when he thrust from its seat the great idol of the Punjab, we cannot sufficiently admire his moral courage and resolution. It was as though he had blown a defiant blast on the magic horn at the castle-gate of a cruel and caiff sorcerer. If no hideous forms or gibbering spectres appalled his sight, his ears at least were assailed by strange and horrible noises. There opened out upon him, on this side and on that, a whole pack, as it were, in full cry.

Primusque Melampus,
Ichnobatesque sagax, latratu signa dedore;
Gnosius Ichnobates, Spartana gente Melampus.
Inde ruunt alii rapida velocius aurâ.
Pamphagus, et Dorceus, et Oribasus; Arcades omnes.
That the honourable member for Inverness-shire escaped being torn to pieces was a singular instance of good fortune, for which, we trust, he is duly grateful. The reception, however, which he encountered will scarcely encourage him on any other occasion to raise his rude audacious hand to tear aside the curtain which veils the mystery of truth. It is ever a rash and ungrateful task to dispel popular illusions. Besides, your image-breakers in their zeal against idolatry are apt to demolish many a graceful object of art, or poetic allegory masking the truth but not opposed to it.

Mr. Baillie's offence was a supposed design on his part to detract from the fair fame of Sir John Lawrence, by insinuating that if that eminent statesman was to be honoured as the saviour of our Indian empire, he was also liable to the charge of having greatly contributed to bring about the crisis the baneful consequences of which he finally averted by his daring energy. Now, since the death of General Havelock, the British public has been pleased to set up Sir John Lawrence as the symbol of that British manliness, vigour, and dauntless perseverance which achieved such unparalleled triumphs in the face of overwhelming odds. He was as the graven image of the national virtue—in the proper sense of that word—or as one of the winged lions of ancient Nineveh, the representative of force, swiftness, and intelligence. To lift the hand, or to fling a stone, against an object so universally revered was nothing short of sacrilege, for scepticism on such a point could scarcely be extenuated even on the plea of madness. But Mr. Baillie had probably not the slightest desire, and certainly did not attempt, to pluck a single leaf from Sir John Lawrence's laurel chaplet. He breathed not a syllable in disparagement of the remarkable services rendered by Sir John towards the suppression of the great military revolt. It is unquestionable that the fall of Delhi was mainly effected by the troops despatched in hot haste from the Punjab. This patent fact Mr. Baillie never pretended to deny; he merely asked the very pertinent question, "How came it that all those troops happened to be in the Punjab?" He stated what no man can gainsay, that in consequence of almost the whole European force of the Bengal Presidency being concentrated on the north-west frontier, there were no more than 1,300 British soldiers to hold the 800 miles of country between Meerut and Calcutta. The recently annexed and notoriously disaffected province of Oude was kept in check by less than one regiment, while the great strategic points, such as Benares, Allahabad, and Cawnpore, were in the custody of native troops. Does any one doubt that the presence of a single European corps—aye, of a wing even—would have averted the massacre at Cawnpore? Would Lucknow itself have been jeopardised had there been one thousand additional Europeans in Oude? It is sheer childishness to blink the question. Unless errors be pointed out, how shall they be remedied? Unless the surgeon probe the wound, how shall he trace the passage of the ball? That Sir John Lawrence is not directly answerable for the paucity of European troops in the north-west provinces is quite true; but it is equally true that he is indirectly answerable, because it was through his policy in the Punjab that the other provinces of the Bengal Presidency were denuded of British soldiers. Too much praise cannot be accorded to him for the resolution, promptitude, and abnegation of self which he displayed after the outbreak of the mutiny—though even here it must not be forgotten that it needed but little eloquence to induce the Sikhs to march against Delhi to avenge the murder of their slaughtered saint, or the Punjabees in general to fight against the Poorbeas where there was a prospect of plunder. Still, it augured no vulgar mind to venture upon a step which, if not successful, could only be suicidal. Sir John had the high courage and statesman-like foresight to make the east, and to back it up to the uttermost. For this he merits the gratitude of the nation, and his name will for ever be inscribed on the long and brilliant roll of those who have deserved well of their country.

But Mr. Baillie's proposition referred to the policy inaugurated by Lord Dalhousie and zealously carried out by his favourite lieutenant in the Punjab. The two brothers Sir Henry and Sir John were completely at variance in their views with regard to the treatment of the native landowners. Sir Henry belonged to the school of those wise and liberal-minded men who founded and fashioned our Indian empire. He agreed with such men as Munro, Elphinstone, Metcalfe, and Malcolm. He believed that an empire acquired by the sword could be maintained without perpetually brandishing that sword in the face of the vanquished. He had faith in the conciliatory virtues of justice, moderation, and equity. He did not think that men became more loyal by being more oppressed, nor did he regard a monotonous level as the best characteristic of either a polity or a social system. He was not the man to uphold the Austrian domination in Lombardy, because he might be told that the peasants earned a fair day's wage, or that the farmers found a ready market for their produce. It was no part of his creed that a conquered race should be reduced to become mere hewers of wood and drawers of water. He demanded that there should be a fair field for the exercise of a legitimate ambition, and that the spirit and intelligence of the people should be encouraged to develop themselves into the higher forms of civilisation. It was not in his eyes enough to construct a few canals or military roads, or to build convenient churches and costly barracks. All this was good, so far as it went; but much more remained to be done. It was good to plant trees, to sow flax, to introduce potatoes and tea, to make corn plentiful and cheap. All this, we repeat, was highly commendable; but man cannot live by bread alone. As a rational and intelligent being, he asks for something more than to be tamed and fed like a hawk in a "happy family," or a tiger's cub among a litter of puppies. Besides, though it may be the act of a great nation to annex another kingdom, it is the act of a highwayman or a pirate to plunder those who are overcome in fair fight. The Government might be justified in annexing the Punjab, but nothing could warrant the spoliation of individuals. Sir Henry was a just man, and a God-fearing ruler. As a soldier he was ever ready to encounter any peril; as a servant of the State he devoted his entire faculties to the transaction of public business; but as a Christian he refused to do a great wrong, to commit a great crime, and call it "policy." And he saw that it was an unwise policy, as well as an iniquitous one, to alienate the leaders and chiefs—those whom the masses had been accustomed, they and their fathers before them, to look up to as their patrons, counsellors, and guardians. But Lord Dalhousie thought otherwise, and the silken glove was accordingly drawn off from the iron hand. Mercy, justice, and Sir Henry retired from the Punjab, and British bayonets and Sir John reigned in their stead.

It cannot be said, indeed, that Sir John Lawrence "made a solitude and called it peace." His system was rather to convert the Punjab into one huge farm, with himself for the sole farmer. He made corn so plentiful that every man could eat his fill for a trifle, but then he had no means of earning that trifle. In time the Punjab was to become a second Land of Cockaigne, where the men were to fatten like the cattle, without memories of the past, without aspirations for the future, ignavam pecus, fruges consumere nati. An ignoble policy, in truth, and an unjust one, but it was lawful and possible, because there were 13,000 British bayonets bristling at the back of the lawmakers, and there was no one to make them afraid. It was, however, an expensive policy, and it cannot be considered a successful one, for even now, after the lapse of so many years, after such lavish expenditure on public works, after such a lengthened experience of the advantages of an enlightened and Christian administration, we are told by the rulers themselves that for the future they will require the support of 22,600 European troops, a larger force than was, however erroneously, deemed sufficient to overawe all India previous to the mutiny.

Precisely the same system was to have been introduced into Oude; but one very important item in the calculation was overlooked. Great landowners were tumbled down headlong from their "pride of place;" nobles, whether of ancient or modern date, were expected to "salaam" to beardless striplings of "the pale faces;" war-captains were offered less than the rank and pay of an English corporal, or the alternative of becoming tillers of the earth with no earth to till; the very tradesmen were ruined by a revolution which, with a conservative aim, began by the abolition of royalty and the Court; and, finally, all hope of advancement was summarily cut off from every man who had the misfortune to be only a native of the country. Thus far the Punjab programme was followed with steadfast fidelity: only one little point was omitted, but that omission proved as fatal as the want of the famous horse-shoe nail to the luckless or careless hero of the nursery rhyme. The British bayonet was conspicuous — only by its absence! Five thousand, perhaps three thousand, European soldiers between Meerut and Calcutta would have rendered the mutiny abortive, and suppressed the first symptom of insurrection. But success had produced its usual fruits, and an overweening self-confidence blinded the Government to the logical consequences of its unjust proceedings. It is due, however, to Lord Dalhousie not to forget that he did apply for large reinforcements from England, or that the Directors would have sanctioned the addition of at least three regiments to their local European army. But the Horse Guards could not regard with complacency an augmentation that gave them no increase of patronage, and thus the best interests of the country were postponed to selfish and individual considerations.

The present Viceroy, it must be admitted, appears disposed to profit by the terrible teachings of the last three years. He seems to recognise the impossibility of holding so vast an empire by mere physical force. Perhaps, too, his Excellency may be actuated by a yet higher principle, and be prepared to acknowledge that, unless the peoples of Hindostan will accept us as their rulers, the military occupation alone of the country will be attended with neither honour nor advantage. The real "Indian difficulty" is to enlist the confidence, the respect, the sympathy of the inhabitants; and this can only be done through the co-operation of the native princes and gentry. Neither the valour of our troops nor the abilities of Sir John Lawrence would have availed to save Upper India, or even the Punjab, had not so many princes and great noblemen remained faithful to the Supreme Government. The path of safety is fortunately also the path of justice and honour. It is time to lay aside all ignoble jealousies and prejudices, which evince in the most striking light our consciousness of insecurity. The natives must henceforth be treated as our fellow-subjects, and not as a conquered race to be kept down by bullet and steel. The hour is not far distant when we shall need the presence of those war-practised legions within our own four seas. Even now a large force is under orders for China; and in any case it will be an indelible disgrace to this country if the possession of India should be solely dependent on the number of regiments we maintain there, in a state of honourable exile. All that we have to do is to let the natives be happy in their own way, and to avoid all unnecessary interference. The doctrinaire notions of a certain class of modern politicians is quite unsuitable to eastern races. Excessive legislation, indeed, is becoming the bane of our own country, but if applied to India will necessitate the permanent presence of at least a hundred thousand British soldiers. Is the nation disposed to pay such a price for even the brightest gem in the imperial crown?

This, or something to this effect, was all, we imagine, that Mr. Baillie intended to convey in the remarks which so grievously shocked the susceptibilities of certain honourable members. Nothing, probably, was further from his thoughts than any intentional disrespect towards "the Saviour of India." But he had the courage to face facts, and to call a spade, a spade; and felt little inclination to make a statue three times the stature of the tallest man in order that it might not be taken for the effigy of a dwarf when placed on a monument a hundred feet high.

The Victoria Cross.

WAR OFFICE, Feb. 17.

The Queen having been graciously pleased, by a warrant under her royal sign manual, bearing date the 18th of December, 1858, to declare that non-military persons who, as volunteers, have borne arms against the mutineers, both at Lucknow and elsewhere, during the late operations in India, shall be considered as eligible to receive the decoration of the Victoria Cross, subject to the rules and ordinances already made and ordained for the government thereof, provided that it be established in any case that the person was serving under the orders of a general, or other officer in command of troops in the field when he performed the act of bravery for which it is proposed to confer the decoration; her Majesty has accordingly been pleased to signify her intention to confer this high distinction on the undermentioned gentleman whose claim to the same has been submitted for her Majesty's approval, on account of an act of bravery performed by him in India as recorded against his name, viz.:

Mr. William Fraser McDonell, of the Bengal Civil Service, magistrate of Serum—for great coolness and bravery on the 30th of July, 1857, during the retreat of the British troops from Arrah, in having climbed, under an incessant fire, outside the boat in which he and several soldiers were up to the rudder, and with considerable difficulty cut through the lashing which secured it to the side of the boat. On the lashing being cut, the boat obeyed the helm, and thus thirty-five European soldiers escaped certain death.

Her Majesty has also been graciously pleased to signify her intention to confer the decoration of the Victoria Cross on the undermentioned officers and private soldiers, whose claims to the same have been submitted for her Majesty's approval on account of acts of bravery performed by them in India, as recorded against their several names, viz.:

56th Bengal Native Infantry.—Captain William Martin Cafe, for bearing away under a heavy fire, with the assistance of Privates Thompson, Crowie, Spence, and Cook, the body of Lieut. Willoughby, lying near the ditch of the fort of Ruhya, and for running to the rescue of Private Spence, who had been severely wounded in the attempt. Date of act of bravery, April 15, 1858.

1st European Bengal Fusiliers.—Lieutenant Francis David Millett Brown, for great gallantry at Narriou, on the 16th of November, 1857, in having, at the imminent risk of his own life, rushed to the assistance of a wounded soldier of the 1st Bengal European Fusiliers, whom he carried off, under a very heavy fire from the enemy, whose cavalry were within forty or fifty yards of him at the time.

10th Regiment 1st Battalion.—Private Denis Dempsey, for having at Lucknow, on the 14th of March, 1858, carried a powder bag through a burning village with great coolness and gallantry, for the purpose of mining a passage in rear of the enemy's position. This he did, exposed to a very heavy fire from the enemy behind loopholed walls, and to an almost still greater danger from the sparks which flew in every direction from the blazing houses; also, for having been the first man who entered the village of Jugdespore on the 12th of August, 1857, under a most galling fire. Private Dempsey was also one of those who helped to carry Ensign Erskine, of the 10th regiment, in the retreat from Arrah, in July, 1857.

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE, recommended by

Baron Liebig and all the Faculty, may now be had in the finest condition, direct from the new Brewery, at Burton-on-Trent, of Messrs. HARRINGTON PARKER and Co., who have REDUCED the PRICE of this highly esteemed beverage to 4s. 6d. per dozen Imperial Pints.

2s. 9d. ditto Imperial Half-pints.
Messrs. Harrington Parker and Co. also supply Allsopp's Ales in casks of 18 gallons and upwards, 54, Pall-mall, S.W., Dec. 31, 1859.

CLAPHAM COMMON.

UNFURNISHED HOUSES at CLAPHAM COMMON.

Mr. McLACHLAN, of 85, St. James's street and Clapham-common, is instructed to LET THREE HOUSES in the GROVE, adjoining that beautiful spot, Clapham-common. They consist of dining, breakfast, and double drawing-rooms, and five bed-rooms, with the usual domestic offices, coach-house, stable, &c. The houses have just been put into thorough substantial and ornamental repair, and are fit for immediate occupation. The locality is highly respectable; and as the rents are moderate, and several Indian families reside in the neighbourhood, Mr. McLachlan begs to recommend the houses to the attention of families recently arrived from India. The drainage is warranted. Omnibuses to West-end and City pass constantly. One mile to the Balham Station, for Picnic, Crystal Palace, Brighton, &c.

OVERLAND ROUTE.—COMMUNICATION BY STEAM TO INDIA, AUSTRALIA, &c. via Egypt.—The PENINSULAR and ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY BOOK PASSENGERS and RECEIVE CARGO and PARCELS for GIBRALTAR, MALTA, CORFU, EGYPT, ADEN, CEYLON, MADRAS, CALCUTTA, the STRAITS, and CHINA, by their Steamers leaving Southampton on the 4th and 20th of every month. For GIBRALTAR, MALTA, EGYPT, ADEN, and BOMBAY, by those of the 12th and 27th of each month; and for GIBRALTAR, MALTA, EGYPT, ADEN, BOMBAY, MAURITIUS, REUNION, KING GEORGE'S SOUND, KANGAROO ISLAND (for Adelaide), MELBOURNE, and SYDNEY, by the Steamers leaving Southampton on the 13th of every month.

For further particulars, apply at the Company's Offices, 123, Leadenhall-street, London, E.C., or Oriental-place, Southampton.

PASSAGES and OUTFITS to INDIA.—Plans and prices of accommodation of all Ships sailing for INDIA may be seen at the Offices of Messrs. GRINDLAY and Co., and Passages, Overland and via the Cape, negotiated without charge for Commission.

CADETS, ASSISTANT-SURGEONS, &c.—Every article of OUTFIT, Camp, and Cabin Furniture supplied on the shortest notice, at the Outfit and Supply Branches, 124, Bishopsgate-street. Complete Lists, showing the total expense of military and personal equipment in all branches of the Service, may be obtained, with every information relative to India, of GRINDLAY and CO.,

GALVANIC INSTITUTE,

62, EUSTON-ROAD, N.W.—These Rooms have been opened, under the superintendence of registered qualified medical men, for the legitimate application of Galvanism in the treatment of Nervous Diseases, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Asthma, Indigestion, &c. Hours of attendance, Twelve to Five (Sundays excepted). Patients attended at their residence if required, in town or country.

Ordinary Medical Attendant, Mr. J. SMELLIE, Surgeon. Second Edition of SMELLIE'S Work on Electro-Galvanism, 2s. 6d., by post, 2s. 8d.

BLAIR'S GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

Price 1s. 1d. and 2s. 9d. per box.

This preparation is one of the benefits which the science of modern chemistry has conferred upon mankind; for during the first twenty years of the present century to speak of a cure for the gout was considered a romance; but now the efficacy and safety of this medicine is so fully demonstrated by unsolicited testimonials from persons in every rank of life, that public opinion proclaims this as one of the most important discoveries of the present age. These Pills require no restraint of diet or confinement during their use, and are certain to prevent the disease attacking any vital part.

Sold by all medicine vendors. Observe "Thomas Prout, 229, Strand, London," on the Government stamp.

TO LATE RESIDENTS IN INDIA.—TRUE MADRAS CURRY and MULLIGATAWNEY PASTE and CHUTNIES.—Messrs. BARRIE and Co., Vepery, Madras, to enable their old correspondents returning from India to continue the use of the celebrated Condiments, have made arrangements to forward regular supplies of the above, packed in glass jars for family use, at 1s. 9d. and upwards, which may be had of CROSS and BLACKWELL, Purveyors to Her Majesty, 21, Soho-square; FOKINUM, MASON, & Co., Piccadilly; and of the Principal Sauce Vendors throughout the Kingdom. Each bottle is labelled, and BARRIE and Co., Madras, stamped on the glass.

THE REAL INDIAN CURRY POWDER.

Unequalled for its delicious flavour and stimulating qualities. 1lb. bottles, 3s. 6d.; 4lbs. 2s. 3d.; 14lbs. 1s. 6d.; or 7lbs. for 21s. The Royal Combination Pickle, highly recommended, bottles 2s. Bombay Pickled Mangoes, Tap Sauce, Nepaul Pepper, Preserved Ginger, and all Indian delicacies, may be had at PAYNE and CO.'S FOREIGN WAREHOUSE, 328, Regent-street.

"INDIAN BAL," for DIARRHŒA, DYSENTERY, &c., imported by J. G. GOULD, Pharmaceutical Chemist, 198, Oxford-street, corner of Orchard-street, Portman-square, W.

RUPTURES.—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS

is allowed, by upwards of 900 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of HERNIA. The use of a steel spring, so hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit), forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body, two inches below the hips, being sent to the Manufacturer,

Mr. JOHN WHITE, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON.

A Single Truss, 16s. 31s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d. Postage, 1s. A Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage, 1s. 3d. An Umbilical Truss, 42s., and 52s. 6d. Postage, 1s. 3d. Post-office Orders to be made payable to JOHN WHITE Post-office, Piccadilly.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE-CAPS, &c., for VARICOSE VEINS, and all cases of WEAKNESS and SWELLING of the LEGS, SPRAINS, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and are drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price from 7s. 6d. to 10s. each. Postage, 6d.

JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228, Piccadilly, London.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.—Irregular Circulation, Palpitation.—Few diseases distress their victims more than disorders of the heart. The light, sullying, anxious feeling alarms the patient, to whom immediate death seems imminent. When these results depend on indigestion, flatulency, or debilitated nervous power, a ready remedy has been discovered in Holloway's Pills and Ointment. At the commencement of the disturbed action of the heart, a course of these digestive and purifying Pills will daily diminish the symptoms till regularity is perfectly restored. When the case has been neglected, or the palpitation is severe, the Ointment should be rubbed over the heart, pit of the stomach, and right side; it will much quicken the curative powers of the Pills.

NEWBERRY'S COD LIVER OIL CAKES.

"We have examined a specimen of gingerbread made by Messrs. Newberry—each cake containing a teaspoonful of Cod Liver Oil. The gingerbread is extremely light and pleasant, the flavour of the oil being completely covered. This seems likely to prove a very useful mode of administering Cod Liver Oil to children, and to others who are nauseated by the offensive odour and flavour of the Oil as generally taken."—Medical Times, 12th Feb., 1859. Eight Cakes, 1s. 9d.; Sixteen (about 1lb.), 3s.—F. NEWBERRY and SONS, 46, St. Paul's-churchyard. Established A.D. 1746.

THE MAGNESIAN EFFERVESCENT is

the most agreeable and effective remedy in all cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Acidity, Heartburn, Indigestion, and Biliary Affection, Nausea, Fever, Thirst, and Sea-sickness. It is highly recommended by the profession, and will be found especially valuable to those going to India or travelling in warm climates; as a mild and efficacious saline aperient it stands unequalled, and will be found peculiarly adapted for delicate females and children. To be obtained through all respectable chemists, and wholesale from Messrs. BARCLAY, Farringdon-street (put up in stoppered bottles at 4s. 6d. for India), and smaller size at 1s. 1d. and 2s. 9d.

LENTUM, A NEW COMPOSITION

for Artificial TEETH and GUMS, recommended to Invalids and a who suffer from Indigestion. Its flexibility and lightness give the greatest power in mastication, avoiding all pain or pressure on the gums, without springs, wires, or any unsightly gold. It supports all loose and tender teeth, and does not require the extraction of stumps. Prepared only by

Mr. ALFRED JONES, SURGEON-DENTIST to Her late Royal Highness the Duchess of GLOUCESTER, Her late R.H. the Princess Augusta, the late Louis Philippe, and the ex-Royal Family of France.
64, GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE.
At Home from Eleven till Five.

TO SUFFERERS with CORNS and BUNIONS.—Ask for a Box of YOUNG'S CORN and BUNION PLASTERS, which will eradicate corns or bunions in a very short time. Be careful that you have YOUNG'S—the name is printed on the label; all others are imitations. Price 6d. and 1s. per box, or by post for thirteen postage stamps. Address H. Young, 31, Shaftesbury-place, Aldersgate-street, E.C. May be had at most chemists throughout the world. Agents wanted abroad. N.B.—A Liberal Allowance to Wholesale Dealers.

JAMS, JELLIES, and MARMALADE, PRESERVED IN TINS,

By BARNES, MORGAN, and Co.

(The Originators of this method of preserving), Upper Thames-street, London, E.C. This mode of Preserving is now acknowledged to be far superior to any yet invented. The contents will keep good for any number of years without the Tin imparting any metallic taste to the Preserve, and never candy or ferment. To Regimental Messes they are peculiarly adapted, being more portable than jars, and not liable to breakage. B. M. and Co. would also recommend their Pickles, Sauces, Tart Fruits, &c., and their large stock of York and Cumberland Hams, Cheese, and Bacon.

THE FAMILY BOOT-MAKER.

DEPARTMENT OF MEDICAL STATISTICS.—William Farr, Esq.,
 M.D., D.C.L., F.R.S.

At the EIGHTEENTH ANNUAL MEETING, held on the 24th November, 1859, it was shown that on the 30th June last,—

The Number of Policies in force was ..... 6,110
 The Amount Insured was ..... £2,601,925. 10s. 6d.
 The Annual Income was ..... £212,263. 7s. 7d.
 The new business transacted during the last five years amounts to £3,482,798. 16s. 11d., showing an average yearly amount of new business of nearly

HALF-A-MILLION STERLING.

The Society has paid for claims by death, since its establishment in 1841, no less a sum than £503,619.

Assurances are effected at home or abroad on healthy lives at moderate rates as the most recent data will allow.

ARMY AND NAVY.—No extra premium is required on healthy lives in the Army or Navy unless in actual service.

VOLUNTEERS.—No extra charge for persons serving in any Volunteer or Rifle Corps within the United Kingdom.

RESIDENCE ABROAD.—The Policies issued by this Society give greater facilities to parties going to or residing in Foreign Climates than those of most other companies.

MASTER MARINERS are assured for life or for a voyage at equitable rates.

INDIA.—Officers in the Army and civilians proceeding to India may insure their lives on the most favourable terms, and every possible facility is afforded for the transaction of business in India.

Premiums for India have been computed on the actual results of European life in that colony, extending over the whole period of the East India Company's experience, and will be found generally lower than those of other companies, and especially favourable for military men.

Civil rates charged on lives of military officers holding civil appointments for the term of such appointments.

Immediate reduction to English rates on the assured returning to Europe permanently to reside.

Policies may be made payable either in London or in India, at the rate of Two Shillings sterling per Company's Rupee.

INVALID LIVES assured on scientifically constructed tables based on extensive data, and a reduction in the premium is made when the causes for an increased rate of premium have ceased.

STAMP DUTY.—Policies issued free of every charge but the premiums.

DAYS OF GRACE.—In the event of death during the days of grace, the risk binding on the Society if premium paid before the days of grace expire.

Every information may be obtained at the chief office, or on application to any of the Society's agents.

BURROWS and Co., WHOLESALE WINE MERCHANTS, LIVERPOOL.

Stores ... .. Lime-street.
 Offices ... .. 54, Duke-street.

The Proprietors beg most respectfully to call the attention of the Trade, Noblemen, Clergy, and the Public to their extensive stock of CHOICE WINES of rare vintages.

B. and Co. are not disposed to comment upon the purity of their Wines, which is daily most laudably acknowledged by the public and eminent medical men of all countries, as the increasing patronage of the highest families in the land is a sufficient guarantee.

They beg to call attention in particular to their Pure Tonic Wines as being so valuable to invalids and persons of weak stomachs.

A sample case, containing full-sized sample cases, will be forwarded to any address on receipt of 6s. 6d., or a dozen for 24s.

It is a well-known fact that impure and adulterated Wines are the greatest foes to health, producing acidity in the stomach, and debilitating the digestive organs, while pure Wines will accelerate the digestive powers, invigorating, strengthening, and bracing the nervous system.

Their Tonic Wine is admitted to be most essential to invalids, both old and young, and should never be absent from the homes of the weak and sickly. Its properties are duly acknowledged by the leading men of the Faculty both at home and abroad.

To prevent imposition each bottle is sealed with the name of the firm.

All orders to be made payable to HENRY BURROWS.

ROWLANDS' ODONTO,

or PEARL DENTIFRICE, a White Powder, is composed of the choicest and most recherche ingredients of the Oriental herbal.
 It extirpates all tartarous adhesions to the Teeth, and insures a pearl-like whiteness to the enamelled surface. Its antiseptic and anti-scorbutic properties exercise a highly beneficial and salutary influence; they arrest the further progress of decay of the Teeth, induce a healthy action of the gums, and cause them to assume the brightness and colour indicative of perfect soundness. The breath, also, from the salubritous and disinfecting qualities of the ODONTO, attains a purity and fragrance truly grateful to its possessor.

PRICE 2s. 9D. PER BOX.

CAUTION.—The words "ROWLANDS' ODONTO, &c.," are on the Label, and "A. ROWLAND and SONS, 20, Hatton-garden," on the Government Stamp.

Sold by them, and by Chemists and Perfumers.

BY J. R. YOUNG,

A COURSE OF MATHEMATICS,

PURE AND MIXED,

More especially designed for the Use of Candidates for the
 MILITARY & CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

APPLICATIONS OF THE FOLLOWING SUBJECTS:

1. ALGEBRA, TRIGONOMETRY, AND MENSURATION.
2. ANALYTICAL GEOMETRY (CONIC SECTIONS), STATICS, DYNAMICS, AND HYDROSTATICS.
3. THE DIFFERENTIAL AND INTEGRAL CALCULUS, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c., &c.

The object of this work is to furnish Candidates for the Military and Civil Service Examinations with such a practical knowledge of Pure and Mixed Mathematics as may prove most serviceable to them in the course of the ordeal to which they are about to be subjected. On such occasions a mere theoretical acquaintance with principles is by no means sufficient. It is also necessary that the young aspirant should have been trained by actual experiments, as it were, to the application of the abstract rules, the enunciation of which he has otherwise mastered only by an effort of memory. To assist him in thus gathering the fruits of his intellectual industry, Mr. J. R. YOUNG has devised a multitude of problems, of greater or less difficulty, in Algebra, Trigonometry, Mensuration, Analytical Geometry (Conic Sections), Statics, Dynamics, Hydrostatics, the Differential and Integral Calculus, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c. The chief peculiarity of this work, however, is one that will recommend it to a very large class of students. The most difficult questions are rendered comparatively easy, by the practical simplifications that are introduced in their mode of solution. Instead of a pompous and puzzling display of technical phraseology, the utmost care has been taken to explain the most knotty points in a plain, unaffected manner, intelligible to every ordinary capacity. In this respect, Mr.
 YOUNG'S "Course of Mathematics" will be found to possess a decided superiority over all preceding works on the same subject.

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz. — Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month, and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

POSTAGE.

Via Southampton (pre-payment compulsory), letters under

1 oz. 0s. 6d.	2 oz. 2s. 0d.	4 oz. 4s. 0d.
1 oz. 1s. 0d.	3 oz. 3s. 0d.	5 oz. 5s. 0d.

Books, with the ends of the covers open (not exceeding 3 lbs. in weight), if sent via Southampton, under ½ lb. 4d.; under 1 lb. 4d.; under 1 lb. 1s. 4d.; under 1½ lb. 2s.; under 2 lbs. 2s. 8d.; under 2½ lbs. 3s. 4d.; and under 3 lbs. 4s. Postage-stamps must be affixed.

Via Marseilles (pre-payment compulsory), letters under
1/2 oz. 0s. 9d.	1/2 oz. 1s. 9d.	1 1/2 oz. 3s. 3d.
1 oz. 1s. 0d.	1 oz. 2s. 0d.	1 1/2 oz. 3s. 6d.

Newspapers for the East Indies, when not exceeding 4 oz., 2d. each, when above 4 oz. and not exceeding 8 oz., 3d. each—an additional penny being charged for every addition of 4 oz. or fraction thereof. For all countries or places eastward of Suez, the charge is 2d., whatever the weight of the newspaper.

Books under  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb. 6d.; under  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb. 1s.; and for every additional  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb. an additional 1s.

The Mails for China are despatched at the same rate of postage as those to India; but must be pre-paid.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

WE are in receipt of intelligence from Calcutta to the 24th of January, and four days later from Madras. The Indian papers are now chiefly devoted to the consideration of the expedition to China, the details of which appear to be still vague and obscure. Some regiments, it is said, have been three times ordered and counter-ordered to hold themselves in readiness for foreign service, while the native contingent is principally intended to relieve the 47th, 65th, and 70th N.I., now serving in China. Shipping has been taken up by Government to a large amount of tonnage, and freights are consequently on the increase.

No later accounts than those published in our last number have been received relative to the movements of the Governor-general, except that his Excellency and his camp were slowly advancing to Lahore through the valley of the Markhouda. The military escort has been reduced from the proportions of an army to those of a brigade, and now comprises only one Queen's regiment, one native regiment, and the body guard. The civil camp, however, including private servants, bazaar followers, &c., &c., has been estimated at 15,000 human beings, or more than double the "establishment" which excited the astonishment and indignation of Sir Charles Napier. At that time Lord Dalhousie's camp, exclusive of the escort, contained 6,000 persons, for whose carriage there were diverted from productive labour 135 elephants, 1,060 camels, 700 bullocks, and 125 carts. "This camp in motion," Sir Charles wrote to his brother, "must cover nearly six miles of ground, and with the baggage of the escort, bazars, &c., would probably cover eight miles; but in this calculation I reckon an addition of one-third to the actual distance to meet the intervals caused by lagging of overloaded animals." The camp of the Viceroy, however, is reported to cover thirty miles of ground when in motion.

Lord Canning has given great offence to the Civil Service by a very offensive, and, we hope, uncalled for notification, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 14th of January. His lordship asserts that "public officers in some parts of India are in the habit of over-drawing their accounts with native bankers, and other persons, residing and carrying on business within the limits of their jurisdiction." It would be absurd to affect any doubt as to the real purport of this sentence. Over-drawing, as the Englishman observes, is only another name for borrowing, which has all along been strictly prohibited, nor has it ever before been insinuated that the prohibition was evaded. Major Ouseley, indeed, once hinted at the existence of such a practice, and, for doing so, was suspended by Lord Dalhousie, and removed from the service by the Court of Directors. If here and there an exceptional case may have occurred, that is no excuse for insulting the entire service, and affixing a stigma upon a highly honourable body of gentlemen. Individuals should be held answerable for their own misdoings, but their conduct should not be taken as an excuse for imputing disgrace to the innocent.

Mummoo Khan has been tried and acquitted. Another rebel leader, the ex-Rajah of Mithowlie, has been saved by death from a lengthened exile in the Andaman Islands.

We request the attention of our readers to a very remarkable article extracted from the Friend of India, touching a singular State paper written by the native governor of Bootwul, a fortress on the frontier of Tirkoot. His information purports to be derived from the Begum, and the narrative certainly bears strong internal evidence of a near approximation to truth. According to this statement, Jung Bahadoor has rendered to the Indian Government far greater services than has generally been known, and is worthy of far higher reward than any he has yet received. Of all his countrymen he alone was friendly to the British, because none so well knew the irresistible power of that people. Let his motives have been as interested as those of the most selfish of men, it is evident that he has proved a loyal and steadfast ally at an extremely critical moment, and clearly entitled to a suitable recognition of his good faith.

There is nothing of material importance to signalise in the news from China; but from Java we learn that the Dutch steamer Onrust has been treacherously cut off by the natives of Banjer-massing, and seven officers and fifty-five men brutally massacred.

BENGAL.

A SANATORIUM FOR CALCUTTA.

The Government of Bengal has decided, we believe, on forming a sanatorium at Parisnath. The plan may succeed for a time, but the narrow, sharp ridge of that hill affords no holding ground for a large station, such as the sanatorium of Calcutta ought to become. A speculator or two seem to think a better one will be found in the Rajmahal hills as soon as the railway is completed, but they will find themselves mistaken.

The Rajmahal hills are neither high nor healthy; the river side of them is notoriously insubrious, and as to Rajmahal itself, who that has seen it, even after the railway and Mr. Wood's improvements, will not agree with the late Lieut.-governor's opinion that, "if there is a hole upon earth, it is this?" But some forty miles nearer Calcutta than Rajmahal, about the same north of the civil station of Sooree, and about thirty west from the Pakour and Nulhatee stations on the rail, there are several hills, or ranges of hills, between 1,200 and 2,000 feet high, where the low country is healthier, and the scenery finer than at Rajmahal, though what the tops of the hills may be in respect of salubrity to European constitutions experience only can decide. A few days ago two European gentlemen ascended Muharegurhee, one of the hills of the ridge, some 1,600 feet high. They started at sunrise, and a walk of about four miles, chiefly through one of the solitary peaceful sunny valleys so much loved by the Sontals, took them to the foot of the ascent. The ascent itself was much like the worst part of the climb up the north side of Parisnath, but of course not nearly so tedious, two or three halts for breath being enough. At the top they were surprised and delighted to find, not the sharp narrow ridge of Parisnath, but a table land of many square miles, not quite level, but sufficiently so for plough cultivation, and a great deal cultivated and sown with rice and oil seeds by the hillmen, who have two villages on the top, shaded by fine mango, tamarind, and peepul trees. They walked across this table land to the north face of the hill, a mile and a-half distant, passing a beautiful stream, which the villagers assured them never became dry, and obtaining a view of the prettiest valley in Sontal-dom, that of the Banstoi river. The Ganges is visible from this point on a very clear day. There were three open paths for return, and they took the steepest and most direct. It proved an intolerable one, almost a precipice, overhung with jungle, and covered with grass higher than a man's head. Still the Europeans reached the bottom, having spent only five hours in the ascent, inspection, and return. A new path could be cut with great ease, and at little expense, up one of the easier slopes of the hill.

The temperature on the hill was glorious, but in the hot winds it must be hot and dusty, not so cool as Parisnath, which is more than twice as high as Muharegurhee; but still the latter has its advantages. It is considerably nearer the rail, it has table land for ten Darjeelings, for long drives, a racecourse, public gardens and coffee plantations, to an extent which Major Sherwill only can describe; it has plenty of good water. It has, perhaps, the thickest and best coal field in the Damun-i-koh at its feet; a limestone bed half way up, and iron everywhere; and there are hot springs within a few miles east and west. Might not a weir be thrown across the Banstoi at the Amrapuhar falls, making the river itself a natural canal back to Muharegurhee, and affording head water for an artificial canal to the rail and the Ganges? Coal, lime, iron, cotton, coffee, and fine scenery, all at a Bengal paradise, and a canal to take them away and bring back the luxuries of the ditch! Will no bold ditcher test the climate of the top of the hill by keeping his wife and family there from March to November? It is in a moderate coolness rather than a really cold atmosphere that a Bengalee finds the true sanatorium. Frost only chills him into dysentery.—Friend of India.

THE POLICY OF NEPAUL.

Public opinion is still undecided as to the conduct and policy of the Court of Katmandoo. On the one hand, the majority, more especially of military officers, are disposed to refuse to Nepaul all credit for friendship or straight dealing. The Durbar, it is argued, gave us assistance only for its own ends. The Ghoorka troops from the beginning did nothing, and when before Lucknow intrigued with the rebel chiefs. The army, on its return, carried with it an enormous quantity of plunder, bargained with the rebels for the safety of that plunder, and avoided opportunity after opportunity of striking a great blow. After the defeat on the Raptce, the Nepaulese afforded the Hindoo leaders an asylum, and for nine months steadily declined to assist in driving them beyond the frontier. Their conduct, therefore, is held, more especially by officers kept by their intrigues in a hot-weather camp, more deserving of punishment than reward.

On the other hand, a smaller party refuse to give up their belief in the sincerity of Jung Bahadur. They do not believe it possible for a native accustomed to authority to visit England, and yet venture to measure strength with the British Government. They believe that whatever the opinion of the people, the Durbar has been, upon the whole, well disposed, and is entitled, like any other court, to be judged solely by its acts. This seems to be the official opinion of the Viceroy, and is certainly his opinion if, as reported, he has promised the Terai to Katmandoo.

Just at this moment the Oudh Gazette publishes a narrative which throws a strong light on the internal politics of Nepaul. Drawn up by the native Governor of Bootwal, it corresponds with all known facts, more especially those revealed during the struggle between the Nepaulese knight and the British resident. According to this account, the Nepaulese people, as distinct from their rulers, from the very first sympathized strongly with the rebel side. They never came in contact with the English, had no civil courts to worry them, no greased cartridges to avoid or to avenge. But they deemed the cause of Hindooism involved, and hated the innovating strangers. As week after week intelligence of British defeats arrived, this feeling grew deeper, until at last in October, 1857, some outlying Zemindars could no longer be restrained, and Nepaulese began plundering in Goruckpore. The Court, however, aware that the tide had turned, that British troops were pouring in, and that Delhi had fallen, remained faithful, and in November Jung Bahadur announced his determination to assist the British. So vehemently were the country gentlemen of Nepaul opposed to this resolution, that they sent in the veriest rabble as recruits, a fact which explains some otherwise unaccountable features in the expedition. Of this rabble one-half perished en route, and the remainder distinguished themselves more by plunder than success. The moral effect of the movement was, however, very considerable. It taught every Hindoostanee that the Nepaulese still believe the British the stronger side.

Lucknow captured, Jung Bahadur dismissed his army, and hastened to claim his personal reward, the dismissal of Colonel Ramsay. The intrigues and misapprehensions which followed are fresh in the remembrance of our readers. It may suffice to say here that the Regent returned to Nepaul satisfied that the Resident would be removed, and when undeceived broke into a furious rage. For a moment it was doubtful to which side he would incline, but his better genius prevailed. The Goorkhas, who, maddened at the sight of the wealth acquired by their comrades, were clamorous for invasion, were kept within bounds by the threat of immediate execution, and the invasion, which promised to be national, was restricted to a few border Zemindars, whom Jung Bahadur either could not, or in his anger did not choose to evict. At last, in January, 1859, the rebels, about thirty thousand in number, entered Nepaul, bringing with them immense wealth, and the most Oriental stories of British cruelty. The soldiery were murdering and ravishing wholesale. The Government was forcing whole districts to eat bone-dust and poisoned otta. So exasperated were the Nepaulese by these inventions that a serious plot was formed to depose Jung Bahadur, and was only smothered by the arrest of the principal ring-leaders. The Regent, however, remained firm. He could not drive out the guests of the nation, but he assented to the entry of the British into his territory, and as soon as he regained his power, and the British Government resolved on action, he delivered up all he dare.

That, with the exception of the last sentence, is the native version of the policy of Nepaul, and to us it seems to contain internal evidence of its truth. There exists no uncertainty as to the feeling of the Nepaulese. They were passionately hostile to the British; they expressed the feeling openly at Goruckpore, and covertly at Lucknow, fed and assisted the rebels, and when they dared, plundered within our frontier. Why, then, did they not at once precipitate themselves into Hindostan? Simply because the Regent, backed by his personal following, was strong enough, if not to restrain the masses, at least to deprive them of their chiefs. It is the story of Gwalior over again: the Durbar friendly, the people, or at all events the fighting classes, bitterly hostile. The only difference is, that Scindia came to action and was deserted, while the Nepaulese ruler avoided every step likely to bring him into absolute collision with the people. That his conduct was not that of a warm and interested partisan may be readily admitted. Who expected it to be? The Nepaulese Court fought or receded for its own ends, as any European court would fight or recede for its own ends. The Durbar very likely would have enjoyed the plunder of Hindostan exceedingly, had the operation been a safe one. But that the rulers of Nepaul, with Jung Bahadur as their chief, saw where strength really lay, and that in spite of an almost irresistible pressure they faithfully adhered to the strongest side, it seems to us unreasonable to doubt. They have established, of course, no greater moral claim to reward than the man who in an angry mob abstains from aiding the attack. But if it is our true policy, as we believe it to be, to teach every prince in India that the British is the paying side in every contest, the reward need not create the disgust we hear so frequently expressed.

It is clear from this paper that Jung Bahadur did us another service on which Government will wisely remain silent. There was but one native on earth whom Lord Dalhousie feared, and that she did not, for the third time in this generation, hurl a nation at our heads, is due under Providence to Jung Bahadur.—Friend of India.

THE CONFISCATION OF DHAR.

The non-restoration of the above principality to its legitimate Prince, in express opposition to the instructions of the Court of Directors to the Government of India, dated June 22, 1858, and to the subsequent letter of Lord Stanley to the Governor-general, dated March 1, 1859, is a matter that requires explanation. The Dhar territories, as our readers must be aware, are situated in the province of Malwa, and comprehend about four hundred square miles.

It has been officially stated that Dhar was attached in consequence of its having revolted during the recent rebellion; but any one who reads the document cannot but come to the conclusion that the ruling chief, Balla Saheb, has not been justly treated by the Indian Government, considering the circumstances under which the revolt of Dhar took place. So apparent was this to the late Court of Directors that they considered the attachment of the principality as a temporary arrangement, unless circumstances with which they were not acquainted rendered the confiscation of the State a just and necessary measure. These circumstances have not come to the knowledge of the Indian Government, and yet the principality of Dhar is still withheld from its chief, in defiance of the instructions of the late President of the Indian Council.

To render the alienation of the State still more glaring, we have only to contrast the treatment of the Maharajah of Gwalior with that of the chief of Dhar. The troops of the former revolted, against the wish of their sovereign, during the rebellion, and he was compelled to flee his kingdom. With the aid of British bayonets, the Rajah was afterwards restored to his throne, and he has received the highest honours from the Governor-general for his loyalty to the Government. Why was not Gwalior alienated for the insurrection in which it was concerned, in the same way that Dhar has been? It is precisely a parallel case. The Maharajah of Gwalior was no more responsible for the conduct of his troops on the occasion than Balla Sahab was for the outrages perpetrated by his mercenaries, and yet the one is rewarded and the other punished. Is this just? But the Gwalior Rajah is a more powerful prince than the obscure chief of Dhar. Hence, we presume, the difference of treatment between the two princes.

But what are we to think of the conduct of Lord Canning's government in persisting to retain Dhar, in spite of Lord Stanley's letter to the contrary? If the Viceroy can thus disregard the instructions of the President of the Indian Council, where is the utility of having a Secretary-of-State for this country? Sooner or later it must be decided whether the President of the Indian Council or the Governor-General of India is to be supreme.

We trust it will not be long before the principality of Dhar will be restored to its chief. If we wish to secure the loyalty of our subjects, and to have our Government respected, we should show the natives of this country that we are just in our treatment of native tributary princes. Sir Charles Wood, we feel certain, will not permit Dhar to be long retained. We therefore believe its restoration to Balla Sahab an event not improbable, notwithstanding the disinclination of the Governor-General to such an act of justice.—Calcutta Weekly Press.

TEA PLANTING.

We have had for some time on our table, selections from the public correspondence of the Punjab Government, No. 2, containing a correspondence regarding tea plantations in the Punjab provinces. In 1858, Mr. H. C. Watts addressed the East India Company, as representative of a company, requesting to know if they were prepared to surrender their several tea nurseries, &c., in the Himalaya Hills upon such conditions as the Court of Directors might deem necessary. Mr. Watts then proceeded to show the advantages to be derived from a joint stock company with a sufficient capital.

The Court of Directors, in reply, refer Mr. Watts to the local government, as several companies as well as private individuals have made applications for the same nurseries to the local authorities. The Secretary to the Punjab Government submits to the Governor-general an interesting account of the cultivation and manufacture of tea in the Himalayan provinces, subject to the Punjab Government. Tea is successfully grown at certain elevations in the hill tracts of Simla, Kangra, and Hazara. In Hazara the character of the population is unfavourable to experiments on a large scale. In Simla land fit for tea cultivation is believed to be very limited, and it is only in Kangra that sufficient land, the property of Government and suitable for tea, can be found worthy the attention of a joint stock company such as that applying for the nurseries. After some trials in this district a tract of waste land was found named Halta, of some 4,000 or 5,000 acres in extent, which, being left uncultivated from superstitious motives, had been reserved as the property of Government. It was found that tea thrived well there, and a tea plantation was laid out under the charge of Dr. Jameson. This plantation now extends to 800 acres, bearing some five millions of plants. The produce for 1859 is estimated at 26,000 lbs. of excellent tea, valued at Rs. 52,000, and it is further estimated that when the plants are in full bearing the return will be 150,000 lbs. of tea. The expenses are computed at Rs. 16,000. The secretary may well add that there is in this a very considerable profit. He also says that large quantities of seeds and seedlings are distributed amongst the natives gratis. The manufacture is conducted by Chinese, who have taught many of the Hill men. That a joint-stock company might employ their capital with every prospect of success in tea plantation in Kangra there can be little doubt. The Lieutenant-governor then proceeds to observe that in granting the nurseries to a company there were several conditions which must be made. These appear to be fair enough, but it makes us smile to see amongst the terms that the Lieutenant-governor thinks must be exacted, "that, when no advances have been made to a zemindar, it shall be optional to him to discontinue the cultivation of tea at his discretion; when advances have been made he is of course bound to repay them in raw leaves." This clause arises out of the idea that has become fixed amongst the civilian rulers of India that the English planters can compel zemindars to cultivate indigo, and therefore companies forming in Kangra for the cultivation of tea must not try to do the same. The next sentence, however, contains the whole difficulty—"a zemindar if he has received advances must repay them in raw leaves." How if he will not? or if he does not cultivate enough to repay his advances, or he neglects his cultivation and allows cattle to destroy it, what is to be done? The company, as usual, will have some consideration, allow another year, give a trifle more advances, and thus will gradually sink the ryot into that state which puzzles philanthropists in Bengal, and still more surprises political economists, who hear with amazement that there is in existence a class of men who force advances of money on another class of cultivators who never repay. The Lieutenant-governor further says, "Lands must only be rented or purchased from natives with their own consent." Is it possible that land in the Punjab can be purchased without the consent of the owners? This is quite as strange as the case of the people who are obliged to take money in advance. The Lieutenant-governor, moreover, advises the very course which English planters have been obliged to follow, and for doing which they are so much abused. He recommends a company of Englishmen not to cultivate for themselves, but to confine themselves to advancing money to landholders for the raw leaf. By this means, he adds, the cultivation will be indefinitely extended, as labour can be easily procured. This is the policy which the planters throughout the whole of the Bengal provinces have found the best and safest. At first it worked well, but as competition grew up and the cultivators learned how easy it was not to fulfil their contracts, as they fell into debt, and suffered all the pain and misery of indebted thralldom, the resistance became troublesome, and the outcry against the exactions of the planters in consequence has now become loud. We have daily misrepresentations made so strongly against the latter that the Government of Bengal appears inclined to join the hue and cry against them without giving due weight to the whole bearing of the case. It is this system, however, which the Lieutenant-governor recommends to the attention of speculators, and which he proposes to introduce into Kangra.

Dr. Jameson, in his letter of January, 1859 states that the experiments he has tried in Kangra for seven years have proved that the lands are admirably fitted for tea cultivation, and that the teas have been pronounced by the London brokers well fitted for the market. He gives the most satisfactory evidence as to the remunerative nature of the cultivation; the profits at present are enormous, so that, allowing for every possible contingency, the prospects for tea in the future are good.—Englishman.

MISCELLANEOUS.

RAILWAY BRIDGE AT ALLAHABAD.—A correspondent of the Delhi Gazette says the works of the bridge over the Jumna at Allahabad are being rapidly carried forward. One cylinder has reached a firm bottom, and the other must be near it. Two resident engineers, one on each bank, watch the work, which is carried on day and night, in the latter case by torch light. The daily expenditure amounts to Rs. 2,000.

ROMAN CATHOLICS AT AGRA.—The Catholic Weekly Register, a new journal started at Agra, says there are ten Catholic institutions in the city. There are the Church; the Bishop's House; the College and the Boys' Orphanage (these are both under the same roof, though in different wings of the building); the Convent, with its Boarding Schools and Girls' Orphanage; the Lay-Brothers' House; the Orphanage, Printing-office; and a Village and School for Native Catholics. Why the Bishop's house should be an "institution" we are not informed.

HONOURS FAIRLY WON.—The Bombay Standard announces that honorary titles have been granted to "two clerks in the Commissariat department." One of the "clerks," Rao Bahadoor Vizarrungum Moodeliar, was contractor for carriage to the Central India Field force. Upwards of 25,000 baggage animals were attached to this force, and there was never a delay of a day caused by the failure of his department. Among the animals were 7,000 bullocks, who from Jhansee to Culpee carried the entire bazaar, grain, provisions, and hay included. This, moreover, was accomplished through a territory the wells of which were in the enemy's hands. The recognition of services like these is a just act.

GOWHATTEE, Jan. 11.—After a voyage of twenty-three days from Calcutta we reached this place, the capital of Assam. The inadequacy of the power of the feeble old steamers sent by Government to stem the powerful current of the Burhampooter is becoming more apparent every voyage. In many places it is a question of steam against stream, and the stream obtains the mastery. In this case the steamers are obliged to send out anchors and ropes to the shore, and warp themselves along at a snail's pace, until by force of steam, crew, and hired coolies, they struggle past the "headly currents" of the stream. It is now four days since the Jumna left this, and she seems to be engaged in a contest of a very doubtful result, for her masts are still to be seen from the heights that overlook the river. Surely the commerce of this important province, an importance ever increasing, deserves something better than the worn-out under-powered steamers that 20 years ago were the pioneers of steam navigation on the Ganges, a river not to be compared, either in volume or strength, to the Burhampooter. The approach to Gowhatee gives promise of that pretty scenery, fertile soil, and healthy climate for which the valley of Assam is deservedly famed, and which were borne witness to by some old residents before the late colonization committee. The low banks of the river, covered with long grass and stunted jungle, which, for many days of navigation, weary the sight, are left behind, and on nearing Gowhatee this monotonous ugly scenery is succeeded by pretty hills on both sides of the river, densely covered with forest vegetation, and cast, as it were, on the fertile plains without reference to chain formations or regularity of any kind. A few miles inland they generally form an amphitheatre, at the bottom of which are the richest rice crops, which lie as flat beneath the hills as if the fields had been lakes. There is no gradual ascent from plain to hill, as is generally seen in hilly countries, but the amphitheatres of hills rise abruptly from plains, as I have said, as flat as lakes, and now yellow with ripe rice crops, and give to the scenery a peculiarity and beauty which I have not observed in the many countries I have visited. This fine country, however, is infested with wild beasts, and nothing but a large influx of Europeans will suffice to extirpate them, as the few Europeans that are here, and the rewards that the Government gives for their destruction have hitherto even failed to diminish their numbers. I will give you the last story of the exploits of an Assamese tiger, on the authenticity of which you may place the fullest reliance. At Burdwar, a village about thirty-five miles from this, a tiger took possession of a goal or large cow house, full of cattle and buffaloes, and began the work of slaughter. The whole of the villagers, to the number of two or three hundred, armed themselves with spears and lathes, and proceeded in a body to attack him. The tiger, instead of skulking away, boldly launched himself in the midst of his assailants, and fought like an Assamese tiger. He killed and wounded twenty-three men before he was slain. Nine men were killed, five were brought into hospital here most severely wounded, and nine more were hurt in a less degree. This affair speaks as favourably for the courage of the villagers as for that of the tiger, as it seems to have been a regular stand up fight at close quarters—a complete melee, in which the tiger succeeded with claws and teeth in placing twenty-three men hors de combat.—Englishman.

A ROLAND FOR AN OLIVER.—The Englishman reports that the dewan of the Bengal Coal Company, Beharee Lal Mookerjee, has been sentenced to six months' imprisonment, for confining a man in the coal mines. The case has been appealed. Was the imprisonment in the mine an act of private malice?

PUBLIC BENEFACTORS.—In the last list of benefactors to public works only twenty-nine native names appear:—4 persons who expended Rs. 1,000 each; 14 from Rs. 1,000 to Rs. 2,000 each; 6 from Rs. 2,000 to Rs. 3,000 each; 1 from Rs. 2,000 to Rs. 4,000 each; 2 from Rs. 2,000 to Rs. 4,500 each; 1 from Rs. 2,000 to Rs. 5,000 each; 1 from Rs. 2,000 to Rs. 6,000 each; the thirtieth is Mr. Kenny, for Rs. 13,500. Mr. Kenny, of Pubna, alone has given Rs. 13,500 to a naval hospital. Mr. Kenny is building a town upon the Kooshtee, near the terminus of the Eastern Railway.

MR. F. W. PLACE.—The Delhi Gazette announces the departure of Mr. Place, proprietor of that journal, for England. Mr. Place deserves the highest credit for his energy and perseverance. The office, books, and press of the paper perished in the mutinies. In three years Mr. Place has re-established the paper, placed it on a permanent footing, and raised its circulation to the second place on the list of Indian journals. He deserves the rest he has earned.

THE SALT MONOPOLY.—The Board of Revenue has now held two sales of salt according to the arrangement proposed by the Lieutenant-governor, but no success has attended either. We (Englishman) understand that not a single tender was made for salt at either sale. At first it was supposed that sufficient intimation had not been given for the sale of the 30th December, but the same thing happened on the 11th Jan.; no tenders were made for the salt under the conditions which the Governor supposed would be more favourable to the small dealers or the public in general. It requires a great deal of experience and study to understand the natives, and we doubt if any European ever attained that knowledge. The Government make every arrangement in their power for the benefit of the poorer classes, and these will not accept the offer. They obstinately resist all efforts to do them good. In the same way the English Government passes laws and regulations, and leaves no plan unthought of by which the ryot may be saved from the oppression of his landlord; but the ryot will not be so protected. He follows his hereditary oppressor with pleasure, and rejects the assistance the foreigner tenders him. The monopolists of the salt trade are evidently able to prevent the poorer traders coming forward to make tenders for salt, and thus combine to thwart the Government arrangement. The great salt dealers have understood at once that if the new system were successful it would work against their interests, and they have exerted themselves effectually to nullify it. The best method of meeting such a state of things is for Government to sell salt by auction in small quantities twice a week, or show that they intend doing so, and we have little doubt but the great dealers would soon submit to the new order of things. The postponement of the sales of salt from month to month, however, must end in great public inconvenience, both to sellers and buyers. The income from the salt is not realised to the Treasury, and the consumers will find salt getting dearer every day, much to the satisfaction of the holders, no doubt, who are the very parties working to defeat the whole scheme. The attention of the Lieut.-governor must have been called to this state of things, and we expect to see an early solution of the difficulty. —Englishman.

SURVEYOR-GENERAL'S OFFICE.—The Phoenix describes the internal economy of the Surveyor-general's office. It is divided into five distinct branches, three of which are superintended by Europeans:—computing branch, Radanath Sikdar; general, Mr. J. O. N. James; lithographic, Mr. H. M. Smith; mathematical instrument maker, Syud Meer Mohsin; revenue branch, Mr. W. Graham. There is not an office in India which turns out its work with such efficiency and speed.

BANK OF BENGAL.—At a meeting of the proprietors of the Bank of Bengal, a gratuity of Rs. 30,000 was voted to Mr. Lee, a retiring cashier. Mr. Lee deserves the money, but these votes of gratuities and pensions are contrary to principle, and involve the disposal of the property of the shareholders without their own consent.

POLITICAL ECONOMY IN INDIA.—The Government is now trying important experiments in the provinces of Oude and the Punjab. The theories of political economy are laid aside, and the Government consults with the people in those provinces as to the best mode of raising money by taxation. The people, fearing the domiciliary visits of the awful Indian tax-gatherer, readily pronounce for the barbarous system of town duties, and hints are more than made of impending transit duties, all systems which the better informed English Government have long ago abolished. The natives of India fear the inquisitorial systems proposed by the Legislative Council with reason, and are glad to escape them at any cost. The oppression which the bulk of the people suffer from town duties scarcely touches the comfortable merchant; the transit duties will benefit him. In fact, both methods of taxation are favorites with the capitalist. They compel the merchant to employ more capital before he can bring his goods to market, and in limiting the consumption of goods throw the trade more in the hands of the capitalist. This explains the readiness with which the leading merchants in Oude and the Punjab so readily approve of town duties or transit duties. These taxes are essentially bad, and the policy retrograde; but whilst these experiments are being tried in the North West, why should not Government try an experiment on more correct principles somewhere else? Bengal, for instance, offers a fair field for another great experiment in taxation. In this province Government might, without hesitation, levy a direct tax—an income-tax of 3 per cent. on every one in the receipt of an income exceeding Rs. 100 a month. There would be no necessity for consulting the people on the subject, but they might be allowed to understand that it was a system on its trial, and care should be taken to carry it out without oppression. European agency should be alone employed in the assessment, aided by collectors of districts, or whatever machinery the Government had at command. The Government of India would thus have an opportunity of feeling its way towards a better system of taxation, and to use the words of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, the system thus begun may be capable of expansion, it may be found on examination not to be so inquisitorial as at first feared, and that it does not necessarily involve the exposure of the individual's mercantile position. In the same manner it may be found that the amount demanded from the landed proprietors of Bengal may not be unwillingly paid, at least that it will be found to be a measure not so impolitic as the Government of India imagines. By thus treating the wealthy and prosperous province of Bengal a result may be obtained quite as valuable as, if not more so than, the experiments now making in Oude or the Punjab. —Englishman.

FREIGHTS.

To London, £1. 17s. 6d. to £2.
To Liverpool, £1. 12s. 6d. to £1. 15s.

EXPORTS (Calcutta, Jan. 21).—We have no new feature to report this mail. The advance in freights and exchange has as yet had no visible effect on the value of goods. Raw silk sells at extreme rates. Indigo has advanced in value. Sugar nothing doing. Saltpetre in small supply and higher. Jute dull and drooping. Lac-dye and Shell-lac higher, and the latter in excellent demand. Oil seeds very firm.

IMPORTS (Calcutta, Jan. 24).—The improvement mentioned in the last report was increasing during the first few days of the last fortnight, but lately the market influenced by the great tightness of money in the bazaar, and the very high rates of interest charged by the native bankers, became gradually dull and quiet, and consequently prices of most descriptions of Piece goods are one to two annas per piece lower. The Bank of Bengal increased its rate of interest one per cent. all round, and there is every probability that this state of things will be maintained for the present. Yarns shared in the general dullness of the market, and they have lost some of the last improvement. Metals firm, but little doing.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HYDERABAD, Jan. 3.—Disorder of a new stamp has been raging in this city of ours, that is to say, such as we have not had for the last forty-six years, when Moorbaruz-ood-Dowla, the son of the then reigning prince, fought a portion of the contingent which was sent to post guards over his house to control his licentiousness—murder of a high functionary of the Government, the collector of city customs, being part. Meer Futteh Ali, a half brother of the late Nasir-ood-Dowla, and uncle to the present sovereign, was directed by his Government not to purchase a house and garden situated within the jurisdiction of the English residency, as liable to make a difficulty by bringing the prince into collision with it. The seller of the house, a sahookar, was forbid to put him in possession. But as the bargain had proceeded to the length of the prince paying a sum of money on account, the prince insisted upon the completion of the purchase, and as the means of effecting his object, seized upon the sahookar, whose life he threatened, and abruptly took possession of the Nukkar-khana of an Ashoorkhana, posting within it, and within a lofty pavilion of his, commanding a principal street of the city, Arabs and Rohilas. His strength in military retainers, whom he had for a considerable time continued to keep in his pay, consisted, conjointly with the guard of sepoy assigned to him by the Government, of something less than two hundred men. He fortified and loop-holed these two posts. The Nazim's Government posted its troops on the opposite side of the street. The prince, who is not a calculator of consequences, and has never appeared but as defying the power of the Government, aware of the advantage of his position (for I am not informed of any other reason for his doing so), fired upon the opposite party. He had it all his own way; his men were not exposed, and his fire took place with so much effect upon the opposing party and the poor inhabitants of the city (it is pastime to the Arabs and Rohilas to make men their butts), that the Government soldiers were constrained to put themselves under shelter. The intention was by all possible means to avoid any personal injury being sustained by the prince; guns were posted against his house, but not fired. For twenty-four hours the prince disposed of things as he pleased. About twenty persons, his assailants and city inhabitants, were shot down. It was time to put an end to this; but still, not taking advantage of the strength its guns gave it, the Government directed its troops to escalate the main building of the Ashoor-khana, which they did without opposition, and the prince's party in the Nukkar-khana became exposed to their fire. Four men were shot, and the Nukkar-khana was evacuated. The pavilion was forced similarly, and the troops which had surrounded the prince's house, pressing closely upon it, indeed gaining its outer courts, he waved his handkerchief, to which immediate obedience was paid by the Government troops, and the firing ceased. A negotiation to adjust the dispute is going on. I believe concession is made to the prince in a modified form. He is to have one of the Nizam's garden houses given to him, and money to pay up the arrears, and discharge his Arabs and Rohilas. But there is a hitch which will be got over, probably in the course of the day, and that is, that the prince, though consenting to receive the money, has no mind to discharge his Arabs and Rohilas. The Government troops have hemmed him in closely, and will starve him as a last resource into concession.—Englishman.

THE MADRAS PIER.—The Indian Statesman describes the progress of the Madras pier. "Its dark mass is gradually, and, we may add, very rapidly, extending itself into the sea; and in the course of another month, if no accident intervene, it will have reached the spot where the second surf breaks in ordinary weather." The extreme length is to be one thousand feet, bringing the pier into smooth water, and avoiding all the dangers of the surf.

AN INDIAN BORGIA.—The Bangalore Herald reports an attempt at wholesale murder in a style somewhat new to India. A durzee of Bangalore invited several of his caste to dinner. About forty men and women attended, and were plentifully fed. After dinner the durzee, Yencojee, produced two bottles of noyeau and a bottle of port. The latter he gave only to his enemies. The port was so bitter the guests could not drink it, but six men, one old woman, and nine children were taken ill. Three of the men died. Yencojee was arrested, and the chemical examiner testifies to the presence of poison.

MILITARY ITEMS.—The dissolution of the two native veteran battalions connected with this presidency is at hand; the order on the subject will, it is anticipated, soon be published. In the meantime we hear that the officers are to be transferred to the European veterans. It is also reported, on good authority, that instructions have been received here from England to disband all corps raised since the mutinies. As the disbandment of the three extra regiments of native infantry was ordered some time since, the present instructions can only apply to the Madras Sapper Militia, a native regiment raised for service within the limits of the presidency by Lord Harris during the mutinies. It is 960 strong, exclusive of non-commissioned and officers. An order, dated the 21st Jan., has been issued by Sir Patrick Grant, directing the amalgamation of the two native troops of the horse brigade of artillery. The combined troops will be styled the F troop, and will consist of 84 privates, 200 regimental horses, and the necessary number of commissioned and non-commissioned officers. This measure is, in all probability, attributable to the recommendation of the military retrenchment commission, which has just concluded its inquiries at Madras, and which consists of Colonel Balfour, Madras army, Col. Jameson, Bombay army, and Col. Burn, Bengal army. The reduction recently ordered in the strength of the native regular army is, it is believed, the result of one of their recommendations, and if their proposals are agreed to generally, the military expenditure of Madras, now so large in consequence of its having to garrison provinces whose revenues are credited to Bengal, will be considerably reduced. In connection with the five years military staff order, which is to take effect a few weeks hence, it is currently reported that Lieutenant-Colonel Hamilton, of the 1st N. I., and just now officiating as deputy secretary to Government in the military department, will be the new Adjutant-general of the army, vice Lieutenant-Colonel Woods, relieved, and that Colonel W. C. McLeod, presently Brigadier in command at Jaulnah, will in like manner succeed Colonel Reed, c.b., in the appointment of Quartermaster-general. We are disposed to think that a better selection than that of the first-named officer could not well be made. There was lately some talk of the Adjutant-generalship being given to Lieutenant-Colonel Denison, of H.M.'s 52nd foot, now deputy adjutant-general of H.M.'s forces in this Presidency, but he not having yet passed in any native language, is of course not qualified for a local staff office; and even though he had been so, we trust that the authorities would not have made choice of him to the prejudice of the officers of the whole Madras army, whatever may be his fitness. Report further alleges that Lieutenant-Colonel Pritchard, of the 8th N.I., is meanwhile to fill the post of the judge advocate-general of the army, vice Lieutenant-Colonel Macqueen, who takes the place of the Honourable Mr. Devereux as judicial commissioner in Mysore, during the absence of the latter on sick leave. In all likelihood his transfer will be permanent, since it is probable that Mr. Devereux will attain higher office when he returns to the East, if return he does at all.—Athenæum.

MALABAR COAST, Dec. 27.—The weather is pleasant throughout the coast during the day, but cold at night and early part of the morning. Cholera is raging fearfully in South Malabar. There is no news of importance from North Canara. Lieut. Drever, the commissioner of police, with the police seebundies, makes occasionally a tour through the jungles, clearing the bundwallahs from them. Troops are still employed there in small detachments at ten different places. Detachments of the 5th Regiment M.N.I., employed there since the commencement of the disturbance, are now relieved by detachments from the 8th M.N.I. The head quarters of the field force is at Jugglepett, under the command of Capt. Fletcher, of the 8th N.I., and in medical charge of Assistant-surgeon W. P. Kelly. The Queen Beebe of Cannanore has had her Islands of Maldiv, sequestered by Government since the year 1849, now restored to her on the payment of 20,000 Rupees. The Fort Adjutant's Office at Cannanore closes with the last day of the year, the duties to be carried on hereafter by the Brigade Major. The duties will be rather too heavy upon one officer; as there are no Deputy Assistant Adjutant General or Deputy Quarter Master General, all the duties of these departments are at Cannanore carried on by the Brigade Major. The Brigadier has represented this, and it is expected the Commander-in-Chief will move the Government for the re-appointment of a Fort or Cantonment Adjutant for the garrison at Cannanore.—Englishman.

THE GOVERNOR'S PROGRESS.—Sir Charles Trevelyan is still out on his tour through the south and south-western districts of this Presidency. Accounts have reached us of his doings at Pondicherry and Negapatam. At the former place he was received by his Excellency the French Governor with the utmost cordiality, and was entertained by him at dinner, in the course of which complimentary speeches were delivered on both sides. M. D'Ubraye proposed "The Queen," and, in returning thanks, Sir C. Trevelyan said that his only desire was to see the two colonies, like the two mother-countries, rival each other in the arts of civilisation; and added, that he did not doubt but that the great man who now so successfully rules the French nation wished to maintain the existing friendly relations between the two countries, a proof of which feeling was to be found in the joint expedition to China. At Negapatam an address from the inhabitants, setting forth the requirements of that place, was read to Sir Charles, who returned a suitable reply. Prince Venkatasawmy, a member of the Royal family of Kandy, has accepted employment under the Great Southern of India Railway Company. This is the first instance in India of any pensioner of royal blood endeavouring to earn a livelihood. The Prince, who was presented to his Excellency, fears that his stipend from the Ceylon Government may be stopped, in consequence of his having determined to increase his income by "the sweat of his brow," but he was assured by Sir Charles that he would speak to Sir Henry Ward on the subject at his approaching interview with that gentleman. Whether this event will come off there is now some doubt, as the Punjab (the steamer in which his Excellency was to proceed to Ceylon) has returned to Madras for the purpose of assisting in conveying H.M.'s 44th to China.—Athenæum.

A NATIVE MUSICAL CRITIC.—A native gentleman has furnished the Times and Standard with the following account of a musical entertainment given at the house of Dr. Bhow Dajee:—"Runchodbhoy, the disciple of the celebrated poet of Guzerat, Dyaram, gave the other evening, at Dr. Bhawoo's house, a musical entertainment before a select party of the principal merchants and some of the educated natives of the island.

The vocal powers of Runchodbhoy were extraordinary; and his songs were distinguished by all the grace and polish of which the native languages are susceptible. They were the composition, chiefly in the Gujeratee, Marathee, and Hindostanee, of the poet Dyaram, who is said to have bequeathed to his disciple a collection of 135 books of songs and ballads in manuscript. They treat of every subject of interest to the natives; they are songs spiritual, elegiac, amatory, etc., some of them portraying descriptions of Indian cities and scenery, and others reciting the traditional history of hindoo sovereigns and mythological deities. The pleasure we enjoyed on the evening in question cannot be described in words. The listener was at one time lulled into dreamy repose by the soft and liquid strains of melody stealing upon the affections; at another, whirled through the air with the rising and falling intonations of the enchanter's voice; then again, he felt the blood mantling the forehead at the relation of some heroic achievement; or else the heart was touched in the tenderest chords by the bashful admissions of a maid of Kattiawar to her shepherd-lover. The spiritual songs were as sublime in conception as they were beautiful in language and rich in poetic imagery. Runchodbhoy's talents certainly deserve the support of the rich native Shetts of Bombay; and if he were induced to sing for two or three evenings at the Grant-road Theatre, the natives of the island would have some idea of the felicity that may for the time be enjoyed from music like Runchodbhoy's. The best result, perhaps, would be that they might learn to despise the unreal fascinations and ordinary singing of native dancing girls."

CHRIST CHURCH, MOUNT ROAD.—A Government grant of Rs. 200 per mensem is to be made to this church from the 1st December, 1859. In his despatch, dated the 4th November, Sir Charles Wood, the Secretary of State, says:—"When the subject was formerly under consideration, the Court of Directors, in the absence of any information showing the title of the district to Government aid, arising from the residence in it of Christian servants of Government, declined to comply with the application for a grant. It now appears that the larger portion of the congregation of Christ Church is composed of servants of Government, most of them in subordinate grades of the service, and that had it not been for the benevolent exertions of the projectors and supporters of the church, there would have been no adequate accommodation for the public servants residing in the neighbourhood. In consideration of these circumstances, I have to signify my sanction of the proposed grant."

THE CHINA EXPEDITION.—The Bombay Gazette publishes the following sound advice to officers proceeding to China:—"Urge your friends to take with them to China a good supply of warm as well as of cool clothing, merino jackets, drawers, and hose, flannel shirts, and 'binders' for the stomach. Thus, and thus only, can they hope to escape congestion of the liver, diarrhoea, dysentery, &c.; but, thus provided, they need not fear. Every officer ought also to take with him some of the more useful medicines, the supply of which is generally deficient both in the shops, and in the Government and Regimental Dispensaries. I would suggest an ounce of quinine, a good sized bottle of Gregory's powder, of the kind which in China we call the 'ponderous,' made, I believe, with 'ponderous magnesia'—a good sound stoppered phial of aromatic spirits of ammonia—ditto the essences of ginger and peppermint—a two ounce measure, a minim ditto—a good supply of seidlitz powders, and an ounce or two of aperient pills. A couple of dozen of quinine wine is also desirable. All depends on the early treatment of seemingly trifling ailments. When in China they will find it advisable to dress in silk; its non-conducting (electrical) properties renders it most beneficial."

THE GERMAN LEGION.—The Poona Observer says all but three hundred of the German Legion are on their way back to the Cape. The three hundred have volunteered for the 3rd Bombay Infantry. The Germans, who were expected to be exceedingly troublesome, have been, on the contrary, exceedingly quiet and well behaved. The Legion is said by those on the spot to be a loss to the service.

CHINA.

HONG KONG, Jan. 14.—The London Mail of the 26th November arrived here on the 12th instant.

No further intelligence has arrived from Japan announcing any change in the state of matters there; but it is confidently hoped that the firm attitude assumed by Mr. Consul-General Alcock will have the effect both of re-assuring the Japanese Government and of checking the improprieties of the British residents, who have behaved in such a manner as to cause the partial stoppage of trade. It is difficult to obtain information as to what is going on in the Japanese ports, but there appears to be very good grounds for the warnings held out by Mr. Oliphant and others against the expectation of any great and sudden extension of British trade from the opening of these ports. When first opened there were a number of curious articles presented in the market, which gave something to do; and the purchase of gold coins afforded a most profitable trade; but the real commercial questions in regard to Japan—viz., how far it is willing to take our manufactures and can give us raw produce—yet remains to be solved.

The question as to how far Japan may be able to supply us with coal is about to be investigated by Lieut. Malcolm, R.E., who has left Shanghai for Nagasaki for that purpose.

The Minister of the United States at Yedo has officially communicated that he has obtained a pledge from the Japanese Government that the treaty of Yedo will be carried out in all its integrity, and that, more particularly, Japanese produce may be freely purchased, and all Japanese articles may be exported without limit, except rice, wheat, copper coin, and uncoined Japanese gold and silver. The quarter to be occupied by foreigners will also be settled immediately.

From Shanghai the only news of importance is that the Chinese Government has given the comp de grace to the gratuitous supposition that it means to ignore the American treaty which was ratified at Peh-tang. Not content with allowing that treaty to come in force, and opening the new ports of Swatow and Taiwan, it has extended the provisions of the American treaty to the English and other treaty powers. Ho, the imperial commissioner, has been authorised by the Emperor to direct that the tonnage dues at the various open ports be levied at the reduced rate of four mace per ton, as secured by the new American treaty; and has even given directions for the granting drawbacks for the extra mace which may have been paid by British and other ships since the 21th November, when the new treaty came in force. This is but a small matter in itself, but it shows how willing the Chinese are to act up to the fullest letter of their treaty engagements when the demands made are clear, and presented in a courteous manner.

There was a report among the Chinese that Hwashana, one of the Imperial Commissioners who signed Lord Elgin's treaty, had been put to death, but it has not been authenticated.

In the Shanghai paper there appears correspondence complaining of young foreigners causing annoyance and threatening to raise mobs among the Chinese, by breaking their lanterns, and otherwise indulging in "larks," which the Chinese cannot appreciate, and which, if persisted in, will soon make us as unpopular in Shanghai and in Japan as we ever were in Canton of old.

Another ship has left for the British West Indies with Chinese emigrants, among whom there were the large proportion of 115 women, 37 boys, 20 girls, and 11 infants. A third vessel will very soon be despatched. It is likely that many more emigrants will come forward after the Chinese New Year, which falls on the 23rd inst.; and the success of this scheme is now set beyond doubt, so far as China is concerned.

Mr. Gingell, the newly-appointed consul at Amoy, where he was vice-consul before his recent visit to England, has entered upon his duties at that port, relieving Mr. M. C. Morrison, who appears to have won high respect and regard at Amoy.

Of local matters there is absolutely nothing to record—not even a fire or a libel case.—Overland China Mail.

CEYLON.

COLOMBO, Jan. 30.—The weather during the past fortnight has been clear and dry, all that coffee planters could wish. Five ships have sailed for London and one for Havre, taking away 20,694 cwt. of plantation coffee, and 9,089 of native—total 29,783. Our total exports of coffee since 1st October, 1859, are 183,144 cwt., a figure considerably in advance of previous years; the excess, however, being entirely on plantation kinds, native being lower than for the last three years.

The St. Thomas' College strife still occupies public attention, and a so-called "piracy" case brought by a Singhalese Colonial chaplain against the church missionaries, has added to the ecclesiastical excitement. The St. Thomas' College case has been referred to arbitration; but we believe the missionaries are determined to obtain a clear and final legal decision in the case brought against them by Mr. Dias.

It has been no secret in the community for some time back that correspondence of a very hostile and mutually recriminative nature had taken place between the Government and the Committee of the Kandy Friend-in-Need Society, with reference to the management of the hospital under the care of the latter. Into this hospital coolies in the last stages of diarrhoea and dysentery have been constantly taken, many of them actually dying. It could not be surprising, therefore, that under such circumstances the rate of mortality should be large. But the mortality has not been merely large; it has been excessive—frightful—amounting to considerably more than one out of every three admitted in 1859! This was after some improvements had been made which put a stop to hospital gangrene, a malady which previously had caused twenty deaths in one year, some of the victims having gone in with nothing worse than a cut or an ordinary ulcer. Such a state of things was not to be endured—and for the sake of the great interests of the colony dependant on a regular supply of labour—for the sake of our credit as a civilized and Christian community—we must rejoice that steps have been taken which will, it is hoped, render the scenes which have been witnessed in the Kandy Hospital impossible for the future.

The Immigration Commissioners, who had tendered their resignation, have consented to act until the tax is collected, and all the necessary preparations for this disagreeable operation are going on. We trust that ere the lapse of eight months from the present time the benefits of the immigration scheme will be apparent to console the public and the planters for its cost. The Protector of Immigrants at Madras has reported against the long engagements Ordinance, and the Madras Government is said to have adopted his sentiments. But the final decision rests with the Central Government of India, and we do not see why coolies for Ceylon should not be engaged in India as well as coolies for Mauritius.

The usual planters' dinner is announced for the 23rd of February. We hear, with much regret, that Messrs. Tytler and Brown, who have so well filled the offices of chairman and secretary, are about to retire. Mr. Tytler, we believe, goes home shortly, so that the statement in a contemporary that he is likely to be the new planting member of the council, cannot be well founded.—Ceylon Overland Observer.

JAVA.

The accounts regarding the military operations in Celebes are scanty, but so far as they go satisfactory. The success of the Dutch arms in Boni is said to have produced a profound impression on the neighbouring populations who were not involved in the contest. One of the principal chiefs of Boni came in and made submission on the 11th December, accompanied by the assurance that his example would be speedily followed by the rest of the chiefs. The general has made a demand upon the kingdom of Waju for the delivery to him of the Queen of Boni. Matters are proceeding so satisfactorily that the general has already sent back two companies of infantry to Java.

The intelligence from Banjermassing is not so favourable. Three companies of infantry have been sent to reinforce the troops there. Expeditions had been sent out in different directions, and had destroyed a number of the strongholds of the rebels. No traces could be found of Sultan Kuning and Pambekel Aling, the chief leaders of the insurgents. On the 23rd December the gunboat No. 42, stationed in the Trussan, was attacked by a party of rebels, which plundered it of all the weapons on board except one musket, and wounded four of the crew.

A much more fatal attack was made on the 27th December, on H.M. steamer Ornat. This vessel lay about five days steaming above Banjer-massing in a narrow creek, where the population professed the most pacific disposition. Only two hours before the attack the Tumungong Surabati, with some of his sons, came on board, and had a conference with the commander and a military officer who was charged with a mission to the Upper Dusun. He parted from them with the best understanding. Between twelve and one o'clock mid-day, however, when the crew were at dinner, a body of about 600 men, in a great number of prahus, suddenly made their appearance from some creeks and attacked the Ornat, so that the crew had not time to fire more than one shot when the assailants were in possession of the vessel. All on board, consisting of seven officers and fifty-five men, were murdered, and the Ornat run aground.

The editor of the Batavia Handelsblad has been sentenced to eighteen months imprisonment by the Court of Justice at Batavia, for a libel on the Governor General. The sentence is at present under revision by the Supreme Court of Netherlands India.—Singapore Free Press.

THE STRAITS.

SINGAPORE, Jan. 21.—The official statement of the trade of Singapore for the year ending 31st April last, shows that the value of the imports amounted to Rs. 56,728,842, and of the exports to Rs. 51,286,571. The imports in 1858-59 were less than those of 1857-58 by Rs. 10,264,097, and the exports in 1858-59 were less than those in the preceding year by Rs. 6,549,268. The value of the imports from Great Britain was Rs. 12,725,779, showing a decrease compared with the previous year of Rs. 5,716,316. The exports to Great Britain amounted to Rs. 7,037,914, exceeding those of 1857-58 by Rs. 1,162,636. The imports from the continent of Europe were Rs. 2,127,548, being less than in the previous year by Rs. 186,641. The exports to the continent of Europe were Rs. 1,169,565, showing a decrease from those of 1857-58 to the extent of Rs. 1,106,568.

The number of square rigged vessels which arrived at Singapore during the official year 1858-59 amounted to 1,570, with an aggregate tonnage of 650,285. This was in excess of the numbers of the previous year by 171 vessels and 63,358 tons. The 1,759 importing vessels were under the following flags:—British, 1,027; American, 80; Arabian, 4; Belgian, 6; Bremen, 20; Danish, 25; Dutch, 260; French, 30; Hamburg, 35; Native, 20; Portuguese, 15; Peruvian, 10; Prussian, 5; Swedish, 15; Sardinian, 6; Siamese, 15; Spanish, 6. Besides the above 31 vessels of war arrived during the same period. The number of native boats which arrived at Singapore in 1858-59 were 1,986, with a tonnage estimated at 92,351, being less than in the previous year by 220 boats, but showing an increase in tonnage of 5,487. The number of vessels which sailed from Singapore in 1858-59 was 1,230, with a tonnage of 467,887, showing an increase compared with the preceding year of 203 vessels, and 66,083 tons. The 1,230 exporting vessels were under the following flags:—British, 692; American, 78; Arabian, 4; Belgian, 6; Bremen, 19; Danish, 25; Dutch, 256; French, 30; Hamburg, 31; Native, 33; Portuguese, 13; Peruvian, 10; Prussian, 5; Swedish, 10; Sardinian, 6; Siamese, 15; Spanish, 6. The number of native boats which left was 2,031, with a tonnage of 93,415, being an increase of 72 vessels, and 4,807 tons. —Free Press.

THE TELEGRAPHIC CABLE between Batavia and Muntok has been again ruptured. This is the third break that has occurred in that part of the line.

PINANG.—“The opinion,” says the Pinang Gazette, “seems to be gaining ground that the climate of Pinang is hotter and less healthy than it was in former years. There is probably some foundation for this. The great mass of the island consists of a mountain range which was covered, except in a few places, with a dense and deep layer of natural forest. The population was confined to the flat and undulating ground forming the skirts of the hills or filling the ancient bays and inlets on the leeward side, and although the high land intercepted the wind from the open sea, its vegetation helped to preserve moisture and reduce the temperature. The extensive denudation that has attended the progress of the Chinese planters in the hills has undoubtedly increased both the heat and the malarious areas. In place of dark-green vegetation, a hundred feet in thickness, the shady depths of which were cool and humid in the hottest weather, large tracts of bare or scantily-covered soil, from which boulder-like rocks protrude, are now exposed along the entire length of the range. In droughts the surface rapidly parts with its moisture, the rocks become hot to the touch, and the mountain-wall that shuts in the plain from the sea air becomes a powerful radiator of heat into the air over our heads.”

CENTRAL ASIA.

Dec. 16.—Sirdar Shere Ally Khan went on a visit to Sooltan Mahomed Khan, as instructed by the Dost, and informed him that it would be very inconvenient for him to remain in Cabul during the cold season, and that the Ameer was also willing to accompany him to Jelalabad. Sooltan Mahomed Khan replied that last year he went to Jelalabad, and the expenses attendant on the tour amounted to Rs. 10,000, which sum was borrowed from other parties; and that now no person would lend him any money; he also stated that he had sent his sons to collect the revenue from the villages, in consequence of which he was unable to proceed to Jelalabad. He (Sooltan Mahomed Khan) preferred remaining in Cabul in peace. To which Shere Ally Khan replied that he was willing to lend Sooltan Mahomed Khan Rs. 4,000, and that the Dost would also assist him with money to go to Jelalabad. Sooltan Mahomed Khan thanked Shere Ally Khan for his generosity, but still adhered to his former proposition. Shere Ally Khan remained with Sooltan Mahomed Khan till 8 p.m., advising him in many ways to leave Cabul, but finding all his remonstrances of no avail, returned to the Ameer, and stated all the particulars of his visit. Dec. 17.—Nubhoo Khan, son of Sooltan Mahomed Khan, whilst at dinner, invited his wife, named Humdum Sooltan, to dine with him, and offered her some liquor, which she refused, stating that she would not drink any liquor with him. Nubhoo Khan then sent for a water melon, and asked his wife to partake of it, which offer she accepted, when he stabbed her with a knife, and put an end to her existence. The sad intelligence reached Sooltan Mahomed Khan, (father of the assassin) who put him under arrest, and next morning sent the corpse of the deceased to her father, with Rs. 140 ! ! ! Dec. 18.—The Ameer again summoned Sirdar Shere Ally Khan, and ordered him to pay another visit to Sooltan Mahomed Khan, and to represent to him that as but a few days were remaining of their lives, it would be better to spend them in peace and comfort at Jelalabad. Shere Ally Khan and his son, Mahomed Ally Khan, started for Sooltan Mahomed Khan's house, and made the same proposals as before, urging him to proceed to Jelalabad with the Ameer, to which conditions Sooltan Mahomed Khan consented, stating that in order to please the Dost and Shere Ally Khan he had accepted the offer. Shere Ally Khan returned to the Ameer, and related the particulars of his interview, and of Sooltan Mahomed Khan's intention to proceed to Jelalabad. The Ameer on hearing this was much pleased. The Ameer then rode off to the residence of Mahomed Oosman Khan, who was ill, and returned at 8 p.m. Dec. 19.—A kossid from Kandahar brought a petition from Mahomed Ameen Khan to the Ameer. The purport of the urzee ran thus:—That all was peace and quietness at Kandahar; that a gold mine had been discovered at Kandahar, which yielded 1 charookh of gold daily, and sometimes more. A goldsmith named Gunesha meanwhile arrived from Kandahar, and presented the Dost with 4 miscal of gold. The Ameer ordered the gold to be purified, and only 2 miscal, 12 grains of real gold remained. The goldsmith represented to the Dost that more than 1 charookh of gold is found in the mine at Kandahar. The Ameer turned round and told Shere Ally Khan that Mahomed Ameen Khan had misrepresented the quantity of gold dug out of the mine at Kandahar; and that it would be advisable either for him or Shere Ally Khan to go and inspect the mine personally. Shere Ally Khan replied that it would be inadvisable for the Ameer to proceed to Kandahar in person. The Ameer then ordered Shere Ally Khan to proceed to Kandahar, and to make his own arrangements on the gold mine. Shere Ally Khan reiterated and told the Ameer that if he should go to Kandahar Ameen Khan would be displeased, to which the Dost replied that he had appointed Shere Ally Khan Governor of Kandahar, and that Mahomed Ameen Khan had no cause to be displeased. Shere Ally Khan consented to the Ameer's suggestion and returned home. Dec. 20.—The Ameer held a durbar this morning at which all the Sirdars attended to pay their respects. Shere Ally Khan enjoined Sooltan Mahomed Khan and some other Sirdars to intercede on his behalf to the Dost, not to send him to Kandahar, because if he should go to Kandahar, Mahomed Ameen Khan will be much displeased and might leave Kandahar and proceed elsewhere; Shere Ally Khan also stated that his brothers would also be displeased with him. —Lahore Chronicle.

VOTE OF CREDIT.—CHINESE EXPEDITION.—

Last week was printed "an estimate of the sum which will be required in the year ending the 31st March next, to defray the expenses which will be incurred for naval and military operations in China, beyond the ordinary grants for navy and army services for the year 1859-1860." The sum in question is £450,000.

CONSULAR APPOINTMENT.—(Foreign Office, Feb. 18.)—

The Queen has been pleased to approve of M. Ladislas Cochet as Consul at Singapore for H.M. the Emperor of the French.

KILLING A TIGER.—

A correspondent of the Bombay Times describes the killing of a tiger by strychnine. The tiger infested some low undergrowth at the bottom of his garden, and he resolved to destroy it. He therefore took a buffalo recently killed by the tiger, and strewed a quantity of strychnine in the bitten flesh. The tiger came, ate as usual, and died immediately.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

TUESDAY, Feb. 28, 1860.

A GRATEFUL AND DISCERNING PUBLIC.

IN the last generation writers of fiction delighted to portray the "old Indian" as a surly, eccentric, irascible old curmudgeon, with a face as yellow as his nankin inexpressibles, and a heart as dry and withered as his skin. Now-a-days the rich "Nabob" is replaced by a caricature infinitely less truthful, but far more offensive. The Company's officer is now depicted as a low-lived, beer-swilling gambler, ignorant of his profession, and skilled only in the arts of a blackleg; or else he is a swaggering, hectoring bully, having no thought but for pig-sticking and tiger-shooting, and addicted to "nigger-walloping." The civilian is drawn with an equal disregard to correctness of proportions or truth of colouring. He is either a prig, unacquainted with anything but his own importance, intrenched in a sort of "Castle of Indolence," neglectful of his duties, and bent only on filling his coffers; or else he is a stuck-up, inflated wind-bag, the veriest ass and noodle in creation, speaking an unintelligible jargon thickly interspersed with Oriental words, and the possessor of marvellous shawls and jewellery which only the other day were known to be the highly-prized property of the native prince at whose barbaric court he had the honour to be the British "Resident." So much for "The Services"—but the commercial class is handled with no greater tenderness. The merchants are given to remarkably sharp practice, the indigo-planters are adepts in chicanery, usurious, and oppressive, while public journalists are men of low origin and lower principles, devoid of culture, scurrilous, abusive, unpatriotic, and fond of vulgar personalities. For much of this systematic misrepresentation the Anglo-Indian community is indebted to the late special correspondent of the Times, whose gross exaggerations may charitably be ascribed to ignorance and, perhaps unconscious, prejudice. But the misconceptions entertained by the British public towards their countrymen in the East are attributable in a higher degree to the brilliant, but unscrupulous, talent of the author of "Wanderings in India," and of many other works as amusing as they are untrustworthy. A kind of practical digest, however, of the highly-coloured statements of these two popular writers has now been shaped into a dramatic form by Mr. Tom Taylor, and crowded audiences are nightly convulsed with laughter at his ridiculous but insulting delineations of Anglo-Indian character. There is the ex-resident, Sir Solomon Fraser, K.C.B., an egregious self-satisfied blockhead, the owner of priceless diamonds, extorted from a certain Nawab. There is also the ex-commissioner of a district, with a damaged reputation, sneaking home under the imputation of having embezzled £80,000 of public money—though this is subsequently cleared up, for the sake of his daughter, the demoiselle à marier of the piece.

Moreover, there is the hectoring major, ever breathing fire and thunder, but at last proved to be a poltroon, and kicked off the stage for stealing beer from the common store of the shipwrecked passengers and crew; nor is the card-sharper forgotten in the person of the would-be fascinating Captain Clavering. Many conventional jokes are, of course, introduced, at the expense of Indian diplomatists, Indian judges, Indian generals, and Indian journalists, at all of which pit, gallery, and boxes evince their delight and amusement. But, we may fairly ask, if Englishmen in India are such noodles, cowards, rogues, and drunkards, how came it that they subdued and held so vast an empire? How, too, are we to account for the numerous excellent works compiled by members of the Indian services, and which are admitted to be an honour to the national literature? Is it not passing strange that men of such small capacity and of such vulgar habits should have surpassed the greatest achievements of ancient or modern times? What other people can show so vast an empire, so firmly consolidated, so ably governed, so justly administered, acquired, too, by the servants of a company of merchants, and that within the lives of three generations? If the refuse and scum of the middle classes could do so much, how is it that the crème de la crème has done so little? In truth, it is both unjust and ungrateful thus to disparage men who have deserved so well of their country, whether individually or collectively. If the nation has thought proper to appropriate the fruits of their labours, it augurs neither good taste nor good feeling to decry those labours.

In diplomacy our English statesmen might do worse than sit at the feet of the wise and great men who welded together so many and such various races. Of the Indian army it is needless to speak, for some of the most glorious passages in the national records were added by the valour and military skill of the Company's forces commanded by the Company's officers. As to the non-official residents, they may be compared with advantage, or, rather, may be favourably contrasted with those of any nation under the sun settled among a foreign, a conquered, and an inferior people. Indian journalists are quite capable of fighting their own battles, without any aid from us; but yet we may ask if any paper in Great Britain evinces greater talent, a more varied learning, or a more pure and vigorous style than the Friend of India. For local knowledge and for breadth of treatment we are not aware of any provincial papers, at least, that can be placed on a level with the Calcutta Englishman, the Delhi Gazette, the Madras Athenæum, or the Bombay Gazette; while for brilliancy of thought and diction not many even of the London journals can take precedence of the New Times or the old Mofussilite.

LORD ELGIN AND SIR M. SEYMOUR.

AN unhappy fatality appears to be attached to all the combined naval and military expeditions despatched from this country. An unaccountable jealousy almost invariably divides the respective commanders at the very moment when the strictest union and harmony of action are necessary to success. The same sort of misunderstanding springs up where only one service is engaged, if there be a diplomatist at hand to interfere with, or control, the operations proposed to be undertaken. A notable instance has just come to light. The last treaty concluded with China obtained for H.M.'s Plenipotentiary no small amount of honour and popularity, and men of all parties agreed in commending his Excellency's resolution and perseverance equally with his tact and forbearance. Nor were the merits of the Admiral in command of the China station overlooked or forgotten, for it was universally acknowledged that Lord Elgin's eminent success was in no small degree attributable to Admiral Seymour's gallantry and professional ability. Judging only from results, the public was disposed to believe that these two distinguished personages had co-operated with the utmost cordiality; and had it not been for recent revelations, future historians would probably have spoken of the Treaty of Tientsin as the fruits of the excellent understanding that existed between the diplomatist charged with the conduct of negotiations and the naval officer whose duty it was to give irresistible force to the arguments of his colleague. Unfortunately, however, the subsequent disaster before the Takoo Forts tore the treaty into shreds, and rendered all the anxiety and labour so lately undergone mere waste of time and thought. This was certainly not a little provoking; but as no one attributed Mr. Bruce's misfortune to any laches on the part of his predecessor, it was scarcely necessary to rake up old grievances in defence of what had never been attacked or impugned. Lord Elgin seems to be under the impression that had he been able to proceed in person to Peking the affair at the mouth of the Peiho would not have occurred, and he directly accuses the Admiral of having prevented him from fully completing his mission. This allegation was first hinted, rather than asserted, in Mr. Oliphant's interesting narrative of Lord Elgin's Mission, and as that gentleman was his lordship's private and confidential secretary, Sir M. Seymour not unfairly surmised that the charge was inspired by the Plenipotentiary himself. Smarting under an imputation perilous to his honour, that gallant officer naturally vindicated himself before the House of Commons, and retorted upon his virtual accuser that, had his counsels been fully acted upon, a still greater calamity than Admiral Hope's repulse would have befallen the British squadron. The result of these various charges and counter-charges, insinuations and recriminations, is the publication of two angry despatches from Lord Elgin to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, directly imputing to Admiral Seymour's dilatoriness and non-execution of instructions his detention in the Bay of Pecheli and the probable frustration of his designs. His lordship sets forth that, although Sir Michael had promised to have a fleet of gunboats at Shanghai before the end of March, those vessels whose presence was indispensable to the success of his plans did not reach their destination until a month later, at a period when the climate was unhealthy for Europeans, and that in consequence of this delay the season for action had slipped away and his own mission was thereby encumbered with additional obstacles. To this serious accusation the Admiral makes an exceedingly temperate but quite unanswerable reply. He shows that his departure from Canton at the time he had originally fixed upon was prevented by the force of the monsoon, against which the gunboats could not have made head—the Calcutta losing her mainyard even as it was; that in a stormy sea it is impossible to tow gunboats to any advantage; that so far from the season for active operations having passed, it had only commenced, and that as to the unhealthiness of the climate, only one man died in the whole force between the 20th May and the 7th July, and that very few cases of even sickness occurred; and that, after all, as he himself, and not the Plenipotentiary, was answerable for the conduct of operations, his lordship would have acted more wisely in awaiting his arrival at Shanghai instead of hastening with an inadequate force to the Bay of Pecheli at a season still unnecessarily dangerous for naval warfare. We cannot but think that Lord Elgin has been ill-advised in making public the differences that occurred between himself and Admiral Seymour, who is clearly exonerated by the published correspondence from every imputation made against him. Had he displayed less judgment the consequences to the squadron under his command, and for whose safety he alone was responsible to the country, might have been very disastrous. It is no dishonour to Lord Elgin that he was not acquainted with the peculiar seasons of storm on the Chinese coast, but on such a point it was his duty implicitly to defer to the experience of the naval officer on whose support he was dependent. Unhappily, non-professional men are ever too ready to take into their own hands the entire management of a campaign. They appear totally unconscious of the importance of details, and seem to imagine that it is as easy to carry out a plan of operations as to sketch it on paper. They quite overlook such considerations as local peculiarities, whether of climate, seasons, produce, or configuration of the country. In their impatience to reach the scene in which their own distinctive part is to be played, they take no account of intervening obstacles, or aggravate them by their inconsequent interference with their professional colleagues. It is, therefore, much to be desired that on all future occasions the position of her Majesty's representative should be clearly marked out, and that those who are answerable for the success of active operations should be allowed to form their own plans, and to carry them out in their own way.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—FEB. 22.

BATTA FOR THE PERSIAN EXPEDITION.

Mr. ADAM asked the Secretary of State for India if he would state the substance of any communication which he had lately received from the government of India regarding the payment of extra batta to the troops engaged in the Persian war; and whether her Majesty's government were prepared now to recommend the payment of such batta?

Sir C. WOOD had to state that a short time ago a recommendation was made on this subject by the government of India. The value of the prize captured in Persia was small, and the government considered that the forces engaged in the expedition by land and sea had an equitable claim to six months' batta. Under the arrangements made one-half of the amount was to be paid out of the Indian revenue, and the other half out of the revenue of this country. He had inquired of the Secretary of War whether the War-office were prepared to carry out their part of that arrangement, and although he had received no official answer, he believed that would be done.

THE CHINESE WAR OF 1857.

Lord BURGHLEY asked the Secretary of State for War when the field allowance claimed by the officers of the artillery and of the line, who were sent in the year 1857 to the attack of Canton, in lieu of the consolidated allowance which they were ordered in April, 1859, to refund, was to be paid?

Mr. S. HERBERT said the allowance due to the officers engaged at Canton had been paid to those who remained in China. Those who came to England had for the most part applied to the War-office and been paid, and if any officers who had not yet received their allowance applied to the War-office, and stated the particulars of their claim, the money would be forthcoming.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—FEB. 24.

PROMISSORY NOTES IN INDIA.

In answer to a question from Mr. R. W. Crawford,

Sir C. WOOD said that about half a year ago a proposal came from the Government of India for establishing a note circulation. The Government, not knowing what would be the best mode of proceeding, did not proceed at that time. It was then in contemplation to send out Mr. Wilson as Financial Councillor of India, and then it was determined that nothing should be done till after his arrival, that gentleman being well acquainted with the financial circumstances of India, and also with the operation of the bank-note system in this country. Communications took place on the subject between Mr. Wilson and the Governor and Deputy-Governor of the Bank of England before Mr. Wilson left England, and the result was that the general outline of a scheme was framed. Since his arrival in India Mr. Wilson had had some discussion with the Governor-General on this subject; a very able minute had been sent home embodying the results of their consultation; and he believed that a bill for establishing a note circulation in India was proposed to the council about the middle of last month. No precise amount was stated, but the object was to establish a note circulation which would be on the same footing as the notes of this country emanating from the issue department of the Bank of England, and totally disjoined from any banking operation whatever.

FORCES FOR CHINA.

General PEEL said he had seen it stated in a newspaper that there were 14 regiments of the line, comprising 20,000 men, to be sent from India to China. He thought the public ought to be informed of the names of those regiments. The only provision made to meet the expenditure of the China war was a sum of £500,000, which he thought would hardly cover the transport of stores. He wished to know what was the number of British troops in India the Government were prepared to pay for in the next financial year. The total number of her Majesty's troops was 235,852. Of that number 143,326 were on the British establishment voted by Parliament; the remaining 92,400 were on the Indian establishment. Now, that was in excess of the number of men voted by Parliament. It was necessary there should be a clear understanding upon this point. He believed the estimates would not cover the charge, and that the Government would be compelled to take an additional vote for China. In that case he should say the estimates of the Chancellor of the Exchequer were inaccurate. The gallant general concluded by asking what was the amount and description of force that had proceeded, or was about to proceed, from India to China; specifying, if possible, the regiments of which the European portion of the force was composed; and what number of British troops (including the depots) he was prepared to pay for out of the revenue of India during the next financial year.

Sir C. WOOD said, in reply, there had gone from India to China one company of Engineers, the 3rd Buffs, and the 67th Regiment. There were under orders to go to China two squadrons of Dragoon Guards, the 31st and 44th and 99th Regiments, three batteries of Royal Artillery of horse, and one without horse. These were all that were actually reported as going. But orders were sent out to the Governor-General to send two more regiments, each of which, it was said, numbered little more than 800. He found, however, that the regiments going to China would be made up to 1,000 each. It had been intended to send five regiments, and orders had been given for two more, so that the numbers sent altogether would amount to 5,500. He was informed at the Horse Guards that the two next battalions going out were the 3rd battalion of the 68th Madras and the 1st battalion of the 13th Calcutta but that was at present a matter of uncertainty. In a letter received from India he was told that it was the 56th Madras and the 60th Bombay. He was unwilling, however, to state that as a fact, as the matter was uncertain. With regard to the native force, he believed there were four regiments going to China to replace those that were were already there. With respect to the regiments going, they would be paid exactly as the regiments were now paid. There would be five native infantry regiments of irregular troops to the extent of 4,000 men. There would be four troops of irregular cavalry of 400 men each, two companies of the Madras Sappers to the extent of 250 men; so that the total force would be 5,500 European troops, gone or going from India to China, and 4,000 natives in round numbers. Some of the regiments in China were ordered back to India.

General PEEL.—Are any ordered home?

Sir C. Wood continued.—There were no Queen's regiments ordered home from China. One dragoon regiment had sailed from India on its way home. He could not state at present what force the Indian government could spare. With regard to the amount of charges on this country, the cost of the Indian depots chargeable on the Indian revenue was £17,552.

OFFICERS IN THE QUEEN'S AND THE COMPANY'S SERVICE.

Mr. CONINGHAM asked the Secretary of State for India a question with reference to a distinction which appeared to exist between officers in the Queen's and those in the Company's service. He said he was induced to put the question in consequence of an officer in the Company's service being indebted to a considerable amount to one of his constituents. He wished to know whether it was one of the peculiar privileges of the Company's service not to pay their just debts. In a similar case, in which an officer in the Queen's service was concerned, he (Mr. Coningham) had applied to the Horse Guards, and after a correspondence he obtained payment of the debt due to another of his constituents.

Sir C. Wood explained that when a demand was sent into the India-office by any creditor of an officer in the service, the department forwarded that demand to the officer. They did not, however, think themselves bound to enforce payment to the tradesman. Excepting in cases of discredit or dishonour, they did not interfere further than by forwarding the demand; and, as at present advised, he was not prepared to extend the practice, and to put themselves in the position of a court of law.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INDIA-OFFICE, FEB. 23.—Notice is hereby given that the Secretary of State for India in Council has received returns of unpaid shares of donation batta, granted to the "forces employed in Burmah during the campaign of 1851-52," due to officers and seamen of the following ships of the Indian navy, viz.:—Berenice, Ferooz, Medusa, Moozuffer, Sesostria, Zenobia; and that those shares will be paid to the several parties entitled, on their application at the Marine and Transport Department of this office, after the 29th February, 1860.—J. INDIAN RIVER NAVIGATOR.—On Wednesday last one of a number of vessels building by Messrs. John Laird and Sons was tried on the Mersey, and excited a great deal of interest and attention from its novel appearance. The hull is 260 feet long and 36 feet beam, and is constructed of steel plates made on Mr. Clay's principle, the vessel in general appearance resembling much the American river steamers. She drew about sixteen inches of water at the bow, and her hull appeared only about three feet above the water. The whole weight of the vessel and machinery is supported by arched girders. The engines are 200-horse power. The steering apparatus is of a novel character, the stern being divided into two parts, resembling the ends of two canoes lashed together, from which depend two boards or rudders like lee-boards in shape, which are raised alternately as the course is required to be changed from starboard to port, or vice versa.

1. ALGEBRA, TRIGONOMETRY, AND MENSURATION.
2. ANALYTICAL GEOMETRY (CONIC SECTIONS), STATICS, DYNAMICS, AND HYDROSTATICS.
3. THE DIFFERENTIAL AND INTEGRAL CALCULUS, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c., &c.

The object of this work is to furnish Candidates for the Military and Civil Service Examinations with such a practical knowledge of Pure and Mixed Mathematics as may prove most serviceable to them in the course of the ordeal to which they are about to be subjected. On such occasions a mere theoretical acquaintance with principles is by no means sufficient. It is also necessary that the young aspirant should have been trained by actual experiments, as it were, to the application of the abstract rules, the enunciation of which he has otherwise mastered only by an effort of memory. To assist him in thus gathering the fruits of his intellectual industry, Mr. J. R. Young has devised a multitude of problems, of greater or less difficulty, in Algebra, Trigonometry, Mensuration, Analytical Geometry (Conic Sections), Statics, Dynamics, Hydrostatics, the Differential and Integral Calculus, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c. The chief peculiarity of this work, however, is one that will recommend it to a very large class of students. The most difficult questions are rendered comparatively easy, by the practical simplifications that are introduced in their mode of solution. Instead of a pompous and puzzling display of technical phraseology, the utmost care has been taken to explain the most knotty points in a plain, unaffected manner, intelligible to every ordinary capacity. In this respect, Mr. Young's "Course of Mathematics" will be found to possess a decided superiority over all preceding works on the same subject.

ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, an Oriental,
 Botanical, Preparation for Improving and Beautifying the Complexion and Skin. It is distinguished for its extremely bland, purifying, and soothing effects on the skin; while, by its action on the pores and minute secretory vessels, it promotes a healthy tone, allays every tendency to inflammation, and thus effectually dissipates all redness, tan, pimples, spots, freckles, discolorations, and other cutaneous visitations. The radiant bloom it imparts to the cheek, the softness and delicacy which it induces of the hands and arms, its capability of soothing irritation, and removing cutaneous defect, render it indispensable to every toilet.

It obviates all the effects of Climate on the Skin, whether with reference to cold and inclemency, or intense solar heat.

CAUTION.—The words "ROWLANDS' KALYDOR," &c., are on the wrapper of each bottle, and their signature, "A. ROWLAND and SONS," in red ink at foot. Price 4s. 6d. and 8s. 6d.

Sold at 20, Hatton-garden, London, and by Chemists and Perfumers.

BURROWS and Co., WHOLESALE WINE MERCHANTS, LIVERPOOL.

Stores Offices Lime-street. 55, Duke-street.

The Proprietors beg most respectfully to call the attention of the Trade, Noblemen, Clergy, and the Public to their extensive stock of CHOICE WINES of rare vintages.

B. and Co. are not disposed to comment upon the purity of their Wines, which is daily most laudably acknowledged by the public and eminent medical men of all countries, as the increasing patronage of the highest families in the land is a sufficient guarantee.

They beg to call attention in particular to their Pure Tonic Wines as being so valuable to invalids and persons of weak stomachs.

A sample case, containing full-sized sample cases, will be forwarded to any address on receipt of 6s. 6d., or a dozen for 24s.

It is a well-known fact that impure and adulterated Wines are the greatest foes to health, producing acidity in the stomach, and debilitating the digestive organs, while pure Wines will accelerate the digestive powers, invigorating, strengthening, and bracing the nervous system.

Their Tonic Wine is admitted to be most essential to invalids, both old and young, and should never be absent from the homes of the weak and sickly. Its properties are duly acknowledged by the leading men of the Faculty both at home and abroad.

To prevent imposition each bottle is sealed with the name of the firm.

All orders to be made payable to HENRY BURROWS.

JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228, Piccadilly, London.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.

ACIDITY, HEARTBURN, FLATULENCY, ERYSIPELAS.—This formidable array of ailments will not alarm those who have once witnessed the happy manner in which each and all of them yield to the purifying influence of these Pills. Their effect is vastly increased by rubbing the part, or the skin over the part, affected with Holloway's Ointment, which passes through the skin, and acts upon every organ placed internal to the portion rubbed. It is wonderful how indigestion succumbs to such treatment, which always gives relief in a short time. Erysipelas, gout, and rheumatism are always accompanied by disordered stomach, which the same remedies readily rectify by purifying the blood and regulating the action of the liver, kidneys, and bowels.

SORE THROAT, Recent Cold with Cough,

Menses, Fevers, and all Inflammatory Disorders, are IMMEDIATELY RELIEVED by Dr. JAMES'S FEVER POWDERS, when given on the first attack according to directions. In Rheumatism and Chronic Complaints it has performed the most extraordinary cures, when used with perseverance. In Packets, at 2s. 6d., &c. The genuine has "F. NEWBURY, No. 45, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD," London, on the Government Stamp.—Proprietor of the COD LIVER OIL CAKES. Established A.D. 1746.

THE MAGNESIAN EFFERVESCENT is

the most agreeable and effective remedy in all cases of Gout, Rheumatism, Acidity, Heartburn, Indigestion, and Biliary Affection, Nausea, Fever, Thirst, and Sea-sickness. It is highly recommended by the profession, and will be found especially valuable to those going to India or travelling in warm climates; as a mild and efficacious saline aperient it stands unequalled, and will be found peculiarly adapted for delicate females and children. To be obtained through all respectable chemists, and wholesale from Messrs. BAILEY, Farringdon-street (put up in stoppered bottles at 4s. 6d. for India), and smaller size at 1s. 14d. and 2s. 9d.

Prepared only by EDWARD PRICHARD, Chemist, 10, Vigo-street, Regent-street, W.

LENTUM, A NEW COMPOSITION

for Artificial TEETH and GUMS, recommended to Invalids and to who suffer from Indigestion. Its flexibility and lightness give the greatest power in mastication, avoiding all pain or pressure on the gums, without springs, wires, or any unsightly gold. It supports all loose and tender teeth, and does not require the extraction of stumps. Prepared only by

Mr. ALFRED JONES, SURGEON-DENTIST to Her late Royal Highness the Duchess of Gloucester, Her late R.H. the Princess Augusta, the late Louis Philippe, and the ex-Royal Family of France.

64, GROSVENOR-STREET, GROSVENOR-SQUARE. At Home from Eleven till Five.

TO SUFFERERS with CORNS and

BUNIONS.—Ask for a Box of YOUNG'S CORN and BUNION PLASTER, which will eradicate corns or bunions in a very short time. Be careful that you have YOUNG'S—the name is printed on the label; all others are imitations. Price 6d. and 1s. per box, or by post for thirteen postage stamps. Address H. YOUNG, 31, Shaftesbury-place, Aldersgate-street, E.C. May be had at most chemists throughout the world. Agents wanted abroad. N.B.—A Liberal Allowance to Wholesale Dealers.

JAMS, JELLIES, and MARMALADE,

PRESERVED IN TINS,

By BARNES, MORGAN, and Co.

(the Originators of this method of preserving), Upper Thames-street, London, E.C. This mode of Preserving is now acknowledged to be far superior to any yet invented. The contents will keep good for any number of years without the Tin imparting any metallic taste to the Preserve, and never candy or ferment. To Regimental Messes they are peculiarly adapted, being more portable than jars, and not liable to breakage. B. M. and Co. would also recommend their Pickles, Sauces, Tart Fruits, &c., and their large stock of York and Cumberland Hams, Cheese, and Bacon.

THE FAMILY BOOT-MAKER.

BURCHETT, 71 Oxford-street, nearly opposite the Pantheon, London, and Crystal Palace, Sydenham. The best assortment of LADIES', GENTLEMEN'S, and CHILDREN'S BOOTS and SHOES in the Kingdom.

EXCELLENCE—ELEGANCE—ECONOMY.

THE PERFECT SUBSTITUTE FOR SILVER.—The real NICKEL SILVER, introduced more than twenty-five years ago by WILLIAM S. BURTON, when PLATED by the patent process of Messrs. Elkington and Co., is beyond all comparison the very best article next to sterling silver that can be employed as such, either usefully or ornamentally, as by no possible test can it be distinguished from real silver.

A small useful Plate Chest, containing a set, guaranteed of first quality for finish and durability, as follows:—

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.:—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

The Mails for China are despatched at the same rate of postage as those to India; but must be pre-paid.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

WE have news, or, to speak more correctly, we have newspapers, from Bombay to the 11th of February.

Lord Elphinstone, we regret to hear, has had a severe attack of illness, and proposes to return to England almost immediately. With regard to the higher military authorities there appears to be a sort of hitch. Had Lord Clyde returned to Europe this spring, as he originally intended, Sir William Mansfield would have succeeded to the chief command at Bombay. As matters now stand, Sir Hugh Rose accepts the Bombay command provisionally, while Sir William proceeds to China, as second to Sir Hope Grant: but the Mofussilite asserts that he has refused to do so; and as that paper is once more edited by Mr. John Lang, its statements on military affairs may not be regarded too lightly. Three Queen's regiments, the 3rd, 67th, and 99th, have already been despatched to China, but the movements of the others previously under orders are suspended for the moment, in consequence of troops being sent out direct from home. The following native corps have also volunteered:—the 5th, 8th, 15th, and 19th Punjab infantry, the regiment of Lucknow, and the 1st irregular cavalry.

The Nepal campaign is officially announced at an end, the Commander-in-Chief having issued a general order of thanks to the Trans-Gogra Brigade, under Brigadier Hodditch, C.B. It is stated, moreover, on the authority of the Lucknow Herald, that Jung Bahadur has surrendered the Begum and the young Prince Burjis Kudr, and that they have actually arrived at Gondah on their way to Lucknow. Should this report happily prove true, we trust that Lord Canning will not lose such a fine opportunity of displaying magnanimity to a foe "worthy of his steel." With all her faults the Begum has exhibited an heroic courage and endurance throughout the protracted struggle, and is entitled to admiration for her hardihood as well as respect for her womanhood.

The Viceroy held a Grand Durbar at Umballa on the 19th, at which the Maharajah of Pattiala the Rajah of Jheend, and many other native notabilities were present. At a review in the afternoon of the same day Lady Canning presented new colours to H.M.'s 87th Royal Irish Fusiliers, and gracefully alluded to the long roll of achievements of that distinguished corps. The next Mail will probably bring intelligence of his Lordship's arrival at Lahore. Mr. Wilson, having made good use of his temporary absence from the proper scene of his labours, returned to Calcutta on the 24th of January, and on the following day an important communication was made by him to the Council. It was, in fact, a proposition to introduce a paper circulation, in the form of a Government note, and the effect of the rumour was instantly to cause a rise in the value of Stock of between three and four per cent.

A very sad and disgraceful incident has occurred at Kirkhee. Only three weeks previous Sergeant-major Hunt was presented with a silver tea service by the officers of the 14th dragoons, "in testimony of his zealous and faithful services as Mess-sergeant during a period of eleven years." Mr. Hunt then retired from the regiment in which he had so honourably acquitted himself, and became the leading partner in the firm of Hunt, Monnet, and Co., with every prospect of happiness and prosperity. His reasonable hopes, however, have been rudely nipped in the bud through the villany of a young officer in his old corps. Having discovered that his wife had proved faithless to him, and that her seducer was Cornet Browne, he proceeded to that gentleman's quarters, and demanded the satisfaction to which, under the circumstances, he was clearly entitled. Being met, however, with jeering and insult, he pulled out a pistol and shot the cornet through the chest, though the wound is not expected to be mortal. It is needless to add that the sympathy of all classes has declared itself in favour of Mr. Hunt.

Our readers will be glad to learn that a clasp for the "Relief of Lucknow" is to be granted to the troops engaged in the operations against that city under the immediate command of Lord Clyde in November, 1859.

The cheap pocket edition of the "Queen's Regulations and Orders for the Army," announced in a recent number of this journal, is now ready for delivery. Equally copious and authentic with the Government copy, of which it is a miniature fac simile, this edition has the double advantage of being at once cheaper and more portable.

BENGAL.

SARTOR MILITARIS.

The British soldier in India now enjoys one compensation for many miseries. He is dressed habitually in clothes which he can wear without danger to life or limb. He is not reduced to the verge of apoplexy by a leather strap pulled tightly round his neck. He is not often padded till he cannot breathe. He is never trussed up in clothes so tight that half his strength is spent merely in resisting pressure. He is not kept in a state of permanent fever by a mass of red cloth half as heavy as himself, and of a colour which attracts at once the enemy's bullets and the sun's rays. Partly from the necessity for work produced by the mutinies, and partly from Lord Clyde's common sense, he has been permitted to assume a uniform exactly adapted to the climate and his wants. The loose muddy grey attracts no heat, leaves his limbs unconfined, attracts no dust, and demands very little time or labour to keep it clean. It is, moreover, exceedingly cheap, perhaps the cheapest of procurable cloths. To most men those qualities seem advantages. So keenly, indeed, have they been felt that, in this presidency, all rules and regulations have given way before the palpable advantages of the khakee uniform. Officers share the feeling with their men, and hard riding generals contend that the workmanlike look of the dress, and the efficiency it secures, are ample compensations for the absence of a brickdust coloured glare.

Sir Henry Somerset, Commander-in-Chief at Bombay, is of a different opinion. In an order which we can only hope he did not compose, he pronounces the dress "slovenly," and "at variance with the proverbial correct and neat appearance of the officers and soldiers of the British Army," and desires to impress upon all that the "uniform as laid down in her Majesty's Regulations is that which must be ordered on all occasions when the adoption of khakee is not actually necessitated in consideration of the health and comfort of officers and men." Nobody is to attend parade in it, or pay visits, or appear at places of public resort, "except on occasions of unusual heat." What is unusual heat? Ninety-five in the shade is not unusual at all in Bengal, but at that temperature the "neat and correct" uniform of the British soldier is as provocative of disease as bad rum or exposure. The Commander-in-Chief distinctly complains of the "great heat" of the upper stations, and must, therefore, have some season in his mind when there is greater than great heat, and khakee may be worn. The degree should have been fixed, and the unlucky sub might then have added a thermometer to his looking-glass, and regulated his uniform on scientific principles.

Soldiers in Bengal will smile at an order which condemns the only rational costume ever adopted by the British army. Unfortunately, the importance of such orders is not to be estimated by their merits, and an additional two per cent. to the mortality of the Bombay army will soon remove any undue tendency to mirth. —Friend of India.

TUFFUZOOL HOSSEIN KHAN.

Tuffuzool Hossein Khan has at last been rewarded by the Government of India. This gallant native, as our readers may remember, was for thirty-six years a ressalidar in the British service. He settled, on his retirement, at Nagpore, where his character, and we believe some personal connections, secured him a wide influence, invariably exerted on the British side. The mutinies found him mourning for his eldest son, and seriously ill, but he had still strength to arrest a revolt. The irregular cavalry were considered doubtful, and orders were issued to arrest some of their officers. Tuffuzool Hossein begged permission to exert his influence, and the impending revolt was averted. Since then, his counsel and his voice have always been at the service of Government, and his only reward has been to see his family house twice plundered.

Mr. Plowden, it is believed, meant to reward him, but the case, like everything else, was left unfinished, and the Government had no information on which to act. At last, nearly three years after the service had been performed, Major Elliot extracted the narrative out of some pigeon-hole, and forwarded it to the Government. The ressalidar has been created Sirdar Khan Bahadur, and invested with a jaghire of Rs. 6,000 a-year. The estate on his death will be reduced to Rs. 4,500, but after that no further reduction will be allowed, and the jaghire will appertain to his family for ever. The sunnuds have arrived at Nagpore, and in a few days one of the few instances of gross neglect of native service and fidelity will have been liberally repaired.

We are not aware of Tuffuzool Hossein's social rank, and, judged by his army rank, his reward is liberal to the full. Nevertheless, a new noble or two owing his position to ourselves would be a source of power in a province so new, and so little within the cognizance of Indian opinion. What has become of the estates of Narayun Singh, of Sonakhun? If confiscated, they, as semi-civilised lands under a peculiar tenure, might be made the centre of a property held exclusively by landlords devoted to British power. Such a proprietary would do much to counterbalance the influence of the classes who still mourn over the extinction of the ancient court. The citizens may plot, but a few really faithful barons in the interior would draw away the only real power they possess—the adherence of the classes to whom fighting is a trade. —Friend of India.

WHO GOVERNS INDIA?

The newspapers in Madras and Bombay are discussing the affairs of Nagpore, on a point which involves far more than the fate of any single principality. The facts, according to their account, are these. Mr. Plowden, in ways not very clearly explained, neglected and ill-treated the Nagpore Ranees. Mr. Ellis, a Madras civilian, employed in the province, indignant at what he witnessed, appealed to the Governor-general. All business, not urgent, being about a year in arrears, he received no reply. He accordingly posted to England, and there brought the affair unofficially to the notice of the Ministry. He also published a pamphlet which excited considerable interest at the India House. Finally, he appears to have convinced the Secretary of State of the correctness of his charges, and was ordered to Nagpore to attend a commission of inquiry. He obeyed, but on his arrival was met by the information that Mr. Plowden had been removed, and by a letter from Lord Canning, directing him to quit Nagpore and return to his own Presidency. Of course he took leave, having, however, apparently spread the information he had obtained somewhat widely. At least we cannot otherwise account for the reports that the adopted son, Sanghu Sahib, is to be raised to the titular rank of Rajah of Nagpore, and to receive a large pension. No one save the Secretary of State could issue such an order, and no official order emanating from any authority in India seems to have reached Nagpore.

Upon these facts our contemporaries unite in a chorus of condemnation of the Calcutta Government. Mr. Ellis, the most generous and disinterested of men, has been snubbed. The order of the Secretary of State has been set aside. Parliament must hear of the affair, and, in short, there is the usual expression of unthinking dislike for the central authority, not because of its demerits—for Mr. Plowden is removed—but because it is central.

The entire discussion seems to us to resolve itself into this, who governs India? Her Majesty's Ministry certainly, but through the Governor-general, not through anybody they may choose to select. Mr. Ellis may be the most excellent and disinterested of civilians. He certainly placed his own prospects at stake in order to remedy what he conceived to be an injustice, and we have all honour for his courage and his zeal. But Sir Charles Wood ought to have acted exclusively through the Governor-general. If he is to act independently of local authorities, send, as it were, a private and unaccredited ambassador to see justice done in a particular native state, there is at once an end to authority. Lord Canning, as usual, permitted preposterous delays to interfere with action. But that, though a reason for condemning his administration, is none for setting his rightful authority aside in an individual case. If every subordinate who pleases is to represent matters just as he chooses, and the Secretary is to act on those representations, what is the use of a Government at all? Mr. Ellis was probably in the right, as he certainly was most magnanimous. The next pleader in Leadenhall-street may be desirous only of notoriety, or power, and may succeed by dint of writing, instead of facts; yet, if Sir Charles Wood is at liberty to act directly on one set of representations, why not on another?

It is no slight misfortune for us all that, just as the home government is beginning to exercise an initiative in India, we should have a viceroy so unpopular as to induce the public to welcome any interference with a feeling of pleasure. We cannot, however, permit a personal question of this kind to blind us to the menaces directed against the only charter of freedom we possess. If India is not to be governed in India, Anglo-Indian opinion is a nullity. We are handed over helplessly to a power which cares as little for local resistance as it understands local opinion. As long as all action must be taken through the Governor-general, so long we have some security against the effects of ignorance or party feeling. The moment the Secretary acts direct, the government becomes a despotism, untempered even by epigrams. To-day the Deus ex machina rescues native ladies from oppression. To-morrow he may pauperise a service, or throw an army into revolt. In sending Mr. Ellis back to Madras, therefore, Lord Canning only intimated his opinion of a kind of interference which it is the policy of all Anglo-Indians to resist.

The principle involved in the Dhar case is widely different. No one doubts that England is, in the last resort, to give final orders upon all Indian questions. A final and most peremptory order has been given, and ought to be obeyed. The annexation of Dhar, so far as we know the facts, was justified by the rebellion of the local court, but that point does not really affect the question. England has decided, and her decision ought to be carried out. To baffle an order by delay, is simply to make all authority uncertain. It creates in politics the system of appeals, which destroys the efficiency of our legislation. The secretary is final referee, but to issue a direct order, upsetting a decision of the Government of India, and to countenance local intrigue directed against a decision of the same authority, are widely different acts. The one may be as expedient as a Parliamentary censure on a Minister's act. The other can but lead to administrative anarchy. —Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A SWINDLER CAUGHT.—Two or three days ago, an individual describing himself as "Mr. Bingham, Assistant Commissioner of Hissar," called on Jehanghire and Co., Parsee shopkeepers at Delhi, and after having made various purchases, asked them to lend him Rs. 2,000 on the security of a draft for Rs. 30,030, drawn by the collector of Allyghur on the Sub-Treasurer, Fort William, promising to refund the loan, with interest, immediately on his arrival at Hissar, and on doing so, the Parsees were on their part to return the draft. While the negotiation was in progress with the Parsees, one of the firm slipped out with the draft, in order to assure himself, by inquiring at the Delhi Collectorate, that it was a genuine document before parting with his money. The officials instantly detected that the original amount which the draft represented when issued at Allyghur was only Rs. 30, as the native figures remained unaltered, and the change in the English figures was very clumsily effected. After his arrest on a charge of forgery, the man declared his true name to be French, that he was the son of an engineer, and nephew to the Archbishop of Dublin! Mr. DeGrayther, the deputy-magistrate of Delhi, is now engaged in taking evidence, and as the culprit is an European, of course he will have to commit him for trial at the supreme court of Calcutta. What will this cost? Delhi is nearly 1,000 miles from Calcutta. The travelling expenses of the prisoner, a constable to guard him, or perhaps two, as a man can not be always awake, several witnesses, say a Parsee shopkeeper from Delhi, two officials from the Allyghur Collectorate, and one from the Delhi—and then, too, the majority will have to be sent back again at the public expense. This is very expensive justice, hardly worth the cost.—Mofussilite.

BURNT TO DEATH.—We have been favoured with a correct version of the lamentable accident which caused the death of Lieutenant Holmes, 20th Regiment, at Gondab. It appears he was reading and smoking a cheroot at about one o'clock at night, in bed. His mosquito curtains were not burnt. Therefore it is supposed he got out of bed to light his cheroot, and in turning away set fire to his night shirt, which must instantly have blazed up, as he rushed into another room where an officer happened to be writing, calling for help, and enveloped in flames. The other officer instantly snatched up a resai from the bed, wrapped it round him, and extinguished the flames as quickly as possible, but not before he was burnt severely in several vital places. Every remedy was tried immediately, and there was some hope till eleven o'clock next morning, when he began to sink, and died without much suffering at 7 p.m. that evening. Our informant adds that this ill-fated officer has had some miraculous escapes, and was struck by a rifle bullet directly over the heart while in the trenches before Sebastopol, which glanced from his pouch belt without injuring him. Several other dangers almost as great, both by sea and land, he escaped, and died at last, poor fellow, by a touch from the flame of a candle! We might take advantage of the melancholy event to moralize on the uncertainty of human life, but we refrain, and let the simple facts appeal of themselves, as they must, to the feelings of every thinking reader. It appears that Lieutenant Holmes was a great favourite, both with the officers and men of his regiment, and the sad event has thrown a gloom over the station.—Delhi Gazette.

THE RIGHT HON. MR. WILSON arrived in Calcutta on Tuesday evening, the 24th January, and a Council was held on Wednesday, at which some important financial questions were discussed. We understand the question of a paper circulation is under consideration, in the form of a Government note, bearing a small interest, which would meet the views of the natives on this subject. Such a note might take the place of the houndee, so extensively employed by native bankers and merchants, for convenience as well as credit. The Hurkaru understands that Mr. Wilson will return to England after twelve months, as he fully expects to do all that is expected of him in that time.

SUMBULPORE, Jan. 20.—The rebels finding we have made the jungle too hot for them, have evaporated. Three or four Ramghur irregular cavalry mutineers have been seized, and are now in the gaol here. Sickness is still heavy among the native troops.

TROOPS FOR CHINA.—His excellency the Governor-general has been pleased to direct that the officers commanding the native volunteer regiments proceeding on service to China shall draw the usual command allowance, Rs. (400) four hundred per mensem, drawn by officers commanding regiments of the line; that officers commanding companies in the volunteer regiments shall draw the usual allowance, Rs. (50) fifty per mensem, for the command of a company; and that compilers of pay abstracts shall be appointed in each of the volunteer regiments by the commanding officer.

SIMLAH, Jan. 30.—A Sunnud has been granted to Meer Ugur Singh, of Hindoor, by the Governor-general, bestowing that state on him and his heirs in perpetuity; this Meer is the illegitimate son of Ram Surrun, a former Rajah of Hindoor, who was our great ally during the Gourkha campaign, and brother to the late Rajah Benjah Singh, who died in January, 1857, leaving no direct heir to the throne. Meer Ugur Singh petitioned Government to be allowed to sit on the throne of his forefathers; this petition has at last been granted, and the Deputy-commissioner, Lord W. M. Hay, is now at Nalaghur, the residence of the Rajahs of Hindoor, to perform the ceremony of installation. Owing to the gathering of the Hill Chieftains at the late durbar at Umballah, and the desire of Ugur Singh to be placed on the throne without delay, but few chieftains will be present to witness the ceremony, for those who were at Umballah are desirous of returning as speedily as possible to their homes, having already expended what to them, with their slender incomes, appears an enormous amount of money. The State of Hindoor before it lapsed to the British did not pay tribute; the terms of its sunnud merely called upon it to furnish contingents in cases of necessity in aid of the Government of India; but the sunnud now given to Ugur Singh renders the State tributary, as an annual payment of Rs. 500 is to be made into the British coffers. We have again had bad weather, and a fresh fall of snow, though far from a heavy one; in one day and two nights about eight inches altogether fell. The trees this morning present a truly wintry aspect, their branches being covered and bent to the ground with a burden of snow; the sun made his appearance for an hour or two in the early morning, but clouds have once more gathered, and I fear we shall yet have a continuance of this cheerless weather.—Delhi Gazette.

PORT BLAIR.—Lord Canning has ordered that prisoners at Fort Blair, of good conduct, shall be employed as guards, to whom pay should be given as a reward for continued good service; besides, they are to receive a pardon after five years. The number of convicts now amounts to 1,832, of whom 996 are for life, and 336 for limited time.

DEATH OF THE EX-RAJAH OF MITHOWLIE.—We understand that intelligence has been received from Port Blair of the death of Lonee Sing, the ex-Rajah of Mithowlie, who, as our readers will remember, was tried in March last by the Judicial Commissioner of Oude, and sentenced to transportation for life. The ex-Rajah, after application to Lord Canning, had petitioned the Home Government for a remission of his sentence, on the ground of the insufficiency of the evidence adduced against him; but no answer to his appeal has as yet been received in Calcutta. Previously to his being sent to the Andamans, he had appealed to the Governor-general to be allowed to remain in Calcutta until the result of his petition to England should be known, as his state of health was then so precarious that he feared his removal would cause his death; this was, however, refused and his predication has been realised.—Bengal Hurkaru.

CORRESPONDENCE UNDER DIFFICULTIES.—We (Oudh Gazette) will give Lord Canning an item of news, which probably will make his lordship open his eyes a bit. The Governor-general, perhaps, fancies that the king of Delhi and his sons, in being sent to Birmah, were put out of all reach of doing mischief. Not so indeed. Amongst the heap of miscellaneous papers found amongst the traps of Khan Bahadour Khan, in the Terai, is a Persian letter, bearing date corresponding with the 19th February, 1859, and the seal as well as the sign manual of one of the sons of his ex-majesty, addressed to Khan Bahadour Khan, asking him in mingled terms of distress and hauteur for assistance in money, telling him that the royal family were wofully hard up, and upbraiding him for not showing his loyalty to them by remittances, at the same time commending the wretch of Bareilly for his persistence in rebellion. This precious epistle is written on a sheet of the finest mourning De la Rue, the most peculiar and remarkable thing about it being the black border, which is fully a quarter of an inch deep. Indeed, we never saw paper so deeply mourning before, and it was probably significantly used to indicate the melancholy condition of the writer and his sire. Now, if the king or his son, or anyone else about his majesty's person, could find means of writing to Khan Bahadour Khan, we may rest assured that a similar correspondence has been kept up with rebels in other parts of the country—with the Begum in Nepaul, Feroze Shah in Bundelkund. It would indeed be hard to say how much pain and trouble and bloodshed this correspondence has been the cause of, and, if not effectually checked, might still further be. Rebellion can never die out so long as the prime cause of it holds out hopes of a rallying point.

NEEMUCH, Jan. 23.—Sir John Michel left this morning en route for Mhow. Major Eden, the Governor-general's agent for Rajpootana, arrived two days ago, and remains till the end of the month, when he goes to Oodeypore. The 95th regiment is to furnish two detachments, of 100 men each, to Indore and Sehore. Capt. Grant's Battery of the Royal Artillery is now marching from Mhow to Neemuch to relieve Capt. Aitken's Battery.

Jan. 30.—Major Eden, from the Governor-general's camp, arrived at this station some few days ago, accompanied by Major Taylor, the great Persian man. Since then large tents have been pitched near the residency. They have been holding durbars, and have been giving a number of return dinners to all who entertained them on their arrival, and to those who called on them. It was the intention of Major Eden to have given a ball to the ladies of the station, but that was overruled by there being so few at the station. Still the gallant major invited all to his hospitable table, where all the luxuries of this life were spread. The brigadier gave him a rich treat in the brigade parade-ground, and right well did the troops go through their several movements. Majors Eden and Taylor leave camp to-day for up-country. It is rumoured that Holkar's troops have been murmuring at Indore about something (but certainly not because their king got no gift from the Governor-general), and the assistant resident on hearing of this report sent off to Mhow for a reinforcement. Orders came up for a company or so of the 95th, but up to this none have gone yet. Captain (Brevet Major) Clowes, H.M.'s 8th Hussars, and his squadron, leave in a day or two, to be relieved by a similar party from Nusseerabad. Captain Grant, R.A., and his battery from Indore, are expected in to-morrow, and it is believed Captain Aitken and his guns will march to their new station, Sehore.

H.M.'s 40TH REGIMENT.—Extract Garrison and Station Orders. By Brigadier Colin Troup, Commanding. Mooltan, Wednesday, Jan. 18, 1860.—“No. 41. Orders having been received for the march of H.M.'s 40th Regiment to Jullunder, the Brigadier commanding cannot allow that excellent regiment to quit his command without placing on record his high estimation of it. During a service of upwards of thirty-nine years in India, which long period the Brigadier has had to do with many regiments, but with none that has given more universal satisfaction than H.M.'s 40th Regiment, he parts with them with the deepest regret, and he wishes each and all of them health, happiness, and prosperity, wherever they may go. The Brigadier feels assured that the uniform good conduct of H.M.'s 46th Regiment will at all times elicit the admiration and good-will of whatever officer may have the honor of commanding it, and should the time come, he cannot doubt but it will prove itself as well behaved in the field as it has ever done in quarters, for, as a general rule, the latter always ensures the former.

'T'WILL HAPPEN AGAIN.—We (Mofussilite) hear that her Majesty's 87th foot is really to go to China. We hope that such is not the case. We do not for one moment mean to insinuate that the old regiment would not do the State some service, in giving the Chinese what "a certain party" connected with the corps used to speak of as "the cold steel"—but there is one little matter in respect to the 87th regiment that ought not to be forgotten—especially when we take into consideration the state of excitement into which that brave but frivolous people, the French, have recently thrown themselves. Everyone who knows aught of the history of the 87th foot knows that at Barossa the regiment crossed bayonets under the command of Lieutenant-colonel Gough with the 8th regiment of French infantry, and captured the imperial eagles, and the standards—and that in consequence of the valour displayed on this occasion, amongst other distinctions was this—that the 87th foot should wear upon its button the imperial eagle of France. Now, the French have troops in China, and they are sending thither considerable reinforcements; it is just within the pale of possibility that if the 87th should go to China it may meet the 8th French foot. Officers and men die, and are forgotten, but regiments never; no matter whether they be famed for glory or disgrace. The men of the 8th French foot would at this day contemplate the British 87th foot with feelings just as acute, and passions just as vehement as those which swelled the breasts of the very men who escaped the slaughter of that eventful day at Barossa.

DELIGHTFUL WINTER RESIDENCE: MUTLAH.—At Ellengunge, on the 24th January, a large tiger tore open a hut at night, and killed a bullock, value Rs. 20, belonging to Bolaram Singh, Chuprassee, in the employment of Mr. Burkinyoung. The next day the brute killed a man, named Chortan, a cowrah, while fishing with his line and rod on the south of the Bara Gatha Khall, not far from the only pukka lower-roomed house on the grant; and on the previous day, at three A.M., the same tiger killed a powerful man, named Komul Naskur, a cultivator, and Poda by caste. At Crip-tolah a bania was killed and taken away by a tiger four days previously, at two P.M. The poor man's cloth was found the next day by his countrymen, who went in search of his body. At Goladhoara Khall a man, named Cassee Nanth Doss, was killed by a tiger on the 25th, at ten A.M., on the south side of Mr. Prinsep's salt-works. At Gear-dore, on the 23rd, a tiger killed a corpoto, at ten A.M. The following day, at twelve A.M., a Dhangur young woman was also killed, it is said, by the same brute. Both of the above were railroad labourers. The bereaved families of the poor men and women that were killed by the tigers are reduced to extreme poverty. All the gentlemen of the railroad works, and every man who can afford it, are night and day armed with guns, rifles, revolvers, pistols, swords, &c. Most of the men and women, with their families, are quitting these places.

NARROW ESCAPE OF CAPTAIN NICHOLETTS.—A most daring attempt at robbery was made at Cawnpore on the night of the 26th of January by two men (Punjabees) at a bungalow occupied by Colonel Wemyss, Captains Nicholetts and Brownlow, and Mr. Veterinary-surgeon Page. Between the hours of two and three Captain Nicholetts, who occupies two rooms in rear of the bungalow, heard a noise in the night, but having no light, he thought at first a dog was moving about his room. On hearing his boxes being moved, he called his bearer, who was sleeping in the verandah, who after repeated calls awoke and came to the door, when a man drew a dagger, and cut his arm through the principal bone, and almost separated the elbow joint. The cries of the bearer awoke the rest of the servants, and the chowkedar, who was in front of the bungalow, seeing a man rushing out, followed him, and received a stab in the side, which would have proved fatal had the dagger not come in contact with his rib, which caused it to glance off, leaving a wound six inches in length. The chowkedar, armed with a lattee, knocked the man down, when the servants and syces rushed in in a body and secured him. A light was then obtained, and on Captain Nicholetts searching for his sword, found it had been removed into an adjoining room, where his boxes and pitarahs had been forcibly opened, and the contents strewed about the floor. On the man's person was found Captain Nicholetts's full dress belt, and the thief himself had a dagger secreted in his kumurbund, besides an implement for forcing open doors. Our energetic cantonment magistrate came in the morning to examine the premises, and took down the depositions of the witnesses of this daring outrage, as well as the man's confession; the latter is well worthy of record as a proof of the insecurity of life and property even in a cantonment like Cawnpore, where we have the head quarters of a European cavalry corps, a Queen's infantry regiment, the 43rd Native Infantry, one regiment of irregular cavalry, as well as a large force of our new levies, denominated Mounted and Foot Police. The man confessed that there was another beside himself implicated in this attempt at robbery and murder, that they were both armed, and fully prepared to sacrifice any life, no matter whether European or Native, to accomplish their design; that they were Punjabees belonging to a Punjab regiment at Dinapore; that they were on leave, and having no money they were determined to fill their pockets the first opportunity that offered. We congratulate Captain Nicholetts on the very narrow escape he has had from the dagger of the assassin, and regret to hear that the wound his bearer received was so severe that amputation half-way between the shoulder and the elbow joint was necessary, and although the man is still alive, there are great doubts as to his ultimate recovery.—Delhi Gazette, Feb. 4.

SIMLA, Jan. 20.—According to my promise, I send you a slight sketch of the Koteghur Mission. In the year 1841 the idea of establishing a mission in these hills was first conceived, and a number of the residents of Simla contributed towards the good work; but it was not till three years after the subject was first proposed that sufficient funds were collected to enable even a commencement to be made. In 1843 the mission was opened under the auspices of the late General T. P. Smith, and the late Mr. Gorton, of the Civil Service, who contributed very largely towards the furtherance of the work, and the latter of whom, at his death, left it a considerable legacy. Indeed, Mr. Gorton may be said to have been the founder of the Institution. At first it was styled the Himalayan Mission, and a German teacher, by name Mr. Rudolph, opened the schools, of which there are two, one for boys, and one for girls, though adults are frequently to be seen among the former. In 1844, Mr. Prochnow, also a German missionary, was sent out by the Church Mission Society, and ordained in Simla, during the same year by the Bishop of Calcutta. For the first few years, owing to the disturbances, which constantly occurred on the Sikh frontier, previous to the campaign of 1845-46, but little progress was made, but since the annexation of the Punjab and the extension of the British rule, the little Mission has gone on prosperously. Truth obliges me to say that but few converts have been made, though these few, it is said, are truly sincere. The schools, however, have flourished, the attendance fluctuating between forty and eighty of both sexes. These schools, being the means of disseminating knowledge, will no doubt eventually be of great benefit to the rising generation; bigotry and the prejudices of caste being the effects of ignorance, knowledge, by dispelling the mists which cloud the mental vision of these benighted heathen, will pave the way towards their receiving the truths of the Gospel. In 1851 Mr.

Prochnow was obliged temporarily to quit the scene of his labours, on account of ill-health, and the Rev. J. N. Merk, formerly of the Daoca Mission, took charge; Mr. Prochnow returned to Koteghur in the early part of 1853, when Mr. Merk went to Kangra. A branch school was opened in the bazaar of Simla in 1856; Mr. Somnitz, also a German, was appointed master, and continues still to teach. Mr. Prochnow again, owing to loss of health, was compelled to go home in 1858, and the Rev. Mr. Keene took charge, and is the present head of the mission. A grant of land was made to the mission establishment adjoining the premises, by Mr. Edwards, then superintendent of the Hill States, part of which is cultivated as a farm, and on which the missionaries eventually intend settling such of the natives as may be converted to Christianity. Koteghur is situated about forty miles north of Simla, and within six miles of the Sutlej, which is distinctly visible from the little mission station. A couple of companies of the Nusseeree battalion were stationed here shortly after Subathoo was made a cantonment, to guard the passage of the river, the opposite bank of the Sutlej being then in the possession of the Sikhs, but as the necessity for watching our neighbours ceased with their country coming into our hands, this distant military post was withdrawn. We have had another fall of snow, but a very slight one, not more than a few inches rain fell almost continuously for twenty-four hours previous to the snow, so that it could not lie long on the wet ground. On the higher peaks and ridges in our vicinity the snow is said to have fallen to the depth of eighteen inches; this even is a very small quantity in comparison to other seasons. The weather was so very severe on Sunday last, that one lady alone ventured to church, and she even thought it prudent to leave almost immediately, so that the clergyman had but the clerk as his congregation.—Delhi Gazette.

KHAN BAHADOOR KHAN.—The following officers have been appointed on the commission for the trial of Khan Bahadoor Khan at Bareilly:—Mr. Roberts, commissioner of Rohilkund, President; Mr. Vansittart, judge of Bareilly, and Mr. Shakespeare, officiating judge of Moradabad, Members; Mr. Moens, assistant-magistrate of Bareilly, Government Prosecutor. For the defence, nobody at present, the native lawyers being unwilling to take up the case, or to be associated in any way with the prisoner.

SPORT IN THE HIMALAYAS.—The kustooree or musk deer is a favourite object with sportsmen. This animal is rather larger than the common red or ravine deer of the plains, and is of a dark brown colour. It is covered with a coarse fur or hair. It has tusks like the boar, but turning downwards. Its tail is very short. "The male," says a mountaineer, in an old number of the "Bengal Sporting Magazine," "is valuable for the musk-bag which is cut off from, or contiguous to, the navel. The bags are sold throughout the hills. The musk is considered a nuzzur, and the ranas, or chiefs, generally present one to an equal on visits of ceremony or pleasure; and thus the European gentlemen sometimes obtain the real article. As the animal is thus valuable, it may be supposed it is sought after with avidity, especially by the inhabitants of these hills, whose avarice is excessive. They are often shot by our sportsmen. The native mode of hunting them is as follows:—When a musk deer is espied, information is speedily given at the village nearest at hand, and the intelligence is passed on to the next; and it is astonishing to the uninitiated, how soon a ring is formed, and the doomed one surrounded:—men are seen perched on the highest summits, and, as one would suppose, the most inaccessible peaks have a local tenant. "Every coigne of vantage" is occupied by the mountaineer, and then the war begins. Fragments of rock are hurled from the heights down at the victim, who is paralysed by the deafening shouts and yells of the hunters. The bag should be cut off whilst the body is yet warm. I have never met with the musk deer lower than 8000 feet above sea level. It is hardly necessary for me to particu-larise the tiger and the leopard; the former now seldom ascends the hills to any great height, preferring the plains as his residence; the latter is a constant dweller in the hills, and is chiefly remarkable for his animosity to the canine race, and his keenness and dexterity in seizing and devouring dogs at all times and seasons. The hyæna naturally claims notice after the leopard for his ferocity to the dog. He is constantly found in the vicinity of European residences, prowling about in the darkest nights in search of some stray dog, or other animal. Both the leopard and the hyæna manage to hide themselves with much adroitness during the day-time, so that they are seldom found. The large black and white, or rather brown species of bear is frequently met with. They will occasionally attack a man should he be alone and unarmed. The bear is hunted with hill dogs, a large and powerful species. They also during the day manage to hide themselves as well as generally to be beyond the reach of huntsmen. The jackal, like the crow, is to be met with everywhere in India, and in the hills equally as in the plains. Hares are to be met with. They are very large and of a dark colour; so large sometimes as to be taken for jackals. "The fox of the Himalayas is perhaps the shyest of the species, and he is never hunted, because there is no chance of a capture. The usual colour of the hill fox is a reddish grey, varied with patches of a darker hue here and there, approaching to black. On each shoulder there is a yellow patch about four inches wide, which is continued along the bend of the ribs to the flank. A white streak runs under the eye; the throat and chest are a rich iron grey approaching to black, and there is a spot of the same colour in the centre of the belly, the rest of which is snow white. The legs are of the same dark iron grey. The 'brush' is dark on the upper side, red underneath, and the 'tip' white for about four inches. The ears are jet black externally, and clothed with long white hair inside."—North West Gazette.

WOLF-HUNTING AT GONDAH.—As I very seldom see any account of the goings on in these outlandish parts in your columns, an account of a rather fine run we had after a wolf on Saturday, the 21st Jan., may interest some of your numerous readers. The way we catch the animal is simple in the extreme. A circular ditch, some twelve feet deep, is dug, leaving a space in the centre large enough to fasten a kid on—the whole surrounded by a railing of bamboos to prevent confiding Hindoos from falling into the trap set for vermin and not for men. At daylight if there is a wolf trapped a circular is sent round to the officers to that effect, and last Saturday about a dozen of us, all very fairly mounted, attended the summons, and a splendid wolf was let go, which went away like lightning. A native officer of the 18th Punjab Infantry went after him on a capital little mare, which put its foot into a hole before we had gone half a mile—went clean over and broke its neck, and died without a struggle, sending its rider to the other end of the khet in which he had come to grief. The running was then taken up by the officers of Hodson's Horse and the 18th P. I., and after a six-mile gallop at racing speed the first spear was given by one of our staff officers, but owing to the bluntness of his spear the wolf was not damaged in the least, and gave us half an hour's more work at top speed, when an officer of Hodson's Horse gave him two spears running, the last of which settled him, but, as bad luck would have it, in giving the last, the wolf rolled over, the spear catching in the horse's fore leg, snapped in half, and a part of it was driven into the horse's chest. The poor brute staggered and fell mortally wounded, and died in ten minutes. He was a beautiful little grey Arab, and a great loss to his owner.

ALLAHABAD.—A most extraordinary disease has appeared among the natives inhabiting that portion of the Allahabad district immediately on the opposite side of the river Jumna. It is a kind of paralysis, and seems to have commenced so far back as 1857. When it attracted the notice of

Mr. Court, our indefatigable magistrate, there were some three thousand persons so affected. About three in every hundred were lame. A medical officer has been deputed to examine the complaint and see if some remedy cannot be applied. It is said to have originated, most strangely, in a description of grain which the natives eat. A religious fair is now being held at the confluence of the Jumna and the Ganges. The spot is considered one of the most sacred in Upper India, and pilgrims repair thither from distances often exceeding a thousand miles. Among the crowds are to be seen the most loathsome monstrosities and the most hideous deformities. Brahmins and fakirs seem to court distinction by the filthiness of their condition. In fact, in nearly everything there observable, the object seems to have been a studious defiance of all civilisation, and the outrage of every decency. The spot opposite the confluence is covered with rude flagstaves; and it is strange that upon the flags themselves there are very many allusions to occurrences which one would little expect to see commemorated close to the fort, and just under the muzzles of its guns. One flag represents a set of black soldiers, whom it is easy to identify as pandies, portrayed in the act of triumph over fallen enemies, and the faces of the slain are white. On another flag are seen a group of artillerymen, engaged with a fort, which it is plain to see was intended to represent an English one. In every place are to be seen symbols of the bloody and cruel nature of heathenism, and it is not difficult to divine, from the scowls and mutterings of men as Europeans pass by, what they would do if they dared. In a tent close to the outskirts of the encampment, Christian missionaries are engaged all day in holding forth to small audiences who gather round them. The natives, however, pay very little attention to them.

FYZABAD, Jan. 27.—There is not much to send in the way of news from this place. We have usually ten and twenty rebels coming in every day; they look very sickly, and have long hair; most of them look like fakirs. They say that the Nepal Rajah is like Wajid Ali Shah, the late King of Lucknow, with his wives all day, and knows nothing of what passes in his kingdom; the real rulers are Bum Bahadoor Singh and Jung Bahadoor. They also state that the Begum is at Nya Khote, and Jung Bahadoor will not allow her to enter the Nepal territories; others say the Begum is dead, that on hearing of Mummoo Khan's being taken she took poison. Birjis Kudder is also at Nya Khote. The villagers and others here are in a great state of mind regarding their being taxed; orders have been issued to get papers ready, stating every one's income. The deputy commissioner and assistant commissioner are gone to meet the chief commissioner, who will come in to the station in a day or two.

STAFF OFFICERS OF THE CHINA FORCE.—Sir John Michel, K.C.B., was formerly Colonel of the 8th Royal Regiment, and served throughout the Kaffir wars from 1846 to 1853, in command of the regiment, and as a Brigadier. His services were more than once mentioned in the despatches, and the late Sir George Cathcart thought highly of him; he did not serve in the Crimea, but on the breaking out of the Indian mutiny, he came out to Bombay, and commanded one of the columns throughout the campaign in Central India, for which he has received the K.C.B. Sir R. Napier belongs to the Bengal Engineers, and served with the Commander-in-chief at the taking of Lucknow, until ordered to a command at Gwalior, where. He served under Sir Hugh Rose. His services are well known, and for them he received a K.C.B. Colonel Haythorne, Chief of the Staff, is Colonel of the 2nd battalion of the Royals in China; he served formerly in the 98th as Adjutant under Lord Clyde, when colonel of the regiment, and was present in the China expedition of 1842. He served as aide-de-camp to Lord Clyde in the Punjab campaign of 1848-49, and in command of the Grenadiers and light companies of the 98th in the expedition to the Kohat Pass with Sir Charles Napier. He lastly served with the 1st battalion Royals at the siege of Sebastopol. The Deputy Adjutant-general, Colonel Stevenson, of the Scots Fusilier Guards, came out with Sir Charles Straubenzee, and served in the operations before and capture of Canton in 1857. He also served with his regiment throughout the Crimean campaign. Major Wilmot, of the Rifle Brigade, Judge Advocate-general, served with the Rifles in the Indian campaign and at the capture of Lucknow. Maj. Dormer, of the 13th Light Infantry, late aide-de-camp to Lord Clyde, appointed an Assistant Adjutant-general, served in the Crimea and siege of Sebastopol, and throughout the campaign in India, and siege and fall of Lucknow. The Deputy-Assistant Adjutant-general, Lieutenant R. Bid-dulph, served also in the Crimean campaign; he came out to this country with a troop of Royal Horse Artillery, and served on the staff under Sir D. Wood, K.C.B., Royal Artillery, throughout the Indian mutiny. Colonel Kenneth MacKenzie, Deputy-Quartermaster-general of the 92nd Highlanders, was on the staff in the Crimea, as a Brigade-Major to the Light Division. On the mutiny of the 5th Europeans at Berhampore, he was sent in command of a force from Calcutta, to quell it, but was obliged to resign the command from a sunstroke; he has been on the staff since his arrival in India. Lieutenant-colonel Ross, of the 93rd Highlanders, the Assistant-Quartermaster-general, served in the Crimea with his regiment, and also came out to India, and was present at the storm and capture of Lucknow and Bareilly; he has been on the Staff at Bombay. The Deputy-Assistant-Quartermaster-general, Major Wolsley, of the 90th Light Infantry, is at present on the staff at Lucknow. He formerly served with the 80th in the Burmah campaign of 1852-53, and in the Crimea with the 90th. He was severely wounded on the 30th August, 1855, in a sortie at Sebastopol. He came out to India with the 90th, and served with Havelock's column, at the actions of the 21st and 23rd September, relief and subsequent defence of Lucknow, defence of Alumbagh under Sir J. Onram, and fall of Lucknow. The deputy assistant-adjutant-general to Sir John Michel will be his present A.D.C., Lieut.-col. El-kington, of the 8th Royals, who was present with the corps in the Kaffir wars of 1846, and 1851-52. He served as assistant-quartermaster-general to the Ottoman Contingent, from its formation, in May, 1855, to the close of the war, under Sir R. Hussey Vivian, K.C.B., commanding the Contingent. Not having an opportunity of knowing the services of the officers of the staff of the Indian forces, perhaps some of your readers can furnish you with them.—Delhi Gazette.

DELHI, Jan. 31.—The detachment of the 88th Connaught Rangers, at Allyghur, is directed to join head-quarters, at Delhi, as soon as the general court-martial at the former station is over. Captain Hall, of the 88th, has been appointed Deputy Assistant-Quartermaster-general at Saugor. Doctor Tomkyns, civil surgeon of Delhi, has joined and received charge of his office, and Doctor Daniell has been appointed civil surgeon of Hissar, for which place he left Delhi a night or two since. Our deputy commissioner met with an accident whilst in the district—a boar charged his horse, cutting the animal severely, and finishing off by cutting the rider's leg to the bone. He, the deputy commissioner, has returned to Delhi.

THE PUNJAB FRONTIER.—The object of the expedition sent against the Wuzerees has been accomplished, and the murderer of the late Captain Mecham has been surrendered, and was taken into Bunnoo on the 22nd Jan. He had been slightly wounded by his captors, and was removed on a charpoy. He has confessed to having been the chief agent in the murder, and his story is thus related:—"A party consisting of some thirty of us (Wuzerees) came down to see what we could lay our hands on, and after lifting some cattle we separated, and I and five others came down to the Bunnoo-road. We saw a doolie coming along, and followed it for some distance till it got into the sandy nullah, near Lalumma; we then fired a shot, and the doolie bearers dropped the doolie and ran away; one of the sowars who were with the doolie also galloped off, but the other sowar fired a shot at us without effect. The sahib then tried to get out of the doolie, but we threw stones at him; he then got out at the other side, and I gave him a blow with my tulwar on the shoulder as he was getting out; he then ran for some distance, I cutting at his back with my tulwar until he fell; the sowar then came up again and fired another shot, and the sahib got up, and fired two shots with his pistol without effect; the others who were with me said, 'Take care of yourselves, the sahib has a pistol.' I then gave him the finishing blow, and went to see what was in the doolie while the others hacked the body about. I found a watch and some other things in the doolie, but no money." The prisoner was asked whether he thought he had performed a brave action, and he replied that they were ordered by the prophet to destroy all infidels. His trial was expected to take place shortly.

THE VICEROY.—Lord Canning held a grand durbar in Umballah, at noon, on the 19th January, at which the Maharajah of Putteeah, the Rajah of Jheend, and a large assemblage of other princes and nobles, were present. The scene is described as having been very grand and impressive. In the afternoon there was a grand review, in which the 7th hussars, 6th dragoon guards, a troop of royal artillery, a detachment of the 35th foot, the 87th Royal Irish fusiliers, and the 27th Inniskillings, together with several native regiments, assisted, the object being that Viscountess Canning might present new colours to the gallant 87th, a duty which her ladyship is said to have performed with her accustomed grace. In the evening a ball was to have been given by the officers of H.M.'s 27th Inniskillings, and the camp was to break ground again for Lahore on the 23rd Jan. It is said that Lord Clyde will accompany the Governor-general to Peshawar, where Dost Mahomed is to be received at a grand durbar.

* OUDE.—The Lucknow Herald says it has news from the frontiers, to the effect that Jung Bahadur has surrendered the Begum and her son, Burjees Kadr, unconditionally, without any stipulation for their maintenance; and that they have arrived at Gonda, and will be sent on to Lucknow. Should this news be confirmed, there is no longer any rebel leader in the field, of high or low degree, in Nepal. There appears, however, to be a cause for regret in another quarter. The Oudh Gazette hears that tidings have been received at headquarters of "a feeling of discontent still lingering in the minds of the remnant of the late Company's European troops, especially the artillery. It has transpired that several of them, in different parts, have been in correspondence, urging each other to agitate for the bounty. To put down this spirit of insubordination, Government has resolved upon some most stringent measures, which the ringleaders will be shortly made to feel."

A ROYAL SPORTSMAN.—The ex-King of Oude has purchased back from Mr. Blyth three of his fighting tigers, for the sum of fifteen hundred rupees, and he is in treaty for the purchase of several other beasts which Mr. Blyth has just brought down from the North-Western Provinces.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SIR JOHN INGLIS, we learn from general orders, has been transferred to the Madras presidency, resigning, in consequence, his command of the Cawnpore division.

TREVANDRUM.—F. N. Maltby, Esq., the new Resident, with Mrs. Maltby, arrived here on the morning of the 14th Jan. The same evening Mr. Maltby paid a private visit to H.H. the Rajah, in company with his predecessor in office, who left Trevandrum very early on the 16th, on which day came off the Durbar for the reception of the Governor's letter to his Highness, intimating the appointment of Mr. Maltby to the office of British Resident at the court of Travancore. The Durbar was announced for 1 o'clock P.M. At about noon, all the accustomed paraphernalia of a state ceremonial, in the shape of howdah'd elephants, caparisoned horses, troops, &c., &c., were in readiness for the occasion in front of the hall of audience. The invited guests, who commenced to arrive soon after, were ushered into the spacious lower hall of the edifice, and were there awaiting the Resident, who arrived about one o'clock with Mrs. Maltby, accompanied in the same carriage by Major Drury. Mrs. Maltby, leaning on the arm of the Major, was led direct to the presence chamber, where she was introduced to his Highness. The Resident was received at the entrance to the lower hall by the Dewan, and at the landing of the stairs leading to the chamber by H. H. Rama Vurmah, first Prince and representative Ellia Rajah. The company assembled, and the first compliments over, Mr. Maltby presented his credentials in due form, which were received by the Rajah in true oriental fashion, with both hands—a demonstration at once of respect and regard. His Highness, having perused it silently, handed the letter over to his minister, who read it to the standing assembly with a distinct articulation. In a few seconds a royal salute and feu de joie announced the fact to the large concourse of spectators who thronged the very extensive area which fronts the building. About half an hour was passed in ceremonious conversation between his Highness and the Resident, at the close of which garlands were placed round the necks and arms of Mr. and Mrs. Maltby by his Highness in person, who besides presented each with a bouquet of flowers. The same honours were conferred, in pursuance of native etiquette, on the other ladies and gentlemen by their Highnesses the first and third Princes. Immediately afterwards the Resident, Mrs. Maltby, and Major Drury took leave, Mrs. Maltby being, as on arrival, conducted by the Major, and the Resident accompanied by the first Prince to the top of the stairs, while the Dewan attended the gentlemen to their carriages.—Cochin Courier.

MISCELLANEOUS.

AN INCIDENT FOR SIR CRESWELL CRESWELL.—Poona has just been the scene of one of those melancholy incidents which involve in ruin all connected with them. The facts, so far as we have ascertained them, appear to be these:—Mr. Hunt, the leading partner of the auctioneer and commission firm of Hunt, Monnet, and Co., discovered that a Cornet Browne, of the 14th dragoons, had been carrying on an intrigue with his wife, Mrs. Hunt, we believe, upon being questioned upon the point, admitted her guilt. Mr. Hunt, therefore, mounted his horse and rode over to Kirkee to Cornet Browne's bungalow. The Cornet laughed in his face when he spoke of satisfaction, and boasted of the intimacy which had existed between him and Mrs. Hunt. Exasperated beyond measure at the ruffianly brutality of Cornet Browne, Mr. Hunt drew a revolver from his pocket, and shot him down in the midst of his sneers and mockery. Mr. Hunt is now a prisoner at Poona, and Cornet Browne is, we understand, slowly recovering. As the case is one which will be judicially investigated, we shall abstain from making any commentary upon the details connected with this unhappy event. It may, however, be mentioned that Mr. Browne has been pronounced out of danger, and that Mr. Hunt has been liberated on bail.

MILITARY SECRETARY TO THE C. IN C.—In consequence of Captain Armstrong, interpreter and officiating military secretary to his excellency the Commander-in-Chief, being appointed to the staff of the Lieutenant-governor, North-west provinces, Captain Green, H.M.'s 77th Regiment, is appointed Military Secretary to the Commander-in-Chief from the 2nd Feb.

MR. ARNOLD, principal of the Poona College, has been permitted to resign his appointment as a member of the Poona Municipal Commission.

A WARNING TO THE UNWARY.—A case has been tried in the Small Cause Court of Bombay, which should be a warning to all young men in England how they make rash engagements to come out to India. Messrs. Watson and Co., of this town, whose business is of a similar character to that of the celebrated Moses, and other outfitters, engaged a young man named Way and his wife, to be their assistants in Bombay, for a period of three years. The Ways' joint salary was to be 125 Rs. a month, out of which sum—barely sufficient to keep them alive—they were to repay their passage money in the second-class overland at the rate of Rs. 20 a-month. They were, further, bound over in an absurdly enormous sum not to set up as rivals in business to Messrs. Watson for fourteen years after the expiration of their agreement. Way's wife fell ill soon after their arrival, but went on with her work as a milliner till at last she was ordered home, as the only chance of saving her life. Way's health, too, gave way; and his employers withheld his salary, contrary to the express tenor of the agreement, when he sent them notice that his doctor had told him he must return to England. Way was compelled to bring an action against them for the recovery of the money, which the judge of the Small Cause Court at once decided in his favour. The public indignation was greatly excited against the Messrs. Watson, and the newspapers took up the cause of Way, who was left almost destitute, not having even enough money to pay his way home. Subscription lists were opened at the Gazette and Times and Standard offices, and in a few days the former journal received the sum of Rs. 710, and the latter Rs. 451.

CAPTAIN HAINES, formerly political agent at Aden, has been suffering for the last ten months from diarrhoea, and his medical advisers consider a change of climate as the only antidote to the chronic dysentery which the disease is fast assuming. Should the unfortunate gentleman's incarceration, under the circumstances, be still prolonged, it is believed that the hot weather, which is fast approaching, will so far aggravate the alarming symptoms of the case, as to render human aid perfectly valueless. It is, however, to be hoped that Lord Elphinstone will ward off the coming event by an act of mercy, if not of justice, towards the "best officer the Indian navy ever produced."

EXTENSION OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE AMONG THE NATIVES.—We have had an illustration this last week of the extent to which the English language is becoming a medium of communication between the natives of the different presidencies. A representative of Bengal was among us (Bombay), and as there was a considerable desire to hear him speak on some topic of general interest, he delivered a lecture; but the only language in which he could communicate with a Bombay audience was the English. He was ignorant of the languages of the natives of this presidency, and they with those of Bengal. And if an educated youth from Madras or from the Punjab would visit Bombay, he would find himself shut up to the use of English as a means of communicating with his fellow-countrymen of this presidency. This will be increasingly the case. The books published in the vernaculars of the other presidencies are lost to the student class of this. They would be more accessible, in fact, if they were in a dead language, the Sanscrit, though in that they could have but few readers compared with the number they would have if published in English. The Tamil is as much a foreign tongue to the Marathi, and the Marathi to the Bengali, as the Italian is to the Englishman, with only this difference, that there is a likelihood that the educated Englishman may learn the Italian, but scarcely the remotest possibility that the Bengali youth will attack the Marathi, or the Marathi youth the Tamil language. The only language in which a native of India can address his countrymen so as to be understood by readers in all India is the English language. The Bombay Tract Society has published in the vernaculars of this presidency books that had previously appeared in the Bengali and Canarese languages; but the originals had first to be translated into English before they could be made available for the Marathi writer. When the time comes for a native newspaper designed to circulate throughout India, the English language will be the one adopted for it.—Guardian.

H.M.'s 64th.—Under instructions from army head-quarters, the officer commanding H.M.'s 64th regiment has received orders to hold in readiness for embarkation four hundred non-commissioned rank and file, with a proper complement of officers, for the purpose of proceeding to Aden to do garrison duty there. This will reduce the number remaining with the head-quarters of this distinguished corps, at Kurrachee, to about three hundred and thirty men.

SIR HENRY SOMERSET.—Although Sir Henry Somerset has taken his passage by the March steamer for England, yet we (Telegraph and Courier) understand it is not at all likely he will leave India by that opportunity. The instructions he has received from the Horse-Guards are to the effect, that he is to remain in India until relieved. Lady Somerset will, however, proceed home by the March steamer; and it was undoubtedly his Excellency's intention to have accompanied her had the requirements of the public service permitted it. With a soldier, however, duty is the first consideration; and should Sir William Mansfield go to China, Sir Henry Somerset's tenure of office may be indefinitely prolonged.

BOMBAY LAW SCHOOL.—We understand that the Law School is shortly to be affiliated to the University of Bombay in connection with its Law Faculty. Three professorships at present constitute this school—that is to say, two Government professorships of Law, and the Perry professorship of Jurisprudence. Of the former, one professorship is held by J. F. Hore, Esq., First Judge of the Small Cause Court, and the other by Dr. R. T. Reid, Coroner of Bombay, who also holds the Perry professorship. There are at present 31 students on the roll of the Law Classes, exclusive of 30 Candidate Law Students—making in all 61 students. Of the Law Students, properly so called, there are two classes: the junior, consisting of students who, after attending for at least one session the lectures of the Perry professor in General Jurisprudence, proceed to the study of the Common Law, in its three great branches of Contracts, Torts, and Crimes; and the senior, which consists of two divisions, both of which attend Professor Reid's lectures in Judicial Evidence and Procedure, and the upper division only Professor Hore's lectures on the Principles of Equity. The junior law class, while attending Professor Hore's lectures on Contracts and Mercantile Law on Tuesdays, attend Professor Reid on Saturdays in Delicts and Criminal Law.

ADDRESS TO MR. C. BANNERMAN.—The following address, signed by all the engineers of the Indian navy, afloat and ashore, has been presented to Mr. C. Bannerman, senior engineer, I. N., who left Bombay on the 9th of February for England, having retired after twenty-five years' good and honourable service:—"It is with feelings of deep regret that we part with you at this time. You have passed nearly a quarter of a century in this country, and were always the first to hold out the right hand of welcome and fellowship to us on our arrival on these shores. Your great and invariable kindness to all was more that of a brother or indulgent parent than of a stranger, as you were to most of us. Not only was it displayed in your general goodness of heart, but in the various acts of assistance which you rendered us in our need. We need not dwell longer on this subject, for your wide-spread reputation as a warm-hearted and generous friend is so well known to those with whom you have been long associated as to make it quite unnecessary for us to reiterate it here. We would also sincerely thank you for the lessons your habits of industry, sobriety, and frugality have taught us, and express a hope that you may live long to be an example to others, and to enjoy the gratification to be derived from its results. Whilst we deeply regret your intended departure, we are pleased that your absence will, God willing, be of short duration, and we sincerely and fervently wish you a speedy and pleasant passage to the land of your home, there to renew the associations of your boyhood's days, and to enjoy the happiness of intermingling with friends for whom long absence we believe makes you yearn. And with our prayers for your happiness and prosperity, and with unfeigned thanks for many kindnesses to us, we humbly bid you farewell, and God speed."

FORTIFICATIONS OF BOMBAY.—In the matter of the fortifications of Bombay it has been decided, we believe, that batteries shall be erected on the Middle Ground, Caranjah Shoal, Butcher's Island, and the Oyster Rock. The Home Government have been requested to send out fifty or sixty Armstrong guns, and these, with the 56 and 68-pounders in the Arsenal, will give a warm reception to any one who may invite it. The Middle Ground shoal is, we hear, being raised to high-water level by means of convict labour, and, if we are not misinformed, her Majesty's Government have already sanctioned the fortifications that have been named. In Colonel Jervis's plan, some years ago, the elevation of the Sunken Rock was a prominent feature, and the construction upon it of a formidable battery. It is right in the line of entrance to the harbour, and a ship must, of necessity, approach it end on until she passes it, and that she must do very close, or be thrown over upon the Caranjah Shoal battery. This rock would seem to have been lost sight of altogether; but a battery there would do more damage to a fleet entering the harbour than all the others put together.

TWO MISSIONARIES of the Established Church of Scotland, Rev. Robert Paterson and Rev. John Taylor, have arrived in Bombay, on their way to the Punjab. They expect to resume, at Seal-kote, the labours interrupted by the death of the lamented Hunters, who were slain by the mutineers in July, 1857.

PARSEE LOYALTY REWARDED.—We learn that at a grand durbur held on Jan. 27, in the Adawlut at Surat, the agent for the Right Hon. the Governor presented a pair of rich shawls to Mr. Burjorjee Merwanjee, in token of reward for his loyal services during the late mutiny, in having placed his house in Broach at the disposal of Government for the use of the troops.

THE ZOROASTRIANS OF PERSIA.—It is stated that the Shah of Persia has, in compliance with the prayer of a petition forwarded to him from Bombay, agreed to exempt the Zoroastrian residents in Persia from the payment of a tax hitherto levied upon them; and for the non-payment of which in preceding years several of the Zoroastrians were forcibly converted to the Moslem creed. In consideration of this exemption, the Parsees of Bombay and other parts of India have to pay annually into the Teheran treasury the sum of Rs. 5,500, to be raised by contributions. The carrying out of this benevolent measure is due to the trustees of the "Iranee Fund," who deserve the thanks of their less fortunate countrymen now resident in Persia.

MR. HENRY NEWTON, the registrar and acting judge of the Sudder Adawlut, will, it is said, succeed Mr. H. L. Anderson as secretary to Government in the political and judicial departments.

ECCLESIASTICAL ESTABLISHMENT.—We understand that the Rev. W. H. Schwaba, B.A., chaplain, has been appointed to do general duty at the presidency. The Rev. H. W. Bagnell, who lately arrived from England, has been appointed assistant-chaplain, to do duty at the station of Neemuch.

SERIOUS AFFRAY.—A serious disturbance occurred on the 31st January, in Bazar Gate-street, when the police were arrayed against some native sepoys, and the consequences would, in all likelihood, have been serious, perhaps fatal, but for the good sense of the naigue commanding the native sepoys. It appears that about eight p.m. on that evening there was a party at the house, near the Bazar Gate, of Munguldas Nathoobhoy, Esq., J.P., on account of the marriage of a relative of his head clerk; and as the marriage procession was passing towards the market, the sergeant-major on duty at the Bazar Gate pressed onward, accompanied by some native sentries, and challenged the bandmen to stop the music on pain of being instantly taken into custody. The music, though stopped for a short time, was played again as the procession approached the house of the bride, the distance between the two houses being some four or five hundred yards. The sergeant-major, apparently incensed at the music being played against his order, returned with a gunner, both armed with swords, and another European, and insisted on the music being stopped, regardless of the remonstrances urged to him, and the licence for the music granted by the magistrate. With the view to avoid unpleasant consequences, the natives in the procession sought the protection of the police inspector Rowjee, who appeared on the spot with a few policemen, and seeing the licence, and the time and hour specified therein, spoke to the sergeant-major to allow the music being played. Rowjee being threatened with imprisonment, a European constable was called to the spot. This officer was no more successful in his representations to the sergeant-major; and the latter, enraged at something, ordered the sentries, who were called to the spot, to fire upon the constable. He (the constable) showed the naigue of the guard the badge of his office, and warned him not to obey the order but at his peril. The sentries refused to fire, and the sergeant-major retreated with his European companions. The sergeant-major, it is said, denied having given the order to fire, in the presence of the officer commanding the main guard and Mr. Forjett, who came there afterwards; but the naigue, on being questioned, admitted to these gentlemen having refused to obey the order of the sergeant-major. The gunner was ordered into arrest by the officer. The case, we understand, is at present in the hands of legal advisers; and may probably be investigated before a magistrate or a court martial.

ELPHINSTONE TESTIMONIAL.—Following the good plan set by the students and the ex-students of the Elphinstone Institution at Bombay, a number of the latter now located in Kurrachee held, on the 22nd January, a meeting of their body in the rooms of the native general library at that station, for the purpose of expressing their regret at the death of their benefactor, the Honourable Mountstuart Elphinstone. The following resolution was passed, and more than Rs. 100 were subscribed on the spot. "That the Elphinstonians and others in Kurrachee have received with deep regret and sorrow the news of the demise of the Honourable Mountstuart Elphinstone, and in a kindred spirit of gratitude with their fellow students in Bombay think it desirable to contribute their mite to the fund that is being collected towards the erection of a bust in the Victoria Museum and gardens."

BANK OF BOMBAY.—A general meeting of the proprietors of the Bank of Bombay was held on the 26th Jan., under Section 14th of Act III. of 1840, to elect a new director in the room of Mr. Richard Willis, resigned. Mr. S. D. Birch, president, occupied the chair. The secretary, Mr. Stuart, read the notice as published in the Government Gazette and newspapers calling the meeting; also the section of the bank charter under which it was convened. He then submitted the list of proprietors resident in Bombay eligible as directors. It was then proposed by Cawasjee Jehangir, Esq., seconded by W. B. Tristram, Esq., and resolved, that William Steven, Esq., be elected a director in the room of Richard Willis, Esq., resigned. Thanks being duly voted to the chairman, the meeting dissolved.

Court Martial.

ACTING-MASTER J. MORRISON, OF THE "BERENICE."

At a court martial assembled on board H.M.'s receiving-ship Ajdaha, I.N., at Bombay, on the 12th Jan., 1860, the court, pursuant to order dated Jan. 10, 1860, directed C. J. Crutenden, esq., commander I.N., and second officer in command of H.M.'s ships and vessels I.N. at Bombay, having been duly sworn according to an Act passed by the Gov. gen. of India, to proceed with the trial of Mr. John Morrison, acting master of H.M.'s steamer Berenice, I.N., on the following charges exhibited against him by G. T. Robinson, esq., lieut. comg. the said ship, viz.:—

First Charge.—For that he, the said Mr. J. Morrison, acting master, being in actual service and full pay, of and belonging to H.M.'s steamer Berenice, I.N., did, on or about the 22nd day of December, 1859, remain absent from his duty without leave, and neglect to appear at his station on board the said steamer while hauling out of dock and taking in mooring in Bombay Harbour.

Second Charge.—For that he was on or about between the twenty-second and thirty-first days of December, 1859, incapable of performing his duties from the effects of drunkenness.

Third Charge.—For that he did on or about the first day of January, 1860, absent himself from the said steamer, and remain absent without leave until on or about the 6th day of January, 1860.

Sentence.—And having carefully and deliberately weighed and considered the evidence in support of the charges, as well as what the prisoner had to offer in his defence, and having very maturely considered the whole, the court is of opinion that,

The charges are all proved, and the Court doth therefore adjudge the said Mr. John Morrison, Acting Master, to be dismissed from H.M.'s I.N., and rendered incapable of ever serving therein, and further to forfeit all pay and allowances that may be due to him, and he is hereby dismissed and sentenced accordingly.

Signed by the President and Members of the Court.

Office of the Commr.-in-Chief I.N.,
Bombay, 28th January, 1860.

Offg. Judge Advocate.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

WEDNESDAY, March 7, 1860.

HINDOO AND MAHOMEDAN SHRINES.

IN compliance with an order of the House of Commons, a return has been made "of all sums paid to Hindoo or Mahomedan shrines, or in any way in honour or support of the religion or of religious institutions of the native inhabitants of India, which were collected or disbursed by the agency of the East India Company's servants during the year 1857." A large proportion of the money thus expended is granted as pensions, either in perpetuity or for life, in compensation for the resumption of lands bestowed by former Governments of India for the support of temples, mosques, colleges, resting places for pilgrims, and burying grounds. The individual sums vary from a few shillings to several hundreds of pounds sterling, and in one case—that of the Emambara, at Hooghly—the endowment amounts to nearly £18,000. In many cases, however, the annual income is still derived from the proceeds of land or from house rent. The total amount is not given either for Bengal or the N.W. Provinces, but for the Madras Presidency it was Rs. 9,48,794—of which Rs. 9,06,434 belonged to Hindoo pagodas, and the remaining Rs. 42,360 to Mahomedan mosques. Of this very considerable sum, it should be stated, only "Rs. 54,870 were collected by the servants of Government on behalf of the several institutions to which they were paid, while the remainder was composed, partly of money allowances granted in lieu of land, fees derived from a percentage on certain sources of revenue, and other similar privileges resumed by the British Government, and partly of direct money allowances granted under purwanahs issued by former dynasties, or paid in accordance with immemorial custom." The return for the Bombay Presidency shows a total of Rs. 3,24,638; for the Hyderabad Assigned Territories, of Rs. 79,231; for Nagpore, of Rs. 33,223 for the benefit of 207 institutions, religious or educational; and for Mysore, of Rs. 3,76,872. In the Punjab, Oude, Pegu, and the Tenasserim Provinces neither collections nor disbursements were made for the purposes mentioned in the inquiry. To prevent any misunderstanding on the part of the English public, the Bombay Government makes the following explanatory remarks:—"It should be recorded that, in point of fact, the servants of Government are in no case agents in the disbursement of the sum paid to temples or other religious institutions. They disburse the money from the public treasury, it is true, just as they would disburse any other money due by the State; but they pay it either to committees composed of natives, not Government servants, or to other individuals connected with the temples. The servants of Government in no way interfere with the details of the appropriation of the money after it leaves the Government treasury. The figures in the return, therefore, represent the sums paid by the State to the religious institutions of the natives under grants from former Governments; but it is not to be inferred that the servants of this Government superintend, or control, or otherwise interfere with the appropriation of the money so disbursed."

A NEW RECRUITING FIELD.

By the latest accounts from India we learn that 300 German Jagers have volunteered into the Third Bombay European Regiment, and also that the conduct of the Legion had throughout been of the most orderly and exemplary character. Now, considering the difficulty that exists in obtaining a sufficient number of recruits for the army—a difficulty so great that a distinguished military writer insists upon the necessity of introducing the system of conscription by ballot which prevails on the Continent—it may fairly be asked why our military authorities do not seek recruits from the German States and Switzerland. A very little encouragement would suffice to bring over some thousands of fine manly fellows from Hanover, Hesse, and Brunswick, not a whit inferior to their sires who fought shoulder to shoulder with British soldiers during the Long War, and proved themselves worthy to be the comrades of the most splendid infantry in the world. As horsemen they showed themselves equal to the most active and intelligent of the French light cavalry corps, and never crossed swords without honour to themselves and grievous loss to the foe. So far as the home, or general, service is concerned, it may be inexpedient to form separate regiments of foreigners, but there cannot be any possible objection to their large intermixture with the line, whether horse or foot. Collectively and individually, both Germans and Swiss are remarkable for their sobriety and steadiness, their amenableness to discipline, and the calm decorum of their lives. Their example, if it exercised no immediately beneficial influence over their more rude comrades of these isles, would scarcely fail to command respect and to secure themselves from annoyance and insult. For service in India, however, they might be advantageously organised in distinct battalions,—Hanoverian Infantry, Hessian Light Horse, and Swiss Riflemen. Unlike the French, nothing would induce them to make common cause with any native adventurer, or to turn against their co-religionists. In the most critical times they might always be depended upon with implicit confidence, and their excellent conduct in barracks would tend in no small degree to give the natives a higher opinion of the manners and morality of Europeans. And when their period of service had expired, where could better colonists be found? Industrious, thrifty, content with little, and not ashamed to wait upon themselves, they would live and prosper where an English soldier would give up in despair, or drown his cares in drink. Little difficulty, we imagine, would be experienced in enlisting from five to ten thousand men for service in the east, and thus a great pressure would be removed from the military authorities, and facility afforded for keeping up the home army to a proper strength, such as will inspire the country with confidence, give force to the counsels of our Government, and repress ambitious designs on the part of magnanimous allies.

THE NEW INDIA-HOUSE.

THE directors of the company of merchants trading to the East Indies who, in the olden time, were wont to solace themselves with pipes and a foaming tankard when they met to talk over invoices and bills of lading, the price of tea, or the power of the Great Mogul, may well chuckle as they raise to their ever-thirsty lips the horn of fragrant mead at Odin's hospitable board, and look down through clouds of tobacco-smoke on the new offices of the Indian Government. Nurtured in a city tavern, the administrative wisdom that converted merchants into princes and factories into an empire is now about to be promoted to the palatial apartments of a West-end hotel. A district which, only a few years ago, was a disgrace to the metropolis, is now, divina Palladis arte, becoming one of its chief ornaments, and spacious terraces are rapidly superseding dingy courts and disreputable alleys. Anyone returning from India or the colonies, who knew Westminster and its infamous dens twenty years ago, would stand amazed if suddenly set down at the corner of Victoria-street.

Miratur portas, strepitumque, et strata viarum.

Alas, for the strepitum! There is the stumbling-block and rock of offence. Sir Charles Wood pronounces the Palace Hotel enduring as a temporary refuge, but he fears lest the rattle of cabs and the groans of heavily laden wagons should distract his attention from the cares of state, and cause him to sigh for the peaceful retirement of Leadenhall-street. No doubt during the ensuing year there will be much noise and confusion while building operations are in progress on the opposite side of the road. But, those labours once completed, there will scarcely be greater traffic past the hotel than there will be down King-street, when that inconvenient thoroughfare shall be widened to do credit to the new offices which Government proposes to erect between Downing-street and Charles-street. The Foreign-office, perchance, might, for many reasons, regret to lose the India-office as its dos-à-dos. The pressure on the home finance might be so conveniently relieved by a slight ingenuity of adjustment, whereby the larger portion of the expenditure might be saddled on the Indian treasury. The temptation is obvious, and should therefore be avoided—discretion in such cases being decidedly the better part of valour. Seriously, however, it seems to us that there are so many arguments in favour of a permanent occupation of the Palace Hotel that we are reluctant to believe that a satisfactory arrangement cannot yet be made. In the first place, no one questions the disadvantage of two removals as compared with one. Books and papers get lost or mislaid; clerks are thrown out of their daily routine, and fall into unsettled and make-shift habits; and perplexity and confusion pervade every department. From a financial point of view, again, the purchase of a ready-built edifice, constructed by private enterprise, is greatly to be preferred to the erection of offices at the public expense. Assuming that the hotel could not be obtained for less than £150,000, or even £170,000, a wide margin is left between that sum, considerable as it may seem, and the estimated cost of the proposed buildings off King-street. If it be true that, exclusive of the value of the land, these would require an outlay of a quarter of a million sterling, so great a difference should be a matter for serious consideration on the part of a Government reduced to such straits as that of India. Reflect, O gentle philanthropists, that this needless magnificence in bricks and mortar may cause the ill-clad, ill-fed, ill-paid Hindoo to renounce the use of salt, the chief condiment of his simple repast. The present house in Leadenhall-street, if rumour be worthy of credit, is worth at least £200,000; so that every expense of removal or of internal alteration, even to the external improvement of laying down a wood pavement in front of the hotel, would be included in the balance between the sale receipts of the one and the purchase-money of the other. Indeed, we are assured that the internal alterations need be of the most insignificant character, and that ample space presents itself for the accommodation of both library and museum. Mr. Wyatt, we feel convinced, is far too patriotic a man, and too benevolent a friend of the mild Hindoo, to regret the loss of the miserable five per cent. he would derive from the quarter of a million expended on a new building. If the architect despise such a paltry consideration, as no doubt he would do under the circumstances of the case, Parliament and the Press may well be excused if they call upon Government to sacrifice the whims and fancies of individuals for the sake of the public weal. We shall, therefore, still indulge the hope that Sir Charles Wood, who takes such an enlightened interest in the welfare of our fellow-subjects in India, and who, moreover, is alone answerable for the efficiency of his own administration, will succeed in effecting an arrangement which will spare his subordinates much confusion, uncertainty, and annoyance, and prove convenient and advantageous to all parties.

COOLIE EMIGRATION FROM INDIA.

It is a circumstance worthy of remark, though it need not excite any surprise, that philanthropic questions of a practical character are seldom, if ever, brought before Parliament by loud-voiced demagogues and professing "friends of the people." The latter find that the easiest road to popularity is by frothy declamation, whether in favour of endowing with the franchise every uneducated boor in the kingdom, or of laying upon landed property the chief burden of the national taxation. Little do they trouble themselves about such vulgar considerations as improving the dwellings of the labouring classes, or ameliorating their moral and social condition in any way. Such common-place matters they are content to leave to the kindly sympathies of the ancient gentry of the realm, and above all, of the House of Lords. Nor are their lordships mindful only of the poor of their own country. Wherever there is a nation, or an individual, oppressed, un-friended, and defenceless, there the House of Peers has a client whose cause they adopt as their own with rare courage and generosity. For an example we need look no further back than the afternoon of Tuesday, the 28th of last month. Earls, barons, and dukes might then have been seen vieing with one another in their anxiety to guard from fraud or other ill-treatment the humble coolie, whose services were sought by the Government of a people who complacently style themselves the champions of civilisation.

The discussion began in this wise. Lord Harris, still feeling a natural interest in the welfare of the people whose Governor he had so recently ceased to be, inquired of the Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs if proper care had been taken to secure for Indian labourers proceeding to French colonies the protection of the same regulations as those which exist in British colonies, and also if the Government of India had power to stop their emigration if the conditions for their proper treatment were not complied with. In reply, Lord Wodehouse explained that a treaty was under negotiation with France, the primary object of which was to put an end to the atrocious system of kidnapping on the eastern coast of Africa, which the French euphuistically designate as "the free emigration of blacks." Her Majesty's Ministers had frequently remonstrated with the French Government on the subject, but had always been met with the answer, "Our colonies are in urgent want of labour; your colonies have a constant supply from India; give us the same facilities, and then we may be able to put an end to our African emigration." Under these circumstances the late Conservative Ministry had judged proper, in the interests of humanity, to open a negotiation with France, with a view to afford the requisite facilities, at the same time taking every precaution on behalf of the coolie emigrants. The present Ministry in this instance have merely walked in the footsteps of their predecessors, and a treaty is now on the point of ratification, the chief points of which are to the following effect. Labourers are to be collected and embarked for the French colonies in precisely the same manner as for the British. Consular agents of the British Government are to be placed at the French ports in India to see that the regulations are carried out, and the French agents employed in collecting emigrants are to be furnished with an authority equivalent to an exequatur. The regulations now in force in Martinique, which are believed to be quite satisfactory, are to be introduced into the other French colonies, and in all cases the labourers are to have free access to the British Consul. The contracts are to be for five years, at the expiration of which the coolies are to be conveyed back to their homes free of expense. Instead of the Indian Government being allowed to put a stop to the emigration at any time, which in fact would nullify the Treaty, it was agreed that the Treaty should be in force for three years and a-half, or longer, if notice of limitation were not given at the end of two years. In reply, however, to the Earl of Derby, Lord Wodehouse admitted that there was no actual stipulation in the Treaty requiring, as an essential condition, the discontinuance of the "free emigration" from Africa, because such provision would have interfered with a French municipal regulation. The Duke of Newcastle further explained, that it was clearly understood that the traffic in blacks should cease immediately on the east coast of Africa, and within a year from the present time on the west coast. The English Government had desired to stipulate the formal cessation of that traffic, but it was objected that such a provision would be regarded as an indignity to France. And thus everything is to be sacrificed to the "dignity of France." But have Ministers never heard of such a thing as the "dignity of England?" Have they not yet learned from the attitude of the country at the time of the "Conspiracy Bill" that the nation would not submit to this ignominious truckling to France? That Lord Palmerston and Lord John Russell should consent to eat any amount of dirt at the bidding of Louis Napoleon no man will marvel, but of the Duke of Newcastle better things might have been expected. Evil communications, however, corrupt the best manners. But Lord Ellenborough, with his usual sagacity, detected many flaws in the contemplated arrangement. He was not disposed, he said, to sacrifice British subjects for the sake of African blacks; and his lordship might have added, that he protested against sacrificing British colonies to benefit those of France. As it is, the supply of coolie labour is inadequate to the requirements of Ceylon, Mauritius, and our West Indian possessions. How difficult, then, will it be to procure anything like a suitable amount of labour when the competition is increased. In the event, too, of war between England and France how are the stipulations for the kindly treatment of the coolies to be carried out? How, indeed, are they to be enforced under any circumstances? A consular agent, we are told, is to be appointed wherever there is not at present a consul, and the coolies are to have free access at all times to this official. Are we to understand, then, that a knowledge of Hindustani is to become one of the requisite branches of education for candidates for consular employment? Without being well acquainted with the native languages—Tamil as well as Hindustani—it will be impossible to understand the complaints of the coolies, and without some experience of their character it will be equally impossible to sift the modicum of truth from the huge bulk of falsehood or exaggeration. Besides, if the coolies are taught that there is an official especially charged to listen to their grievances, there will be no end to their tales of woe. By what sort of machinery, moreover, is the British Consul, this "protector of the poor," to be enabled to exact redress at the hands of the planters? Is it not far more likely that he will fraternise with the latter? dine with them, ride with them, shoot with them, and with them "d— the niggers?" Either this will happen, or a perpetual state of hostility—and if the latter, is the nation prepared to enforce the strict observance of the Treaty by recourse to arms? For if the representative of the Government fail to obtain satisfaction, the dignity of England will imperatively demand that an indignity be put upon France. Lord Ellenborough, therefore, was strictly justified in saying that "under this treaty disputes are likely to arise between us and France on a matter about which the English people are most sensitive." The ruin of our own colonies, the probable ill-treatment of British subjects, and the possibility of war, are the price this country is called upon to pay to induce France to abstain from traffic in human flesh, and to fulfil her ancient treaties with honour and good faith.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—MARCH 2. FRIENDLY INDIAN PRINCES.

Lord LYVEDEN rose to ask her Majesty's Government whether any and what honours and rewards had been conferred on those native princes who had remained faithful during the Indian mutiny. The noble lord said he believed that, next to the heroism of our own troops, we were indebted for the preservation of our Indian empire during the late revolt to the forbearance and the aid of the native princes who had remained faithful to our cause, and more especially to the Nizam, Holkar, the Maharajah of Gwalior, and the Rajah of Putteala. If the Government were not at the moment prepared to enter into any detailed explanations upon that subject he would ask them whether they would be prepared to lay upon the table of the House the correspondence which had taken place between them and the Governor-general of India with respect to it.

The Duke of ARGYLL said he agreed with his noble friend as to the value of the services of those princes. The subject to which his noble friend referred had engaged the attention of the Governor-general and of the Government at home; but he was not then prepared to enter into any minute explanation with respect to it; and he would suggest to his noble friend that he should then move for copies of the despatches connected with the matter, and that he should make them the subject of discussion on a future occasion.

The Earl of ELLENBOROUGH said he believed that nothing would be more gratifying to those princes than that they should receive honours and decorations from her Majesty.

Lord LYVEDEN then moved for copies of the correspondence upon that subject.

The motion was at once agreed to.

PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION (INDIA) BILL. This Bill was read a third time and passed.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MARCH 2. REMOVAL OF THE INDIA OFFICE.

Colonel SYKES asked the Secretary of State for India whether, as he proposed transferring temporarily the business of the India-office to apartments in the Victoria Hotel, Westminster, he would take into consideration the question of the purchase of the hotel, which contains accommodation for all the departments of the India-office, and the museum and library.

INDIAN FORCES FOR CHINA.

Colonel HERBERT asked the Secretary of State for India what number of her Majesty's regiments of infantry and cavalry it was proposed to retain for service in the East Indies after the 1st of July, 1860.
